Victory garden?

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

Ever wanted to get back to the soil? Or maybe you've never been there at all and want to try.

A recommendation of the aldermanic City Planning Committee may let a good many Newton citizens see how green their thumbs really are.

Ald. David Jackson has proposed that the city make available to residents various city-owned parcels of land for garden plots this summer.

Anybody of school age or older would be eligible for a 10' x 20' plot, if he or she agrees to devote at least four hours a week to the garden.

No chickens or livestock is allowed, though, a blow to people hoping to cut down on the meat bill but reassuring to neighbors.

Potheads will have to find another source for their grass Only "legal" plants would be permitted to be grown.

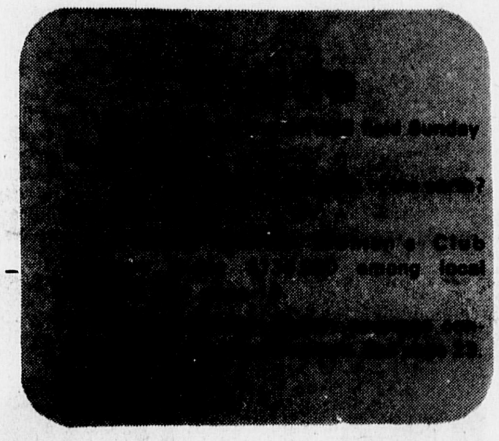

Other conditions of the proposal are that the gardener do all work during daylight hours (in other words, don't bring any lights) and use only hand tools which he or she must provide, bringing them and removing them at each gardening session.

For its part, the city would assign and stake out designated plots, do the initial breaking of the sod, and "to the extent reasonably feasible" provide water at the closest hydrant by installing a fitting for a regular garden hose yours).

How to keep other people from harvesting your crop of Big Boys and Kentucky Wonders would be your problem, not the city's.

At this stage of the proposal, which may become before

Zoning variance inquiry launched

The Newton Zoning Board of Appeals has launched an inquiry to determine whether or not the McIsaac Brothers, Auburndale Gardens developer, will be granted a zoning variance too allow construction of 140 units on Staniford Street.

This is the developer's fourth attempt to build on the site, which is located in a designated flood plain area. This try is based on the so-called "anti-snob" legislation, chapter 774, under which Newton does not meet any of the established criteria for low-income housing.

However, the question the board of appeals is weighing is whether or not the proposed construction would be hazardous to residents on the basis of flooding. Also, they must consider the conservation needs facing the city.

Serious objection on the flood plain issue came from Charles Thomas, city planning director, Sharon Francis, member of the Planning Board and Helen Heyn, secretary to the Conservation Commission.

Mrs. Francis stated that the present plan showed the "Basement elevation six inches above the flood plain boundary" which she asserted would be taking "a risk with the welfare of future residents."

As a member of the Planning Board, Mrs. Francis also noted the project was felt to be too dense for the site and that it would be "destructive" to the city's conservation needs.

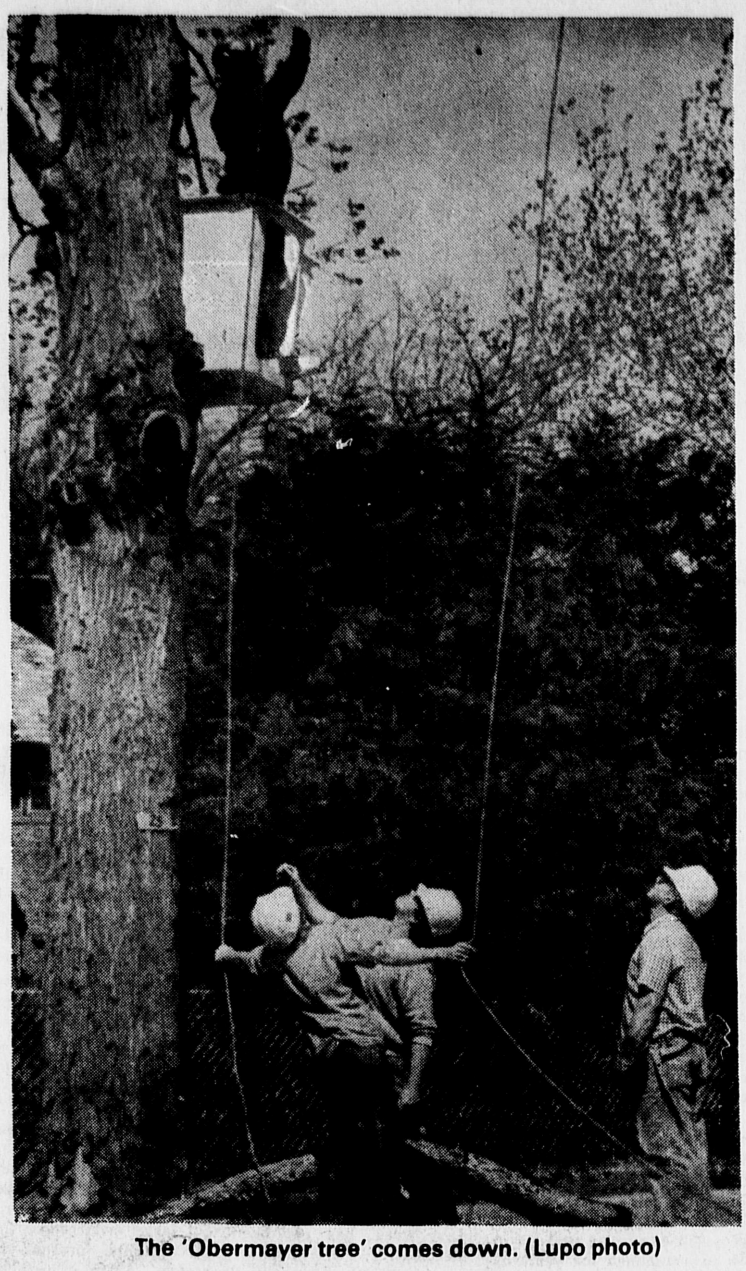

Commissioner Heyn warned the board of appeals that building on the flood plain site might interfere negatively with Newton's eligibility for flood plain insurance.

Both Mrs. Francis and Commissioner Heyn agree with the planning department position that the site should be acquired by the city to be preserved for conservation and recreation purposes and utilize the high portion of the land to build low-income housing through the Newton Housing Authority. According to the Planning Department report, this "would avoid the negative impact of the more intense development currently proposed."

Also answering questions at the April 24 meeting were representatives of the Newton Fire and Police Departments. Lt. Fitzsimmons stated the Fire Department would not object to the construction of the apartments provided the developer build a second access too the site. Unless this was done he felt it would constitute a "dangerous situation."

Attorney for the developer, Lawrence Shubow, argued that the Auburndale Park parking lot could be used in "life-saving" emergencies. However, the chairman of the board of appeals, Champe A. Fisher had doubts about the safety of that situation.

The board asked the developer to grant them a 30-day extension to work on this matter on the terms that if no decision is reached, an affirmative decision automatically goes to the developer. According to City Hall sources, this extension is simply to allow the city solicitor's office time to write a "complicated" opinion for the Zoning Board of Appeals.

'No tax deals' for NRA's developer

By ELEANOR SIEGEL

"There will be no special tax deals" for Spaulding and Slye, proposed commercial developers for the Newton Redevelopment Authority's Lower Falls project, said Philip Waterman of the Newton assessors' office.

The prospects for a go-ahead on this long awaited project grow increasingly dim.

However, Alexander Beal, a real estate appraiser hired by the developer arranged a meeting with the assessors, Spaulding and Slye representatives and Paul Reinhard, reevaluation project supervisor for Cole-Layer-Trumble, to discuss the tax problem.

No agreement was reached. Waterman said the assessors reiterated their position. If Spaulding and Slye backed out of the project, it would lose $61,000 or 10 per cent of the down payment on the cost of the land, according to Gerald Early, NRA executive director.

Spaulding and Slye announced to the NRA on April 10 that it discovered the "taxes for the projects will be twice the amount projected," making the project "unfeasible."

According to Waterman, although an exact figure is difficilt to produce based on the "sketchy" indormation supplied by the developer to the assessors' office the developer has been told the range will be 25-26 per cent of gross income.

Spaulding and Slye's figure, says Waterman, is based on 10-11 per cent of gross income. "There is no way in the world we can go along with that," says Waterman. He also pointed out that Spaulding and Slye never checked with the assessors' office to investigate the taxes.

William Whelan, project manager for the developer, admitted this, stating that the projections were "based on comparable buildings along 128 in Wellesley and Burlington."

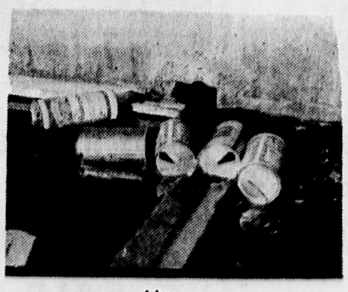

Waterman stated that Spaulding and Slye told the assessors' office this also and that the developer was then asked for the figures "which have not been produced yet." Whelan had told NRA members that this problem

City officials hear Cabot Park grievances

Long pent-up complaints about traffic, playground drinking, and vandalism at Cabot Park erupted at what was planned to be a quiet meeting between neighbors and city officials this week.

The meeting at City Hall Monday night, attended by about 70 persons, was called by Rep. Lois Pines.

Litter

The complaints ranged from uncontrolled late-night noise and drinking and deliberate breaking of glass, to police disregard of continuous traffic problems, speeding, and vandalism of the park building and nearby buildings.

Mrs. Irene Karayan of East Side Parkway said the morning after the meeting that she had asked Rep. Pines to call the meeting.

She complained of speeding, racing cars, and one recent instance in which about 80 young people were gathered in the park at night.

Another neighbor on East Side Parkway, Mrs. Barbara Doyle, described conditions in the park as having inproved since neighbors first enlisted the help of Rep. Pines, who asked Chief Quinn for greater police attention.

Mrs. Doyle said she thinks that increased patroling of the park if continued through the summer, might break up the great number of young people who congregate there and prevent the night gatherings in the future.

Controversial tree felled Wednesday

By CYNTHIA BLACK
Of The Graphic Staff

Wednesday morning Newton had its first funeral for a tree.

Mourning neighbors stood by and watched as a city forestry crew returned to 239 Chestnut St. to fell the "Obermayer tree."

This time the tree came down.

At 11:15 a.m. the last massive limb of the controversial tree on city property hit the street. The crew had begun working at 10 a.m. and was expected to complete the entire tree removal job Wednesday.

The six-man crew, of which three were members of the crew sent on March 14 to cut this tree down, was backed up by three uniformed police officers and played host to a shifting group of neighbors, passersby and fellow city workers.

The real deathblow to the tree came Monday when Superior Court Judge Robert Hallisey lifted a restraining order barring the city from cutting down the tree. Hallisey originally issued the restraining order on the basis that Arthur S. Obermayer of 239 Chestnut St., the party seeking to stop removal of this tree, put up a $100,000 bond indemnifying the city against any liability involving the tree.

Obermayer offered a $100,000 insurance policy instead of the bond and it was orginally accepted by the judge.

Last week, City Solicitor Howard Levine went back to court to argue against acceptance of the insurance policy, stating that the policy took away workmen's compensation benefits in case of injury to city employees working under or near the tree, that the policy conflicted with the city law that the city solicitor must represent the city in all suits against the city because it called for representation by insurance company lawyers, and that anyone injured by the tree would have no recourse under the law.

Judge Hallisey Tuesday, April 23, vacated his decision accepting the insurance policy and gave Obermayer until 5 p.m. Monday, April 29, to come up with the $100,000 bond.

Obermayer, who declined too say anything when contacted shortly after 5 p.m. Monday, issued a statement Tuesday morning saying that it was "beyond my personal financial capacity" to put up the bond.

It would cost me $1,000 for the premium, it would require my placing $100,000 in collateral in an escrow account, and it would make me personally liable in case of accidents over which I had no control," Obermayer said in his statement.

"I have already overextended myself, and this is just too much."

Solicitor Levine verified the judge's ruling tht the restraining order was vacated on Tuesday and officially informed the administration there were no more legal restraints on cutting down the tree last Tuesday afternoon.

Wilfred Gingras, foreman of the forestry crew that attemptedd to take this tree down Feb. 22 and March 14, was again in charge Wednesday.

Asked how he felt about removing this treehe said: "I don't care one way or another. I don't care if this treestands here for the next 100 years."

Gingras and his crew were halted March 14 by Obermayer and Samuel Robbins, a neighbor on Prince street.

Obermayer has testified in court that he attempted too disrupt the crew's work by putting the Skyworker truck they were using in reverse and then back in neutral. He faces criminal charges of assault and battery based on his action which allegedly injured the man working up in the tree on that crew. He ais also charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Robbins, last week, had a charge of "threatening" continued for three months by the court. He confronted the forestry crew March 14 with a gun.

Last week, when the judge continued the case without a ruling, he also ordered the gun dismantled and admonished Robbins for threatening the forestry workers.

The tree climber March 14, Gene Machain, was not on the crew Wednesday. Gingras said

Newton woman found dead

Boston police Wednesday identified a young woman whose severely beaten body was found Tuesday in Jamaica Pond.

The woman, Mrs. June M. Dephoure, 34-years-old and mother of a 14-year-old daughter, was identified by her husband, Robert.

Mrs. Dephoure lived at 17 Braemore Rd., Newton, and her husband is a teacher at Newton North High School.

Her battered head was lying in about six inches of water. Pieces of hair, some gold earrings and beer cans were found nearby and police said there was blood on a stone path near the water's edge, indicating the woman had struggled with her killer.

She was dressed in blue jeans, a dark blue short-sleeved shirt but had nothing on her feet, police said.

The 'daring' conductor completes 8th season

Michel Sasson became a conductor on a dare.

The Newton Symphony conductor recalls "fiddling away in the BSO" and deciding he was in need of a hobby.

"Well," he said a friend commented, "you're always criticizing conductors, why don't you take that up?"

The idea appealed to him. A conductor;

MICHAEL SASSON

yes, a good idea. ut, he remembers thinking, "what will I conduct?"

Sasson, a recent transplant to Brookline, was living in Newton at the time he discovered he needed a hobby, so the friend suggested he take a crack at conducting the Newton Symphony Orchestra.

He liked the idea.

An orchestra on his home turf.

"But there wasn't one," he said.

It was 1967 and there was no such thing as a Newton Symphony Orchestra.

"This came as a shock to me," he related in an interview. "Every single little town in New England has an orchestra — it's a community symbol.

Sasson found a woman by the name of Nan Bennett and it was really her efforts, he said, that got the Newton Symphony started.

"She went to Mayor Basbas, she raised the money and we started advertising for musicians with posters that said 'Come blow your horn with the Newton Symphony Orchestra.' "

Sunday, May 5, the Newton Symphony Orchestra will finish its eighth seasnon with an area premiere of Mahler's "Das Klagende Lied."

Area premieres and the performance of works not done by powerhouse orchestras like the Boston Symphony have become Sasson trademarks with the local orchestra.

The Newton Symphony, Sasson pointed out, draws a lot of audience support from BSO regulars.

Sasson, whose hobby as a conductor blossomed into a full scale career, not only conducts the local orchestra but leads the Brockton Symphony and the Boston Ballet Orchestra as well. In his "spare time," he continues as a violinist in the BSO.

Sasson was asked what he thinks the role of the local symphony is in this community in particular.

He pointed with pride to the 70 to 80 musicians normally comprising the orchestra of which 65 per cent are Newton people whose main work in life is not instrumental, but who attack their musical job with dedication, zest, and professionality.

"The Newton Symphony is a showcase for performers here to express themselves," he said. "It is a truly artistic, musical organization in the sense it plays musical

Going South

A look at South festival

By ANDY FIELDING

Spring, as one romantic once observed, is the time when people's thoughts turn away from work and turn towards love.

Every spring at Newton South High, however, one might say that there is a nice combination of the tow. This Tuesday (May 7) marks the beginning of the five-day-long eighth annual May Arts Festival, certainly a lot of work for those who are involved, but truly a labor of love. And whether you help plan it or just attend it, you'll be sure to have a great time.

The Arts Festival is undoubtedly one of the most refreshing and enjoyable weeks during the school year, in which a cross-section of the creativity of the school community is brought together in a maze of performances, productions, exhibits, and displays. It's simply fantastic.

This year's festival schedule looks like this·

TUESDAY, May 7

On Tuesday evening, student films, slide tapes, and modern dance will be featured. In addition, everyone in the school is being asked to kick off the festival that day by dressing up in costumes and creative garb. Prizes (of May Arts tickets), will be awarded for the most original face make-up, for the most bizarre costume, for the best historical costume, for the best fictitious duplication, and for the wildest hair style.

The Art Department will open up its doors on Tuesday (and will stay open throughout the entire festival), and will feature exhibits of student painting, photography, sculpture, and pottery, as well as various demonstrations.

WEDNESDAY, May 8

Wednesday evening will feature thw school's band, orchestra, and Concert Choir. There will also be an Industrial Arts display.

THURSDAY, May 9

The annual Folk Music Concert will take place in the evening, as well as the first performance of the one-act play "Speak First, It's Your Dime," written by Dan Veaner, a South alumnus.

FRIDAY, May 10

The second performance of "Speak First, It's Your Dime," will be followed by the annual faculty show (which was undoubtedly one of the high points of last year's festival).

SATURDAY, May 11

The dance club will give an evening recital in the school's auditorium, while the annual Rock and Roll Concert is in progress

Members of the Newton community are invited (and are encouraged) to attend at least some of the activities of the festival. Tickets can be obtained at the door for the particular nights, or one ticket can be purchased which entitles you to attend all of the various actvities

Newton named bicentennial city

Mayor Theodore D. Mann announced this week that Newton has officially been designated as a bicentennial community by the National Bicentennial Committee. On March 1, 1974, the city first filed its application to be named a Bicentennial Community, agreeing to plan its celebration around the three dominant themes: Heritage '76; Festival USA; and Horizons '76. The goal of the National Bicentennial Committee is to involve as many communities as possible in this celebration of both our past and our future.

The Newton Bicentennial Committee is composed of Alderman Wendell R. Bauckman; Esther Steinberg; John Nixon; Virginia Tashjian, head librarian for the city of Newton; Charles Thomas, city planner for Newton; Edward Lerner; Alan Larkin; Anne Frager; Maria Sullivan; Roger Morrocco; Richard Foley; and Linda Plaut.

This committee hopes to honor and reaffirm the real spirit of 1776 through projects of lasting value which will revitalize our sense of community, improve the quality of our environment and help to provide a basis for living and growing together into our third century as free people.

The committee is aimed at encouraging all the citizens of the city of Newton to participate both in the planning of events and the actual enjoyment of them.

The Newton Bicentennial Committee hopes to erect a living memorial of our past heritage and construct a bikeway-walkway, linking eleven villages of the city. A People's Fair at City Hall is also in the planning stages as well as a Crystal Lake Regatta, the improvement of our historical markers, and a local beautification program.

Mayor Mann stated, "It is a great honor and privilege to be chosen as a Bicentennial Community. It is a national distinction and we want to do our best as a united city to proudly celebrate our Nation's 200th Anniversary by affording maximum participation of all our citizens. We want the people of Newton to be an integal part of this city's efforts to honor our nation's past."

5000 housing units needed here, DCA says, but won't fund 20

As the Housing Authority gets farther and farther behind in filling the city's low-income housing needs, prospects seem dim for a quick solution to the state funding impasse for housing on Beaconwood Road.

At about the same time that the Department of Community Affairs, the funding agency, informally instructed the Housing Authority to reject the most recent bids for 20 units of housing at the Newton Highlands site, the DCA issued a statewide estimate of housing needs in which Newton is listed ashaving a total low- and moderate-income housing need of 5,190 units.

The Newton Housing Authority currently operates 223 apartments for the elderly in NHA-owned buildings and conducts a leased-housing program of 84 apartments for the elderly and 103 apartments for low-income families, according to the most recent statistical report for the period ending March 31 — a total of 410 units

There is no moderate-income housing in Newton under any housing program.

Since the DCA rejection of the second set of bids on proposed Authority housing, Mayor Theodore Mann has been negotiating with DCA Commissioner Lewis Crampton in an effort to find some way of getting the housing built.

Although the second bids on the Beaconwood project were several thousand dollars per unit lower than the first, which were for all three of the Housing Authority proposed projects, the per-unit price of $43,000, excluding land, again exceeded DCA guidelines. DCA suggested rehabilitation of existing houses as an alternative to new construction.

Sylvester Sylvia, director of housing assistance for the DCA, said this week that "possible negotiations may take place between the Housing Authority and the DCA to make it possible to build."

These negotiations wereplanned for yesterday (Wednesday), in Mayor Mann's office, according to several sources.

Among the points to be negotiated and the possibility of rezoning the Beaconwood Land to allow a greater density and therefore a lower cost per unit.

Another possibility is that the city could assume the cost of putting inthe street or bring water to the site

The failure of the Beaconwood site might also cause the demise of the Housing Authority's two other sites for low-income family and elderly housing, because by order of the Board of Aldermen the three sites are to be treated as a package. Housing is not to be built on only one site.

The Beaconwood Road property is not yet owned by the Housing Authority. The owners, the Ciccone family, will fight landtaking procedures and members of the family have already filed plans for a subdivision of the land.

The right of the Planning Board to issue subdivision approval to the Housing Authority has been challenged in court by the Ciccones. The outcome of the hearing, held last week, has not been decided

Another approach to filling the need for moderate-income and low-income housing is a little-used state law, Chapter 774, which sets a percentage of buildable land area and a percentage of housing units as criteria for whether a community's zoning regulations are too restrictive against housing.

One developer is presently before the Zoning Board of Appeals on the grounds that under Chapter 774 the city is far short of its allocated number of units of low- and moderate-income housing.

The Department of Community Affairs repor. on housing needs estimates that some 400,000 units are needed in the state, of which 71 per cent "could best be served by rent or mortgage supplement."

The major area of need was found to be low-income, nonelderly families

Several policy shifts on the part of the DCA were reported, including support of an increase of funds for rehabilitation of existing multifamily dwellings and support of pending "turnkey" legislation that would allow new construction to be carried out faster and cheaper than through the present bid system

The DCA would also favor greater emphasis on rental assistance and on state aid to communities to offset the increased cost of municipal services incurred by low- and moderate-income housign. Such a step would lessen the burden to local property owners and be an inducement to participation in statewide programs.

Hearings planned on personal privacy

On Friday, May 3, and Saturday, May 11, the Special Legislative Commission on Privacy will conduct hearings to allow public participation on the issue of personal privacy.

The commission co-chairmen, Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton) and Sen. Chester Atkins (D-Acton), are planning an agenda which will include testimony from both private citizens and public officials

The May 3 hearing will take place at the Massachusetts State House in Room 436 at 2 p.m. The May 11 hearing will be conducted in cooperation with the Western Massachusetts Data Bank Task Force and will take place at the Campus Center at University of Massachusetts, Amherst, at 2 p.m. This hearing will be part of an all-day symposium on privacy.

"A greater public awareness through the vehicle of public hearings and conferences will provide a better informed and vigilant public," Mofenson said. "The erosion of a fundamental right," he added, "will continue to occur if we do not begin to safeguard automated and manual data systems. The commission has been moving in this direction through comprehensive legislation."

Gershwin honored in television special

"Forever Gershwin," a WCVB-TV locally-produced special celebrating the late American composer George Gershwin's 75th anniversary, will be telecast on Channel 5, Friday, May 3, 7:30 - 8 p.m.

Through narrations by composer Kay Swift and biographer Edward Jablonski, Gershwin songs sung by Meredith d'Ambrosio, and film sequences shot in New York and Boston, Gershwin's life and talent are remembered.

Swift, a close friend of the composer, wrote such hits as "Fine and Dandy" and "Can't We Be Friends." Jablonski is the co-author (with Lawrence Stewart) of "The Gershwin Years," a biography of the composer and his lyricist brother, Ira. Ms. d'Ambrosio, from Newton, is well known for her Gershwin renditions.

Scenes of Boston's Back Bay station and New York's Central Park supply the background for excerpts of Gershwin pieces: "Rhapsody in Blue," which was conceived on a train to Boston, "Concerto in F," and "Second Rhapsody For Piano and Orchestra." Ms. d'Ambrosio sings "Nice Work If You Can Get It," "Someone To Watch Over Me," "But Not For Me," and "The Man I Love."

Three days following the special (Friday, May 6, 9:00 - 11:30 p.m.), Channel 5 will further commemorate Gershwin's anniversary with a special presentation of the Otto Preminger movie, "Porgy and Bess." The movie is based on one of Gershwin's finest operats which premiered at Boston's Colonial Theater in 1935. The movie will be introduced and hosted by Channel 5's Frank Avruch and will include a taped interview with Kay Swift in the Boston Public Garden.

Medal

The Freedoms Foundation of Valley Forge, Pa., has awarded the Freedoms Foundation medal to Mrs. Andy Marshall of Newton. Lt. Gov. Donald Dwight made the presentation.

Jury questionnaires due back this month

The Election Commission has mailed 2,500 jury questionnaires to Newton residents. The questionnaires must be returned by May 31.

Of the 2,500 people receiving questionnaires, 300 to 400 will be chosen for possible jury duty. Their names will remain on the jury list for three years unless they serve.

This year a parent having custody or daily supervision of a child under age 15 may be exempted from jury duty. The parent may also waive the right to an exemption.

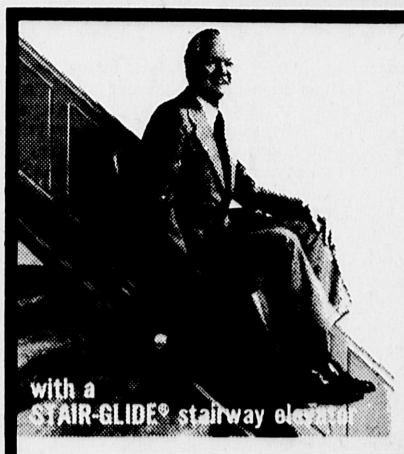

Previously this exemption applied only to a mother of a child under age 16.

For the first time, this year's questionnaire will be the same for men and women, and will ask the occupation of spouse, not only of the husband.

Persons with occupations usually exempted, such as teachers, doctors, and nurses, may waive exemption.

Exemption hearings will be held before the Election Commission May 21 and May 22.

GALS march onto the field Sunday

By ELEANOR SIEGEL

On May 5, when the National League marches onto the field, the players will sport jaunty caps, carry bats of soft pastel hues and wear brilliantly gleaming T-shirts proclaiming the arrival of the Girls Associated League for Softball (GALS).

Overlooking this scene will be the MAN largely responsible for GALS, Richard Halperin, assessing the results of some hard ork by himself and a handful of other men and one woman.

Dick maintains GALS didn't happen to "avoid a confrontation between the girls and Newton's Little Leaguers . . . didn't happen to jump on the band wagon of the woman's rights movement.

It occurred as a natural outgrowth. Halperin, as a manager of a boys Little League team would "allow anyone to join us and at times girls would come down and we'd let them play. One mother, Judy Hunter watched the girls play and never thought much about it until her daughter, Jackie, wanted to get on a team." According to Halperin "Judy made the first call" and things started to roll.

How does he feel about girls and boys playing on a team? He says they shouldn't, but not for the usual reasons. Halperin feels the adults aren't ready for this kind of team.

He also tosses in the psychological argument that girls who perform better than a boy may subject that youngster to some cruel teasing. And Halperin says that girls from 9-12 are usually more coordinated than the boys at the same age and are just as "competitive and tough."

Interestingly enough, Halperin found discrimination from mothers "who make sure their sons get back and forth for a game, but who won't extend the same effort or spend a nickel on their daughters.' He found a new double standard set up by "mothers who don't mind their sons biking across town for a game but want their daughters to play near home."

Four fathers however, have come forth to manage their daughter's teams. And one manager, Mary Norton, has no daughters but says she'll do this to take advantage of an "opportunity to help some girls."

There are 400 girls from 9-12, signed up and divided into 25 teams. Halperin says "we'd like to have more, but we don't have anymore help."

The name was thought up by 12-year-old Scott Hunter. Members of the teams donated $15 to defray equipment costs which Halperin estimates at $150 a team. Each team is insured. Parents have been promised a statement showing how the money was spent.

Halperin, a bachelor, who is Marketing Director for American Finish and Chemical Company, has gotten a big assist from his brother, Robert. He sees the association as an opportunity for girls to "find themselves, to learn confidence, to learn how to play by the rules and be part of a team."

For girls who felt they were sold short because they really wanted to play baseball, Halperin says next year the association hopes to have two leagues "one for baseball and one

State resource recovery system seen as solution to rubbish problem

The report by Camp Dresser & McKee on the formation of a Newton-Waltham regional refuse disposal district was accepted by the district committee last night and will be forwarded to the mayors of both cities as soon as it can be finally printed.

In short, the CDM report does not specifically advocate the formation of an operational joint refuse-disposal operation but suggests that the two cities try to continue a district in order to work for a state resource-recovery system for Newton, Waltham, and other nearby communities.

Camp Dresser &McKee is in process of preparing requests for proposals for disposal of refuse for the two cities and for each city alone

If the cost per ton of rubbish is less for the two cities combined, there seems to be a good chance that the cities will continue the administrative district.

If the cost is about the same for each city alone, the district would probably go out of existence, because there would be no immediate benefits to its continuation.

Newton's incinerator is due to be shut down after the end of this year, and Waltham's must not burn after June 30, so the cities must find an alternate method of disposal

Waltham's Public Works Director Edward F. Delaney said at Tuesday's meeting of the district committee that he will formally request the district to recommend to Mayor Theodore Mann of Newton that Waltham be allowed to dispose of 50 tons of rubbish a day in the Newton incinerator, paying the "prevailing rate "

Since any resource-recovery system is at least five years off, the recommendation of CDM is to convert the Newton incinerator to a transfer-haul station to serve both com munities.

Two sites in Waltham are recommended for use for the resource-recovery plant. The first choice is one near Winter Street and Route 128 and the other is near Route 128 and Route 20

Sites proposed for the residue landfill area for the resource-recovery plant are state land at the Metropolitan State Hospital in Waltham and the city-owned Sawyer Road site in Waltham

The vote to accept the report was a tentative one, due to a lack of a quorum of the district committee. The vote will be reaffirmed at a full meeting.

The planning district is behind schedule in its submission of a report on the feasibility of the Newton-Waltham regional refuse disposal district. According to the agreement drawn up between the two cities, the district committee was to have completed a report to both mayors by March 31. The report was to have been submitted to the legislative body of each city by April 30, with action for or against by the bodies taken by July 1

It appears that the committee's report, based on the Camp Dresser &McKee report,

Youths arrested at parking lot disturbance

Newton police charged five youths with being disorderly persons last week after a disturbance in the parking lot of King's Department Store, 150 California St., Newton.

A Newton police officer reportedly called for assistance at 10 p.m. Friday night. Police observed 300 youths in a carnival area in the parking lot, and numerous fights were reportedly breaking out.

Watertown police also arrived at the scene, and helped clear their part of the lot.

Charged with being disorderly persons by Newton police were Wilfred W. Gingras, 73 Highland Ave., Watertown, age 17; Carmen P. Fugazzotto, 7 Arundel Terr., Newton, age 17; Kevin J. Arsenault, 10 Quirk Ct., Newton, age 17; Peter H. Kelley, 488 Watertown St., Newton, age 18 and a 16-year-old Watertown youth.

The carnival was reportedly closed at 10:20 p.m.

There were several breaking and enterings reported over the weekend.

A diamond bracelet valued at $1500 was reported missing from 574 Beacon St., Newton Centre. Bedrooms were reportedly ransacked and ear rings and a pocket watch were also allegedly taken.

A break at 26 Nancy Rd., Chestnut Hill was reported on Sunday. Entrance was allegedly gained by using a step ladder and smashing a bedroom window. Reported missing were two fur jackets and assorted silverware.

A break at 8 Washington Park, Newtonville reportedly netted a stereo receiver, a turntable and a black and white Sony television. Entrance was allegedly gained by forcing a rear kitchen door.

A break at 86 Hyde Ave., Newton was reported on Saturday. A first floor rear kitchen door was reportedly kicked in, and assorted jewelry, silverware and several bottles of liquor were reported missing. Jewelry was allegedly taken from the second floor of the two-family dwelling.

Newton police arrested four juveniles on Saturday for larceny of a motor vehicle and possession of burglarious tools. Two of the youths were also charged with attempted larceny of a motor vehicle.

PPolice responded to a call from a security guard at Imperial Towers, 280 Boylston St., Chestnut Hill. He reported that a car had been driving around in the parking lot. The arrests were made after investigation by police.

Malicious damage to the 349 Lounge, 349 Watertown St. was reported on Saturday. A car allegedly rammed into a rear door and an inner and outer door were smashed.

Springthing is coming

"Springthing '74," the first citywide cultural arts festival sponsored by the Newton Cultural Affairs Commission, will be held Sunday, May 19, at City Hall.

The day-long event will feature music, art, poetry, drama, crafts and foods and will end with an evening of square dancing.

The grounds will open at 9 a.m. Sunday morning. A separate area, set aside for a children's fair, will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The rest of the fair will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. with square dancing beginning at 7 p.m.

Groups scheduled to perform during the day at the festival include the Highlands Glee Club, the Newton Civic Ballet, the Union Grape, the Newton North Jazz Group and the Smith Family.

In addition, schools with groups participating include: the Warren and Day junior high school stage bands, the All-Newton Elementary School Orchestra, the Ward Singers, the Hyde School Chorus and the F. A. Day Special Chorus.

Drama groups giving performances during the day will begin at 1 a.m. with a performance of "Cinderella" by the Pomeroy House Players. At noon, the Murray Road drama group will be on stage and the Newton Country Players will follow at 1 p.m. with a staging of "Eve's Complaint."

The Newton Theater Company will appear at 2 p.m.; and at 3 p.m., the YMCA players will present "Midsummer Night's Dream."

The Newton Junior College Theater group will appear at 4 p.m.

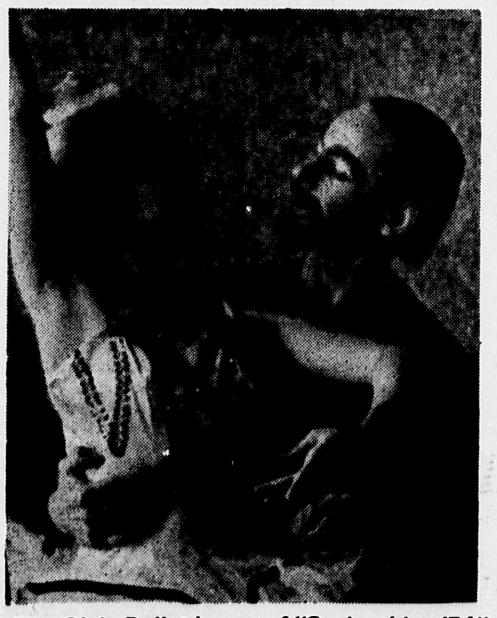

Springthing '74 will also feature between 40 and 50 booths with novel food, crafts and items for sale. Already signed up are a clockmaker and a quiltmaker and several groups serving a variety of foreign foods.

In conjunction with Springthing, the Cultural Affairs Commission is planning an art show open to all Newton resident artists to be held in Memorial Auditorium from May 19 to June 7.

Half of the show's works will be drawn from invited artists and a juried section including crafts, sculpture, paintings and graphics will be featured.

The receiving date for the juried show is Friday, May 17, 9 a.m. to noon. Jurying will take place that evening

The juried works will be on display through June 7 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m

The Civic Ballet is part of "Springthing '74"

Working conditions at city garage subject of hearing

A hearing will be held before the aldermanic Public Works Committee tonight (Thursday) on findings of a state investigation of working conditions at the Crafts Street city garage.

A report issued by a state safety inspector lists eight recommendations based on observed safety and health hazards.

The majority of the problems were due either to insufficient ventilation or to poor safety precautions with equipment operation.

Excessive carbon monoxide concentrations found in the repair area, the report said, could be eliminated by restriciting the number of vehicles in the area to the designated seven. If more than this number are allowed, additional exhaust ventilation should be provided.

A 24-inch exhaust fan for the heavy-equipment area and two fans to remove welding fumes from the blacksmith shop have been recommended.

An open container of gasoline was found to be stored in the spray-painting room, as was an oil-fired steam cleaner. The report points out "the serious fire hazard" involved with an open flame in the spray room.

Exposed electrical wiring was found in the spray room, which does not have explosion-proof lighting. The report calls for covering of the wiring, installation of explosion-proof lighting, and a particulate collector at the spray-room exhaust fans to prevent discharge of paint particles into the environment.

Respirators should be worn by employees during the spray-painting operation, the report said.

Street Department Safety Officer George Mead declined early this week to comment on the safety hazards found in the garage. "This has been handled by other people," he said.

Asked whether he would participate in the hearing tonight, Mead said he had not been notified of the meeting.

Building Commissioner Gene Larson said Tuesday that some of the recommendations of the report have already been followed. His department has taken care of the wiring and relocation of the gasoline and steam cleaner.

Good question

One of Boston's respected attorneys has questioned the right of the Internal Revenue Service to continue allowing deductions for contributions made to the Civil Liberties Union as a non-political organization.

This question has been raised by Attorney Hirsh Freed who has a record for supporting liberal candidates and causes.

Freed declares that at one time the Civil Liberties Union fought exclusively for the civil rights of the downtrodden and especially for the right of free speech.

But Attorney Freed adds that the CLU now has converted itself "into a straight out-and-out political organization" by calling for the impeachment of President Nixon and being active on other matters "in a purely partisan and political way."

Mr. Freed's point seems to be well taken. It would appear that the Civil Liberties Union has forfeited its right to have its contributors take income tax deductions on their donations.

Big guns

The National Rifle Association has taken its big gun out of the holster and labeled itself for what it really is a lobbyist group.

The decision to officially take the lobbyist label reflects more than a little concern by the NRA over the mounting pressure for stricter handgun controls.

In Massachusetts the citizen-interest group working towards tighter gun control laws is the organization which calls itself "People vs. Handguns." In Rhode Island the anti-hand gun proponents call themselves "Handgun Alert." In Illinois those who want to see handguns far less easy to get than they have been is called the Committee for Handgun Control

And just about every state sees growing support for stricter controls That's probably why the NRA decided to take off the kid gloves to declare itself what many think it has been for some time, a lobbyist group

We should not think for a moment that NRA is for handing out guns to everyone. On the contrary. The association has said all along that if gun laws that are now on the books were enforced then that alone would be a form of control that would be tremendously effective. But the laws are lenient for illegal gun packers. And so are the sentances that are softly handed out for offenders.

A Boston policeman said recently what many feel: "Make it a mandatory jail sentence for everyone who is illegally carrying a gun." That makes a lot of sense.

The NRA's decision to declare itself a lobby has cost that organization a great deal of money. No longer will they be able to operate as a tax exempt organization. That's how badly NRA apparently wants to beat proposed handgun regulations.

The sporting posture is losing stature.

It's possible to go 'to the ends of the earth'

By CYNTHIA BLACK

I love fountains

There's nothing cool blue about fountains; they're really cool green and they are jungles and waterfalls and lush forests and a pool of fresh air in the summer heat.

Therefore, I heard the sound of the fountain the minute I walked in "From the Ends of the Earth" Friday

This tasteful, clever, ingenious Auburndale shop, closed by an untimely death, has now reopened under the watchful eye of Jerry Bodner.

And Jerry has saved the tasteful selectivity and accomodating French menu that made the place a landmark. Mr. Bodner, too, has embellished on the original theme with innovations and touches of his own.

That cool quiet restaurant, with the fountain, has been enlarged and the French food is meticulously prepared with the menu changing on a weekly basis.

Bodner says "quality" is the watchword in the whole place.

Completely Black

I'd add selectivity

From the Ends of the Earth has been open for three weeks now, and when people walk in the door, they tend to express their basic delight that this novel shop is back in business.

Bodner introduced the "garden like" atmosphere, and features plants and all types of gifts as his main sale items.

His items come from Europe, Mexico and the United States with prices ranging generally between $5 and $20.

Bodner, a real estate executive, acquired the Auburndale landmark at an auction.

"I bought it to satisfy my compulsion for buying," he said.

His compulsion is so great, he pointed out, that three days before he was scheduled for open heart surgery here, he was in New York City ordering items for the store. Just five weeks out of the hospital when the shop reopened, Bodner continued completing his inventory from his hospital bed via telephone.

Trying to preserve the existing atmosphere of the store, Bodner did repaint, change the lighting and make the charming restaurant a little bigger.

The atmosphere is open, natural, wood-scented and fountain enhanced.

In the future, the new owner said, he'd like to expand the restaurant to dinner service, and is considering putting some kind of movie theater in the basement.

"My goal is to really make this place successful," he says simply.

Take a look. To the Ends of the Earth, the building with the brilliant graphic design overlooking the bleakness of the Turnpike, is on Auburn Street in Auburndale Square.

And in particular, for a different kind of lunch, always stop there.

Prisoners at Walpole enjoy catered meals

A catering service now provides all the meals for the inmates at the Walpole State Prison. The prisoners used to clear the tables and wash the dishes. That work now is done for them at public expense by the employees of the private catering firm.

This was pointed out by Attorney George L. Sacco of Medford, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General, to support his contention that we treat convicts at Walpole better than we do 16-year-old juvenile first-offenders.

Sacco is an attractive, highly articulate candidate, with strong ideas on law and order and protection of the public.

He is the only candidate for state-wide office who has taken a public stand in favor of the restoration of the death penalty on the Massachusetts statute books.

Sacco not only maintains that the death penalty would be a deterrent to murder, but he also believes that persons convicted of committing a heinous, senseless, intentional murder should be put to death in the electric chair.

"We must save the potential victim, "Sacco declared in an interview. "I support rehabilitation over incarceration. I'm for prison reform. But it is time we started caring about the victim and the safety of all the people."

Sacco sharply criticized the operation of the youth service program and the handling of youthful offenders under 17 years of age in Massachusetts.

He said that a boy sentenced to the Judge Connolly Detention Centre finds no meaningful program and nothing to do there. The youths just sit around most of the time. When Sacco personally visited the Detention Centre, he observed burns which the boys apparently had inflicted on themselves in some sort of game.

Sacco charged that the entire Youth Service Board" is in utter chaos and is guilty of what borders on criminal negligence."

"The legislative report on the Youth Service Board corroborated what I have been saying for the past two years," Sacco asserted. "Basically, that was what Dr. Jerome Miller, the former Commissioner of Youth Services, now the Director of Child Care Services in Illinois, squandered millions of dollars while he was here in Massachusetts. And still today money is being wasted. Programs are meaningless.

"Most important, the children are not being offered a real chance of rehabilitation," Sacco maintained.

He explained that Massachusetts no longer has well-run and adequately-staffed Youth Centres. "We have community-based centres or half-way houses which are really private agencies financed and supported by the state," Sacco said.

Attorney Sacco disclosed that ex-convicts and prisoners on work-release programs are employed by the private agencies. "Many of them are unfit and undesirable and certainly are not qualified to handle the rehabilitation of young people," Sacco added.

"We furlough first-degree murderers from Walpole while we frustrate 16-year-old juvenile offenders in need of help," Sacco exclaimed.

"If we are going to stop crime, we must divert the youngsters, who may get into trouble, to a more productive area of life, possibly a vocational training program or some other educational program appropriate for them. We have to get at the root of the problem," he said.

"When I am Attorney General, I will try a new approach to this problem. For years we have been throwing away the taxpayers' dollars in this field. We have tried to work with the troubled youth—the youngsters who have gone astray—and have spent a great deal of money on them, but it hasn't worked. We are failing the taxpayers and the kids themselves.

"My approach will be different." Sacco emphasized. "Most of our young people are good youngsters. Maybe it is time we started to try to utilize their talents—to get them to work with us. We can use the good boys and girls to help us. Young people will listen to young people."

Sacco charged that the prison furlough system "is being mismanaged. There are no real rules or regulations governing it. There is no sensible procedure for eligibility for a furlough. Nobody can really explain who gets a furlough and who doesn't."

He maintaied that no dangerous criminal should be furloughed and "placed on the street where he is a potential menace to the general public."

"The State Correction Department must be held responsible for a prisoner's conduct when he commits another crime while he is on a furlough," Sacco declared.

Attorney George Sacco, who advocates the restoration of the death penalty, who believes that some murderers should actually be put to death by electrocution, who favors a tightening of the prison furlough system, made it crystal clear that his first objective will be to protect the law-abiding people of Massachusetts if he is elected the state's next Attorney General.

Dem. leaders hope to limit Congress gains

Some Democratic gains in Congress would be inevitable this year even if there had been no Watergate scandals.

The political party controlling the White House traditionally and historically loses congressional seats in a mid-term election. In the ordinary course of events the GOP losses would be heavy after a landslide victory such as President Nixon achieved in 1972.

The Watergate mess unquestionably has caused a shift of some voters from the Republican to the Democratic party and will mean the Republican losses and Democratic gains in Congress next November will be even heavier than might normally be expected.

Every Republican Congressman in a tight district, who is not a political powerhouse in his own right, has cause for concern about next November's election.

But paradoxical as it may seem, Democratic leaders on Capitol Hill are hoping that their party's gains in Congress next autumn will not be too great.

You might assume that the Democratic chieftains would want to win all the seats in Congress and put the Republican party out of business. However, that is not the case.

Democratic bosses on Capitol Hill want enough party strength in Congress to be able to override a Presidential veto with something to spare.

But when Democratic strength in the national House, for example, goes beyond a certain point, it creates difficult problems for party leaders.

That happened after the 1936 Presidential election when Franklin D. Roosevelt, at the peak of his popularity, captured 46 of the then 48 states and carried an overwhelmingly Democratic Congress into office with him.

Congress was so heavily Democratic in 1937 and 1938 that Democratic leaders found it extremely difficult and at times even impossible to enforce party discipline.

Absenteeism was a major problem. Scores of Congressmen wandered away from Washington on vacations and junkets instead of performing their duties and attending to business when Congress was in session.

Conditions in Congress were in a chaotic condition for two years as Democratic members tripped over each other and Republicans were almost extinct on Capitol Hill.

Then the political pendulum swung back in the 1938 midterm election election, as it almost always does.

Many of the freshman Democratic Congressmen, who had been carried into office by Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1936, were washed out in the 1938 election when FDR was not running. Ten years later, a Republican tide rolled across the United States, sweeping a GOP Congress into iffice, and in 1947 and 1948 Joe Martin was Speaker of the national House.

Speaker Carl Albert and Majority Congressional Leader Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr., who read in the history books about the chaos which struck Capitol Hill in 1937 when there were too many Democratic Congressmen, must have the shivers and shakes as they ponder the very real possibility that next November's election might product the same kind of political disaster for them, with a richness of so many Democratic Congressmen they will be unable to control Congress and run it in an efficient, workmanlike manner.

Political chaos develops when our two-party system gets too far out of balance. Incidentally, that has happened on Beacon Hill and has provided searing tests for strong legislative leaders such as Senate President Kevin Harrington and House Speaker David M. Bartley.

More to silver than meets the eye

To the Editor:

The ads cry out, "Buy silver bars . . . ingots . . . coins, as a hedge against inflation." They add, "Silver has been going up and may be higher in the future . . . Buy now," and they hint little or no risk.

The truth is that the ads are misleading, and in many instances very intentionally so. Trading in silver, or any commodity, is speculative and a questionable long-term investment. But an additional problem for the average citizen who wants to share in what he thinks is a certain rise of a precious metal price is that he lacks information about the world financial situation, and isn't on a par with the big traders against whom he competes.

There are two methods by which one may "invest" in the silver market — one by actual ownership of the metal, and the other by trading in options and futures. Either can be especially dangerous for the unsophisticated individual who is attracted by what he hears.

The Better Business Bureau emphasizes the speculative nature of investment in silver bars, ingots, or coins which, unlike gold, may legally be owned in any amount.

One of the ways in which an investor is lured into a phase of the silver market is the "subscription" method, by which the buyer puts up a percentage in cash and a bank loans him the balance. The silver may be the security for that loan. The investor is buying on margin and figures the leverage will give him a gain greater than the attertax interest cost of the loan.

Anyone thinking of purchasing silver for investment should thoroughly investigate the specific deal. Here are some pointers:

— Know if the offer is for pure silver and the measurement — troy ounces are greater than avoirdupois ounces.

— Determine if the silver — coin, ingot or bar — is valued primarily for its silver content or its chances of becoming a collector's item. The first, of course, makes a more solid investment than the latter.

— Also determine if the offered price is fixed or subject to market fluctuation.

— Find out if the investment may be readily sold — perhaps back to the seller — at a future date, and the sales prices which may prevail. A quick or forced sale could result in a lower-than-market price. Any repurchase should be explained in the purchase contract. Also, is such a repurchase governed by the state securities commission?

— Is the sale commission larger than it would be if the silver were bought in the open commodity market.

The investor should consider storage expenses. Would the silver be kept in a safe deposit box or other secure place, and how much insurance is necessary for adequate protection, and the cost of that insurance?

The investor should know the reputation of the selling firm, and its record for delivering the silver or other merchandise

Purchase of coins carries the possibility of ultimate rarity, but that is unpredictable. In this regard, the professional silver trader has an edge over the amateur.

Appreciation of coins depends largely on the number minted and in circulation, as well as condition and historical significance.

World monetary fluctuations come into consideration. The price of silver could be depressed as well as increased by monetary fluctuation.

The Better Business Bureau does not take a stand for or against silver as an investment. It only wishes to emphasize the element of risk in any investment, especially a commodity, and that there is no certainty of profit

Common plight or not?

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter to determine whether I share a common plight with other residents of the City of Newton, or whether my feeling of being "singled out" is justified.

My husband and I moved into our first home in Newton exactly one year ago. We looked forward to becoming members of a community and sinking roots in a place after having lived the student life in Boston for several years.

Our reception to what was to become consistent happenings occured within the first month.

One night, there were strange sounds outside and I looked out to see two figures hopping into our neighbor's car and driving it away at a high speed. We called the police and the car was recovered within a few hours. I came home one afternoon at 2 p.m. to find a prowler in my house and to be chased outside onto the street. He had gone through everything and had all of my camera equipment laid out to go.

We spent the entire summer sleeping to the tune of breaking windows and cars pulling up to steal items from the Newton North High schools that were being torn down. A fellow from the high school walked through my yard one afternoon, picked up a library book that I had had to leave on my back stoop for a minute as I balanced my way into the house with bags of groceries, and ripped it apart and threw it on the school field in shreds.

This spring someone parked at the end of my driveway, walked into my garage and dispensed three eggs on the cars. In between, we had had to complain to the police consistently about the noise on the school parking lot at night when we couldn't get to sleep at midnight

Today was the last straw. While driving home this morning from the laundry, I saw two young fellows eyeing my car, and realized as the egg splattered with a thud, that I had had enough of being on the receiving side of "good clean fun" and not so "good clean fun." I'm becoming a vigilante in my own home. I have my ears tuned to any sound, day or night, and I can't imagine how I'll feel when my baby is born this summer and I put it out in the carriage for air.

I ask, are there any others who live in a state such as this in Newton? Every other aspect of life here pleases me, our neighborhood shopkeepers are pleasant, our neighbors kind, the people on the street, the policemen are polite and helpful. What is wrong? If its just me, maybe I'd better move before I become really paranoid. I am sufficiently convinced that I hesitate to sign my name, for fear that these incidents will become even more frequent

Newtonville Resident

McDonald's license

Dear Editor:

The City of Newton's Licensing Board's approval of a proposed McDonald's Restaurant in Newtonville leaves much to be desired.

The rights of Newtonville residents to determine the quality of their environment are primary and should not be overridden by the Chamber of Commerce and Newtonville merchants, more than half of whom do not reside in Newtonville.

The Licensing Board believes this is a business district and has no right to prevent a business from getting in there, so one logically deducts the approval to operate a pornographic book shop in Newton would be automatic

The Chamber of Commerce position that if traffic becomes a problem, McDonald's will have to do something is a regressive step in community planning.

McDonald's should be required to conduct an impact study on the effect that a 260-seat restaurant will have on traffic and parking in the Walnut Street area.

Commends firefighters

Editor's note: this letter was sent to the Newton Fire Department with a copy to the Newton Graphic.)

Dear Chief Perkins:

I am writing in reference to the fire at my house, 56 Central Avenue on pril 18, to commend on the work of the crew answering the call.

They deserve praise not only for the prompt answer - I am told five to seven minutes from the time the call was made - but for the skill and the care they exercised in the performance of their work.

Some of the entrance doors of this house are irreplaceable items which we have cherished for nearly forty years. The men's evident concern in their preservation has my unending gratitude.

The residents of Newton can justly be proud of the crew managing their fire department.

Saltonstall to miss local Memorial Day Parade

After 52 years of participation, former Governor and United States Senator Leverett Saltonstall has advised Mayor Theodore D. Mann, officers and members of the Newton Memorial Day Parade Committee that he will no longer be able to participate in the annual observance in Newton.

In his letter to Mayor Mann Senator Saltonstall advised, "I appreciate and am very proud that the officials in Newton over the years have invited me to be the Chief of Staff of the Memorial Day Parade. I am sure that time marches on and so do I, as I am now under strict orders to restrict my activities

Through you I thank all of the veterans and other citizens of Newton for the honor that has been payed to me on each and every year, we shall miss the annual Memorial Day parade in which we were so happy to join."

Henry R. Lever, Adjutant General of the Memorial Day Committee, has expressed the regrets of the committee in not having Leverett Saltonstall as an active part of the annual parade, but Lever did advise that the former Governor and U.S. Senator would continue to be named as honorary chief of staff despite his absence. Replacing Saltonstall as the activit chief of staff will be former Mayor Howard Whitmore, Jr. of Newton Highlands. Whitmore, a WWII veteran, having served with the rank of captain in the U.S. Army Air Force, is also a member of Post 48 American Legion.

He also has been a member of the Newton Board of Aldermen, a member of the General Court of Mass. and served as Commissioner of the M.D.C.

Further appointments announced by Adjutant General Lever were those of Mayor Theodore D. Mann as the chief marshal and of Rosario Guzzi, 42 Oak ave., West Newton as honorary marshal. Mayor Mann, a veteran of WW II, is presently a member of Jewish War Veterans of Boston of the American Legion, and of the William J. Farrell Chapter 23, Disabled American Veterans.

The appointment of Guzzi follows a tradition of naming a veteran of WWI as honorary marshal. Guzzi enlisted in the U.S. Army in 1916 and served in Company C, 101st Infantry. His overseas duty saw his active participation in the following battles or engagements: Chemin des Dames, Toul, Chateau-Thierry, Aisne-Marne, Rupt, St. Mihiel, Champagne-Marne, Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel, Meause-Argonne and in the Defensive Sector of the A.E.F. He was wounded on October 8, 1918, returned to the United States and discharged with the rank of Corporal on April 28, 1919.

The 1974 Memorial Day Parade will be held in Newton on Sunday afternoon, May 26 with a starting time of 1 p.m.

Camp Chickami names staff

Camp Chickami, the Newton YMCA day camp for boys and girls, announces that once again it will employ a veteran staff during the 1974 season. Eighteen of its 23 senior staff members return to the camp which is set on 25 acres of woodland and field area in Wayland.

Steve Kendall, the "Y" associate youth director, will again be the director. Kendall has been associated with Chickami for seven years. Returning as assistant director is Ron Laffin, a graduate of Mass. College of Art and a staff member for six years.

The aquatics staff is headed by James Cutler, a senior at Colorado College. Eliott Baker, a graduate of Springfield College, is the assistant aquatics director, while Brandeis University junior Ken Gorfinkle is an instructor. The aquatics staff totals 17 years' experience at Chickami.

Veteran counselors include Victoria DiRienzo, a senior a Framingham State College; Lisa Rosenbaum, a sophomore at the University of Chicago; Beverly Gibson, a freshman at Framingham State; Candace Fisher, a sophomore at Mt. Holyoke College; Andrew Schmidt, a senior at Boston State College; Jay Jasset, a freshman at Merrimack College; Wayne Humanik, a recent Newton High School graduate; Marc Gordon, a freshman at the University of Mass.; Ken Temple, a freshman at the University of Mass.; David Solomon, a junior at Harvard University; and Stan MacNeill, a sophomore at Lyndon State College.

New staff members are Arts and Crafts Director Laurie Green, a freshman at the University of Mass.; Jane Farrell, a senior at Ohio Wesleyan University; Michelle Basinet, a sophomore at Boston College; Peter Castellanos, a senior at Newton South High; and Laura Rice, a senior at Newton High.

Nineteen staff members have the senior lifesaver certificate or higher qualification, while 11 persons have Red Cross training.

For information about Camp Chickami, call the Newton "Y" at 244-6050.

Welcomed

Elaine M. Angelone right, former instructor in advanced surgical nursing at Newton-Wellesley Hospital, has been named head of the newly created division of staff development at the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for Aged. She is welcomed by Lois Frady left.

Veterans advised to file for tax exemptions

Carleton P. Merrill, veterans' agent for the City of Newton, alerts disabled veterans, their wives and widows and elderly persons of the following situation in regards to real estate tax exemptions that they may be entitled to.

Jan. 1, 1973 to June 30, 1974, represents the transitional period of 18 months ordered by the Legislature to bring cities and towns within the new fiscal year conforming to the fiscal year of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The change in the fiscal year will occasion problems with real estate tax exemptions that veterans, their wives, and widows, and also elderly persons may be entitled to under Chapter 59 of the General Laws.

Merrill advised all of these persons to file applications for exemptions as soon as possible after receipt of their tax bills both for the six-month period ending June 30, and for the fiscal year beginning July 1, and ending June 30, 1975.

Newton citizens may contact the Newton Department of Veterans' Services for advice and assistance in respect to the veterans' exemptions or contact the Newton Board of Assessors.

Kindergarten registration

Hamilton School, 545 Grove St., Newton Lower Falls, Mass., will have registration for kindergarten on Thursday, May 2, from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Registration is for children who will be five years old by Dec. 31, 1974. People asked to bring birth certificates for children.

Cabot Park grievance

Mrs. Doyle spoke of several incidents, including seeing a group of boys systematically breaking windows in the old Security Mills property which faces Cabot Park and is now occupied by several businesses.

Mrs. Doyle also said she has found large shards of glass buried in the sandbox in the park.

Police Chief William F. Quinn said at the meeting that the police department does not have enough manpower to station police at the park constantly at night, and suggested increased lighting, "like the lights at Newton North High School."

Quinn also reminded those present that he has proposed a ban on all public drinking, including in playgrounds, without a special permit. The proposed ordinance is under consideration by the Law Department.

Patrols have been stepped up in the Cabot Park area, since complaints reached a peak about four weeks ago, Quinn added, and he will continue the additional surveillance.

"I hear the kids sitting there with police receivers," a neighbor said. "When they hear the police are on the way they disappear."

A policeman reported that many times when the police respond to a call about the park there are only two or three young people sitting around doing nothing by the time the police arrive.

Several persons suggested trying to get the young people who frequent the park to police themselves, and hoped to establish communication with them to explain the concerns of the neighbors.

The meeting splintered into different factions. Rep. Pines suggested better lighting, but another neighbor opposed "spending any more money on lighting when other things are needed."

Some wanted no parking on East Side Parkway, others opposed such a step.

Dr. Robert Buxbaum proposed putting bumps in the road on Newtonville Avenue and East Side Parkway to slow traffic down and "turn a neighborhood back into a neighborhood."

In response to a suggestion to "keep people out of the park at night," another neighbor said he is opposed to excluding young people and opposed to banning parking. "This will only drive them elsewhere," he said.

Burton Levine, chairman of the Recreation Commission, commented that increasing the lighting in one area would make the youths move to another.

Levine promised that the Recreation Commission would put the Cabot Park problems on the next agenda.

The meeting dissolved with neighbors forming subcommittees on the various problems brought up, and the indication that the neighbors would write a petition to the mayor on the basis of their complaints and wishes for the area.

Few aldermen were present. none of which represent Ward 1.

Ald. Robert Gaynor, Ward 1 alderman, said Tuesday that he had not been informed of the meeting.

"I have been down there (Cabot Park numerous times," Gaynor said, "and I've received many phone calls at 10 or 11 o'clock at night. I've called the police and have even been there picking up trash myself."

Gaynor said he suggested fencing Cabot Park the entire length of East Side Parkway, and he thought Recreation Director John Penney had requested an appropriation for that purpose.

"I'm a little bit upset by not being put on notice about the meeting," Gaynor said.

Much the same reaction was expressed by Ald. Joseph McDonnell alderman at large from Ward 1.

"It's interesting that people organize and call on officials that don't even represent them," McDonnell said.

"I'm always available to work with people in the area for whatever they thick will help the situation."

McDonnell added, "Over the years there have been problems many times, but this spring I have had no calls or complaints about Cabot Park.

McDonnell advises the Cabot neighbors and all citizens to file a petition on grievances of any nature with the Board of Aldrrmen through the Clerk of the Board at Cith Hall or through any of Newton's 24 aldermen.

Former MIT president is dinner speaker

Howard W. Johnson chairman of the corporation and former president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will be the featured speaker at the Norumbega Council's annual Scouters' Recognition Dinner to be held May 9 at the Wellesley Country Club.

T. Guy Spencer of the Council Executive Board is general chairman of the event.

Over 200 key scout leaders of the council which serves Newton, Wellesley and Weston are expected to attend the annual event which will recognize the outstanding leadership and service of their fellow leaders. The accomplishments of the local Scout Council, now leading the nation in membership penetration, will be dramatized during the problem.

Recognition awards will be presented for completion of training, veteran service to Scouting and activities leadership as well as Scouting's highest volunteer award, the Silver Beaver, for distinguished service to boyhood in the local council area.

In addition to serving as chairman at M.I.T., Johnson acts as a director of five major U.S. corporations and several colleges, private and governmental agencies. He has been taught and been an administrator at the University of Chicago and M.I.T. and has filled administrative posts with two national corporations.

Food co-ops

Angier Community School is sponsoring a meeting May 4 at 3:30 p.m. at the school for people in Waban interested in forming a food co-op.

Rita Richmond, a coordinator of a food co-op, will discuss how one is started. Food co-ops are said to save participants 40 to 50 per cent of the cost of food. Approximately three hours of work per month is expected of members.

All Waban residents are invited to attend the meeting.

Garden

the full Board of Aldermen next Monday, the red tape binding up the 24 proposed locations for gardens would seem forever snarled, but surely someone has thought of that. The land is owned by the city, the Metropolitan District Commission, the School Department, Andover Newton Theological School, and a private individual.

The lands being considered are:

—Five acres of the old City Infirmary land, off Winchester Street

—A half-acre in the Webster Conservation Area

—A small area in Edmands Park.

—A portion of Victory Field now "illegally used for parking."

—A portion of Allison Park.

—A piece of land along Bowers Street and the Mass. Turnpike.

—The park triangle at Walnut and Crafts Streets.

—The park at Watertown and Walnut Streets

—Wolcott Park.

—The north end of the Pine Street dump.

—Some of the Newton North High School grounds.

—The park at Lowell, Austin, and Highland Streets.

—Aqueduct at Grant and Commonwealth Avenues.

—Around the fire tower on Waban Hill.

—The Rumford Avenue landfill site

—Strips around Hamilton School

—Lincoln Playground.

—MDC land at Route 9 and Charles River, Upper Fall side.

—A parcel in the Newton Centre Playground.

—A parcel at Andover Newton Theological School.

—A parcel in the Webster Playground, near end of Warren Street.

—Islington Road oval.

—Private land off Winchester Street, owned by "a Mr. Lacy."

"The planting season is already started," the committee's report notes, "and the utmost dispatch is required to bring this program to fruition for 1974."

It may be too late to put in peas, but not too late for corn.

Rubbish

will not reach the mayors until June 1, with subsequent dates also pushed back by two months.

The district would have ceased to exist at the end of August if no affirmative action were taken.

The committee now is talking about how to obtain an extension of time and money to allow the district to continue through December of this year. The original funding of the proposal was through a $112,500 grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency last summer.

Newton's former Public Works director and now Water Commissioner Willard Pratt, who has been nominated to replace Richard Dudman on the district committee, questioned Camp Dresser & McKee's figures on the tonnage of rubbish generated in Newton. CDM has based its recommendation of a resource-recovery plant on 3,000 tons per week, which in Pratt's experience "is high."

(Dudman, Newton's director of Public Works, left his position last month. Pratt was nominated by Mayor Mann, but will require approval by the Board of Aldermen to serve on the district committee.)

The upgrading of the incinerator is seen by Camp Dresser & McKee as possible but not desirable, except as a last resort.

Companion exhibits at Fogg and the Museum of Science

The opening of companion exhibitions, "Color in Art" at the Fogg Art Museum and "Color Around Us" at the Museum of Science last week, marks what may be a first in collaboration between art and science museums.

At the Fogg, paintings by such artists as Rubens, Tiepolo, Matisse, Picasso, Homer, and Hopper are shown and discussed in terms of color theory. The analysis is based on the work of Arthur Pope, professor of Fine Arts at Harvard University from 1909 to 1949, and a leader in the study of color in art.

At the Museum of Science, the science of color is examined through graphics, models, slides, art forms, and visitor-participation devices.

In a black-paneled gallery enlivened by giant wheels of rainbow colors, visitors explore a series of individual exhibits. The subject range is from such fundamentals as color mixing to the advanced electronics of color television systems.

The Museum proves that Gertrude Stein's famous line cannot be paraphased to read: "Color is color is color."

First, visitors discover that color is a sensation. They stop two rotating discs which appear to be banded in color and see that they are actually painted black and white. The illusion results from the fact that perception depends on the brain, not just the eyes and the light entering them.

Another revelation is the flag that reverses its colors. Visitors stare for 30 seconds at a star on an American flag painted in green and black stripes with the stars on a field of yellow. Then they drop their eyes to a star on a white space below. At once they see the space filled with traditional red, white, and blue flag.

Visitors also:

—compare the effect of different kinds of light on color perception by watching their mirrored reflection as the light source changes;

—watch the Advent color tv system which produces a picture from beams of different colors projected and blended on a large free-standing screen;

—study the use of color as a symbol (traffic lights, a barber pole, examples from academic and religious institutions);

—enjoy color in nature from the Museum's collection of mounted birds and butterflies, shells and other specimens, and selected nature photographs.

Included in the exhibit are four three-dimensional models of color systems, among them the Pope system discussed and illustrated at the Fogg.

The Science Museum's exhibit was planned by Howard T. Fisher, research professor at the Harvard Graduate School of Design with support received from the National Endowment for the arts, Washington, D.C.

Among the consultants were: Nicholas DeWolf, board chairman, Teradyne, Inc. and Museum trustee; Nathaniel Jacobson, industrial consultant for color research; Richard I. Land, engineer-artist, Engineering Sciences Laboratory, Harvard University; John McCann, laboratory manager, Polaroid Corporation and Martin Perlmutter, president, Ghost Dance.

In connection with the exhibition at the two museums, a series of lectures is scheduled. They will be given alternately at the Fogg Art Museum and the Science Museum on Wednesdays at 5:30 p.m. The dates are: May 1, May 15, May 29, and June 12. There is no charge for admission to the lectures.

Backyard Frontier

By POLLY BRADLEY
Mass. Audubon Society

These days "ecology" seems to get tacked to everything, but a new one for me is "paleoecology" . . . ancient ecology.

Paleoecology is the ecology of fossils. The latest issue of Scientific American defines it as "the study of the relations between ancient organisms and their environment."

During the last 10 years, the concept of ecology has come into its own as people gradually came to realize that the world is one biological unit, one living system, one "Spaceship Earth."

While this ecological world view was gaining wide acceptance, sometimes with noisy heralding in the media, a quieter revolution in world view was taking place in geology, making most of the ideas that most of us learned in college geology obsolete.

According too the new theory (now generally accepted by scientists after a decade of raging tempests in geological teapots), there are currents deep within the earth which slowly carry great sections or "plates" of earth crust along with them, creating new oceans, consuming old oceans, and rearranging the continents across the face of the globe. Where continents collide, the floating crust of the earth piles up to form mountains. Where continents separate, new oceans are born.

In the article in the current Scientific American, "Plate Tectonics and the Historic of Life in the Oceans," by James W. Valentine and Eldridge M. Moores, the new geological world view and the new ecological world view are joined to form an amazing revised version of the evolution of life.

At the beginning of the Triassic period, some 225 million years ago, a single super-continent, Pangaea, was formed when even more ancient smaller continents collided. Before Pangaea, a great diversity of life forms existed in the world's shallow waters, which form most of the fossil record. However, with the coming together of the super-continents, the world environment became much more uniform.

There was less variety of habitats, leading to a widespread extinction of species. The actual fossil record shows that about 225 million years ago, there were fewer species in the shallow waters than at any time since life began on earht.

The Pangaea began to split into the gragmented hodgepodge of continents and islands which we know today. As this happened, there were more types of habitat and more isolated niches for new species too occupy. More and more new species evolved.

Today we have a world with probably a greater variety of living species than have ever existed since the world began.

What an awesome world mankind has been given . . . truly a paradise!

Valentine and Moores say, "We have been furnished with an enviably diverse and interesting biosphere; it would be a tragedy if we were to so perturb the environment as to return the biosphere to a low-diversity state, with the concomitant extinction of vast arrays of species. Of course, natural processes might eventually recoup the lost diversity, if we wait patiently for perhaps a few tens of millions of years. Alternatively, we can work to preserve the environment in its present state and therefore to preserve the richness and variety of nature."

SENIOR CITIZEN HOT LINE

May is Senior Citizen Month. And to emphasize our concern for local senior citizens, we're going to have a VISTA volunteer, Mrs. Esther C. Rea, at our main office in Watertown, 10am to 2pm, Monday through Friday. She'll be there to answer any questions you may have. Questions about Social Security and Medicare, Government Check Security Plans and supplementary security income.

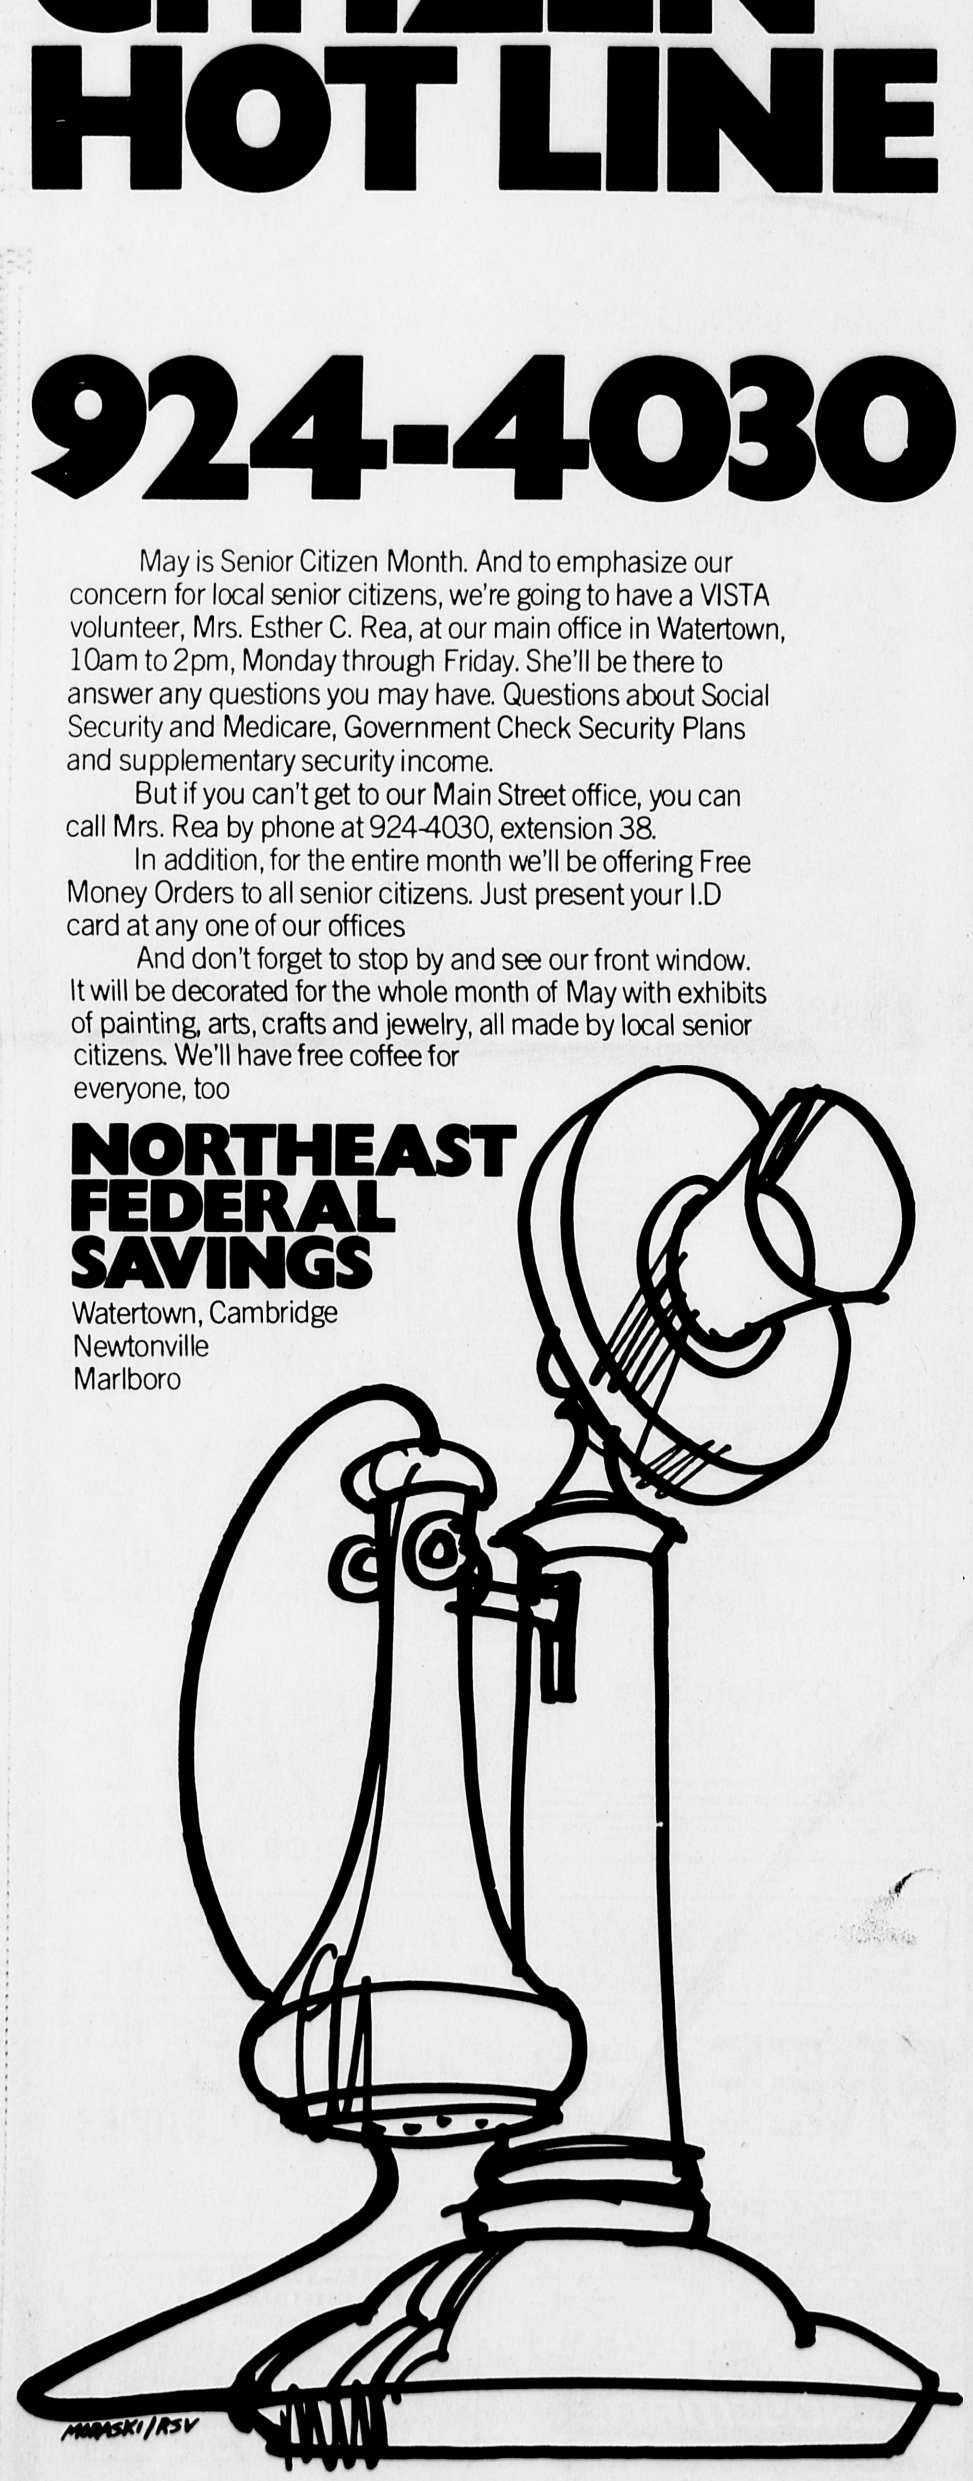

But if you can't get to our Main Street office, you can call Mrs. Rea by phone at 924-4030, extension 38.

In addition, for the entire month we'll be offering Free Money Orders to all senior citizens. Just present your I.D card at any one of our offices

And don't forget to stop by and see our front window. It will be decorated for the whole month of May with exhibits of painting, arts, crafts and jewelry, all made by local senior citizens. We'll have free coffee for everyone, too

Dargans guests at special dinner

Captain Thomas Dargan and Mrs. Priscilla Dargan were guests of honor at a dinner conducted recently by the Women Traffic Supervisors and Meter Maids of the Newton Police Department at Nonantum Post 440 on California Street, Newton.

The women had a "round the world" gourmet buffet with english, Irish, Austrian, German, French, Italian, Greek, Chinese and Polynesian entrees and desserts, each item prepared by one of the group.

Captain Dargan, prior to his promotion, had been the commanding officer of the two units for the past six years and the ladies decided to hold a "thank you - good luck" party for the captain and also combine a surprise birthday party as an added attraction.

Mrs. Dargan was presented with a corage for the occasion and the captain presented with a desk set to be used in his new position as Chief William F. Quinn's administrative assistant.

The presentations were made by President Mary Williams.

Invited guests were co-workers of the captain from the Bureau of Community Services, Sergeant Charles E.Feeley, Detective Robert Braceland, Safety Officer Roy Fairweather, Cadet Ronald Shorton and retired Safety Officer Gilbert Champagne, who was also the speaker of the evening.

Champagne narrated the activities of Dargan setting up the Meter Maid section and his efforts in the behalf of the women supervisors over the years

Surprise guests included Mayor Theodore D. Mann, the mayor's administrative assistant, James Salter; Officer Sal Arico, Detective John Cappadona, Supply Officer John Coffey, Harry Grenier. In addition, Retired Chief Clerk Esta Hayes, Mrs. Catherine Butler and retired Traffic Supervisor Virginia King.

Paula Kelley, Barbara Gassett, Marie Treggari, Mary Andersen, Mary Magliocca presented the captain with a special birthday cake, baked by Alberta Morrison. for the Dargan family.

Mental health

Mayor Theodore D. Mann and D.r Elizabeth Herman, director of the Newton Guidance Clinic, with the Mental Health Month proclamation.

May declared Mental Health Month

May is Mental Health Month.

For the second year, the Newton Jaycees and the Newton Mental Health association will join forces during May to alert the community to its responsibility to support mental health programs particularly for children.

Kids will be helping kids when they participate in a March for Mental Health Sunday, May 19, between 10 a.m. and noon. Funds raised will be used in the outreach programs of the Newton Guidance Clinic, a children's outpatient clinic sponsored by the Mental Health Association, and the Lincoln-Hill Camp for Exceptional Children, supported by the Jaycees.

The march will cover four different routes, not more than three miles long. Each will start in a different section of the city and coverge at City Hall where the city is sponsoring Springthing that day.

Call Jeff Cornell (965;0200) or Emily LaMont (969-5693) for information.

Newton 'Big Eat' set for May 12

The first annual Newton Big Eat, a communal picnic and spring festival is scheduled for Sunday May 12 at Pulcifer's Cove in Auburndale Park, Commonwealth Avenue, Newton.

From noon to dark, residents of the Newtons and Auburndale with their friends, neighbors and relatives, are invited to bring food, drink, musical instruments, kites and pets for a day of fun.

A group of young Newton residents is organizing the first annual Big Eat, but its success depends on community involvement and participation.

Ilene Mandelbaum, working with the first annual Big Eat organizers, says that the Big Eat is a springtime tradition in her hometown in Kansas, and hopefully will be a fine way to bring people in the Newton community together.

For further information people may call Ilene Madnelbaum at Debby's Petland (332-7119) or at home (125 Lowell Ave., Newonville, 965-0273). Or Mike Sirota, press coordinator, at 277-2141 or 232-1400.

Drinan at South May 3

On Thursday, May 2 at Newton South in cutler Commons, there will be a continuous showingof the film, "White House Red Carpet with Julia Childs." This film shows Julia Childs displaying her gourmet cooking talents at the White House.

At 10 a.m. in the Lecture Hall, Becky Miller, a student at Newton South and an expert on the French film-maker Francois Truffaut, will discuss Truffaut and his works. "Shoot The Piano Player," one of Truffaut's best known movies will be shown.

Sgt. Mallis of the Middlesex Community College will be speaking in the lecture hall at 11:50 a.m. n Friday, May 3. Sgt Mallis is of the Middlesex Community College will be speaking in the lecture hallat 11:50 a.m. on Friday, May 3. Sg.t Mallis is a coordinator for law enforcement and security and will discuss, "Opportunities in Law Enforcement."

Congressman Robert Drinan will visit to Newton South on Friday May 3 at 10:55 a.m. in the Lecture Hall.

Earlier in the week, Jon Rotenberg of Brookline, Father Drinan's probable opponent in the coming Sept. 11 primary spoke to students and faculty.

All of these programs are presented under the auspices of the Enrichment Program and the pubic is invited to attend free of charge.

Get your 'black gold'

Are you one of the 500 people who have taken advantage of Newton's free leaf compost? If so, more is available for the taking. If not - shame, shame - and come and get it before you plant your vegetable and flower gardens!

The leaf compost, available on Saturdays from 8 a.m. until 3:30 p.m., is the product of the decomposition of leaves which were deposited in 1972 at the Beacon Street "snow dump" near Four Corners. It is rich, black compost which is a valuable soil additive and conditioner.

In days of rising food prices, gardens are gaining in popularity, but the price of fertilizer is also climbing. So come this Saturday, or any Saturday, bring your own containers and shovel, and get plenty of free "black gold."

Work slated for streetcar line

Riverside Line streetcars were scheduled to operate on sections of single track starting Monday, April 29, as work continues on the federally aided $38.1 million Green Line System Improvements Program, the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA) announced recently.

The Authority's contractor will be completing the resurfacing and realignment of track installed last fall between Riverside and Newton Highlands station and reconstructing the roadbed and installing new track between Newton Highlands station and Reservoir station (Cleveland Circle)

Our thanks to Mrs. T. P., West Roxbury, who shares with us two of her favorite recipes, Chick Sticks and Hamburger Hash.

CHICK STICKS

3 pounds chicken wings (about 17)
½ cup (1 stick) margarine
1¼ cups sifted all purpose flour
¼ cup sesame seeds
1 tablespoon salt
½ teaspoon ground ginger
Pepper

Cut off wing tips with a sharp knife. Divide each wing in half by cutting through joint. Wash and drain on paper toweling. Melt margarine in small saucepan. Mix flour, sesame seeds, salt and ginger in pie plate. Dip chicken pieces in margarine, making sure to remove excess. Roll in flour mixture to coat completely. Arrange, not touching, in single layer in 15½x10½x1-inch pan. Sprinkle with pepper. Pour remaining margarine in pan. Bake in 350 degrees oven for 1 hour and 15 minutes, or until tender and brown. Slide pan under broiler flame for 3 to 5 minutes, or until tops are toasty and golden. Serve hot.

HAMBURGER HASH

1½ pounds ground beef
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
1 cup sliced celery
1 can (10½ oz.) cream of chicken soup
2¾ cups warm water
¾ cup uncooked rice
½ cup soy sauce
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 can (3 oz.) chow mein noodles

With oil in skillet, place on medium-high heat and brown meat. Pour off excess fat and stir in onions. Continue cooking for another minute. Combine remaining ingredients, leaving out about ¼ can of chow mein noodles. Place in a large casserole and bake, covered, in a 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. Remove cover and bake 30 minutes longer. Cover with remaining noodles and bake an additional 15 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 8 servings.

Question: I've tried many recipes for French Onion Soup and I've really enjoyed some of them but would like a recipe that contains white wine; maybe that's the one ingredient that is missing in the real flavor of onion soup.

Mrs. G. G., Norwood

Answer: I think you'll really like the following French Onion Soup with Wine, it comes from a new cookbook, "I Cook As I Please" by Nika Hazelton, published by Grosset & Dunlap. If you enjoy reading cookbooks, this one is superb—Mrs. Hazelton has written many cookbooks about her experience as housewife and author cooking in kitchens around the world. Blunt in her opinion, she'll shock you with her honest comments and she'll entertain you besides sharing a wealth of good, tried recipes. The last chapter of her book reads tongue-in-cheek, "My Favorite Kitchen—At this stage of my life, my favorite kitchen is the one I do not have to be in."

FRENCH ONION SOUP WITH WINE

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 to 2 pounds onions, thinly sliced (quantity depends on whether thicker or thinner soup is wanted)
1 to 2 tablespoons flour
6 cups hot beef consomme
2 cups dry white wine
Salt
Freshly ground pepper
French bread, sliced
1 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Heat the butter and the oil in a large saucepan. Cook the onions in it, stirring constantly, until they are browned. The onions should be dark, but not burned. Stir the flour into the onions. Add the consomme, the wine, and salt and pepper to taste. Simmer covered over low heat for about 1 hour. Place slices of French bread in a tureen or in individual soup bowls. Pour the soup over the bread, which will rise to the surface. Sprinkle the bread with the Parmesan cheese. Run under the broiler or place in a preheated hot oven (450 degrees) until the cheese is melted.

Our thanks to Mrs. S.N., Dedham, who serves this short rib dish to her family often—so often they urged her to share the recipe with other readers.

BEEF RIBS FLORENTINE

3 pounds short ribs
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 crushed cloves garlic
1 bay leaf
¼ teaspoon crushed thyme
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
1 beef bouillon cube
1 cup boiling water
Two-thirds cup tomato paste
One and one-third cups boiling water
1 tablespoon sugar

Brown ribs in oil in Dutch oven. Mix parsley, garlic, bay leaf, thyme, salt, bouillon cube and 1 cup boiling water. Pour over ribs. Cook uncovered for 10 minutes. Mix paste, one and one-third cups boiling water and sugar. Add to ribs. Cover. Cook for 1½ to 2 hours or until ribs are tender. Place ribs on platter. Remove fat from sauce and serve sauce over ribs.

Question: Would you please publish a recipe for a Bean Sprout Salad and would I be able to use fresh bean sprouts instead of canned ones—also, where would I be able to purchase the fresh sprouts? Thank you.

Mrs. M. C., Sharon

Answer: Crunchy and quite different, here is your salad recipe, and yes, you can use the fresh or canned. I don't know where you can purchase the fresh sprouts in your neighborhood, but Mirim's Oriental Foods located at 152 Harvard Ave., Allston, always has fresh packages of bean sprouts on hand.

BEAN SPROUT SALAD

1 pound fresh bean sprouts or 2 cans (1 pound each) bean sprouts, well drained
3 tablespoons soy sauce
3 tablespoons dry sherry or sake
1 teaspoon freshly grated lemon peel
3 tablespoons freshly squeezed lemon juice
Two-thirds cup salad oil
3 tablespoons minced green onion
1 teaspoon freshly grated ginger or ½ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ cup slivered toasted almonds

Wash bean sprouts and set aside to drain well. Combine remaining ingredients except almonds and shake well. Pour over bean sprouts and toss lightly. Chill, just before serving, add almonds. Serve in individual bowls.

Across the Kitchen Counter

A chicken in every pot is not a bad idea in these days of high food prices, and that thought goes back way beyond Herbert Hoover — Henry IV of France said it in the 14th century and both men considered chicken a food that would appeal to people in all economic levels.

Though there are many good reasons why one should eat chicken, most important is that it tastes so good. All cooks are aware that it is one of the most economical sources of protein plus providing the minerals, calcium, phosphorous, and iron, and the B vitamins, thiamine, riboflavin and niacin.

The following are some questions and answers that will aid you next time you contemplate serving chicken:

Q — Do certain chicken parts contain more nutritive value then others?

A — Yes. Different parts of chicken such as breast and drumsticks differ in their content of various nutrients. A pound of breast has 74.5 grams of protein while a pound of drumsticks has 51.2 grams.

Q — Is it all right to eat chicken skin?

A — Yes, there is valuable nutrition in chicken skin which has less calories and fat than sirloin of beef. However, when cooking for low fat or low calorie dieters the answer is "no."

Q — So much is heard about how chicken is processed — what are the different methods?

A — Ice Pack chickens: the birds are plucked, eviscerated and USDA inspected, chilled and shipped fresh, packed in containers filled with shaved ice. For Carbon Dioxide Pack, carbon dioxide "snow" is used as the refrigerant in this process which is essentially the same as ice pack.

Deep Chill, Chill Pack, or Crystal Pack: chicken is rapidly cooled to 28 to 32 degrees F but not frozen. This method of processing may result in some crystal formation — the flesh should be soft enough so that the shopper can depress the surface with his finger.

Frozen: the chicken is quick-frozen at the processing plant, shipped and sold frozen. (All chickens that come to you at your market have passed the most careful inspection system. If you want to know which process has been used in sending your chicken to market, ask the meat manager at your food store. In any case, there will be little difference in cooked edible yield.)

CARIBBEAN CHICKEN

MUSHROOM CHICKEN AND NOODLES

¼ cup margarine
2 broiler-fryer chickens, cut in serving pieces
1 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced (or 1 8 oz. can, drained)
2 envelopes (¾ oz. ea.) au jus gravy mix
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 tablespoons tomato paste
¼ teaspoon oregano
2 cups water
One-third cup dry red wine
½ cup sliced ripe olives

Heat margarine in very large skillet or two small ones. Add chicken, a few pieces at a time and brown on all sides; remove as browned. Add fresh mushrooms to margarine remaining in skillet (add more if needed) and cook, stirring frequently, until tender. Remove and reserve. In small skillet, combine contents of gravy mix envelopes, onion, tomato paste, water and wine. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Add chicken to sauce; cover and simmer 25 to 30 minutes or until tender. Spoon sauce over chicken occasionally and add more wine or water if sauce is too thick. Add mushrooms and olives to sauce just before serving. Heat thoroughly. Serve on bed of Cheese Noodles. Serves 8.

POLYNESIAN CHICKEN

2 chicken breasts, split in half, lengthwise.
2 tablespoons fat for frying
½ cup slivered green pepper
1 large onion, thinly sliced and separated into rings
½ teaspoon curry powder
1 can (10¾ oz.) condensed tomato soup
One-third cup water
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 canned pineapple slices, drained and halved
2 cups hot cooked rice
¼ cup toasted coconut

Brown chicken breasts in hot fat; add green pepper and onion and cook till vegetables are crisp-tender. Pour off fat. Add curry powder, soup, water and lemon juice; cover and simmer for 40 minutes. Place half a pineapple slice on each piece of breast. Cover and cook till chicken is tender. Add salt and pepper to taste. Lightly toss rice with coconut and serve with chicken. Serves 4.

CARIBBEAN CHICKEN

¼ cup butter or margarine
2 whole broiler-fryer chicken breasts, halved
1 teaspoon salt, divided
½ teaspoon dried leaf tarragon, divided
2 tablespoons lime juice
2 tablespoons water
½ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce

Heat butter in a skillet. Add chicken breasts, skin side down. Sprinkle with ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon tarragon. Cook over medium heat until browned, about 10 minutes. Turn chicken breasts; sprinkle with remaining salt and tarragon and cook until brown, about 10 minutes. Combine lime juice, water and Tabasco; pour over chicken. Cover and simmer for 10 minutes longer or until tender. Serve with hot cooked rice. Serves 4 — if desired, recipe may be doubled.

Abused, Mistreated and Ignored

They're abused, mistreated, taken for granted and usually ignored until through pain they make themselves known.

Feet, that is.

What with summer coming right along, everyone knows that foot comfort can "make" or "break" vacation fun because getting away usually involves quite a bit additional foot activity.

A good place to begin is getting your feet in good sightseeing condition. The following are suggestions from a leading podiatrist:

1. Bathe your feet at least once a day in warm sudsy water; rinse and dry (being very careful to dry completely between the toes).

2. Give your feet a massage with a liquid such as intensive care lotion, massaging the lubricant well into the balls of your feet, along the tendon of each toe and into the heel. Press the thumb and finger on each side of the ankle and gently pull up in parallel lines, massaging from ankle to calf.

3. Never wear the same shoes two days in succession.

4. Wear socks or hosiery one-half inch longer than your longest toe to avoid pressure. When putting on stockings, pull fabric across the toes—Be sure toes have sufficient wiggle room.

5. Select shoes with flexible soles, medium heels and well-rounded toes. Be sure to match shoes with activities undertaken and make sure they fit. Footwear bought in the late afternoon usually are the most comfort- because feet swell — sometimes as much as a half to full size during a busy day.

6. Another warning about platform sole shoes as reported in the "Family Safety Magazine.

"Dr. Monroe Jacobs, president of the State of New York Podiatry Society, says the foot cannot function naturally in a platform shoe. The non-flexing sole won't let the foot bend where it should and the elevated heels are not unlike jacking up the rear wheels of a car—everything getting the forward look." Dr. Jacab warns: "The platform shoe is extremely dangerous. For the automobile driver, her shoes are vital—they are his contact with the brake and accelerator pedals, and they also determine his ability to stop and go. Wearing today's platform shoes renders its owner about as efficient as a brain surgeon operating with boxing gloves.

"With high heels, the gas pedal may be pressed too hard. If the gas pedal hangs from the top, the heel can get caught underneath. With platform soles, you lose your sense of touch. And a thick sole puts the foot at a different distance from the pedals.

The Insurance Information Institute adds this grim footnote to our highfalutin' footwear:

"Are you dressed to kill—or be killed?"

The long awaited return of the dress is strongly reflected in new lady-like spring-summer footwear.

Heels are slimmer and higher, ranging from 2½ to 3 inches, and paired with a single sole. The higher heel goes by a number of technical names including "the needle" and "shaft." Most often these heels are found on open-toed pumps and sandal fronts. Though reminiscent of the shoes of the 30's and 40's, these toes do not taper to a sharp point.

Ropes are the new rage. Once seen mainly at seaside resorts, ropesoled espadrilles in cheap-to-expensive styles will be everywhere this summer. Sunning around poolsides, spiriting away on exotic vacations— and always in the company of tailored pants, halter dresses, breezy skirts—even the new abbreviated bikinis! The new twist of the rope is the espadrille with cushy crepe soles.

Trim tailored shoes such as the popular spectator pump and city sandals are also among the leading fashions in women's footwear. The little or flat heel shoe is outselling higher heels and some of the smartest low heel walkers are the two-toned T-strap and instep strap styles with contrast color detailing.

Mid-heels are still important for those who refuse to accept the extreme heights. Along with the new reptile prints in dresses are matching reptile printed shoes. Generally, heels are not only higher but curvy and soles are thin or slightly thicker by way of a hidden platform.

Will the boot return? Shoe manufacturers optomistically predict that boots will again be popular, especially the high pull-on types—a shoe fashion that is right for the longer skirts expected in early fall.

Dressy shoes for evening wear will be accented in glitter—gold or silver bandings and jeweled heels. The materials used include gold, silver, gunmetal and bronze in combination with white or ivory.

Dainty T-straps open up the vamp—an endless variety of pretty Chanel-inspired slings will range from simple toeless pumps to strappy numbers right out of the '20s complete with bows.

White, the long-time summer favorite doesn't seem to be hurting from the avalanche of colored footwear—though the ice cream pastel colors are gaining ground, white and bone color remain the number one shades for summer . . . but first, please be kind to your feet.

Susan B. Adelman is recent bride

Temple Israel in Natick was recently the scene of the wedding of Susan Beth Adelman and Samuel Bart Bernstein.

Rabbi Hrold Kushner officiated at the double ring ceremony and the bride's father gave her in marriage.

The new Mrs. Bernstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ely N. Adelman of Newton Highlands, was attired in a white satin gown with beaded applique and a full length veil.

Meryl Adelman was her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Ellen Feinberg and Margie Silver.

Newton Centre Women share $135,000 with neighborhood charities

The Newton Centre Woman's Club today announced its own good neighbor policy—"profit sharing" of $135,000.00 with 13 neighborhood charities.

The major donation came from the sale of the elegant brick club house, a Newton Centre landmark at Beacon and Centre Streets fo 50 years, and the suggestion for the charitable distribution came from the membership of the 86-year-old club.

Mrs. Amos E. Kent, retiring president, said the investment and finance committees were applauded by the full membership who agreed this was a "chance to do something for the community."

Members applauded, too when the investment committee chairman and club poet for the occasion, Miss Ruth Burns, noted that "first there was enough in the till to pay every bill" and then "with ore money than to meet their needs could give some away to worthy charities and be remembered for their good deeds.' A gift in appreciation of Mrs Kent's leadership was presented by Mrs. Stanton J. TenBroeck, Jr.

Mrs. Kent added "the aim of the Club is to further education, art and literature, and most of this contribution will be used for scholarships."

Checks were presented today at the Annual Meeting at the Woodland Golf Club to the following charities and civic groups:

Newton-Wellesley Hospital, Andover-Newton Theological School Scholarship Fund in memory of Mrs. Everett Carl Herrick, All Newton Music School, Inc., Newton Art Association, Newton High School Scholarship Fund, Carroll Rehabilitation Center for the Blind, Newton YMCA, Chaplaincy Fund-Newton Wellesley Hospital, Stone Institute, Newton Library, Educational Programs of WGBH—TV, Paratours, Jackson Homestead.

Presentations were made by Club Hostesses to individual representatives of the groups. Hostesses were Mrs. William R. Martineau, Mrs. Harvey P. Jenks, Miss Ruth Burns, Mrs. Leonard D. Baker, Mrs. C. Hassler Capron, Miss Florence Kostarelos, Mrs. William Lane Bruce, Mrs. Otis E. Stephenson, Mrs. Robert E. Finnin, Mrs. Miriam P. Nichols, Mrs. Benjamin T. Fawcett, Mrs. Theodore A. Pearson.

Mrs. Victor D. Baer, Chairman Education Committee, assisted by Mrs. Ross L. Treholm, introduced Scholarship recipients, Miss Judith Aucoin, Miss Paula Mills, Miss Pamella Logan, Mrs. Diana Louis, Miss Carol Blitzer, and Miss Rhea Zodhiates.

New officers installed at the meeting were: President, Mrs. William Lane Bruce; First Vice-President, Mrs. C. Hassler Capron: Treasurer, Mrs. Arthur W. Johnson; Assistant Treasurer, Mrs. Francis L. Maynard; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. William E. Conners; Recording Secretary, Mrs. William E. Fitzgerald.

Sanford N. Katz speaks to Adoption Association

The Adoption Association of Massachusetts will hold its annual meeting on Sturday, May 4, at Bentley College, Waltham. The meeting will commence at 12:30 p.m. in Lindsay Hall.

The association is honored to have Sanford N. Katz as keynote speaker. Mr. Katz, a professor of family law at Boston College, is the co-author of "Family and the Law: Problem for Decision Making in the Family Law Process" published in 1965 by the Free Press. A member of the Mass. Governor's Committee on Adoption and Foster Care he is very knowledgeable in both the legal and psychological aspects of adoption Appearing with Katz will be a panel of distinguished professionals from MARE, Florence Crittenden League, Catholic Charitable Bureau, New England Home for Little Wanderers, and Jewish Family and Childrens' Service. The panel will be moderated by Julian Michelson from the Jewish Family Service.

Babysitting will be provided in excellent child care facilities. For further information, call 655-3980 or 443-9012

Local Tay-Sachs screening May 5 at Temple Emanuel

The last local mass screening for carriers of the trait for Tay-Sachs disease to be held this spring is scheduled for this Sunday, May 5, from 1-5 p.m. at Temple Emanuel, 385 Ward Street, Newton. The screening is aimed primarily at couples of child-bearing age of Ashkenazi (Eastern European) Jewish background.

Mayor Tehdore D. Mann, Newton, has declared Sunday Tay-Sachs Prevention Day in Newton, urging "all citizens to take cognizance of this event and to participate appropriately in this important screening program."

The youth group of Temple Shalom has also noted the occasion by presenting $500 to the Tay-Sachs Prevention Program, money which was raised by a variety of activities during the past year. Edwin H. Kolodny, M.D., co-director of the prevention program received the check on behalf of the program from Kenneth Kaplan, advisor of the group.

Tay-Sachs disease is the genetic disorder which affects mostly children of Ashkenazi Jewish background. The absence of a particular enzyme in these children results in abnormal lipid storage in the brain, destroying the brain tissues and leading to death before five years of age.

The aid of the prevention program which is conducting mass testings throughout the area is to identify carriers of the trait for Tay-Sachs disease. One in 30 American Jews is a carrier. By identifying couples in which both people are carriers, it is possible through genetic counseling and amniocentesis to ensure them that they can have only children free of the disease.

The Tay-Sachs Prevention Program is a joint effort of Beth Israel Hospital, the Eunice Kennedy Shriver Center and Children's Hospital Medical Center under the sponsorship of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston, the Tay-Sachs Foundation of New England, Inc. and other private foundations.

For additional information, please call the Tay-Sachs Prevention Program, 893-0600, or write 200 Trapelo Road, Waltham, Massachusetts, 02154.

new york)upi) — A flood of nostalgia for the 1920s and 1930s has engulfed the men's clothing industry, a lot of it based on a flood of movies of that era. The same nostalgia is pervading boy's clothing and predictions are the movie "Mame" will have a major impact on styles for young boys.

It is the year 1928 when Herbert Hoover has just trounced Al Smith and there is no hint of the stockmarket crash to come. Patrick Dennis, 10, has just arrived in New York to live with his Auntie Mame (Lucille Ball) and Patrick is dressed to the nines.

Patrick, played by Kirby Furlong, is absolutely resplendent in a three-button gray flannel jacket with knickers and worn with argyle hose and a knitted tie with a Windsor knot and sturdy blucher oxfords. He also is resplendent in his other costumes of that era, including a double-breasted navy suit with short pants and with matching cap.

Marc Wallach, vice president in charge of merchandising for Donmoor, Inc., one of the largest manufacturers of boy's clothes, was almost ecstatic over the look. "This nostalgia is definitely an influence and it is continuing," he said. "This offers a dressed up look to counteract jeans, jeans, jeans...."

Period Detail Shown

Kids probably would fight and scream if they were forced to wear knickers these days instead of their beloved long pants —even Patrick got his first pair in the movie. But already they are wearing such things as highbuttoned cardigans and Art Deco sleeveless sweaters as shown in the film.

The costumes were done by Warner Brothers' Theodora van Runkle with remarkable attention to the detail of the period — it was she who did the authentic costumes for "Bonnie and Clyde" a few years back and of roughly theyISHO

And when Patrick grew up and was played by Bruce Davidson there was the same nostalgia.

The older Patrick in one scene wore a three-button wool checked suit with fairly wide lapels and pleated pants. With it was a knitted V-neck sweater worn over a dark tie and a pin-collared shirt —the image of the nostalgic look in men's clothing today. He also was given to Art Deco sweaters and dazzling plaid sports jackets popular today.

But it was what Menswear magazine called "Manhattan Affluent" as worn by young Patrick that is making the boy's clothing industry take a lot of notice. Sports shirts weren't known in those days and Patrick wore his Art Deco sweater over a striped dress shirt as authentic as Patrick's Dutch boy bob. But it was the suits that did it —and an extaordinarily handsome plaid sports jacket worn with short pants, and kneelength dark hose which matched his cap.

Softer Colors

Industry needs the softer look, and nostalgia is the current peg," Wallach said. "All of the 'revival' shows are having a strong influence, and since boys' wear now definitely follows general trends (as opposed to standing alone as it did several years back) it, too, tends to go with the stream.

"To be more specific, there are more patterned sweaters, softer colors, shorter shapes, that is, shaw s ane other soft collars. Cardigans, cardigans, cardigans — including the 'award' sweater (with a hard won letter and sleeve stripes to show the number of years on the varsity).

"There is lots of white, including whites over soft color coordinated sweaters and shirts. There are some wraparound sweaters, belted. Also the classics such as Irish fisherman, but longer, to fit in with the trend toward hand knit looks. There are cable, bands, also multitones of soft colors.

"Shirts show a lot of soft colors and small patterns, especially for the holidays, and especially soft colors with whites. These are already showing up in summer and back-to-school clothes."

But alas for admirers of the knicker and short pants suits in "Mame" the pants for boys remain long, and they probably wouldn't have it any other way. But new and a welcome change from the plain ordinary suit was a "no suit" suit —a plaid work shirt worn over matching pants, shirt tail out, and with a turtle neck sweater underneath.

Great Blue Hill Power Squadron installs officers

James F. Healy of West Roxbury and West Dennis was installed as the fifth Commander of Great Blue Hill Power Awuadron at recent Change-of-Watch ceremonies held at Mary Hartigan's Restaurant in Dedham. Commander Healy has been involved in boating on Cape Cod since early childhood and has in recent years instructed area boatsmen in the fundamentals of safe boating principles.

He resides with his wife Marion and their four children at 40 Howitt road in West Rocbury. He is a 1959 graduate of Boston College and is treasurer and manager of Leonard G. Healy & Sons, Inc. of Boston and Cape Cod, publishers and designers of nationally distributed greeting cards.

Commander Healy does most of his boating on Nantucket Sound and bases his fishing boat "Caper" at his summer home on Bass River, Cape Cod.

Tips on buying a house

Buying a house is complicated business, and one where it is very easy to get hurt. The Board of Registration of Real Estate Brokers and Salesmen, the state licensing authority, has issued the following guidelines to home purchasers:

1. Check the background of the real estate broker or salesman. Is he or she duly licensed? Or good standing in the community?

2. See the property before you buy; if possible, two or three times. Ask a lot of questions about structural flaws and insist on answers.

3. Check the available financing to find out if you can qualify. Include a financing contingency clause in your purchase and sale agreement.

4. Be aware, when making an offer, that the offer becomes a binding contract upon its acceptance by the seller. You should have your attorney look at the offer form and the purchase and sale agreement before you sign.

5. Sign nothing you do not understand.

6. Remember, this isn't the only house in the world. Try to control your emotions. Never act impulsively based on the fear that you will lose the house.

7. Call the Board of Registration (727-3055) if you have any questions.

Today's cars engineered for less service

BINFORMATION COUNCIL

They don't make cars like they used to, and that's good news for today's motorists.

Comparing the maintenance requirements of one car manufacturer's 1974 model to his 1954 model illistrates how much cars have been improved. To follow the maintenance recommended in the owner's manual over 50,000 miles (five years), the 1954 model maintenance schedule called for 49 trips to the service shop. For the same 50,000 miles, the manual for the 1974 model recommends only eight visits.

Engineering improvements have greatly reduced maintenance needs over the past two decades. The 1954 manual, for example, recommended 671 service adjustments and inspections over 50,000 miles. The manual provided with the 1974 model recommends 105. That's 566 fewer items.

In 1954, a complete chassis lubrication was scheduled every 1,000 miles; an oil change every 2,000 miles; and brake adjustments and major engine tuning every 5,000 miles. For the manufacturer's current model, chassis lubrication isn't scheduled until36,000 miles; oil change is at 6,000; major engine tuning at 24,000 miles, and brakes adjust themselves.

The reduced maintenance schedule is even more impressive when you consider how much the "engineering content" of the car has increased. This particular '74 model, for example, has power steering and power brakes as standard equipment. They weren't even offered as options on the '54 model.

Other engineering advances that have contributed to the reduced maintenance schedules include the introduction of alternators and electronic ignition and the development of engines, axles, wheel bearings, distributors, universal joints, suspension and steering joints that require either less periodic lubrication or none at all. On top of that, today's owner receives a 12-month 12,000-mile warranty which compares with the 90-day-4,000-mile warranty that covered the 1954 model.

Taking a look further back into history, the Model T, still a fond memory for many people, needed an oil change every 750 miles, required a 16-point chassis lube every 100 miles and even called for daily engine lubrication. In addition, an early handbook for the car described an "absolutely essential" tool kit for owners planning a trip. It included a hammer, cold chisel, oil can, files, screwdriver, wire and monkey wrench.

Recreational vehicles still pack pleasure

By AUTOMOTIVE INFORMATION COUNCIL

The current gasoline shortage need not dampen your spring wanderlust or your enjoyment of camping and the outdoors. Many recreational vehicle owners are discovering areas of scenic interest or camping facilities in their own backyards or at least within a 50-mile radius of their homes. RV'ers who previously set their sights on distant horizons when fuel was more plentiful are now discovering that the shorter hops not only save gasoline, but may actually "extend" a vacation. Reducing the time spent in reaching a camping facility increases the time a family can actually spend camping. And to many, the fun of owning an RV starts when the traveling stops and the camping begins.

The types of RV units available range from tent trailers that are relatively inexpensive and easily towed behind a small car, to pickup truck campers that are installed on pickup beds, to luxurious motor homes that have conveniences such as lush carpeting, comfortable bucket seats, air conditioning and stereo tape decks.

If you are considering purchasing a recreational vehicle, here are some functional accessories you might want to consider in addition to the comfort options:

An electric (12V) pump to draw water from the storage tank to the sink.

If the camper has two or more gas appliances, consider a second LP tank equipped with an automatic switchover.

Your electrical package might include heavy duty (90 amps) batteries with a 110V-12V power converter plus a built-in battery charger and a connection for campground power. This makes it easier to keep your batteries fully charged. If your vehicle is not equipped with a roof air conditioner, this package will make it possible to get by without a costly power generator.

Outside storage compartments add valuable inside room, and are well suited for storing items like leveling jacks, camp chairs, and road flares.

If you're contemplating buying a motor home, also investigate the engine options available. An underpowered vehicle strains the engine and reduces the marginal safety in passing situations.

Power brakes (preferably disc), power steering and automatic transmission (with optional cooler for longer life) take the hard work out of driving a fully "loaded" recreational vehicle

America's religious attitudes theme at Our Lady's meeting

"The atmosphere in America today makes one wonder whether we are in actuality any longer a Christian nation," was the theme of an address delivered by Msgr. John J. McManmon, pastor of Our Lady, Help of Christians Church, at a mass celebrated last Sunday in observance of the 25th anniversary of the establishment of Court Our Lady, Catholic Daughters of America, Newton.

One hundred fifty members and guests, led by state and local officers, participated in the 10:15 mass prior to an anniversary dinner at Mill Falls Restaurant.

"A newspaper columnist recently posed the question whether Watergate and similar events are symptomatic of a much more serious sickness in our society," Msgr. McManmom, who is chaplain of the local organization, recalled.

"Dishonesty appears to have reached up to the higher echelons in our land while anarchy seems to prevail in the lower elements of our big cities," he declared.

Quoting the statistic that 37 million children in America now receive no religious education, either at home or at church, "Well do we ask whether this is till a Christian country," he stated.

"Our experience as priests has shown us that there are countless young people who call themselves Christian, but who lack a basic understanding of the most elemental and fundamental concepts of Christianity, and, sadly, the pattern is growing.

"Most parents no longer bring their children to religious instruction classes. When they reach the age of 10, they indicate they don't want to go to these classes and our permissive society lets them do as they please and that is just about the end of any religuous training. I am afraid we are losing much of our youth by default."

"Tolerance is one hhing," he said. "But to have a society where, in tax - supported colleges and universities, every anti - religious notion can be taught with immunity in the name of academic freedom, but religion must be censored and cannot be mentioned — just isn't reasonable. This pseudo - broadmindedness makes secularism the established religion of the state."

"The founding fathers were men of God who sought to establish a nation based on a strong religious foundation," the chaplain continued. "I do not think they could have conceived of our country being otherwise. For it is almost impossible to make democracy work without religion backing it up.

"Religion says that each person must be a responsible individual and law-abiding person. God commands this. Without God, however, men only keep laws because someone is watching. Democracy demands good men and nothing so helps in this regard as religion."

"Indeed if our officials had more vision, they would see this and encourage religion, rather than thrown roadblocks in its way under the guise of separation of Church and State, always interpreted in the most extremely secularistic and anti-religious way possible.

"Religion remains the best friend emocracy has and America had better come to realize this soon," he declared.

"Secularism means that people do belive in God in a vague way but then put Him on the shelf and ignore Him. He and His laws, they imply, are not relevant in modern Society. So they develop a pragmatic materialistic philosophy: 'Do whatever you want — just don't get caught.' Getting caught is the crime — not the wrongdoing.

"Unfortunately this irreligious attitude governs the ethics of too many Americans today in the matters of sex and marriage, business and entertainment, and in government too, at times

"A few years ago some theologians came up with the rather startling statement: 'God is dead.' What was meant was not a proclamation of atheism, but rather that many men today acted as if God is dead.

"God is dead by law in our tax-supported schools. People do not seem to realize that not to mention religion is not being tolerant, but really irreligious.

"Then when a university lecturer can ridicule religion but not talk in favor of it, we can understand the predicament of the young people.

"All this in a nation whose motto is "In God We Trust," and whose pledge of allegiance states "one nation under God." We just cannot ignore religion for long and still have a religious people. We cannot leave religion out of the training of youth and expect themto grow up to observe our laws."

McManmom was principal celebrant of the mass, with him were Rev. Francis Gallager, pastor of St. James, Medford, as concelebrant, and Rev. David Deegan, of Pope John Seminary, Weston, as Deacon. Mrs. Winifred Donohue, a local past regent, was lector.

State officers attending included: Mrs. Esther Berlandi, state regent; Mrs. Elizabeth Walsh, first vice regent; Miss Josephine Doherty, second vice regent; Mrs. Janice Wallace of Newton, secretary; Mrs. Kathleen Duffy, state education chairman, and Miss Patricia Garvin, publicity chairman.

Fishman backing tax relief bills

Sen. Irving Fishman (D-Newton) is continuing his fight for property tax relief. In testimony before the Taxation Committee, Fishman testified in favor of bills designed to provide real estate tax relief for elderly homeowners and others living on fixed and moderate incomes

"There is far too much reliance on the property tax as it now exists," Fishman said. "Its undesirable regressive features will persist even if the overall dependence of local governments on property taxes is reduced through greater federal contributions."

"The property tax structure must be reformed so that it does not penalize the elderly and the low- and middle-income citizens," Fishman said. "In a time of staggering inflation, elderly people living on fixed incomes simply cannot afford to pay a disproportionate share of that income in property taxes.

Sen. Fishman specifically endorsed the "circuit breaker" proposals (Senate 370 and House 4001) and a bill (Senate 1504) to provide a valuation bonus for any city or town changing to a 100 per cent property valuation.

"Circuit breaker laws, now in effect in 21 states, began as a device to grant property tax relief to low-income elderly by means of rebates or state income tax credits. But now they show signs of turning into a movement to cut property taxes for middle income families as well," Fishman said.

"Michigan and Vermont have adopted large scale "circuit breakers" that apply to renters as well as homeowners and to all households whose property taxes—or presumed taxes as a portion of rent—exceed a certain percent of household income. We should amend the pending legislation accordingly. Such legislation would be of great value to the people of Newton and Brookline." Fishman explained.

Recognizing the reluctance of the Taxation Committee to report out such major tax reform legislation, Fishman recommended that the scope of H.5462, a bill to create a special commission to investigate circuit breaker programs, be enlarged to include investigations of other tax relief proposals such as the Homestead exemption and renter property tax relief measures.

Sen. Fishman is also the sponsor of a proposal for a legislative amendment to the Massachusetts Constitution to provide an exemption for land occupied by the owner as his or her domicile from the real estate tax. Variations on this Homestead exemption is in effect in 11 states.

May 5 Walkathon to raise money for Israel

Youths from Newton will be participating in a community-wide Walkathon for Israel on Sunday, May 5, sponsored by the highsschool team of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston.

A 10-mile walk through Newton, Brookline, and Boston is designed to demonstrate the Boston Jewish community's solidarity with Israel.

The Walkathon will begin at 1 p.m. at the old Chestnut Hill Shopping Center, Route 9, Newton, behind the former Filene's building, and will end with a rally at Boston Common.

Anyone age 10-80 can be a marcher, and any individual or organization can sponsor a marcher. All proceeds will go to the Israel Emergency Fund.

Marchers will carry Walk Cards which will be stamped at each check-point along the route of march, to verify how many miles were walked. Check-points will be at the Brookline-Brighton-Newton Jewish Community Center, Maimonides School and Hebrew College.

To get Walk Cards or more information about the Walkathon, people may contact CJP at 542-8080.

Music for young people at Conservatory

Young people and young music share the bill at the New England Conservatory between May 4 and 9.

The Massachusetts Youth Wind Eensemble, conducted by Frank Battisti, will perform in Jaordan Hall at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, May 4. The program, performed by high school-age musicians, will feature works of Stravinsky, Dvorak, ahanson, Snoeck, Bach and Ives.

The Peyton-Davidson series of Contemporary Music continues with a Jordan Hall performance on Monday, May 6, at 8:30 p.m. This concert will concern itself with the music of Gunther Schuller, John Heiss, Ezra Sims, Yannis Xenakis, Eric Schwartz and George Edwards.

Jaki Byard will direct a jazz concert on Thursday, May 9, at 8:30 p.m. in Jordan Hall. The works at this concert will all be student arrangements.

The newest music of all will be heard at Musica Maximus, the series of compositions by New England Conservatory students. This program, which has been a tremendous success all year, will hold its final concert of the year in Brown Hall on Thursday, May 9, at 8:30 p.m.

All four concerts are free and open to the public.

IMPROVES WITH AGE

Q. I read your column regularly. Could you tell me about my horoscipe? I was born on July 1, 1949 around 7:00 a.m. in Manchester. N.H.

A. At or shortly before 6:58 a.m. Eastern Daylight Time the Sign of the Zodiac Cancer was on the Ascendent on that date at your place of birth. Tow minutes later at 7 a.m., E.D.T., Leon was on the Ascendent which makes quite some differnece. "Aournd 7 a.m." as you state leaves the Sign and degree of that Sign on the Ascendent open to question.

From other considerations based upon the positions of the planets and aspects to the, it appears you were as a young child, rather sensitive, shy and somewhat lacking in self-confidence. Basically the cause was emotional. Intellectually you have a keen mind which is alert to everything going on in your immediate environment.

Your mind reacts rapidly which is fine but it appears to be advisable that you learn not to reveal everythought that enters it. There are some ideas which will have a better chance of materializing if you keep them to yourself until the details have been thoroughly worked out.

You do youself an injustice if you do not go deeply into matters. You do have the ability to get by on your wits and you are clever enough to get away with it but sooner or later you are apt to regret not being thorough.

You are inclined to be generous with your affections and to spend freely for those things that give you pleasure and on thos you love. You prefer quality, desire the best of everything and may be considered by some others to be extravagant.

Care is needed to manage your finances in a conservative manner and not to permit others to take advantage of your sympathetic nature. Like rare wine, in general, you tend to improve with age.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day is known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered through this column.

Some Series E Savings Bonds have a higher value

Series E Savings Bonds increase in value at the end of each six-month holding period. Therefore, it is reasonable to expect that older Bonds will always have a higher value than the newer.

While this is generally true, there are exceptions which account for the apparent contradictions in the values appearing in the Series E "Tables of Redemption Values." Here's why—

In 1959, for the first time, outstanding Series E Bonds were given an interest-rate increase, along with new issues. The regulations provided that the increase would become effective with the first interest period, beginning on or after June 1, 1959.

Example - Let's take two Series E Bonds of the same denomination bought in consecutive months, May and June of 1951. The June Bond began to earn the higher rate immediately, in June 1959. The May Bond did not begin to earn the higher rate until November 1959.

In that five-month interim, the June Bond passed the May Bond in value and will continue to be worth more at the end of corresponding interest periods.

The regulations governing the interest-rate increases of December 1965, June 1968, June 1969, June 1970, and December 1973, followed the same policy, further tending to compound the disparities, in some cases.

Therefore, if you spot what seems to be an error in Series E redemption value tables, chances are it's due to the foregoing circumstances.

VA information

Benefits under VA programs, including those for unmarried widows, have steadily increased over the years, the VA at Boston pointed out this week.

Noting that for benefit purposes, "widow" is synonymous with "widower," CHAMPVA, a VA medical care program similar to the military CHAMPUS, was cited as the most recent benefit available to widows.

CHAMPVA covers widows and children of veterans whoo died of service connected disabilities after leaving service, as well as dependents of veterans who suffered military service connected total and permanent disabilities. Under the program, A pays 75 percent of reasonable costs of treating elibible persons at non-VA hospitals.

Among other benefits available to widows:

—education allowances for training at approved institutions, based on service connected deaths of veterans. veterans or service personnel during World War II and later periods.

—pension, based on no service connected death of veteran.

—dependency and indemnity compensation for service connected deaths of veterans and service personnel.

—burial in a nnational cemetery in same grave with spouce.

VA officials pointed out that widows also are eligible for benefits from other agencies—among them, commissary privileges and a six months death gratuity. Both of these are Department of Defense benefits.

This spring, Homelite is picking up the tab for picking up the grass.

If you buy a Homelite riding mower any time between now and May 25, we'll give you a $74.95 five-bushel capacity grass catcher, free.

What's the catch? There isn't any.

You can choose from Homelite 5, 7 and 8-horsepower models which are attractive enough in themselves.

They all have anti-scalp mower decks that conform to the surface of your lawn for more uniform cutting.

The RE-8 lets you shift from forward to reverse without a clutch pedal. So the back wheels don't spin out and neither does the grass under them.

Electric starting is available. And all three come with various comfort features like adjustable seating, effortless steering and pneumatic tires.

Check the listing below for the Homelite dealer nearest you.

You have from now until May 25 to take advantage of the free grass catcher offer. And rake in a savings of $74.95.

Dental assistant management program at Mt. Ida Jr. College

In response to exciting new career opportunities in the allied health fields, Mount Ida takes pride in announcing the Dental Assistant Office management program. This program is offered under the auspices of Mount Ida Junior College in cooperation with Tufts University School of Dental Medicine.

When you graduate with your Associate in Science degree, you will be able to act as a skilled chairside assistant. You also will be trained for highly responsible jobs, as scheduling and receiving patients and keeping dental records. Other opportunities are in the dental group practices where you might supervise other dental assistants or act as office manager.

Mount Ida, established in 1899, is a fully accredited two-year college granting A.A. and A.S. degrees and is situated on an 85-acre country estate campus just 8 miles from Boston. Right on the campus you will enjoy all of the sports and recreational activities, including riding in indoor and outdoor arena, year-round tennis, ice skating, and ski weekends at Mount Ida's lodge in Maine.

Thumbnail thoughts

Legislators who voted against the death penalty might change their minds if they saw the business end of a weapon pointed at them.

—g—

Now that roalty has been threatened some Britons realize that all the kooks don't live in America.

—o—

Grandpop just wouldn't believe a family with a $15,000 a year income could have serious problems in sending their kids to college.

—o—

One would assume that lawmakers who think the death penalty isn't a deterrent also don't spank or punish their kids when they're wrong.

—o—

Mr. Nixon was elected by a mandate of the people, and it just shows how those fancy words can louse up the elective process.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

CURRANTS & GOOSEBERRIES Don't let the season go by without putting in some currants and gooseberries. One of the best currants is Red Lake, ideal for jams and jelly. Berries are large and each one is on long stems which make picking easy. One plant is enough for cross pollination. An ideal gooseberry is one called Pixwell, practically thornless. It gets the name Pixwell ("picks well" because the fruit hangs on slender stems an inch or so below the branches where they can be easily picked.

Note: Some nursery firms require that you furnish them with the county and township where planting is to be made; also approximate distance from nearest stand of white pine (five-needled pine). No currants or gooseberries should be planted within a 900 foot radius of white pine trees, or within 1,500 feet of any nursery where white pine seedlings are grown. This is because each need one another to transmit the white pine blister rust.

Herbs Indoors: Seed stores tell us that this is a big herb year. Good cooks know the value of herbs and since more people are "cooking out" these days, more herbs will be used. Start your own seed in pots of sand,npeat and loam or one of the ready-to-grow mixes found in garden stores. Or you can buy started plants from a garden center. Here are a few easy-to-grow and hard-to-forget herbs. Basil (both the green and the purple leaved type); chervil, does well in any soil, grows like parsley and has an anise-like flavor. Chives, one of the handiest of all, should be grown. Watercress, does fine in pots or boses, and matures quickly. Others to try include dill, lavender, pot marjoram (Origanum), Mints, Nasturtium (leaves are fine in salads and sandwiches); Parsley is great, too. Try a new variety called Banquet, or an older one called Perfection. Try Rosemary, Sage, Summer Savory (wonderful with cooked green beans), and Tarragon, which some feel is the king of herbs.

Home care program for lung disease

Brockton stops North win streak

Newton salvaged one victory in a stretch of three games in four days, clipping Andover Phillips Academy 4-1. The Tigers' season mark is 6-2, and they are 4-2 in the league.

Brockton scored first in its 4-1 triumph, off starter and loser Steve DiBenedetto. Art Sullivan doubled to right and scored on Pete Colombo's single. A stolen base and a single by Dan Colombo put Newton down 2-0 after three innings.

In the bottom of the inning Bob Cunningham singled by Dan Colombo put Newton down 2-0 after three innings.

In the bottom of the inning Bob Cunningham singled and went to second when Joe Rondina reached on an error.

Keith Glasser and Bob Kinsella sandwiched perfect bunts around a line out to give Newton its only run. The bases were loaded, but a double play ended the threat.

Brockton grouped a single, a wild pitch, a stolen base and an error together for an unearned run in the top of the fourth.

Ed Aucoin relieved DiBenedetto in the fifth with two on and none out and kept Newton close.

Brockton finished its sooring on a single, a sacrifice and Pete Colombo's second run-producing single to make the final 4-1.

Newton's first road game of the year, against Cambridge Latin, resulted in a 2-0 loss.

Steve Johnson led off the Latin first with a single, moved to third on a stolen base and a passed ball, and scored on a fielder's choice.

Ed Aucoin, with another encouraging performance, set down 15 consecutive batters (including a stretch of four straight strikeouts) before yielding a wind blown double to Jack Balfe. John Frangus followed that with a single to give Cambridge its final run.

Newton managed only two hits off of Henry Morris who walked four and struck out six. In the fourth, fifth and sixth innings, while still only one run behind, Newton's lead man reached base, and each time was sacrificed to second, but was stranded there.

Aucoin pitched well enough to win most ball games giving up just three hits, striking out four, and not walking anyone, but finished with his first loss of the season.

The Tigers displayed excellent defense and executed fine strategic baseball for a 4-1 victory.

DiBenedetto opened the game with a single to right. He stole second and hustled all the way home on a wild pitch.

In the bottom of the first, Bill Bertrand cut down Dan Dilorati trying to stretch a single to two bases quelling a potential rally.

Cunningham laced a double with one out in the fourth and Keith Glasser upped the Newton lead to two with a single.

Phillips cut the lead in half in the seventh. A single drove Kevin Moore from the mound after a solid performance in his first pitching effort of the year.

In six innings, Moore struck out four, walked two and yielded only four hits.

DiBenedetto took over on the mound and Jorge Sanchez doubled to deep left-center for a run but John Connolly fired the ball to Cunningham who relayed the throw to Bob Vona cutting down an attempt for a triple.

Newton iced the game in the ninth. After Bertrand walked and stole second, Dan Turner reached on an error moving Bertrand to third base.

DiBenedetto lined a perfect hit-and-run single to right driving home the third run and leaving runners at the corners. DiBenedetto and Turner proceeded to execute a double steal with DiBenedetto also taking third on the ensuing play at the plate.

Moore earned the victory with a save going to DiBenedetto. Newton stole seven bases, including three by DiBenedetto.

Newton South lacrosse team loses four straight

By SCOTT GROPER

Newton South's lacrosse team opend its season with four consecutive losses

The Lions lost their opener, 5-3, to Framingham Sough

Framingham scored first when Jay Quinn beat South goalie Ray McKinney to the upper corner.

After Framingham regained a lead, South's Bob Lent tied the game at 2-2 with a bounce shot Sophomore Greg McKinney gave the Lions a 3-2 lead near the end of the second quarter

Framingham tied the game at 3-3 three minutes into the third quarter. Bruce Lynch gave Framingham a 4-3 lead in the fourth quarter.

South lost to Concord-Carlisle, 4-2, in its second game.

Concord scored three goals in the first half before third period goals by Lent and Lou Paglia made the score 3-2.

South goalie Ray McKinney made 17 saves in the first half and 22 in the game.

Lincoln-Sudbury shelled McKinney with 49 shots and scored 19 times in a 19-0 win. South had only five shots on the Lincoln-Sudbury net.

South lost its fourth straight game to Brookline, 7-3. There were 27 penalties in the game

Brookline scored two goals midway through the first period, and the score remained 2-0 until there was one minute remaining in the first half

Lent then scored his third goal of the season and the halftime score was 2-1.

McKinney made 21 saves in the first half and the South defense killed 11 penalty minutes. Defensive stalwarts included Scott Groper, Jeff Randall and Ed Miller.

After Brookline upped its lead to 3-1 in the third period, Paul Tormey scored for South Brookline added two more goals before Greg McKinney scored South's final goal in the fourth quarter

Overtime goal gives Maroons 3-2 win

The final playoff round of the Newton Youth Hockey Association's senior division was tied up when the Maroons beat the Cougars, 3-2, in a sudden death overtime game last Sunday.

The teams tied at two wins, two losses and a tie, were to meet this week to decide the championship.

Referee Bill James and Lineman Marty Tormey called a tight game, and both teams were often in a short-handed situation.

Hardworking Paul Staszesky opened the scoring, beating Cougar goalie John Dankese unassisted with a well placed shot.

The Cougars went out in front 2-1 midway through the final period on a fine passing play by talented Dave Peck. Peck carried the puck out of a corner, faked a slapshot, and laid a pass on the stick of Mike Mosca. Mosca laced the puck by maroon goalie Bob Rooney.

With 13 seconds left to play, the puck squirted free to Maroon Joey Farina in the Cougars' end. Farina fed a pass to Steve Sera, who rifled the puck into the Cougar net to put the game into overtime.

Both teams squandered two excellent scoring opportunities in the first few minutes of the sudden death overtime, but Chris Harney finally converted Sera's centering pass to win the game for the Maroon's.

Peter Huntsman on crew team

Senior Peter Huntsman, a graduate of Mount Hermon School, helped propel the Harvard varsity lightweight crew to its second triumph of the season against MIT and Dartmouth on April 20.

The Crimson cruised across the 2000 meter finish line on the Charles River in open water to capture their tenth consecutive Biglin Bowl, their seventeenth victory since the Regatta began in 1955. The Harvard lights posted a time of 6:06.2.

Huntsman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Huntsman of 430 Albemarle Rd. in Newtonville and is concentrating in social studies at Harvard.

Lassie League

The Lassie League now has six teams, some still looking for players to fill out their rosters. Games will be played Tuesdays and Thursdays throughout the city, starting the week of May 6. Interested girls in the sixth grade, or 12 to 15 years old, may contact Fran Towle at 969-3171.

South baseball team loses twice after strong start

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

After winning five of its first six games, the Newton South baseball team recently suffered two straight losses.

On Saturday, April 27, the Lions were edged by Concord-Carlisle, 4-3.

It was a tie game going into the sixth inning when Concord third baseman Fred Garnett hit a two-run double to give his team a 4-2 lead.

In the bottom of the seventh, the Lions started a rally that almost caught Concord. Sophomore Bruce Jennings led off with a single. Co-Capt. Rob Shahon followed with another single which sent Jennings to third.

Steve Tresca then laid down a bunt which allowed Jennings to score and put Shahon at second base. Concord pitcher Bil Crampton got Steve Rittenberg to fly out to right field to end the game.

Ken Bianco pitched a strong game for South, but picked up his first loss. He went into the game with two wins and a save.

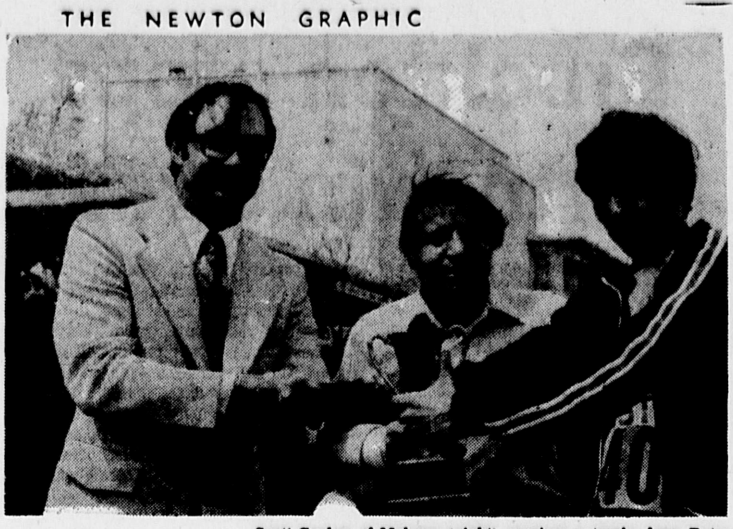

On Monday, the Lions were beaten by Acton-Boxboro, 12-1. South had defeated Acyon, 4-1, a week earlier.

South pitchers Chandler Bosworth and Tom Irvine allowed only four earned runs. The Lions made seven errors in the game, Acton scored eight unearned runs.

Acton pitcher Frank Clerico pitched a fine game, not allowing a run until the sixth inning. A Shahon single scored Jennings from third base. Shahon had two of South's three hits in the game.

An example of South's troubles occurred in the fifth inning. There was an Acton runner on second base with one out when Irvine, apparently making a pick-off attempt, threw to first base rather than second.

A balk was aclled and the Acton runner advanced to third.

South wins two tennis matches

By MARK SHUSTER

The Newton South boys' tennis team had shutout victories over Concord and Acton in recent matches.

On Thursday, April 26 the Lions traveled to Concord for their first Dual County League match. Bill Karol, playing number one singles, scored a three set victory. Karol won the first set 7-5, but lost the second set 6-1. Karol edged his opponent in the final set, 6-4.

Second singles player Humberto Fagundes fell behind 4-0 in his first set, but bounced back to win his match, 7-5, 6-2.

Roger Gordon, playing third singles for South, lost his first set, 6-2, but won his final two sets, 6-1, 9-7.

Both South doubles teams played well. The first doubles team of Jeff Levin and Doug Fisher won decisively, 6-0, 6-2, Dan Braverman and Tom Karol were victorious in second doubles, 6-3, 6-2.

The match was closer than the 5-0 scores indicate. All three singles matches went to a third set.

On Monday, April 29, the Lions played against Acton. All three South singles players won convincingly; Bill Karol, 6-2, 6-3; Fagundes, 6-0, 6-1; and Gordon, 6-0, 6-4.

The absence of Fisher due to illness caused a shakeup of the doubles teams. Tom Karol and Braverman played first doubles and won 6-1, 6-1. Levin and Mike Sklar trailed 5-2 in the first set of the second doubles match, but bounced back to a 7-5, 6-2 victory.

"The team continues to play as expected, but the testing matches are still ahead of us, starting with the twice-postponed Needham match," South Coach Val Cyr commented.

South was to play Needham on Tuesday and Wayland on Wednesday

When someone asks you to see his sarcophagus, don't look into his throat.

If you don't know what an exquisite sarcophagus looks like maybe you'd like to swallow your pride and find out.

One of the best examples you'll ever see is at Boston's Museum of Fine Arts. It's part of a breathtakingly complete collection of Egyptian Art.

The Museum is a feast for your eyes. Ten acres of gallery space. Sculpture. Paintings. Constructions. Collages. Artifacts. All other conceivable art forms.

That's one beauty of the Museum of Fine Arts. The other is that it's here. In Boston.

On an MBTA line so that while you, your family and your friends are seeing something truly interesting, you don't have to use up a drop of gas doing it.

Because the energy shortage is still with us, the Prudential Insurance Company thinks there are better things to do this weekend than burning a tankful of gasoline. Seeing the Museum of Fine Arts is one of them.

North tennis team ups record to 5-1

By BOB LOW

After splitting its forst two matches, Newton North's boys tennis team began league play by recording wins over Weymouth South, Cambridge Latin and Arlington.

After having two matches rained out, bringing the season's total to five postponements, the netmen traveled to Weymouth South on April 25, and earned a 4-1 win.

Bair Haney lost in first singles to Wayne Anderson 7-5, 6-3 but Newton won the other four matches. Bob Low defeated Richard Crawford 6-4, 6-0 and John Kosa beat James Welk 6-1, 6-0. In the doubles, Captain Stu Brightman and Frank Bodengraven topped Ed Gondono and Brian Putnow, 6-1, 6-1 while Chip Lang and Dave Bikofshy triumphed 6-0, 6-2 over Mike Cheong and Joe Walsh.

The next day, Cambridge Latin came to Newton and were beaten 5-0. Haney topped Joe Carson 6-1, 6-0, Kosa defeated Murray Kenney 6-1, 6-1 and Don Birmingham edged Phil Hallond 6-3, 6-4. Newton's doubles had little trouble as Doug Giron and Lincoln Frank defeated John Flaherty and Phil Carring 6-1, 6-0 and Dave Medalie and Joel Chernov topped Ning and Phil Hollingsworth 6-0, 6-1.

On Monday the Tigers traveled to Arlington and picked up their third straight league win and fourth straight overall by a 5-0 shutout. Neal Kravitz outlasted Gary Chin in a tough, hard played match, 3-6, 6-2, 7-6. Low beat Karl Ebner 6-0, 6-3, and Kosa bested John Cordin 6-1, 6-2. Brightman and Haney topped John Cornul and Jim Cataldo 6-2, 6-1, and Chip Lang and Bikofsky defeated Don DeSilva and Steve Talmash 6-3, 6-3.

The Tigers' overall record now stands at 4-1. Their next matches will be at Rindge on Thursday, May 2 and at Phillips Exeter Academy on Saturday, May 4. Their next home match will be Tuesday against Brookline.

Outbound

By JIM WHITE

One of the most quickly growing activities in the outdoors is hiking. Hiking is a vigorous walk through the woods or countryside usually with some destination in mind. As a rule, if you can walk you can hike!

However, if you are at all unsure concerning your physical fitness build up your distances slowly. If you have any physical problems (e.g. a heart condition), or even if you suspect one, PLEASE consult your physician before involving yourself in this pursuit.

One of the best conditioners as a prelude to hiking is walking. I strongly recommend it. Walking certain pre-set distances on level ground will help you determine your capabilities. These distances can then be attempted upon wooded terrain with a light pack and an easy mind.

If you are a beginner take it easy. Don't set lofty goals for yourself. This sometimes quickly discourages your future as a hiker; and may possibly be injurious.

As you become more experienced as a hiker, you will sense a natural rhythm to your step. Keep attuned to this rhythm. It is the secret to lengthening your range; and lessening your fatigue. Set a pace and don't try to hurry it. Relish it!

The essence of any outdoor activity is enjoyment. Let yourself become spellbound by the sublime enigma of your surroundings. Let your intellect explore your senses roam. The search is endless, the enjoyment, boundless.

Wallace Stevens, a poet, tells us of the continuing process of nature and its beauty:

"Deer walk upon our mountains, and the quail

Whistle about us their spontaneous cries;

Sweet berries ripen in the wilderness;

And, in the isolation of the sky,

At evening, casual flocks of pigeons make

Downward to darkness, on extended wings."

Hiking with supplies and equipment to last a longer time or travel a greater distance is referred to as backpacking. It can be a sport per se, or it can be utilitarian. Pragmatically then, it becomes the tool of the fisherman, the hunter, the trapper, the nature photographer, the geologist, the OUTBOUND.

Depending upon careful planning and proper equipment, backpacking can be a rewarding experience. Lacking these considerations it can be as awkward as playing a trombone in a telephone booth. Ignoring them could invite disaster.

Do not skimp on your equipment. Buy a dependable product; as good as your pocketbook will allow. If you tools you may design and construct many useful items for backpacking and camping in your home workshop.

Whether you choose to buy or make your equipment, the idea to follow is one of sturdy simplicity. This principle will be your mainstay. This writer hopes to discuss the merits and demerits of such equipment in future articles.

In the meantime, visit our own Blue Hills. It is a wonderful area to develop vital skills in hiking, backpacking and camping. Be sure to stop at their Trailside Museum. See you on the trail!!

Happy ending to lost check story

A Newton native recently found that money does sometimes seem to come from heaven when she discovered a $300 check floating along Route 9 in Brookline.

It was noontime, April 16, and Joanne Gullotti was enjoying the refreshing light breeze blowing through the open window of her car as she drove along Route 9 towards Brookline Village.

It was the kind of day when you want to notice everything around you - trees newly fringed with green, the sky blue and crisp.

But Mrs. Gullotti noticed more than she ever expected.

She was on her lunch hour from her job as a service order assistant at New England's Telephone's Service Order Control Center in Brookline. She had stopped at a red light in Brookline when she saw a check rolling along the street by the front wheel of ther car. She just had time to dash out and pick it up before the light turned green.

"It was a social security check for $300 made out to a Newton couple," she said. "The check had been endorsed by the husband but not by the wife. When I returned to the office I looked up their telephone number to let them know I had found it, but there was no answer at their home."

The manager of the control center then called a telephone line assigner to track down the number of the couple's next door neighbor, but there was no answer when she tried that number. Additional digging turned up the number of another neighbor, whom Mrs. Gullotti asked to contact the couple and let them know that their check was recovered.

At 4:50 p.m. that afternoon, the woman who had lost the check called Mrs. Gullotti to thank her. She stopped at their house on the way home to return it.

"Neither of them knew quite how they had lost the check," Mrs. Gullotti said, "although they had gone driving along Route 9 that day. They offered me a reward, but I didn't want to take any of their money. They had been frantic when they realized the check was gone but they had no idea where they had lost it. I was just glad to be able to help them," she said.

Mrs. Gullotti until recently lived in Newton. She is now a resident of Marlboro.

Gold watch for Sloboda

John J. Sloboda of 18 Parmenter Terrace, West Newton recently received a gold watch on the occasion of his twenty-fifth anniversary with Boston Gas Company.

Sloboda, a serviceman in the customer service department, joined the utility in 1949 and has been employed for the past 25 years in the customer service department. He works out of the Jamaica Plain Operations Center.

Sloboda has resided in Newton for 24 years. He and his wife, Louise, have one son, John, and two daughters, Gail and Nancy.

Sales and earnings up

ARP Instruments, Inc., 320 Needham St., Newton Upper Falls, recently reported an 85 per cent increase in sales and a 400 per cent increase in per share earnings for the year ending Dec. 31, 1973

Sales for 1973 were $2,634,332 compared with $1,418,096 in 1972. Net earnings including extraordinary items were $246,000 versus $41,570 for 1972; per share earnings rose to $.60 from $.15.

Gift Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kosow of Newton have made a major contribution to the new West End House in Allston. Thanking the and his wige Eleanor is J. Holly Holiver (right), past president of the West End House Alumni Association. The organization will name its main lobby in honor of the Kosows.

Presents paper at conference

Albert P. Levitt of 75 Lovett Rd., Newton Centre, was a featured speaker at the first annual National Composite Materials Conference, held April 16 and 17 in New York City.

Levitt, who is supervisor of metal matrix composites development at the Army Materials and Mechanics Research Center in Watertown, spoke on the subject "Metal Clads and Laminates."

These composites are composed of two or more layers of the same or different metals, completely bounded to each other so as to yield a composite material whose properties are more desireable than its constituents.

Improved mechanical, thermal or electrical properties at lower cost and with reduced usage of strategic materials are some of the goals of this research.

A frequent university lecturer, Levitt has authored numerous technical publications on high temperature and composite materials, and is the editor and a contributing author of the recently published book "Whiskers Technology."

Greene elected a vice president

David H. Greene of 59 Wachusett Road, Newton, has been elected a vice president of John P. Chase, Inc., a Boston based investment counseling firm.

Greene joined the Chase firm in 1973 as a member of the research department. Prior to that, Greene had been hadd of his own company, D. H. Greene Associates.

Local couple going to London

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Migell of Newton are going to London, England to attend the spring meeting of the Independent Battery Manufacturers, Inc. which will be held on May 13 at the Hilton Hotel.

Chamber of Commerce sponsors May 7 seminar

How to prepare for "Meeting the Challenge of Manpower Needs in the 1980's" will be the theme for a seminar for business and educational leaders Tuesday, May 7, at the Barry Science Pavillion of Newton College, from 2:45 - 5 p.m.

The seminar is being sponsored by the Employment and Education Planning Council of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce.

Richard F. Kaerwer of the 3 M Company, senior vice president of the Chamber and chairman of the Council will moderate the panel discussions. William Brady, placement director of Northeastern University will discuss what employers are seeking in graduates, how student career goals are changing and how the colleges are adjusting to these changes.

James Buckley, Milford superintendent of schools wil present material relating to vocational education, work study programs and changing high school guidance philosophies.

William A. Moynihan, Cramer Electronics vice president, will discuss developing and upgrading manpower from within via company training programs, while John E. Newby, president of Whetton Div., Buckley & Scott, will relate to the problems of small business in recruiting, training and maintaining manpower in competition with larger firms. With respect to research and statistical studies, Nikki Shields of Data Resources, will describe expected needs in various occupational clusters, while Ms. Dorothy Sparrow of the Boston College School of Management will analyze and report on projected occupational needs for college-trained personnel.

Members of the Chamber's Employment and Education Planning Council include Richard F. Kaerwer, The 3 M Company, chairman; Loren Eaton, GTE Sylvania; John Fox, Newton-Wellesley Hospital; Hugh Gallagher, Needham Public Schools; Margaret A. Hunt, Newton Savings Bank; William A. Moynihan, Cramer Electronics; Dorothy Sparrow, Boston College; Paul A. Wegerdt, GTE Sylvania and Dr. James J. Whalen, Newton College president.

The profram is free, but reservations through the Chamber office (244-5300) are required.

EDC receives grant

The National Science Foundation has made a grant to Education Development Center for the production of a filmed television program dealing with the biosphere.

The project is under the direction of Eugene Bell, professor of biology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Associate director of the project is Jack Churchill of EDC.

The film will investigate the relationship between the biosphere and the world's food supply, examining the factors that limit food production and the relationship of these factors to the natural services and other aspects of the biosphere. The program will also make clear the nutritional needs of the world's population and explore ways in which these needs can be met.

Principal consultant for the film is Lester Brown, Senior Fellow of the Overseas Development Council. His latest book is "World Without Borders."

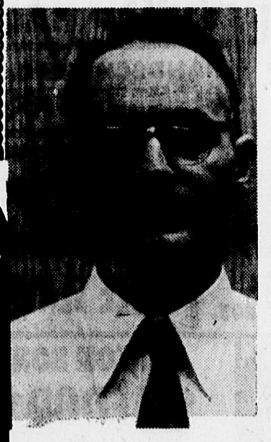

The project's steering committee is composed of ecologists and other environmentalists. It includes Herb Borman of Yale University and the Ecological Society of America, Paul R. Ehrlich of Stanford University, John P Holdren of the University of California at Berkeley, Edward J. Kormondy of The Evergreen State College, Eugene Odum of the University of Georgia, Paul G. Pearson of Rutgers University, and George M. Woodwell of Brookhaven National Laboratory.

EDC's experience in television includes production for CBS Television of "The Eskimo: Fight for Life." The special was produced by EDC from its social studies project on the Netsilik Eskimos and received a 23.5 rating and 37 share.

EDC recently was awarded a major grant by the U.S. Office of Education to develop 65 half-hour television programs dealing with mathematics for children of ages eight through eleven.

To achieve flexibility in television programming, the production on food and the biosphere will be released both as a single film and in separate short pieces. Production will be carried out with the help and advice of news and public affairs directors of a number of interested television stations.

The project is designed as a pilot program leading to a large-scale and continuing effort concerned with all aspects of the environmental crisis and the impact of science and technology on civilization.

HAROLD WIPER,V A BIOLOGY TEACHER AT Newton North High School, was recently elected to the Region 1 directorship of the National Association of Biology Teachers.

Obituaries

Katherine Donnellan

Katherine E. (Kindregan) Donnellan, 90, of 106 Lexington St., Auburndale, died Sunday (April 28) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a brief illness.

Mrs. Donnellan was a retired nurse and is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Marie Shaw of Bedford, Ms. Helen Griffith of Brookline, and Mrs. Margaret Crowe of Auburndale; a brother, Stephen Kindregan of Ireland; three sisters, Ms. Winifred McLaughlin and Miss Helen Kindregan, both of Brighton, and Ms. Bina Howell of Newark, Ohio; 12 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Wednesday (May 1) with a mass St. Jude's Church. Burial is in Calvary Cemetery.

Henry Eggers

The funeral of Henry F. Eggers was held Wednesday (May 1) in Floral Park, Long Island.

Mr. Eggers, 90, of 2049 Commonwealth Ave., Auburndale, died Saturday (April 27) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a short illness.

Born in Bremer Voerd, Germany, Mr. Eggers was a retired meatcutter. He was a 50-year member of Allemania Lodge No. 740 A.F. & A.M. of Floral Park.

Mr. Eggers had lived in Auburndale for the past eight years.

Mr. Eggers is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Janet D. Kennedy of Auburndale; five grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Burial is in Port Washington, N.Y.

Arthur Warshaver

Arthur M. Warshaver of 145 Paulson Rd., Waban, president of Slumberland Products Co., died Monday (April 29) at his home.

Mr. Warshaver, 62, started in the family business 40 years ago. He had served as president of the New England Association of Bedding Manufacturers, as a trustee of the National Association of Bedding Manufacturers, as chairman of the furniture division of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies.

He had been appointed to the advisory board of the furniture and bedding section of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health and had served as president of Bemco Associates. Mr. Warshaver was a member of Shawmut Lodge A.F. & A.M., a benefactor of the Jewish Big Brother Association, Jewish Hospital for Children in Denver, Morgan Memorial, Choate Hospital and Beth Israel Hospital.

Mr. Warshaver is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sarah R. Warshaver; his daughter Beth Gordon of Cambridge; his son, Mark D. of Sudbury; two sisters, Mrs. Mary Rosenthal and Mrs. Estelle Davine, both of Newton; a brother, Leonard R. of Niskayuna, N.Y., and two grandchildren.

Services were held Tuesday (April 30) in Temple Mishkan Tefila. Memorial week is private.

Physician and daughter honored for research

A Massachusetts physician who was a pioneer in the field of cancer research, and his daughter, a biostatistician who has made important contributions in the same field, will be honored for their longtime service to public health at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Public Health Association May 3 at the Colonial Hilton Inn in Wakefield.

The unusual father-and-daughter recognition goes to Dr. Herbert L. Lombard and Olive M. Lombard, of 47 Charlotte Road, Newton Centre, both of whom have distinguished themselves in cancer prevention, education, and research.

Dr. Lombard, epidemiologist and retired director of the division of cancer and chronic diseases of the state Department of Public Health, and Miss Lombard, biostatistician, teacher, and author, will receive special certificates of membership from the MPHA for a combined membership of almost three-quarters of a century. Lombard has been a member of the organization for 48 years and his daughter for 25 years.

While with the Department of Public Health, Lombard broke much new ground in the control and treatment of cancer. He inaugurated a complete cancer control program, the first in any state, and established state-aided tumor diagnostic centers throughout Massachusetts, a practice which was copied throughout the country. His program was the first to make extensive use of community health educators and to set up cancer education committees in every community of the state.

As a result of reports Dr. Lombard wrote on the need for cancer research and control in Massachusetts, Pondville Hospital was established in 1927. The hospital was the first tax-supported hospital in the nation for both the research and treatment of cancer.

Known as an author on statistics of cancer, Lombard is believed to have been one of the first to report a connection between cancer and smoking in a paper published in the 1920's. He is also credited with being the first to discover that the chance of getting cancer of the cervix is much higher in women who marry early (before the age of 20).

He is considered by many to have been a prime mover i changing the attitude of the public toward cancer from that of a nameless terror to acceptance of it as a disease with the possibility of a successful prognosis if diagnosed and treated as early as possible.

Dr. Shields Warren, when chairman of the cancer committee of the Massachusetts Medical Society in 1941, recognized the vision of the cancer program of the state Public Health Department and lauded the guidance and leadership of Dr. Lombard as director of the program.

Lombard was formerly of the Harvard School of Public Health, a professor of public health at Tufts University Dental School, a consultant to the U.S. Public Health Service, and a director of the Massachusetts Division of the American Cancer Society.

Miss Lombard, a consultant in biostatistics for the Cancer Research Institute of the New England Deaconess Hospital, has done much teaching and writing on cancer research. From 1941 to 1965, she was associated with the Harvard School of Public Health in numerous capacities, including statistician, research associate in cancer control, and instructor in public health practice.

She has lectured widely and also served as statistical consultant to many agencies and groups, including the Children's Cancer Research Foundation, the Massachusetts Division of the American Cancer Society, Lemuel Shattuck Hospital, Lahey Clinic, Boston City Hospital, and the Cancer Control Program of the Division of Special Services, Washington, D.C.

Miss Lombard is the author of many papers in the field of cancer and radiology, including several as co-author with Dr. Shields Warren, internationally known in the field of cancer. Some of her works deal with the effects of cigarette smoking among Massachusetts physicians and dentists.

She is currently writing a textbook on biostatistics for nurses which is due for publication later this year.

Miss Lombard is a former secretary-treasurer of the Public Health Cancer Association of America and has been a member of many scientific and educational organizations, including the American Society for Human Genetics, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Biometrics Society, and the Royal Society of Health in Great Britain.

Lung Association will co-sponsor May 6 program

The Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association will co-sponsor the first in a series of programs dealing with "Home Care for the Person with Chronic Obstructive Lung Disease" on Monday, May 6, at 7:30 p.m., at the Norfolk County Hospital, 2001 Washington Street, Braintree.

The meetings, which will be sponsored jointly by the Lung Association and the hospital, will include instruction on the proper care of machinery used in the homes of lung disease patients, and general information concerning respiratory health. There will be no admission charge.

Persons may contact the Lung Association at 326-4081 for further information.

Named territory salesman for Zenith

From the sands of Cape Cod to the asphalt of Dedham, Needham, Norwood, Westwood and other suburban communities is the capsule story of Paul O'Loughlin - whose family will continue to reside in East Harwich on the Cape until the final school bell rings!

Paul was recently appointed as a district salesman for Northeastern Distributors, Inc., wholesale Zenith distributors of Cambridge. He will be merchandising the complete line of Zenith home entertainment instruments to retail dealers south and west of Boston.

He was most recently employed to Simplex Wire and Cable Company where he served as a field representative and district manager. He is a 1955 graduate of Boston College.

Paul's wife, three daughters and three sons are currently residing in East Harwich and will be joining him at the end of the school year.

William Coakley, general sales manager of the Zenith

PAUL O'LOUGHLIN

Division at Northeastern Distributors made the announcement of O'Loughlin's appointment. Northeastern is the oldest Zenith distributor under the same continuous ownership in the world and will soon be celebrating their fiftieth anniversary with Zenith, 1925 to 1975.

Complimentary passes at N.E. Aquarium

Every youngster age 5 through 14 in New England whoo visits the New England Aquarium with a school group between now and June 15 is going to get an extra bonus.

Complimentary souvenir passes, good for the child's return admission too the Aquarium at a later date through the summer, are being distributed. The passes are valid through August 31, when the child is accompanied by an adult.

With these complimentary passes, the Aquarium is providing an opportunity for the child to reinforce his initial educational introduction to the world of water.

Annual spring weekend at Old Sturbridge Village

STURBRIDGE, MASS — Food preservation and preparation, orchard keeping, gardening and farming methods of the early 1800's are the subjects of Old Sturbridge Village's annual Spring Weekend, May 4-5.

Recognizing the growing popularity of gardening, farming and historical cookery, this year's program, entitled "Drom the Ground to the Table," will include such topics as "The Early Apple Orchards of New England," "Livestock, Dairy Products and Vegetables," and "Edible and Ornamental Herbs," presented by authorities in New England horticulture and agriculture, historical cookbooks and cookery, and intensive gardening methods.

IVN CHOOSING THE FOCUS FOR THE WEEKEND PROGRAM, Barnes Riznik, vice president for museum administration and interpretation, remarked, "This program will bring together for presentation a number of increasing strengths--in the areas of horticulture, agriculture and housekeeping--in Old Sturbridge Village's interpretation of early New England history."

As a further reminder that an outdoor history museum involves living things--such as Old Sturbridge Village's historical collection of livestock, field crops, vegetables, fruits, herbs and flowers--the weekend program also will include special kitchen demonstrations in two of the Village's historic homes, and tours of the Village's living historical Pliny Freeman Farm and Preservation Orchard. The Preservation Orchard--a cooperative effort of Old Sturbridge Village and the Worcester County Horticultural Society (WCHS)--contains nearly 200 young apple trees representing nearly 100 old varieties from throughout the United States and Europe.

Featured among the speakers is Mrs. Helen Duprey Bullock of Washington, D.C., retired senior editor and historian of the National Trust for Historic Preservation. A noted historian and authority on cookery, Mrs. Bullock is author of the Williamsburg Art of Cookery, historical consultant for the American Heritage Cookbook, and consulting editor for the First Ladies Cookbook.

Also, Alan Chadwick, director of the Biodynamic Project, University of California at Santa Cruz, and founder and director of the Covelo Village (Calif.) Garden Project, established in 1973 as a non-profit organization and formed as a model example of classic horticulture and a center for learning horticultural techniques.

Other speakers include(Paul Rogers of Charlton, Mass., program chairman for WCHS, Charlton Conservation Commission chairman, and landscape supervisor, Holy Cross College; John E. Auchmoody, trustee of WCHS and vice president for business administration, Old Sturbridge Village; Darwin Kelsey, past president of the Association of Living Historical Farms and Agricultureal Museums, and researcher in historical agriculture, Old Sturbridge Village; Ms. Lynne Pledger, interpretation assistant, Old Sturbridge Village and Mr. Riznik.

All program sessions will be held in the Village Meetinghouse; an afternoon luncheon and evening reception and dinner will be held in the Village Tavern on May 4. Attendance for the weekend is by advance reservation only with the Xecretary for Special Events, Old Sturbridge Village, Sturbridge, Mass. 01566.

A re-created rural New England community of the period 1790-1840, Old Sturbridge Village is located near the junction of the Massachusetts Turnpike and Interstate 86. It is accessible from Boston on the Peter Pan Bus Lines.

Reunion class Of 1924 H.S. of Commerce

The old High School of Commerce, Class of 1924, is planning its 50th reunion to be held Monday, May 20, at the Colonial Country Club, Route 128, Lynnfield.

The affair will open during the day, with golfing and swimming and an a la carte luncheon is available.

There will be a "happy hour" at 6, and dinner at 7, with dancing to follow.Wives of members are invited.

The principal speaker will be Walter L. "Bunk" McLean, a former civics and salesmanship teacher at the school.

Reservations should be made with Edward Connelly, who was president of the class, at 21 Archdale road, Roslindale, telephone 323-2630.

Annual meeting Lung Assn. Tuesday night

Paul Alvarado, regional program director for the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, will be the guest speaker at the 53rd annual meeting of the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association to be held at the Club Car Restaurant, Norwood, on Tuesday evening, May 7, at 6 o'clock.

Alvarado will speak about the government's role in protecting workers from potential and existing respiratory hazards encountered on the job.

Formerly the Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, the group is celebrating its first anniversary under its new name – Lung Association. Best known for its Christmas Seals and the fight to conquer tuberculosis, the Association has enlarged the scope of its services to the community to include the prevention and control of all lung diseases.

The annual meeting program committee includes: Edgar M. Grout of Walpole, chairman, Mrs. Patrick Hennessey of Canton, Mrs. B. Hartley O'Brien of Norfolk and Ernest Remondini of East Weymouth.

Announcing Newsradio

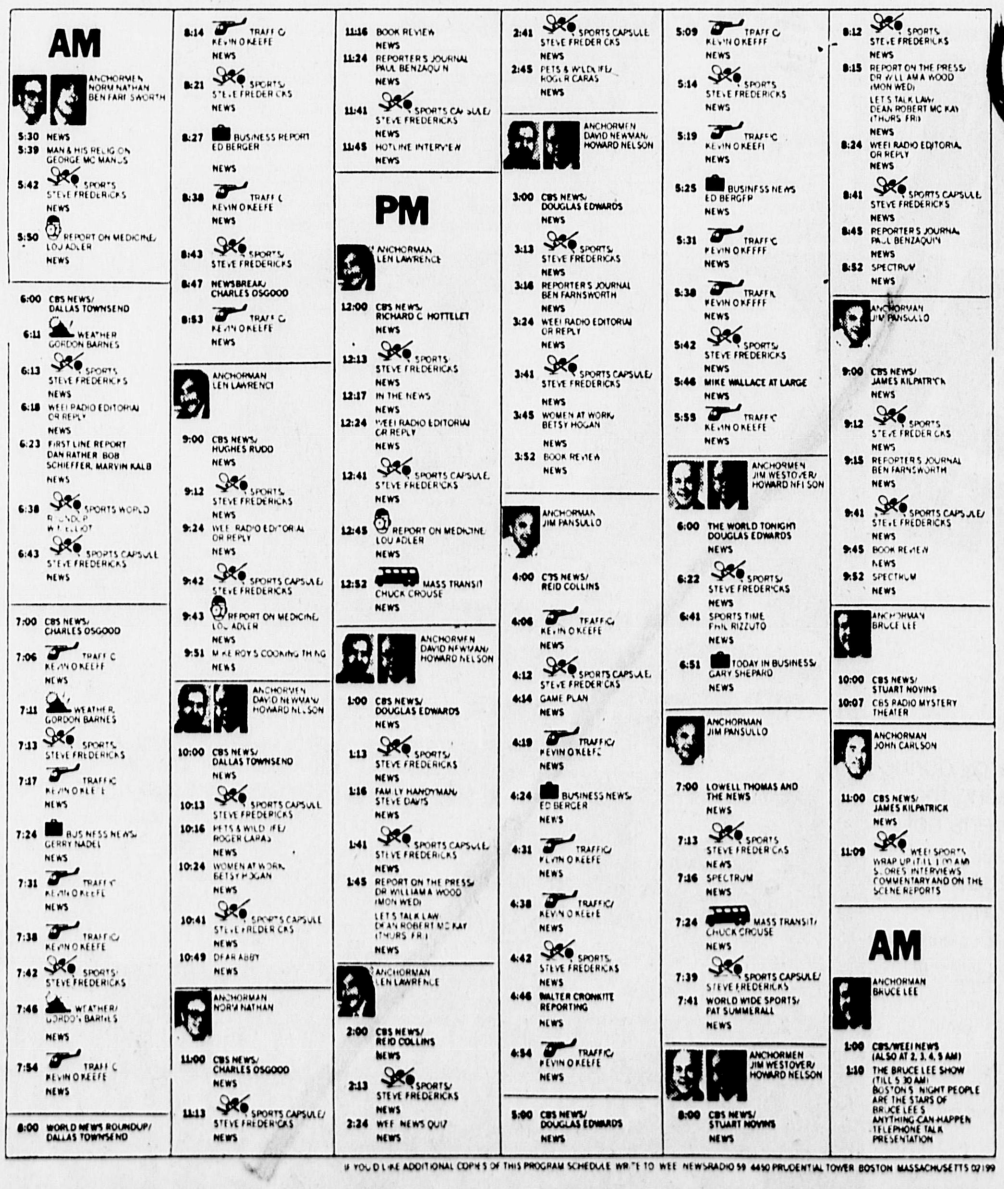

You'll find we keep regular hours at WEEI/Newsradio 59. Our special features and reports are carefully scheduled between news segments

So it follows that parts of your day will dovetail with parts of our day. Like clockwork

You might, for example, get up at Gordon Barnes Weather time; dress by Helicopter Traffic-time; gulp coffee by Steve Fredericks Sports-time; race out by Ed Berger Business-time; get in by Hughes Rudd CBS News-time

Of course, the flow of news on a given day can alter feature times slightly. But this weekday 24-hour program schedule is a very good guide to Newsradio 59.

"This natural mineral cultivates lawns like millions of tiny hoes!"

"GRAND PRIZE Gypsum breaks up hard-pan clay soil to render it useful and improve drainage," advises Jerry Baker, America's master gardener and author of "Plants Are Like People."

GRAND PRIZE® Lawn & Garden Gypsum
Now GRAND PRIZE Gypsum makes it easy to get your lawn ready for the growing season. These clean, white mineral particles work their way down into packed turf like little hoes, loosen clogged soil so it can breathe. This helps speed up seed germination, lets roots grow deep and strong, makes fertilizers work more effectively, too. And non-toxic, non-burning GRAND PRIZE adds its own bonus of sulfate sulfur and calcium. Spread GRAND PRIZE Gypsum in Spring and Fall to loosen clay soil, improve growth of grass, flowers and vegetables. Get it now at your garden center or hardware store.

Newton residents working on play

Actors Workshop, now readying "Under Milk Wood" in competition for the Moss Hart Memorial Award, may actually develop "producers" as well as actors in its full time training program for professional theatre run by Newton residents.

The full length play is being prepared now for free performances open to the public on May 3, 4, 10 and 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the Workshop, 116 Newbury St. in Boston. Reservations are required.

All phases of the production from start to finish are being handled by the students themselves as their final class assignment before graduating. They selected the play, arranged for special lighting and props, and even enlarged the stage.

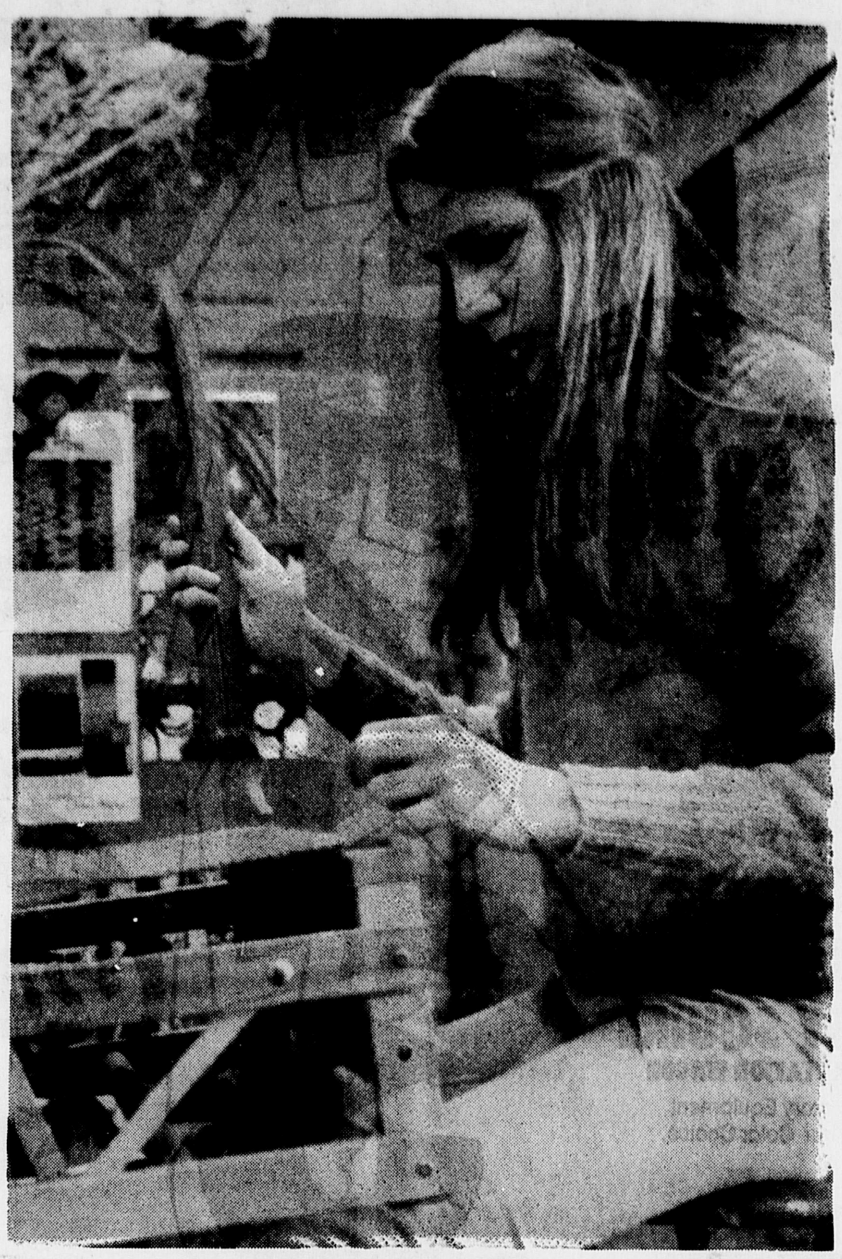

Students assigned themselves to sell and prepare ad books, handle ticket reservations, and come up with promotion ideas. They're inviting the theatre critics to review their performances.

By doing all these functions the students get to do the producing as well as the acting, learning first hand the responsibilities and the problems of the producer in today's theatre

Artistic director of the play is Mr. Bart McCarthy, 47 Oak Ave., West Newton, a member of Actors Workshop faculty as well as a professional actor and Equity member; overseeing the entire production is Ms. Loretta Michaels 53 East Quinobequin Rd., Waban, director of the school as well as a professional actress and director and hostess of the 15-year "Builders Showcase" television program (produced by her husband Jerry Michaels and seen on TV 38 at 12 noon every Sunday)

Other Newtonites who are students and members of the cast are: Mary McGarry (56 Bellevue St., Newton) and Donald Campbell (23 Cherry Place, West Newton).

In addition to the scheduled performances at the school, Actors Workshop will upon invitation give free performances to special groups who may call 266-6840.

Weaver Pam Hubbard, a student at Beaver Country Day School in Chestnut Hill, has prepared weaving for the school's are festival, continuing this week through May 4. The Boston Flamenco Ballet will appear Friday evening and Saturday, a glee club concert with Roxbury Latin School will top off the four-day program

More democracy for Democratic Party

By BETTY TAYMOR

On Saturday, May 4, the Democratic Party of Massachusetts will hold the first open caucuses in recent history in every ward and town of the Commonwealth.

These caucuses are to elect delegates to June 1 congressional district caucuses at which three or four people will be chosen in each congressional district to attend the Kansas City midterm convention, Dec. 6-8.

Many substantive issues regarding the functions of the party will be discussed and voted upon at the Kansas City convention. The most important policy discussion involves the consideration and adoption of a party charter, a document which will determine the course of party politics for years to come.

A major issue will center around the question of whether to hold party conferences in the future, and particularly whether the conferences should be mandated in the charter. The need for some type of party conference betwen presidential years is becoming more and more recognized by elected officials as well as party leaders. Senator Mike Mansfield told the Charter Commission last year: "As you know, the intent and goal of writing a charter for the Democratic Party is to provide the grass roots level with a source of input into Party thinking and actions. The aim is to give the Party a more enduring, substantive tie to the electorate than that which has too often resulted from the quadrennial convention approach. Ideally, this effort will broaden public involvement in major national policy questions and offer as well the opportunity to bring various elements of the Party together."

Telephone employees to earn college credits

New England Telephone employees now have the opportunity to earn college credits by successfully completing written examinations, according to an agreement reached recently between the company and the College Entrance Examination Board (CEEB).

Under the agreement, the newly opened Learning Center in Marlboro, Mass. has been designated a College Level Examination Program (CLEP) test center.

The program makes it possible for individuals to be awarded college credits for knowledge they have acquired in any number of ways, including employment experience, reading, adult education classes, television courses, military experience, business training and so on.

James F. Crain, assistant vice president-training, said, "The selection of the Marlboro facility as a test center will make it easier and more convenient for employees to receive college-level credit for knowledge they already possess, at a considerable reduction in time and expense."

This marks the first time that the College Entrance Examination Board has entered into an agreement with an institution other than a college or university.

Leon M. Goodman, training supervisor and test administrator of CLEP at the Learning Center, said there are two types of examinations - general and subject.

The general examinations are designed to measure college-level achievement in five basic areas of the liberal arts: English composition, humanities, mathematics, natural sciences and s cial sciencies-history.

The subject examinations are designed to measure achievmenet in specific college courses. There are 30 subject examinations in such fields as economics, business management, history, English literature and so forth.

Testimony heard on flood control

In Washington D.C. public testimony is being taken from April 23 to May 3 on appropriations for flood control projects authorized in the 1973 Water resources Development Act PL93-251.

Included in this year's authorization is the Charles River Watershed Association (RWA).

CRWA's Executive Director Mrs. Rita Barron reports that there is a concerted effort in the administation and the Congress to appropriate funds for all authorized projects in hope of improving the economy and the unemployment situation.

There is reportedly also a strong move within the environmental community to block many of the projects which are considered environmentally unsound or wasteful of scarce energy resources

In the middle of the controversy, says Mrs. Barron, is the $7.34 million authorization to secure 7422 acres of Charles River wetlands for permanent protection to continue to serve as natural flood storage areas

The Natural Valley Storage plan, as proposed by the New England Division, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, has been acclaimed nationally for its environmental and economic merits. It was authorized in March 1974 when President Nixon signed PL93-251 into law.

The funds must be appropriaed by the respective Appropriations Subcommittees of the Senate and House Public Wrosk Committees.

Early funding would mean that the first steps toward protection of watershed residents from the flood hazards of developed wetlands could be taken within this calendar year

Senator John Stennis is chairman of the Senate subcommittee and Representative Joe Evins is chairman of the House subcommittee

The Natural Valley Storage plan for the Charles has reportedly enjoyed broad public support from its conception. For further information, people may call the Charles River Watershed Association (527-2799) works and it also gives a chance for the youth of the city to participate through youth concerts."

The Newton Symphony, Sasson said, "should be a source of pride to the community and this one is one of the finest community orchestras in the country."

Well aware that he is in the shadow of the BSO, Sasson said he has tried to keep away from works they regularly perform, or works that they will perform during a season, and instead use this symphony for area premieres and local debuts of young musical artists.

For the performance of the Mahler work Sunday, Sasson has brought in the Masterworks Chorale and soloists Deborah Ann O'Brien, soprano; Phyllis Elhady, contralto; Carl Olsen, tenor; and David Arnold, baritone.

Also on this program is Verdi's "Te Deum."

The performance of Mahler's cantata is taken from the original manuscript, hidden for years. The manuscript came to light in Yale's library and the story was that Mahler had originally given it to his friend, Aronold Rose, concertmaster of the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra. His son, in turn, took the manuscrint with him to London, Ontario, when he became a teacher in the city's college of music. Music-minded professor Henry L. Osborne bought the piece and took it back to Yale with him.

Mahler, who originally wrote the piece while in his teens, had revised it during his life, but the original will be staged Sunday at North High School.

Looking forward to this premiere as a high point in the history of the symphony, Sasson also took time to look back on other outstanding moments.

He recalled the night pianist Tedd Josselson appeared with the orchestra and performed so brilliantly he got the first standing ovation in the orchestra's history.

Next season, Sasson plans a program with the Boston Ballet and an appearance by another budding pianist, among other things.

And what are the thoughts of the art of conducting from a violinist turncoat?

"I originally thought the brunt of the work was shaking a stick at the music," the conductor said, bemused. "That's about 5 per cent of it.

"Fifty per cent is learning the score, and the rest is just plain old dealing with people.

Born of French parents in Egypt, Sasson was considered a child prodigy and performed the Mendelsohn Violin Concerto with the Cairo Symphony when he was 8.

He studied at the Paris Conservatory and came to the New England Conservatory of Music on a full scholarship in 1958. He was concertmaster of the conservatory orchestra from 1958-59 and joined the BSO in 1959.

The concert Sunday will be at 8 p.m. and will mark the symphony's first appearance in North High School. Up to this concert, it has performed at Meadowbrook Junior High School. For tickets, call 244-8506.

Mental health workers shocked by budget cut

A cut in the budget of the state Department of Mental Health has caused reactions of shock among mental health Region V workers.

The cut, which was aimed specifically at salaries of area directors (Newton is in the Newton-Wellesley-Weston area of Region V) and at children's services.

Early this week Sen. Irving Fishman reported that the money would be restored to the budget by the Senate Ways and Means Committee. "I have every assurance from the chairman that restoration will be made," Fishman said.

After Senate action the matter will go into a House-Senate conference committee, appointed by Speaker David Bartley and Senate President Kevin Harrington.

The appointments to the conference committee will hold the key to restoration of the deleted money.

In the Newton-Wellesley-Weston area, Edward Sahatjian explained that the N-W-W area has never been able to fund the post of area director, because of lack of state money. Only the associate director has been salaried.

Sahatjian was recently promoted to area director from associate director and has been serving in both positions. The difference between the two salaries in areas in which the director is paid is about $7,000, Sahatjian said.

The cut in budget affects Region V in the amount of $100,000.

Sahatjian said this week that the cut will mean a cutback in planned expansion of services to children, which will have an effect on the community program that will be complete in September or October.

The N-W-W mental health area by then will have an "operational health center," Sahatjian said, consisting of tie-ins with eight mental-health agencies—the Newton-Wellesley Hospital psychiatric clinic, the Newton Guidance Clinic, Network (a combine of youth agencies), the Wellesley Human Relations Commission, the Gabler Children's Unit in Waltham, the Charles River Workshop in Needham, and the Medfield State Hospital.

Volunteer Job Fair in Boston May 23

Four thousand statewide volunteer agencies are taking part in a one day Volunteer Job Fair, to be held at Hynes Civic Auditorium, 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., on Thursday, May 23.

Guidelines are being initiated for a central office of volunteerism. The office will be designed to consolidate activities, and to provide a strong identity to volunteerism and citizen participation.

Volunteer Day (V-DAY-74) will introduce the public to the opportunities available to volunteers.

Mrs. Francis W. Sargent, chairperson, and Mrs. Isabel G. Besecker, director of school volunteers for Boston, vice chairperson, are working on panel discussions and workshops to be included on that day.

Commenting on plans for V-DAY-74, Mrs. Sargent said, "There is an enormous amount of work being done by an army of Massachusetts people who believe in citizen participation. Whether they call themselves volunteers or advocates for change, these people are working in schools, hospitals, prisons, and government. They give their time freely in order to supplement staff, provide services, or initiate change.

"During the May 23rd program, we hope to stimulate the general public to the new roles that volunteers are playing and to encourage an even greater interest in the challenges and rewards of citizen participation."

he had not yet returned to work. He has been out since suffering the alleged back injury March 14.

Don Balcom was the man up in the tree this time.

Obermayer was not present Wednesday. His wife, Judy Obermayer, said he was at work.

She watched the cutting from the street with neighbors and snapped some pictures. She also retrieved one tree limb to show that the tree was beginning to produce its spring crop of leaves.

Other neighbors grumbled about the destruction of the tree which is not dead but is considered by tree experts too contain extensive rot.

Obermayer, who commissioned his own report on the state of the tree, has pointedd out his tree expert said the 70-year-old sugar maple tree had at least 10 years of life left.

Three city reports recommended removal of the tree on the basis it presents a hazard. It was the one tree on in this area of Chestnut Street with trunk growth beyond the curb line and into the street and had been frequently sideswiped by trucks and plows.

would be resolved tonight and was "blown out of proportion by newspaper accounts."

However, Waterman said, "There is no proposal for a resolution for a special deal to attract the developer. He added that they also do not fall within the province of a law which governs a city trying to entice large income-producing businesses.

Ironically, this developer had the wholehearted support of a community which fought successfully to overturn the authority's June 15 selection of J. F. White as a developer. The community, backed up by the Department of Community Affairs, preferred the Spaulding and Slye three-building concept. These three buildings are presently at the root of the developer's problems.

for softball." Softball was chosen this year "because it was something parents would live with."

Asked why the board has only one woman, Halperin replied "we could not get them . . . we wanted a woman president, but no one wanted the job."

Other members of the board are Sheldon Casler, President; Anthony Chiaravelotti, Stanley Halperin, Steven Kendall, Judy Hunter, Robert Halperin. The commissioner and umpire is Alvin Huberman.

There are still many kinks to be ironed out until the season begins. Meanwhile, the girls have an opportunity to play competitively and from the looks of practices will be able to take on a Little League team with ease! If Little League's up to the challenge.

Free blood pressure screening on May 11

May has been designated as National High Blood Pressure Month. In conjunction with this, the Newton-Wellesley Visiting Nurse Association will be holding free blood pressure screening programs throughout Newton and Wellesley.

On Saturday, May 11, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., all persons 18 and over are urged to participate. Places of screening - parking lots at: Kings Dept. Store, Watertown St., Newton; Auburndale Star Market, Commonwealth Ave., Auburndale; Newtonville Star Market, Austin St., Newtonville; Purity Supreme, Route 9, Newton Highlands; Chestnut Hill Star Market, Route 9, Chestnut Hill; Piccadilly Square, Newton Center; and Wellesley Star Market, parking lot behind Sunshine Dairy across street from Star Market.

If it rains, no screening will be done at Chestnut Hill Star Market or at Wellesley Star Market. All other screenings will be inside stores.

Diet Workshop to have an open house week

The Newton Diet Workshop has announced it will hold free open house week during the week of May 6, at 285 Centre Street, Newton Corner at the following times: Monday, Tuesday & Thursday 7:30 p.m.; Wednesday 5:30 p.m.; Saturday 9:30 a.m.

The recent paperback book, "Rating the Diets," published by Consumer Guide, gives The Diet Workshop a high recommendation - a 4 star rating. The liberal diet (nutritionally balanced by Dr. Morton B. Glenn of New York - Medical Advisor to The Diet Workshop) has been combined with optional exercises, low-calorie recipes for the whole family and the moral support of group participation.

Open houses will be held in Newton Centre, Newton Highlands and West Newton. Men, women and teenagers will be welcome to join at the conclusion of these Open Houses and at future meetings.

Campus notes

Philip M. Alajajian of 16 Kimball Terrace, Newtonville, has been named to the dean's list at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. Mr. Alajajian is an engineering major.

Buchanan named GM for Feely Chevrolet

Feely Chrvrolet, Inc., of Needham, has appointed Duncan Buchanan as general manager, it has been announced by Robert P. Feely, president.

Mr. Buchanan has spent 21 years in the automobile dealership sales. He was formerly Feely Chevrolet's sales and used car manager before taking appointments with Oldsmobile and Toyota dealers.

Feely Chevrolet, Inc., has initiated a community-oriented sales and service expansion program under Mr. Buchanan's direction. According to Mr. Buchanan, "Chevrolet owners can be better serviced with Feely's 29 years of experience, plus benefiting from the company's new "Blue Ribbon" service policy."

Mr. Buchanan resides at 112 Bradford St., Needham.

Friday Celts game on TV

BOSTON (UPI) — WNAC-TV has purchased the final 250 seats available for Friday night's game between the Boston Celtics and the Milwaukee Bucks in the NBA championship series to ensure local telecasting, the Celtics said Monday.

The television station will donate the tickets to Sports Shuttle, a benefit for underprivileged youth, according to Channel 7 general manager Jim Coppersmith.

In Northern Ireland, A growing forest of tombstones

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — There is today a forest of tombstones in Belfast's Milltown Cemetery, sad and inescapable reminder that nearly 1,000 men, women and children have died in Ireland's savage and seemingly unsolvable Ulster war between Roman Catholics and Protestants.

And in that forest there is one small gave that is a particular symbol of the sorrow that is upon the land, that of little Patrick Rooney who died more than four years ago.

It was a few minutes past midnight in Belfast on Aug. 15, 1969, when Rooney, a Roman Catholic altar boy, died in the first outbreak of rioting between Catholics and Protestants.

In another section of the city Herbert Roy, a 29-year-old Protestant, also died on that Aug. 15. The Catholic child and the Protestant young man were the first to die in the terrible warfare that still goes on, on without end.

Back to Elizabeth I

The roots of the conflict reach back to the 17th Century, when Queen Elizabeth I settled English and Scottish families on confiscated lands of Irish earls.

Down the years the Protestant settlers stayed aloof from the native Irish Catholics.

Shortly after the turn of the century, Britain toyed with the idea of granting home rule to Ireland. Protestants in the north bitterly resisted the idea and armed themselves to fight for separation from the Catholic south.

The British government relented and instead granted the six counties of the north separate home rule from the south.

The new province of Northern Ireland, created by an act of parliament in 1920, marked the beginning of bitter years of frustration for the territory's 500,000 minority Catholics.

Catholics, herded together in ghettos and deprived of many job opportunities, launched a civil rights movement in 1968 to press for equal treatment with the Protestant ruling class.

March for Equality

In October that year, club-wielding police clashed with Catholics marching through Londonderry carrying placards demanding housing, jobs and equal voting rights with Protestants.

British troops were called in the following August after four days of bloody rioting between the two communities.

The outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA), demanding an end to British rule in the province, moved in, instituting a deadly guerrilla campaign against British soldiers that still rages.

The wave of sectarian assassinations that continues to terrorize the province also began then.

Protestant militants blocked any attempts to institute reforms to defuse the situation. Terence O'Neill, the soft-spoken reform premier, was swept from office. His successor, James Chichester Clark, was toppled within a year.

And Still the Cemeteries Grow

Brian Faulkner assumed the premiership on a pledge to smash the IRA. Under his government, internment — imprisonment without trial—was introduced and hundreds of suspected IRA members were rounded up. But the violence continued.

In March, 1972, the British government, in an effort to bring peace to the province, imposed its own direct rule, sweeping Faulkner's administration aside.

Last year Britain restored a measure of home rule to the newly elected Northern Ireland Assembly in an unprecedented power-sharing experiment between the two communities.

But nothing has stopped the bloodshed. Daily, the forest of tombstones in Milltown Cemetery, all the cemeteries, grows.

The design for the White House was a contest sponsored by the federal government and won by James Hoban, who was awarded a $500 prize.

Cultural Kinship

"The World Theater Festival will be the theater's major contribution to the Bicentennial," Cohen said. "Of all the arts, the theater is the most suited to make a strong statement of cultural kinship. The language of the stage is universal; the union of actor and audience can strike a spark of human recognitition that pierces all barriers, including language."

Some of the foreign groups that may be expected to participate, since they already have expressed interest, are the National Theater of Great Britain, England's Royal Shakespeare Company, the Comedie Francaise, the Vienna Burgtheater, the Nationaltheatret of Oslo, Norway, the Teatro Stabile of Genoa, Israel's Habimah Theater, the Cameri Theater of Tel Aviv, the Greek Art Theater of Athens, Berlin's Schiller Theater, Japan's Kabuki Theater, the Yugoslav Drama Theater of Belgrade, Milan's Piccolo Teatro and Narodni Divadlo, the National Theater of Prague.

Cohen envisages an exchange program during the Bicentennial period, with leading American theater groups, under World Theater Festival auspices, paying visits to foreign countries. These regional companies also would show their wares in various American cities that would never get a chance to see them under normal conditions.

The World Theater Festival has a board of advisers as long as an O'Neill play that ranges from A for New York Mayor Abe Beame to Z for actor Zero Mostel.

Besides the regular competitive Tony Awards of the Broadway theater, which will not be revealed until April 21, the League of New York Theaters, which runs this annual affair, has announced

ASSEMBLY OPENINGS
TRAINEES

Acoustic Research, a manufacturer of high fidelity equipment for 18 years, has recently relocated in a new facility at 10 American Drive, Norwood.

We currently have several opportunities for trainee personnel. These are full-time positions where we will teach you light mechanical and electrical assembly processes used in our loudspeaker and turntable production. Overtime is available as the work load demands.

The starting rate of pay for trainees is $2.50 per hour or higher for qualified candidates. We offer a 2-month review, company paid insurance, profit sharing and study grant programs, as well as vacation and holidays.

Please call 769-4200 for appointment

Jackson Homestead open house planned

Spring open house at the Jackson Homestead on Sunday, May 5, will put a spotlight on Washington Street "as a Social and Cultural Avenue in the life of Newton," with special exhibits prepared for the occasion.

The stately old mansion at 527 Washington Street housing the city-owned museum will be open Sunday from 2-5 p.m.

Among the exhibits prepared especially for the event will be several on music, musical programs, and instruments of the 1800's. A unique feature is a model of a Victorian bride and a display of wedding presents of the period.

Open for visitors also will be the Homestead's various rooms, including the Freedom Room.

Floral arrangements for the occasion are by members of the Newton Garden Club, among them Mrs. Richard A. Winslow, Mrs. Raymond P. Atwood, co-chairmen; Mrs. Harold A. Amidon, Mrs. D. Hardwick Bigelow, Mrs Nathan D. Bugbee, Mrs Clifford L. Derick, Mrs. William P. Helms. Mrs. Warren G. Hill, Mrs. Sylvester B. Kelley, Mrs. Robert S. Kretschmar, Mrs. Joseph C. Skinner, Mrs. Edward Wagenknecht.

Hostesses for the event are members of the Newton Centre Woman's Club, Mrs. Amos Kent, president; Mrs. F. Earle Conn, Mrs. Ross L. Trenholm, Mrs. Leonard D. Baker, and Mrs. Francis L. Maynard

Also, members of the Newton Community Club, Miss Adlaide B. Ball, president; Mrs. Henry A. MacPhee, Miss Rachel Seward, Mrs. Maudyea Campbell, and Miss Margaret S. Ball.

On the General Committee planning the event at the national landmark are: Mrs. Donald M. Budge, Mrs. Pual Burdon, Mrs. Charles C. Butler, Mrs. John D. Fox, Mrs. John Hurney, Miss Dorothy Lee Jones, Mrs. Norma Kattwinkle, Mrs. Orin E. Skinner, Mrs. George Wile, members of the Committee on Exhibits and Costumes.

Also Mrs. William D. Wellock and Miss Clara Ashley, Hospitality Committee; Mrs. Lester A Steinberg, chairman of the Homestead's Board of Trustees; Harry L Walen, president, Friends of the Jackson Homestead; Mrs. R. W. Jackson, secretary; and Mrs. William H. Cannard, director-curator of the Homestead.

The Jackson Homestead is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Legal secretaries meet

More than 20 area legal secretaries met recently at the law offices of Letoile, Murphy & O'Reilly for the purpose of organizing the Southern Middlesex County Legal Secretaries Association, which will become a chapter of the Massachusetts and National Associations.

They were assisted in their efforts by Massachusetts President E. Ann Eaton and Margaret F. McMahon, first vice president and membership chairman in Massachusetts, as well as other state officers.

Temporary Officers appointed included Eileen Griffin, president, Susan Noble, secretary and Margaret Goldman, treasurer.

Letoile, Murphy & O'Reilly have offered their offices at 1300 Worcester Road, Framingham, for the next meeting which will be held at 7:30 p.m. on May 7.

Any person employed in a law office, court, trust department of a bank or other law related business who is interested in membership is invited to attend, or may write for information to Ms. Marilyn Shaw, temporary membership chairman at Perini Corp., 73 Mt. Wayte Avenue, Framingham, Mass. Charter membership will close June 30, 1974.

Alvarado to speak

Paul Alvarado, regional program director for the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, will be the guest speaker at the fifty third annual meeting of the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association to be held at the Club Car Restaurant, Norwood, on Tuesday evening, May 7, at 6 p.m.

Alvarado will speak about the government's role in protectin workers from potential and existing respiratory hazards encountered on the job.

Formerly the Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, the group is celebrating its first anniversary under its new name—Lung Association.

The Annual Meeting Program Committee includes: Edgar M. Grout of Walpole, chairman, Mrs. Patrick Hennessey of Canton, Mrs. B. Hartley O'Brien of Norfolk, and Ernest Remondini of East Weymouth.

SUPERIOR COURT

To Wesley Gardens, Inc., of parts unknown.

Whereas a Petition in Equity has been begun against you in our Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex, wherein the plaintiff Donato D. Capasso of Newton in said County of Middlesex alleges that a cloud exists upon the title to a certain parcel of land located on Centre Street in said Newton conveyed to the said plaintiff by Wesbrook Company, Inc. by a deed dated February 1, 1974 and recorded in Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds, Book 12586, Page 421 in that the said Wesbrook Company, Inc. gave by mistake, a mortgage on the said property to the defendant Wesley Gardens, Inc. in the amount of $50,000.00, dated March 14, 1955 and recorded in Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds, Book 8428, Page 426 which mortgage was discharged by an instrument executed by Wesley Gardens, Inc. on March 21, 1955 and which discharge was never recorded.

Upon the foregoing Petition, it is ordered by the Court that the plaintiff notify the said Wesley Gardens, Inc., a corporation duly organized under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, that on the first Monday of August next, which day of this order, or within twenty one days from the said return day, it does cause its written appearance to be entered and its written answer or other lawful pleadings to be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court at Cambridge, in said County, and further that it defends against the said petition in equity, according to law, if it intends to make any defense, otherwise the said petition in equity, may be adjudged and orders and decrees may be entered therein in its absence, by posting an attested copy hereof in a conspicuous place on the land described in the said petition in equity, and by publication on an attested copy thereof in the Newton Graphic, a newspaper published in Newton, once a week for three successive weeks, the last publication to be two (2) months at least before the said first Monday of August, 1974.

South Arts Festival to feature music on May 11

The second night of the Newton South May Arts Festival will be given by the Newton South music department on May 11.

Four major performing groups will entertain, starting at 8 p.m. in the auditorium.

The Concert Band, directed by James Maxey, will give the Newton premiere perfomance of an original composition for band written by a senior boy, Eric Ziering.

He has called it "Symphony No. 1" and sub-titled it "The Re-Run Rag." The listener will recognize several familiar themes from television commercials, cartoon themes, and movie music. Eric will conduct this performance.

The Concert Orchestra, directed gy David M. Levenson, will feature two graduating seniors, who have been in the orchestra during their high school careers. Barbara Wright, violinist, will perform a movement of the Bach "Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in A monor. Barbara is the concert mistress of the orchestra. Also featured will be bassoonist Jonathan Grossman who will be the solist in the Mozart "Concerto for Bassoon and Orchestra in Bb."

The Vocal Ensemble, directed by David M. Arner, will offer a "Three by Thompson" program. This singing group of 17 is selected from the larger Concert Choir and performs frequently at nursing homes, temples, churches, and similar institutions.

For the concert they will sing three of Randall Thompson's most interesting and challenging compositions for chorus: "Glory to God In The Highest," "Alleluia," which will be directed by Larry Bendees, Class of '74, and "The Gate of Heaven." Larry has been an active singer - actor in the music department and has conducted often during his high school career.

The Concert Choir is also directed by Arner. It will sing the Edward Elgar composition, "The Snow," which spotlights a two-violin accompaniment, which will be played by Barbara Wright and Adam Grossman.

It will sing a piece for chorus called "Auction Cries" by John Biggs. The text is taken from auction advertisements in the "Emporia (Kansas) Gazette."

A climax of the evening will be the performance of two choruses from Mendelssohn's oratario "Elijah." The choir will sing the "Thanks Be To God" and "He Watching Over Israel." Senior Frank Walker will sing the aria "Lord God of Abraham." Frank has been a regular performer in the chorus and vocal ensemble for three years.

A special event will take place during the concert. Arner will annouce the first winner of the Lee Daniels Student - Artist Award. This will honor the memory of popular music teacher Lee Daniels and will include a U.S. Savings Bond. A student has been selected who has reached a high level of professionalism while at South and has been an important part of the music there.

Concert Sunday at music school

The final concert in the Scholarship Fund Series at the All Newton Music School will be held Sunday, May 5, at 3 p.m. The performing musicians will be Phyllis Moss, piano and Boston Symphony members Ronald Knudsen, violin; Robert Barnes, viola; Ronald Feldman, cello and Felix Viscuglia, bass clarinet.

The program will include Beethoven's Trio in B flat major op. 11, Mozart's Quartet in G minor for piano and strings, K 478, and Bartok's Contrasts for violin, clarinet and piano.

Local artists to exhibit paintings

Ms. Charlotte Lockwood and Ms. Ruth Golub, two artists and art teachers from Newton, will exhibit their paintings at 28 Bullough Park, Newtonville on Saturday, May 4 and Sunday, May 5 from 2 - 6 p.m.

Ms. Lockwood and Ms. Golub have travelled extensively and their paintings reflect different places that they have absorbed.

Different mediums will be displayed including ink drawings and water-colors. Subjects will include people, landscapes, seascapes and emotions interpreted through color, movements, texture and eesign.

The public is invited to this exhibit.

Marine Cpl. Robert J. Lynch, son of Mrs. Mary F. Lynch of Newton Highlands, was promoted to his present rank while serving at the Marine Corps Air Station at Iwakuni, Japan. A graduate of Newton High School, he joined the Marine Corps in June, 1972.

Records available at Newton Free Library

People may find an extensive collection of phonograph records available for borrowing or in-library listening at the Newton Free Library's "Listening Post" at the Main Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner.

The "Listening Post," stationed next to the record shelves, has three phonographs for patrons to use, with a fourth phonograph located in Chaffin Hall at the rear of the Main Library.

Patrons may listen monaurally, or stereophonically; they may select from the library's collection or bring in their own records to enjoy.

The listening stations can be used by students and groups of up to four, all listening to the same record at one time, providing students with an excellent opportunity for musical analysis, and group critiques. It also gives people an opportunity to listen to records before making purchases.

New records, from Scott Joplin ragtime piano, W.C. Fields, and Shakespeare, to electronic music and favorite operas are constantly being added to the library's collection which now contains a good selection of classical and orchestral music, poetry, drama, short stories, language records and national folk music

Records are borrowed like books: they generally circulate for three weeks. With the exception of language records they are not renewable.

The audio-visual assistant in the Department of Circulation, Miss Linda Gradone will be happy to answer questions patrons may have about the record collection.

A complete listing of the Library's new record acquisitions is recorded each month in the monthly acquisition list available at all Newton libraries.

Newton Centre, Newtonville and the Boys' and Girls' Library have smaller but varied collections of records available for borrowing.

Sculptures at Newton gallery

During the month of May, the Berman-Medalie Gallery, 10 Austin street, Newtonville is featuring an exhibit of Joey Ferrugia's ceramic sculptures and blown glass sculptures by Moshe Hirshberg.

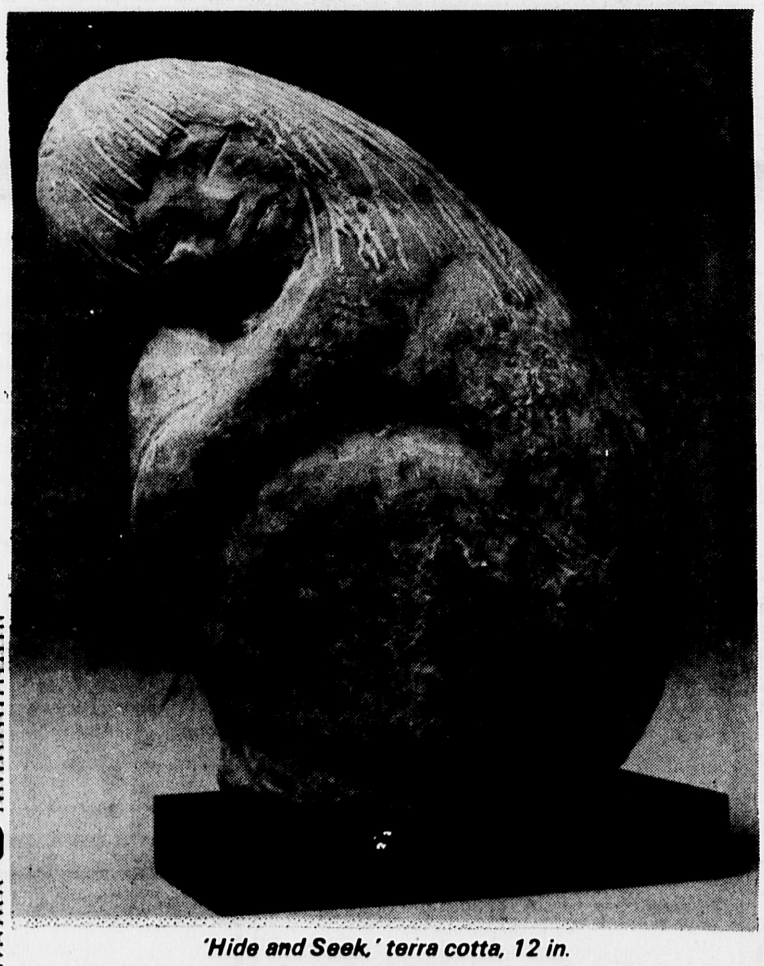

Joey Ferrugia, who is currently teaching a pottery workshop at the Cambridge Montessori School, is an experienced sculptress and teacher, having worked in stone, wood, and metal plaster as well as with clay forms. She studied under Jerry Chapelle at the Penland School of Crafts and also attended both the Universities of Arizona and Missouri.

Ms. Ferrugia planned, organized, and conducted pottery programs at Cranbrook Summer School in Michigan and for Polyarts in Cambridge, and was also a ceramics instructor at Project Inc., Center for the Arts and at Radcliffe Studio — both in Cambridge.

Moshe Hirshberg, an Israeli educated in France and Israel, is presently teaching a scientific glassblowing course at Boston University. His work is in private collections both here and abroad and is on permanent display at Boston University's Stone Building as well as at the America-Israel Culture House, New York.

He has had one-man shows at Brandeis University, Georg Jensen, New York City, and at the Cambridge Art Association where he was awarded a new member's prize. His free-form works in oxidized glass feature iridescent hues, colors, and textures achieved by processes of fuming, gold plating, glazing, and acid etching. The artist's work while expressing modern forms, reflect the feeling of ancient relics yielded by archaeological finds.

The exhibit may be seen Tuesday through Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

May 14-15 antiques sale

The Newton Centre antiques exhibit and sale, sponsored by Trinity Church, corner Centre and Homer Streets, will be held in the Church Hall, May 14-15, 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.

There will be 22 room and booth displays offering for sale a selection of antiques including antique jewelry, formal and country furniture, silver, paintings, china, glass, clocks, pewter, brass, copper, woodenware, lamps and Americana. All of the antiques will be for sale.

Home-made luncheons and refreshments will be served in the "Colonial Kitchen" where visitors may relax while viewing the show. There will be free parking facilities. Advance sales tickets are now available from members of the Church and tickets may also be purchased at the door during the hours of the two-day affair.

Mrs. Gardiner Smith of Newton Highlands will be the antiques show chairwoman and Loring C. Kasperson, Center Chimney, Hollis, New Hampshire will be the antiques show director.

Sculpture exhibited

Sculptress Polly Egelson of Newton is one of five women currently exhibiting at the Copley Society, 158 Newbury St., Boston.

The exhibit will continue through May 23 and will be open daily except Sundays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. It features sculpture, paintings and graphics.

Mrs. Egelson, who works in bronze and clay, is an artist-in-residence for the Newton schools. She is on the teaching staff of Brockton Art Center and is chairman of Newton's Cultural Affairs Commission.

Her work is represented in both private and industrial collections and is included in galleries in Massachusetts, Maine and New York City.

Book review hour May 2

Library Director Virginia A. Tashjian will be at a Book Review-Coffee Hour at the Waban branch of the Newton Free Library, 1608 Beacon Street, Waban, Thursday, May 2 at 10 a.m.

Mrs. Tashjian will review recently published books as well as old favorites at the book review session, one in a series held throughout the year at different branch libraries in the city.

New patrons as well as regular participants are welcome at all book review sessions, where books are immediately available for on-the-spot borrowing.

People may pick up a copy of the NFL Bulletin, available at all Newton Libraries for a complete schedule of May Library activities and exhibits.

Library hours are Monday - Friday 9 a.m. - 9 p.m., Saturday 9 a.m. - 5:30 p.m., and Sunday 1 - 4 p.m.

Art exhibit will benefit Youth Aliyah

The public is invited to attend the art exhibit sponsored by the Youth Aliyah Committee of The Boston Chapter of Hadassah May 19 at The Imperial Towers, 280 Boylston St., Chestnut Hill.

Over 50 well-known artists in the Greater Boston area have donated their works of art to benefit the youth Aliyah Children's Emergency Fund in Israel, and many of them will be at the preview showing of the collection to chat with viewers and explain their techniques of design.

Included in the exhibited will be oils, acrylics, watercolors, lithographs, woodcuts, serigraphs, colored etchings on marble and other artistic endeavors. Admission to the showing is a $1 raffle ticket purchased that afternoon at the gate, which affords the holder an opportunity to be a winner when the awards are named in June.

Youth Aliyah, now celebrating its 40th anniversary, is the largest child rescue and rehabilitation movement in the world, absorbing and integrating immigrant children from 80 different lands.

School enrollment continues to drop

By TOM GRAVES
Of the Graphic Staff

School enrollment in Newton has dropped 10 per cent in the past 10 years.

According to Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink, we can expect a decrease of another 2,000 students in the next five years.

These were just several of the numbers mentioned at a Newton Citizens for Education meeting this week at the Mason-Rice School.

The school administration has completed a study of the possible effects of closing any of 11 elementary schools in the south and central sections of the city. Factors it examines include the impact on receiving schools if an elementary school were to be closed and students had to be shifted to different schools, and the distance students would have to travel to a new school if their present one were to e closed.

This study will be submitted to the Newton School Committee on May 20.

Fink said this week that "with the decline that exists, it has to be logistically possible to close a school."

Schools that are considered for closing in the administration's study are Hamilton, Angier, Beethoven, Hyde, Bowen, Emerson, Countryside, Oak Hill, Spaulding, Mason-Rice, and Memorial.

Director of Research and Planning Vincent Silluzio put the recent enrollment decline in historical perspective at the NCE meeting.

He noted that the current decline began in 1967 after a 20-year period of increased enrollment. Silluzio pointed out that from 1947-1967, 15 new school buildings were constructed in Newton, including 12 elementary schools.

According to an enrollment analysis by Silluzio, the schools presently most underenrolled are almost all on the south side of Newton. Based on a ratio of 20 students to a room, Countryside, Hamilton, Memorial, Oak Hill, and Spaulding were reportedly at less than 80 per cent of capacity in 1973.

Silluzio has projected that Memorial, Spaulding and Hamilton will be at less than 60 per cent of capacity in 1977.

(Between 1947 and 1967, school enrollment on the south side increased 657.6 per cent, and class space increased 822.7 per cent, according to Silluzio. Gains in the north and central sections of the city were less than 50 per cent.)

Silluzio said that all elementary school districts except Ward, Lincoln-Eliot and Underwood have declined in school population in the last 10 years. He commented that the decline has been caused by a decrease in the birth rate and a decrease in in-migration.

According to Silluzio, in 1960, 18,679 Newton women between the ages of 15 and 44 gave birth to 1,471 children. In 1970, 19,396 women between the same ages had 944 babies.

There were reportedly 161 births in the first quarter of this year, compared to 140 in the first quarter of last year. "This might be the first indication of a change in the fertility rate," Silluzio said.

Silluzio anticipates a 12.5 per cent increase in school population during the next four years. He noted that projections he has made in the past have been conservative.

Fink said that including a cut voted by the School Committee this year, 70 positions have been cut in the Newton schools over four years.

"Despite the cut in staff, the pupil-staff ratio has gone down each year," Fink commented.

The superintendent added that "we have to consider ways to reduce costs without affecting the quality of education." He pointed out that Newton presently has some schools with much smaller pupil-teacher ratios than others, and that this is not from choice.

"If you consolidate some way, you can make better use of staff," Fink said.

He also noted that "we are adding to buildings on the north side of the city when there is surplus space on the south side."

Alderman Louis Egelson said that "from what little I know, seems to indicate that some consolidation of facilities is in order."

Egelson suggested that high property costs may be causing young families to leave Newton, and may be stopping other families from immigrating to the city.

"We are by no means unlimited in resources in this community," Egelson said. "We have to be more selective in providing capital outlays for facilities which will be underused in the future."

It was noted that savings from reduced enrollment are eaten up by inflation.

Newton METCO Coordinator Ms. Kathy Jones suggested an alternative to closing schools.

She said that there was a possibility that the state could reimburse a school system for keeping a school open that would ordinarily be closed if it accepted students from the metropolitan area.

The secret life of Carleton Merrill

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

The roar of the engines had already hooked this aspiring politician, and Norwood Arena was the place in those days.

So what would be more natural than "Merrill for Alderman" on one of the race cars?

That was in 1949. When the election was over, Carl Merrill bought his own race car, a '37 Ford coach. At first he contracted drivers, but then when one named Ingalls wouldn't show up at the track Carl Merrill became "Slim Ingalls."

Carleton P. Merrill, former alderman (a total of eight years) and present Newton veterans' agent, is 49 years old now. He is the epitome of the smooth, poised gentleman, and has not raced for quite a few years.

But beneath the well-tailored sports jacket, there still beats the heart of Slim Ingalls.

He has kept in the sport, which is the second most popular (by attendance) spectator sport in the country, by holding a long list of official positions in stock-car racing associations throughout New England. Carl Merrill is now general manager and director of Thomson Speedway in Thompson, Ct.

His emphasis has always been on safety in racing, and he has spent a good bit of time in the past 10 years speaking to young people on highway safety.

He tells parents, "If a kid wants to hotrod, he'll do it. It's better to get it out of his system at a racetrack than on a back street."

Young Carleton Merrill was always interested in cars and good at cars. When he started building race cars, he always got Ford bodies and put a Chevy engine into them.

One of his six cars that he had over a three-year period got him into trouble in Rhode Island, where he had to "borrow" a driveshaft out of a junk car in back of a gas station. The judge turned out to be a race fan and there was no conviction.

While Carleton Merrill was working in Charlotte, N.C., he met his wife, Treva. He says she didn't mind the danger of driving, but what almost broke up the engagement was his wanting to go to the track while she wanted to do something else.

As Mrs. Carl Merrill, she didn't participate in racing until he stopped driving and became an official.

Board of Aldermen

Housing appointee voted

The mayoral appointment of Leo Karas to the Newton Housing Authority was finally approved by the Board of Aldermen Monday night by a 15-7 vote.

The considerable debate on the appointment this time centered not so much on the qualifications of Karas as on the quality of mayoral appointments.

Ald. Terry Morris also criticized the performance of present members of the Authority. "For example, the NHA has not pursued Chapter 705 housing with an option to buy," he said. "Karas represents the same attributes as the existing members of the NHA — we are looking for a little bit more."

Alan Barkin noted that Karas "has a long and distinguished background in business," and said that Karas had been "at a serious disadvantage" in his interview with the Land Use Committee (which recommended denial of the appointment 4-3) because he had not been "prepped" for the meeting.

Richard McGrath felt that it is "the obligation of the mayor to get individuals who are concerned and have a desire to implement the goals of the bodies to which they are appointed."

"The Housing Authority doesn't need a learner, it needs a doer," McGrath said.

Early opposition to Karas' confirmation by the Newton Fair Housing and Equal Rights Committee was reversed by a letter from the committee to the Land Use Committee three weeks ago, which stated that the group now is in favor of the appointment.

Hours of discussion Monday night on the petition of Joseph McMullin to be allowed to continue the rental and storage of vehicles and trailers at a service station on Route 9, Newton Highlands, capped months of work on conditions of approval, but resulted again in postponement of the item.

Eleven conditions were included in the proposed Board order. Most had to do with landscaping and the location of the trucks and trailers on the site, and McMullin had agreed to carry out the provisions of the order.

The passage of the item came down to a test of strength between those aldermen who felt that McMullin should not be allowed to legalize a business conducted illegally for many years, espcially in an already ugly and heavily trafficked area, against those who did not want substantially to hurt his business.

DCA offers housing compromise

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
Staff Correspondent

Commissioner Lewis Crampton of the Department of Community Affairs has revealed Tuesday the DCA will submit two ways "to break the deadlock" between itself and the Newton Housing Authority.

The two agencies have locked horns over the per unit cost to construct 20 low income family duplexes on Beaconwood Road in Newton.

The two suggestions emanating from the DCA after what Crampton described as "extensive talks with the mayor," are that the city take Beaconwood Road by eminent domain and that the city pay the cost of site development.

Commissioner Crampton explained that the high cost of the proposed duplexes, approximately $56,051 a unit, is due to high land costs in Newton. The cost of the site to the Newton Housing Authority would be $87,879 for three acres. Crampton said the DCA would contribute funds toward the purchase of the site which he said has been assessed at $4500 per unit.

According to Crampton, the taking has been "forced" because the owners, the Ciccone Brothers, refuse to negotiate with the Housing Authority. The owners want to develop the site privately.

Once the property was acquired by the city, test boring would have to be conducted on the site to determine the feasibility of the project. Crampton said "it's a very iffy situation."

However, if feasibility was proven, the Commissioner went on to state that "Newton would have to pay for the necessary city and fire services, roads, sidewalks, lighting, sewerage, utility lines for electric, gas, water mains and also special firefighting equipment."

"If the city could not come up with that cost, we would then have to reject the bids and wait until such time as we could build a project by our Turnkey method," says Crampton.

The Commissioner also felt that these suggestions would enable the NHA to "proceed independently with Thurston Road and California Street" projects. Both sites were tied into the Beaconwood Road project by an order from the Board of Aldermen.

Mayor Mann, who had not yet received formal communication from the DCA Tuesday on the new development commented that "several elements were missing from his (Crampton's) remarks." The mayor added that the site development costs as outlined would cost the city $100-150,000.

He also mentioned that in discussions with the DCA there was mention of a "pilot program to get refunds for the site development."

The duplexes which would have been the first units built for low income families were to include 15 three-bedroom apartments, five four-bedroom apartments and two handicapped units. All apartments were to have one-and-one-half baths. This is the second time the Housing Authority has put this project out to bid since the DCA turned down the first bids as too high.

Towers for sale?

The unbilt Towers at Chestnut Hill luxury condominium complex has been offered for sale to at least one financier and has been under negotiation for purchase by at least two others, it was learned Tuesday.

Persistent rumors to the effect that the trustees of the Towers have been trying to sell the land have been denied by the two trustees, Mario DiCarlo of Newton and Albert J. Goodman of Detroit, Mich.

DiCarlo denied two weeks ago that he was making any effort to sel the project. Tuesday night DiCarlo said, "Many people have made offers for it, but it is not up for sale."

Goodman was reached by telephone in Detroit Tuesday night. Asked about whether he has offered the Towers for sale and obtained financing for the $42 million project, said, "Why should I talk to a total stranger on the telephone and answer personal questions? What is this Newton Graphic? Are you like the New York Times or the Boston Globe?"

Goodman would offer no further reply.

One source said it is "common knowledge that the Towers is being peddled."

Another said the Towers has been offered for sale by at least two Boston law firms.

A leading developer of condominiums, Robert Keezer of U.S. Condominiums, was approached by a number of financiers to join them as the developer of the Towers, he said, should they decide to purchase the land.

Keezer declined, he said, because he feels that the Towers has no chance of being built in its present form and under the present Board of Aldermen.

"As a resident of Newton," he said, "I am sorry that potential additions to the tax base have been so lightly passed over by the Board."

Auto Center hearing sought

The proposed resolution from the Public Buildings Committee to request the mayor to appropriate funds for a metal building to house an automotive center at Newton South High School was returned to committee by the Board of Aldermen this week.

Eliot Cohen, president of the Board and an alderman at large from Ward 8, the home of the high school, argued that the Public Buildings Committee should have made "its intentions" known to the neighborhood where the metal building would be constructed, and asked the committee to schedule a public hearing on the matter.

The Public Buildings Committee has requested the School Department to send a representative to its May 9 meeting to report on educational specifications for a 2,000 sq. ft. metal building, to be built entirely with city funds.

Lawrence man charged with kidnapping

A 40-year-old Lawrence man was charged this week with two counts each of kidnapping, assault by means of a dangerous weapon, and assault with intent to murder.

Frederick W. Rogers Jr. of 151 Beacon St., Lawrence, was arrested by state police in Andover on Sunday and transported to Newton by Sgt. Frank Gorgone of the Newton Police Department.

According to Newton police, two joggers told police that two firls were seen in need of assistance, and seemed to be struggling at a Newton Centre gas station.

The girls were later identified as Mt. Ida Junior College students.

Rogers was arraigned in Newton District Court, and in lieu of bail was remanded to Billerica House of Correction.

A 19-year-old West Newton youth was reportedly shot early this week.

Newton police officers on routine patrol observes a car in West Newton early Monday morning, and an occupant of the car, Joseph Pellegrino of 69 Dearborn St., reported that he had been shot in the ankle.

According to police, Pellegrino said that he was a passenger in a car driven by Paul Austin, 18, of 53 Hollace St., Waltham, and that they were followed by a van from the Venus Room of the Amber Motel Inn, 215 Concord Turnpike, Cambridge.

They reportedly pulled to the right of the road on Crafts Street and stopped.

The van allegedly kept going around an island at California and Crafts Streets.

The youths reportedly started to get out of their car and heard a shot. Pellegrino felt a sharp paic in his right ankle.

Officer John Brennan of the Newton Police looked at Pellegrino's ankle. It reportedly looked as if a bullet had grazed the ankle bone.

Pellegrino was reportedly on the way to the police station when he stopped to check his wound.

He was taken to Newton–Wellesley Hospital.

In other police action, Ernest Clark of 94 St. Botolph St., Boston, was arrested on Saturday at 200 Boylston St., and charged with larceny of over $100 and larceny of a motor vehicle.

The Mills Falls Restaurant, 383 Eliot St., Newton Upper Falls, was reportedly broken into over the weekend. According to police, entrance was gained by breaking a lite of glass adjacent to a lock at the rear of the building.

Function rooms and the kitchen were reportedly ransacked.

Spaulding and Slye intends to proceed

The Newton Redevelopment Authority received reassurance last week from develop Spaulding and Slye that it had "all intentions of proceeding with the project."

However, Bill Whelan, project manager for Spaulding and Slye, stated that going ahead with the Lower Falls building would put his company "$80,000 in the red." This is providing that tax assessors go ahead with the present plan to tax the building at a rate of 26 per cent of gross income.

The definition of gross income is what is bogging down discussions between the asserrors' office and Spaulding and Slye.

The developer feels that it is being penalized by the assessors' office for inflation and says there is a "serious lack of communication between the NRA and the assessors.'

The assessors' office says that the Spaulding and Slye expectations for taxes are "totally unrealistic." Further, they claim all apartment buildings and the Wells Avenue office buildings are taxed at 30 per cent of gross income. Spaulding and Slye is questioning this, stating they want to be sure they will be taxed on an "equitable" basis. Milton Manin, chairman of the Assessing Department, has assured Spaulding and Slye it would "be treated like any other realtor in the city."

The developer met with Mayor Theodore Mann last week and said he stated that he made it clear "I am not in a position to grant any tax deals."

Mayor Mann added he told the developer he feels they have a "moral obligation to go ahead with the project." The mayor added that "as businessmen, they should have understood the situation and if they have a problem, they can appeal to the Appelate Tax Board."

Whelan had praise for the mayor who he said is "out to make sure the city was run in a clean manner." As for an appeal, however, he preferred to see the problem solved now, since an appeal "could drag on for four years and we would still have to put the tax money out front."

Regardless of how the tax issue is resolved, Spaulding and Slye say they will begin construction August 1.

Pines bill requires fire warning device

Legislation sponsored by Rep. Lois Pines, requiring that all new buildings under 70 feet in height, all new residential structure, including private dwellings and apartment buildings, be protected with an automatic fire-warning system equipment with automatic smoke-detection devices or automatic heat and smoke detection devices was passed by both the Massachusetts House and Senate and has been sent to the governor for signature.

Legislation which became law in 1973 requires the use of sprinkler systems in all new buildings that exceed 70 feet in height.

Pines commented: "Fire will strike over 700,000 homes this year, inflicting over $8.7 million in damages and claiming over 8,000 lives. A sleeping person may not react to the smell of smoke."

"The use of early warning systems such as will be required by my legislation," Pines said, "will help save many lives in the Commonwealth by sounding an alarm capable of being heard in all areas of the building. With this kind of system in effect, fire need not necessarily result in tragedy."

The legislation is cosponsored by the Associated Firefighters of Massachusetts, Commissioner James Kelly of Boston, Senator Michael LoPresti, and Representative Ralph Sirianni.

Rep. Pines remarked, "I believe that this is critically important legislation, which will have significant effect in limiting death and tragedy and injuries that result from fire. This legislation will require life-saving devices in new buildings. I hope that next year we can begin to deal with providing the same protecting in existing structures."

Towers suit thrown out

An application for attachment of the Chestnut Hill Towers' real estate pending the outcome of a $1 million breach of contract suit brought against the Towers by the former selling agent, Saunders & Associates, was denied this week.

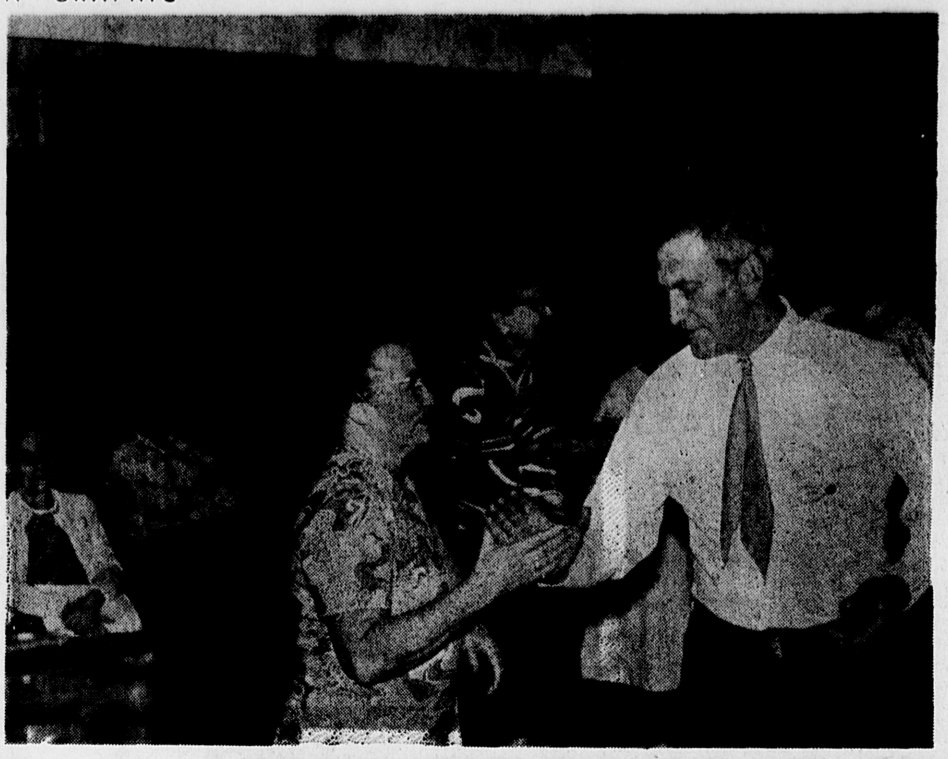

The Towers has entered a countersuit against Saunders & Associates, charging breach of contract.

According to Donald Saunders, president of the real estate firm, lawyers for the Chestnut Hill Towers have given an agreement that the Towers would not sell the land or encumber it until the breach of contract suit is heard.

Saunders said his lawyers will "question the decision" of Judge John Ronan, who denied the application for attachment in Suffolk Superior Court. If the judge wishes, he may allow the question to be referred to the appellate court.

Saunders & Associates also has pending a suit against Albert J. Goodman of Detroit, one of the two trustees of the Chestnut Hill Towers Trust, for "misrepresentation before executing the sales-agent contract," according to Saunders.

The relationship between the Towers and Saunders was terminated late last year.

Recreation notes

Summer gymnastics clinic planned

Gymnastics Clinic

April marked the completion of the Newton Recreation Department's third annual gymnastics clinic conducted in March and April. An average of 230 boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 16 attended sessions held at the Newton North High School simulated outdoor area.

The instructors for the clinic came from the gymnastics teams at Newton North and Newton South High Schools. They included Mary Pendergast, Margee Magraw, Ann Hurwitz, Bunny Silverstein, Susan Sansevero and Tony Webber. In addition, William Henry, a former Tiger gymnast and a graduate of the University of Massachusetts, added support to the fine group of instructors.

This summer, the Newton Recreation Department is looking forward to running an evening clinic at Newton North High School during July and August.

For further information on the program people may contact the facility director, Austin Moore, at Newton North High, or call 969-3171, the Newton Recreation Department.

Summer Swim Registrations

Registration for the summer swim lesson program scheduled to begin the week of June 26 will be held later this month. Each segment will be approximately three weeks.

Gath Pool

Registration for swimming classes at the Gath Pool will be held in the Horace Mann School Gym from 3 to 6 p.m. on the following dates:

Tuesday, May 21 — beginners and advanced beginners.

Thursday, May 23 — Intermediate and adult classes, and for beginners and advanced beginners if any openings remain.

Crystal Lake

The registration for swimming classes at Crystal Lake will be at the Mason-Rice School gym from 3 to 6 p.m. on the following dates:

Tuesday, May 28 — beginners and advanced beginners.

Thursday, May 30 — intermediate, tot swimming program, senior life saving, and for the Tuesday classes not yet full.

North High Pool

Registration for classes at the Newton North High swimming pool will be held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. on the following dates at the pool:

Tuesday, June 4 — beginner and advanced beginners.

Thursday, June 6 — intermediate, adult and senior life saving.

Square Dancing

The Garden City Squares, led by Irving Park, will be entertaining at the Cultural Arts Fair, Springthing, Sunday, May 19, starting at 7 p.m. Anyone interested in dancing, or just watching, is invited to attend.

The Garden City Squares will also present four programs during July and August. On July 2 they will be at the Newton Centre Playground; July 10 at Boyd Park; July 23, at the Auburndale Playground and August 14, at the Hyde School.

Adult Badminton

The adult badminton program was held at Warren Junior High on Thursday nights from October to April. This past season an average of 25 persons per session attended the program directed by Mrs. Jennie Rogan.

Lassie League

A total of nine teams will start play in the Lassie Softball League.

Girls 12 to 15 years of age will play at the two small diamonds at the Albemarle Playground nearest Crafts Street, and at the Hamilton School Playground. Games will be played at 6 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

League play will continue through mid-June, to be followed by playoffs.

A Good Sportsmanship Award will be made at the completion of the season.

Summer Basketball League

A meeting will be held at the Newton Recreation Department office at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, May 21, for girls interested in playing in the Girls' Summer City Basketball League sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department. Rules, regulations and rosters will be distributed. The league is for girls 16 years old and over.

League games will start the third week in June, Tuesdays and Thursdays at Cabot. Game times will be 6:30 and 7:30 p.m.

Suburban League Basketball

Girls interested in playing in the Suburban Basketball League should contact Fran Towle at 969-3171. The games with teams from surrounding communities will be played Tuesdays and Thursdays on a home and home basis.

To be eligible for the League girls must be 16 years of age or older.

Mini Bike Track

The mini bike facility maintained by the Newton Recreation Department is now open Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The three tracks are located on Winchester street, Newton Highlands, on the site of the former city infirmary.

Bikes must be transported to the track by car or trailer. No minibike should be ridden or pushed to the track.

Bikes are limited to five horsepower and must be equipped with spark arresters, mufflers, good tires and proper brakes. Operators should wear hard toed shoes, helmuts and long pants. No shorts are allowed.

Registrations will be accepted at the track. There is a $5 fee for each bike and a $1 fee for each operator.

Facility director is Paul Patriacca and the safety director is Bob Braceland.

Track officials will be glad to show novices how to ride safely.

Twi Softball

The Newton Recreation Department's Twilight Softball League began play recently. Games are played five nights a week, Monday through Friday. There are two games a night at Albemarle at 6:15 and 8:15 p.m., and one game a night beginning at 6:15 p.m. at Cold Springs, Weeks, Warren, Cabot and Hawthorn.

Meeting for senior citizens

A seminar and workshop meeting to deal with problems facing senior citizens has been scheduled for Thursday, May 16, at Pomroy House, 84 Eldredge St., Newton Corner, by Attorney General Robert H. Quinn.

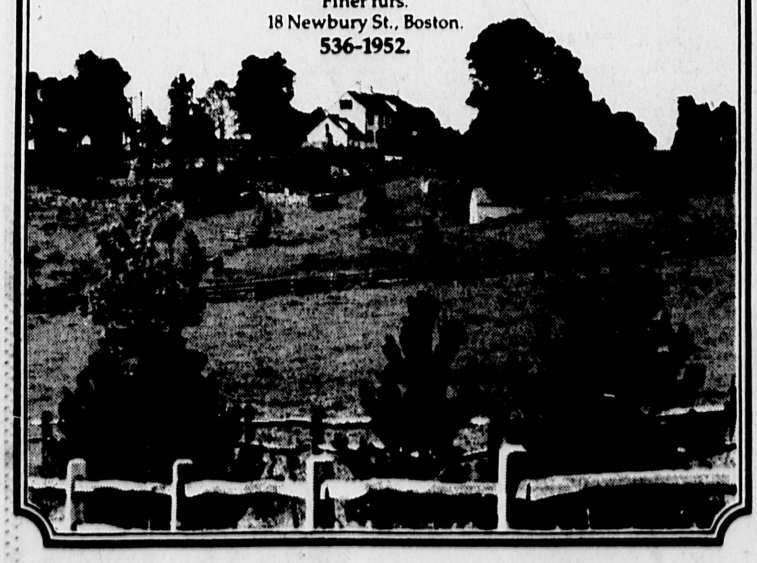

Attending the meeting with the attorney general will be experts in consumer protection, citizen's aid, wills and probate matters, and health. A representative from the area Social Security office as well as experts knowledgeable in supplemental security income problems will be present. Frank Manning of the Massachusetts Association of Older Americans will be available to answer questions.

The attorney general will open the meeting at 10 a.m. with a coffee hour. The purpose of the seminar is to enlighten citizens to their rights and benefits as well as to explain changing laws.

'Metropolitanization'— what does it mean?

By TOM GRAVES
Of the Graphic Staff

It seems that social scientists are always coming up with big words which can mean different things to different people.

The Newton PTA Council sponsored a panel discussion of metropolitanization last week at Newton North High School.

Although it was generally agreed upon that metropolitanization means collaborative efforts between urban and suburban communities, there were divergent opinions among panel members about how it may be implemented.

Kathleen Sullivan of the Boston School Committee suggested that it means requiring suburban schools to open up five per cent of their classroom seats to minority children. She noted that voluntary programs have not worked and mandated collaborative efforts may be necessary.

Ms. Sullivan said that "we're here to talk about a real solid commitment of the suburbs to the city." She noted that there are 4,000 children on a waiting list for METCO (she was later corrected, and told the number was close to 800). "I don't think 800-900 students who want a different kind of environment shouldn't have it," Ms. Sullivan commented.

Newton Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink said, "I think suburban schools can do more than they have. The problem is not one of filling up empty seats; it is one of providing good education."

Fink said that his preference was voluntary collaboration "so we can have control over our own destiny." He said that he was not interested in a "super school district."

Fink remarked that "there has to be a basic assumption that no child will be educationally handicapped because of where he lives" or because of his economic condition.

Fink said that the Newton school administration is recommending 47 new METCO students for next year. This would bring the number of METCO students in Newton from 169 to about 200.

"METCO has been one of the most successful voluntary programs," Fink commented. "We know there is less stereotypic thinking in schools with black children." He added that METCO has encouraged minority staff recruitment.

"We shouldn't pat ourselves on the back for the little we've done," Fink noted.

Ms. Sullivan said that Boston "gets it from the state and federal governments, and maybe we deserve it. Maybe we've been racists all our lives, but so are people out here."

Ms. Sullivan had commented earlier that "there are a lot of people in Newton who don't want minority children going to school with their children."

Forbes Bottomly from the Metopolitan Planning Project also connected metropolitanization to racial balance. He outlined legislation being proposed by his group.

Bottomly suggested interdistrict open enrollment for the entire Commonwealth as long as it improved the racial balance of the receiving or sending school.

His proposal was that each child crossing a district line would carry with him the full per-pupil cost of the receiving school, plus $150. The sending school would supply its per-pupil cost and the state would make up the difference.

Bottomly's plan also offered an incentive for students to participate. Every child who crossed a district line would be awarded $10 per month tuition credit for post-high school education.

The plan would also require that teachers and children be exposed to multiracial situations, free transportation, and money from the Massachusetts legislature for incentive programs.

Bottomly noted after explaining his plan that he is "very naive about politics in the Commonwealth."

He called his plan a "supplement" to a racial balance requirement. He said that "incentives would only come into play if students crossed district lines."

Fink said that there should be thought given to busing within a district as well as over district lines.

Bottomly was questioned after the meeting about his definition of open enrollment. He said that under his plan a school would be required to admit a student as if he lived in its district, if the admission of the student would improve racial balance.

When asked if a city such as Newton would have any right to limit enrollment, he said that it would not.

Fink called for an organization in the state which will sustain collaboration. "Regional programs should be under the state Board of Education's regional offices," Fink commented.

"We have to have more than incidental collaboration," Fink remarked. "We have to organize for it."

Fink noted that New York state has a regional system in which communities buy services from the state.

"Local communities should not be asked to run regional programs," Fink said. He pointed out that Newton is running a regional program for the hard of hearing which does not contain any Newton residents. Newton is supposed to be paid by other communities.

At several points it was noted that metropolitanization does not mean only a movement of city children to the suburbs. It may also mean suburban children becoming involved in programs in the city.

"Some suburban parents are very interested in city based programs," Bottomly said. He remarked that people have "succumbed to mythology" about the city. "We have found in studies that the suburban image of Boston is not good," Bottomly commented.

Other members of the panel were METCO coordinator Kathy Jones and Louis Amadio from the state office of education.

Ms. Jones said that there has to be minority input in any metropolitan program.

She noted that in the past "school systems have tended to operate pretty much independently," and that there has not been as much cooperation as there could be.

Amadio reported that voluntary collaboration is a "long and difficult struggle," but that it is worth the effort.

Little League

Opening day of Little League last week saw Newton Mayor Theodore D. Mann toss out the first pitch to kick off the season.

Restaurant inspection beginning

The spring drive to maintain high standards in all Newton eating establishments is now underway according to the Newton Health Department.

The present program is to inspect all food places between now and the beginning of summer to make certain all regulations under Article X of the State Sanitary Code have been complied with.

In addition to cleaning the interior of these food places the owners are urged to clean the back yards and alleys. Old equipment, rubbish, papers, and miscellaneous debris should be put out for city collection in compliance with existing rules and regulatios for collection.

The program is under the direction of Harlan W. Kingsbury, R.S., chief sanitary officer; with the work being done by Senior Sanitary Inspector Charles M. Hopkinson, R.S.; Sanitary Inspector Charles W. Pierce, R.S.; and temporary Sanitary Inspector Allen Benjamin.

Any person wishing to register a complaint may do so by calling the Newton Health Department at 244-4700, Extension 246.

Zoning Board turns down variance

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
Staff Correspondent

The Zoning Board of Appeals has turned down a request for a variance by John and Joseph McIsaac needed to build the proposed 32 townhouses and 108 garden apartments on Staniford Street, Auburndale.

Thirty-five units were to be utilized for low income housing.

This is the fifth denial for the McIsaacs who have unsuccessfully sought to rezone the site and obtain permission from the Board of Alderman to develop the property.

The present refusal was based on the facts that one of the lots was located in a flood plain area with proposed basement elevations six inches above the flood plain boundary. This could have proved to be a flood risk for residents.

The Zoning Board also considered that there was only a single access to the site, a condition which the fire department described as "dangerous," saying that unless a second access were built, it could not go along with the proposal.

Another problem the Zoning Board had to weigh was the fact that substantial fill was needed within the flood plain for parking, roads and building construction, and no one knew how that would affect flood storage capacity.

Finally, the project was rejected on the grounds that the amount of units on the second lot was too dense.

The McIsaacs had tied the financing of their proposition onto Chapter 774, the so-called "anti-snob" legislation under which Newton meets none of the cirteria set up for low-moderate income housing

Under this legislation, the developers can appeal the board's decision to the state housing appeals committee which has the authority to issue the permit. It is expected that Lawrence Shubow, attorney for the McIsaacs, will appeal the decision. Shubow had stated that "there are those who are interested in seeing Newton brought into compliance with Chapter 774."

Members of the board who voted against the project were Harold Meizler, William P. Ripley and Hirsh Sharf. The two who voted in favor were David B. Cooper and Champe A. Fisher, chairman.

Staniford Street

Newton has fallen seriously short of its responsibility in assessing its remaining pieces of land and deciding which parcels should be provided for low-moderate income housing and which parcels should be preserved for open space.

These are two urgent needs in a city which has realized as much growth and both can be adequately met with some advance planning.

The planning will have to take into consideration a recent Zoning Board of Appeals decision turning down a proposal for dwelling units on Staniford Street, Auburndale.

The developer linked his proposal to Chapter 774, the so-called "anti-snob" legislation. This law established certain criteria to determine whether or not a city has permitted the development of a sufficient level of low-moderate income housing. Newton does not meet any of the criteria set down by this law.

As a result, it is a safe bet that the developer will appeal the zoning board of appeals decision which can be overturned by a state housing appeals committee to put Newton in compliance with Chapter 774.

We encourage the city to take by "eminent domain" the Staniford Street lots. We are not suggesting this to avoid compliance with Chapter 774, but to insure the preservation of this parcel both for housing and open space.

The high parcel could be given to the Newton Housing Authority to construct low income units. This situation would benefit the NHA since their problem is with land costs in Newton. It would also permit development of the site on the lot which is not in the flood plain and would not represent a possible risk for residents

The taking would also preserve the remainder for conservation-recreation purposes. We would also caution the city about viewing a taking such as this as the end of its responsibility to either low-moderate income housing or open space preservation.

Grassroots

The grass roots withered and died last week in Newton.

The hoped-for outpouring of people interested in getting more democracy into the Democratic Party failed.

At ward caucuses in every ward in the city, with two or three exceptions, only a handful of people came to elect or be elected delegates to another caucus which ultimately will determine the permanent charter of the country's Democratic Party.

The count at one ward caucus was as low as 10 people, from which six delegates were to be elected.

One explanation for the control of the Democratic Party by the few party regulars, whose names appear again and again in party political endeavors, is the apparent total lack of interest on the part of anyone else.

Maybe it is truly lack of interest, but it may also be a feeling that the outsiders' views are not welcome.

The Newton Coalition for New Politics a few years ago made an effort to overcome the "in crowd" approach to politics, but in a short time NCNP itself had become that very group, and has done little if not nothing to listen to others.

Another reason for the "interested controlling by default," as one politician put it, is the totally inadequate publicity and advertising given to important political meetings and issues.

It may take massive publicity and well organized advertising campaigns to convince Newton voters that the two parties are really looking for new faces.

Both parties, without new faces, will end up almost like the machines they both deplore.

My own school records

Commentary by Jeffrey Newman
Transcript staff

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Jeffrey Newman of The Daily Transcript staff last week wrote a series of articles on the availability of school records in the daily's circulation area. A graduate of Newton South High, Newman then tested his knowledge by visiting South and asking to see his records. He makes the following commentary):

In preparing for the series of articles published in this paper regarding school records I returned to my high school to examine the comments made on my own personal file.

I certainly never expected to find the comments that were written long ago when I went back this week to Newton South High.

I'm not disturbed at what I found but under normal circumstances I feel that the comments could hurt an individual if they were to fall into the wrong hands.

So to avoid that I have published them here where anyone can put their hands on them.

This is what I found:

One teacher in first grade said this: "Jeff has a vivid imagination and is not fully aware of what the difference is between a fabrication and the truth.

Another teacher in third grade said "He is a good talker and can mislead you into thinking that he knows more than he does."

Still other comments read "Jeff is a very complacent child and does not complete his work accurately. We feel that he is not at ease in school at this time and he has withdrawn from the group...we do not know the cause of this.

A final comment written in high school read: Jeff rarely shows enthusiasm in doing things and does not get excited over things. He does what is expected–teacher directed activitires. He has developed a fine opinion of himself but this may be just a veneer to cover up some feeling of inadequacy. Jeff has been a lone-wolf this year and will even refuse to sit in a group."

During the interview at South I asked Mrs. Margaret Addis, Head Guidance Counselor if I could have certain anecdotal comments removed from the records.

She made several calls through the administrative grapevine and my request was finally granted.

She said that since Newton has never had such a request before this was a new policy.

As for the remarks about my vivid imagination, that's true.

But the question of whether or not I am fully aware of the difference between a fabrication and the truth—well the truth is all relative anyway.

And I suppose that in kindergarten (when the second comment was made) I was a good talker.

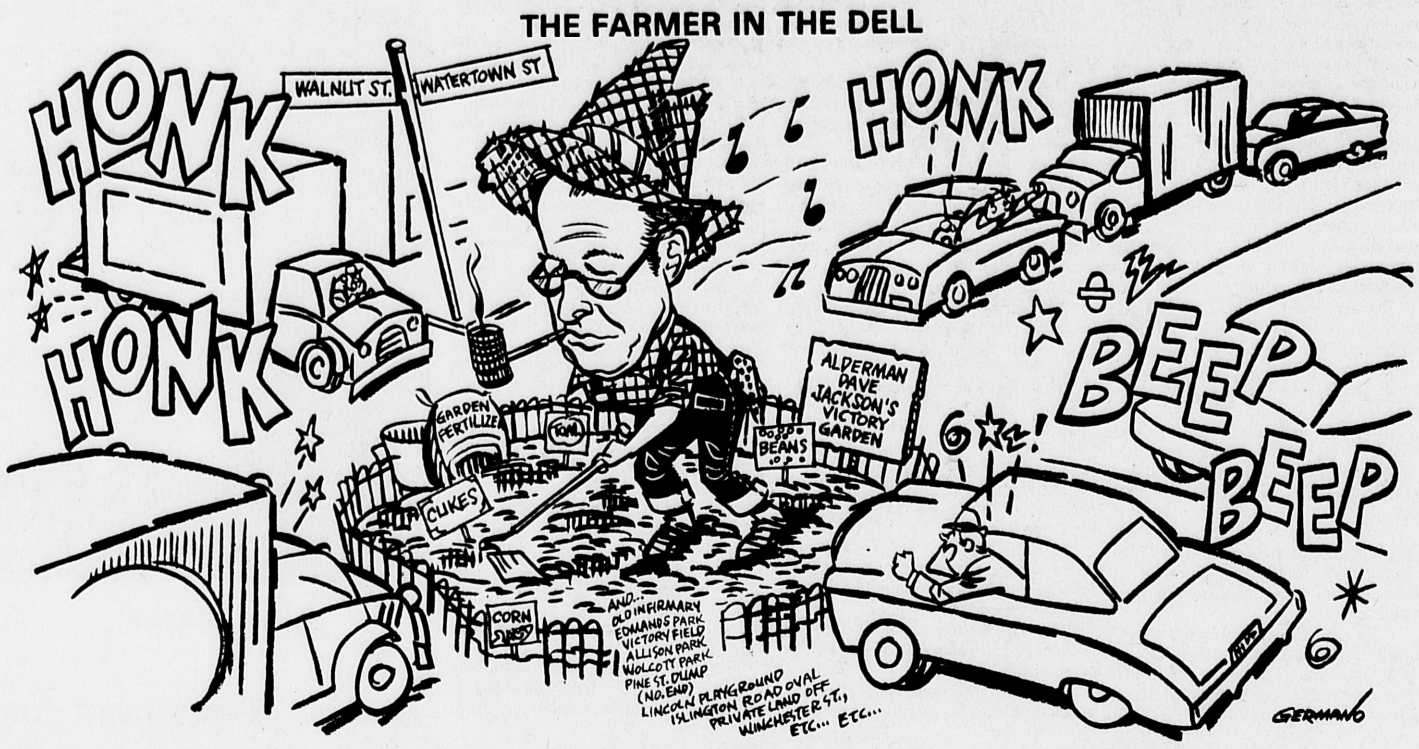

But there was so little that I knew then, I had to do something so that I wouldn't sound like a complete ignoramus.

All of this aside, the main point is that these comments really should not be sitting in some file waiting for a stranger to come along and evaluate my past.

I am amazed at the attitude of a teacher who would think she has the ability to psychoanalyze a student and put such subjective statements in a record that could follow a student for the rest of his life.

I am shocked too that the school department would allow such comments to remain on the records without qualification of any kind.

THE FARMER IN THE DELL

Political Highlights

by James G. Colbert

O'Neills' father-son political duo striking

Congressional Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. of North Cambridge, who within a few years almost certainly will become Speaker of the National House of Representatives, will spend much of his time next autumn campaigning across the United States for Democrats involved in tough fights in tight districts for election or reelection to Congress.

Whatever little time he has left undoubtedly will be devoted to assisting his son, State Representative Thomas P. O'Neill, 3rd, also of North Cambridge, in his bid for election as the next Lieutenant Governor of Massachusetts.

Congressman O'Neill is one of the Bay State's most popular public figures and certainly its best political strategist. Two Democrats – Foster Furcolo and Endicott Peabody — have been elected Governor of Massachusetts in the past 22 years. "Tip" O'Neill served as campaign manager for both of them. He is untouchable in his own district.

"I am proud to be the son of so prominent a public figure who is so revered by so many people," declared Thomas P. O'Neill, 3rd, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor, when he was asked about his famous father.

But Representative O'Neill went on to say that he expects to stand on his own feet and place his own qualifications on the table for the people to consider "like every other candidate running for the same office."

Representative Thomas P. O'Neill, 3rd, will get a great many votes because he is the son of the extremely popular and almost legendary Congressman "Tip" O'Neill.

But he also is a handsome, articulate, extremely competent young man who has made a study of the economy and unemployment problem of thesstate and obviously knows what he is talking about.

Young Representative O'Neill attended North Cambridge Catholic High School and Boston College. He is married to the former Jacqueline A. DeMartino of Dedham, daughter of Dedham Police Lieutenant Louis DeMartino. Like his father, he lives in North Cambridge.

He described the economy of Massachusetts as "in a horrible condition" and deplored the failure of the Sargent administration to do more to attract new business and industry to the Bay State and to hold the business we already have.

"We do nothing to keep the businesses which are already here, and we do nothing to encourage new businesses to move into the Commonwealth," Representative O'Neill observed.

"We do nothing to explore the feasibility of putting our working class back to work," he continued. "The unemployment is just uncontrollable at this point," he went on.

"I think the Democratic Legislature is beginning to understand the problem and is looking for leadership within the administrative branch of the state government but isn't getting it," O'Neill maintained.

"For example," Representative O'Neill asserted, "We have the Department of Employment Security. In my opionion, their main function is not to hand out checks to the unemployed. Their principal function should be to take people who are out of work and channel them back into the ranks of the employed.

"They have the program set up, but no one administers it. The state is run by bureaucracies, not by the Governor. As far as the executive branch of the state government is concerned, Governor Sargent shows no leadership in efforts to improve the economy of the Commonwealth.

"He has left the Cabinet post of Commissioner of Commerce and Development vacant for a year. That is a position which is very important to the well-being of the economic climate of the state," O'Neill declared.

A serious-minded young man with deep convictions, Representative O'Neill is opposed to the death penalty. He believes that one man should not take the life of another man. Morally, he is unable to justify in his own mind the snuffing out a human life as punishment for a murder.

Young Mr. O'Neill is not convinced that the death penalty is a deterrent to crimes of violence. He argues that there should be more police officers on the streets protecting the public and less permissiveness within the courts and penal institutions.

"The prison furlough system should be coordinated and administered better," he said. "When a prisoner is being furloughed, the police in the community to which he is going should be notified. We should have more stringent laws pertaining to drugs and tighter gun-control laws."

A gun-control bill originally filed and sponsored by Representative O'Neill may finally be enacted into law in revamped form this year. It bans the manufacture or sale in Massachusetts of handguns with barrels of less than three inches. (The so-called Saturday Night Specials.)

Representative O'Neill said that one of the factors which caused him to decide to seek the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor was that he felt this action would contribute to unity within the Democratic party.

Under the new division of Massachusetts into single House districts, Representative O'Neill and Representative Charles Flaherty, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, were placed in the same North Cambridge district.

Most observers believed O'Neill could defeat Flaherty because it's virtually a political sin not to vote for a Thomas P. O'Neill in North Cambridge.

But the modest-mannered Representative O'Neill decided a battle between Flaherty and himself would do violence to the Democratic party so he struck out for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor.

He is strictly neutral in the fight between Attorney General Robert Quinn and former State Representative Michael Dukakis for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

"I thought my candidacy would lend unity to the Democratic party and that my philosophy would add something to the Democratic ticket, "O'Neill stated.

Representative O'Neill has worked as a stock broker for the past six years.

This reported is familiar with Congressman O'Neill's views. From the answers made by Representative O'Neill to the questions put to him, it seemed apparent that he agrees with his father on most matters but disagrees with him on a few issues.

One of the issues on which the two O'Neills are in total agreement is that they are both strongly opposed to abortions.

Defeat of Gun Control Bills a big mystery

Why it has been impossible to obtain the enactment of an effective gun-control law in Massachusetts has been a mystery back through the years.

One bill after another, designed to prohibit anyone except policemen and other law-enforcement officers from carrying handguns on the street, have been sunk without a trace.

The common explanation offered is that the Rifle Clubs and the hunters and sportsmen comprise a powerful lobby on Beacon Hill and wield too much influence to permit the adoption of any stringent gun-control law.

That sounds like sheer nonsense. Why should the hunters, sportsmen and members of Rifle Clubs worry about a ban on handguns?

The answer seems to be that a lot of ordinary citizens now carry revolvers for their protection when they walk on the street and do not want to be deprived of that right. Judging from the mail on the matter, some of the people in that group are women. In fact, some women's pistol clubs have been organized.

Obviously, the only reason for carrying a handgun on the street is to have it handy in case the need arises to shoot somebody, and the reason for shooting somebody can differ with different people.

A compromise and watered-down bill apparently is on its way to passage by the Legislature which would ban the sale or use of handguns with barrels of less than three inches.

We're not enough of an expert on guns to understand the fine distinction between revolvers with barrels of less than three inches and those with barrels of more than three inches. But the guessing is that either type of gun could kill aperson pretty dead.

Save prison furloughs

To the Editor:

The Massachusetts Legislature, currently considering a bill to virtually finish the prison furlough program, is obviously unable to comprehend some basic correctional facts of life.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Clifford Marshall and backed by Attorney General Robert Quinn, is based on three neanderthal notions:

1). Most people in prison abuse the furlough program. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Admitting that there have been furlough failures, and accepting (which I do not) the Quinn-quoted statistics — there is no other correctional program that can claim a higher rate of success. The countless number of people in prison who have used the furlough opportunity appropriately and returned promptly should have justified the faith of the most confirmed skeptic in the capacity of people to change.

2). Law enforcement personnel are in the best position to judge when an individual is ready for a furlough. How can they be, when they have not had any contact with the furlough prospect for a number of years?

Correctional administrators, who see the people in prison on a daily basis, are in a far better position to judge that individual's current capacity to use a furlough appropriately.

3). Marshall is quoted as saying that "the public is fed up with the permissive attitude that exists in the furlough system". What is permissive about requiring a person in prison to maintain some family contact and to obtain a job and home prior to release? That requires far more work than simply sitting around a cellblock all day. The only thing permissive about the furlough system is that it permits a common sense approach toward gradually reintroducing the person in prison and the community to each other.

If there is anything the public should be fed up with, it is politicians who abuse their facts and mis-use their figures in an effort — by fanning the flames of our fears — to gain votes.

Arrogant drivers

To the Editor:

If I had a dime for every arrogant "Newtonite" that ran the red lights in our fair city, I would be a very rich person indeed.

Having once more this morning almost been hit broadside by a car "running the light" at the intersection of Beacon and Walnut streets, I wonder if it would be too much trouble to occasionally station a police officer (even a meter maid might help) at some of the busy intersections in Newton during the peak rush hour traffic times — such as 8:30 to 9 a.m.

Every single day during regular commuting times it is possible to watch people who deem themselves above the law evidently, going through red lights at Commonwealth Avenue and Center Sts., Commonwealth Avenue and Grant Ave., Beacon and Walnut Sts., Walnut and Washington Sts., etc.

These are major intersections, if I'm not mistaken, and heavily traveled during the commuting times in particular. Would it be asking too much if occasionally an officer was there to apprehend these arrogant drivers? I hope not.

Civil liberties and Nixon

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Now, I may not have the credentials of a Hirsh Freed in the field of law, et. al. . . . but I am prompted to call to your attention the third paragraph of your lead editorial of May 2.

You made the point of what the civil liberties union was all about, namely, "the rights of the downtrodden and the right of free speech."

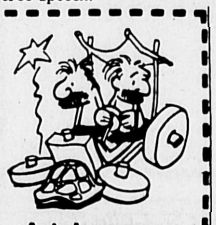

Mr. Freed says, you say, that the ACLU has given up its tax free standing because it is doing something political, "suggesting the impeachment of Nixon."

Well, what has Mr. Freed's friend in the White House done, if not just that . . . He's made life more unbearable for the downtrodden and has done everything in his power to coerce the writers and broadcasters of this country to knuckle under to his censorship or else!

So, the ACLU is doing the job its charter demands "protect the downtrodden and fight for freedom of speech by demanding Nixon's impeachment."

That's not political, that's just common sense. And furthermore, the word "liberal" in regard to a man's politics is quite a loose one, but it's not loose enough to include Mr. Freed.

Alperin promoted

Jay K. Alperin, a former Newton resident, has been elected director of marketing for the Indian Head Bank group in New Hampshire.

Alperin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erle I. Alperin, 208 Homer Street, had previously served as a market research manager for the Indian Head group.

Alperin attended local schools and was a member of the Newton High School tennis team which won two consecutive New England championships in 1959-60. He is a graduate of Boston University and holds the master of business administration degree from that school. In addition, he has completed a number of credits towards a doctorate.

Prior to joining Indian Head two years ago, he was vice president of the High Scope Education Research Foundation in Ypsilanti, Michigan.

Alperin, his wife, Dianne, and their two children reside in Bedford, New Hampshire.

Dorothy Day to speak at May 19 Newton College commencement

Dorothy Day, Roman Catholic journalist and inveterate crusader for social justice, will be the speaker at Newton College commencement exercises on Sunday, May 19 at 11 a.m.

Some 205 women will receive baccalaureate degrees from the liberal arts college for women at the ceremonies which will climax a weekend of activities including a Baccalaureate Mass and a reception on Saturday.

Born in 1897 in Brooklyn Heights, Miss Day was a writer for communist and socialist publications before her conversion to Roman Catholicism. A catalyst in the 1930's of what has since become the Catholic labor movement, she has continued her advocacy of nonviolent social change. In January, she was the recipient of the first annual Isaac Hecker award presented by the Boston Paulist Center.

Miss Day appeared prominently in the news in the early 60's as a perenially jailed protester against preparation for nuclear war. Recently, she has worked with Cesar Chavez and the United Farm Workers.

She was co-founder and serves as editor and publisher of the Catholic Worker, an eight-page monthly tabloid paper which approaches social problems from the ground up. It is headquartered in a house of hospitality for the needy near New York's Bowery.

Miss Day has divided her time and her unceasing efforts between St. Joseph's House of Hospitality in the city, a farm that the Catholic Workers run in New York State, and visits to adherents and loose affiliates of the movement around the country. Currently, she is concentrating her energy on a newly opened house in New York City for needy, homeless women.

Democrats pick delegates

At the Democratic caucuses held last Saturday in all wards of the city, 54 delegates were chosen for the June 1 Fourth Congressional District caucus in Waltham, at which delegates will be selected for a national caucus in December.

The purpose of the national caucus will be to adopt a charter for the Democratic Party.

Elected at Saturday's ward caucuses were:

Ward 1—James Neely, Walter Rosenfeld, Edward Richmond, Morris Greenbaum, Anita Greenbaum, and James onroe.

Ward 2—Margaret Hannigan, Peter Harrington, Robert Gordon, Mary Berger, Andrew Lane, and Sophie Pann.

Ward 3—Betty Taymor, Mary Lewis Hansen, William Carmen, Matthew Jefferson, Tom Torchia, Judy Holmberg, and Aida Press.

Ward 4—Richard McGrath, Sylvia Wyman, Sanford Kowal, May Takayanagi, and George Hauser.

Ward 5—Brian Yates, Lois Pines, Christopher Arterton, Jan Arterton, David Guberman, Betty Parnes, arobert Davine, and Jerome Grossman.

Ward 6—Ethel Sheehan, Edward Kovar, Ernest Winsor, John Eller, Herbert Regal, Joyce Picard, Patricia Simon, and Paul Kelly.

Ward 7—Constance Kantar, Gordon Martin, Sarah Brooks, Vincent Stanton, Jr., and Olympia Pasquarosa.

Ward 8—Faye Cohen, Kenneth Sisson, Marcia Hellman, Phyllis Berkowitz, George Mitchell, Eugene Hampton, Leland White, Kay Stein, and Marvin Miller.

Parents to meet at Murray Road May 16

A meeting for parents interested in learning about opportunities for students at the Murray Road Annex of Newton North High School has been set by high school principal Richard Meehem for Thursday evening, May 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the Murray Rod School, 35 Murray Road, West Newton.

Meehem, the staff, and several students and paretns currently involved in the program will describe it and answer questions. Parents of students who will be sophomores or juniors at Newton North next fall are encouaged to attend.

The Murray Road program, now in its seventh year, has a normal enrollment of 115 students and a staff of ten. Many students find that its small size offers a more personalized educational environment than is possible in a larger school. Individual attention is focused not only on the students' academic development, but on his social and personal development as well. A unique feature is that many parts of the program are jointly planned by students and teachers.

The staff includes teachers of English, social studies, science, mathematics, foreign language, and art, and a counselor. Although a majority of the students go on to four-year colleges, the program is not only for the college-bound. The student body is diverse, reflkcting many interests, abilities, and career plans.

Early admission to kindergarten possible

The Newton Public Schools has announced its policy for early admission of children to Kindergarten.

The policy of the past several years of admitting some children up to three months younger than the standard admission age will be continued for this coming academic year.

The standard policy applicable to all children states that a child must be foure years, eight months of age by Sept. 1 before he may be admitted to kindergarten, and only if he passes a screening appraisal. Such children's birthdays must fall in January, February or March.

Children born on April 1 are not eligible. Parents may obtain application blanks and other information from the elementary school principal in the district in which they live for their children to be examined for possible early admission.

When the applications are completed, they should be mailed to the Division of Pupil Personnel Services, 88 Chestnut street, West Newton, Massachusetts. Parents will then be given an appointment time to bring the child to the Division for appraisal.

TV PROFILE

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Noah Beery Jr. is a regular in the "Doc Elliot" series with Jim Franciscus. He also takes time out to play top roles in motion pictures.

His latest is "Walking Tall," one of the surprise hits of the past year.

Beery, 57, is the son of the late great character actor, Noah Beery, and the nephew of the immortal Wally Beery. Despite such overwhelming forebears, Noah Jr. has scratched out more than 200 movies roles and three previous television series on his own.

He starred in "Circus Boy,""Riverboat" and "Hondo."

Beery and his second wife, Lisa, lead the life of true ranchers. In addition to more than 100 head of cattle, they keep goats, chickens, sheep and pigs on a 2,000-acre spread near Tehachpai, Calif.—a two-hour drive from Hollywood.

Unique Home

Lisa and Noah have been married seven years. Each had a family before they got together. Noah's two sons and daughter are married and live in the Los Angeles area. His son, Buck, is a third generation actor in the Beery family.

Lisa's sons Page, 15, and Sean, 11, live at the ranch and commute 20 miles to school each day.

Beery bought the ranch 23 years ago for $18 an acre. The property is now worth $600 per acre so it is safe to assume there will never be any benefits for Noah Jr.

Their home is made up of an old gasoline station, garage and motel that once stood along an intercontinental highway back in 1910. It has been fixed up and decorated with westernstyle antiques and a number of colorful Navajo rugs which Lisa bought.

Makes Own Butter

Their barn has been converted from an old dance hall that once attracted cowboys and oil field workers in the area more than a half century ago.

The acreage, for the most part, is grazing land. But about 50 acres are given over to growing vegetables. Called the Bear Mountain Ranch, Noah says proudly it is self-sufficient.

Lisa cooks on a 40-year-old stove, half of which still burns wood, the other half butane. She makes her own butter and lives in blue denim most of the time. She still hangs her clothes out to dry in the sunshine in preference to buying a mechanical dryer.

Beery keeps an apartment in Hollywood in which he lives when he's working on the show. He has other business interests that generally bring him to the city once or twice a week.

Horses Roam Ranch

On vacations the Beerys travel to Europe or Mexico. Noah is a collector of western art. He owns several original paintings by Charles Russell and many original bronze works.

The Beerys entertain infrequently because their Hollywood friends are disinclined to drive two hours for dinner. Others complain that their twomile-long driveway is too rough to negotiate. "That driveway keeps out the casual droppersin," said Noah, grinning.

They have their own water supply from old natural springs, aided by three windmills which also provide a source of power.

Enormous oak trees cover much of the property. Noah and his ranch hands collect firewood to burn in fireplaces that even the richest Hollywood stars couldn't afford to build from natural boulders today.

Fifteen horses —and a single pony for his four grandchildren —roam the acreage. Most of them are old nags which Noah has ridden in pictures and for personal enjoyment down through the years. They are out to pasture now —but Noah Beery Jr. is a long way from that himself.

Ecological Hazard

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — A proposed superport off the Louisiana coast could pose a danger to the environment, a Louisiana State University researcher says.

Dr. Sherwood Gagliano says the proposed $528 superport, to be used by oil tankers, could adversely affect oyster beds and recreation areas in the Gulf of Mexico.

He also said currents in the Gulf could wash accidental oil spills into the coast.

GOP picks chairwoman

The Newton Republican City Committee has elected Maudyea Campbell, to the chairmanship of the local GOP organization.

Mrs. Campbell, who has served in a number of committee assignments and has been vice-chairman of the group, is the first woman to head the Newton Republican City Committee.

The new chairman succeeds Julius L. Masow who declined reelection after serving nearly five years as head of the Newton GOP.

Another longtime committee officer, David A. Lurensky, corresponding secretary and chairman of public relations since 1963, also retires from office. He is succeeded by Dr. Vahe A. Sarafian.

Masow and Lurensky were presented with inscribed plaques of appreciation and received citations of merit from the Massachusetts State Republican Committee. Both continue as members of the City Committee and indicated they will accept special assignments.

Others elected to serve as officers are: Edward Trundle, first vice chairman; Mrs. Lina Brenner, second vice chairman; Robert L. Sandman, treasurer; Dr. Vahe A. Sarafian, corresponding secretary; and Charlotte R. Thornbury, recording secretary.

The nominating committee's report was presented by Martin Stocklan, chairman of Ward 7, who headed the committee.

Special guest and speaker for the event was Representative William G. Robinson of Melrose, Republican whip, House of Representatives. His talk emphasized the urgency to elect Republicans to legislative seats if the two party system is to continue as a force for good government.

Also attending were candidates for state office, among them former Alderman William P. Matthews who is running for the seat from the new 16th Middlesex District; State Senator John Quinlan, candidate for secretary of state; and William I. Cowin, candidate for attorney general.

William A. Barnstead, recently elected chairman of the Massachusetts Republican State Committee, will be the guest speaker at the Annual Meeting of the Newton Republican Club Tuesday, May 14, it was announced by John L. DiSabato, president of the club. The event will take place in the meeting rooms of Post 440 in Newton.

Barnstead, identified for many years with Republican activities, has already demonstrated that he is an outspoken chairman and his remarks at the Newton event are awaited with much interest.

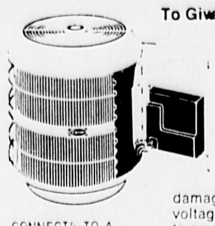

In the brief business meeting prior to the program of the evening, members of the club will act on the report of the nominating committee and will elect its officers and members of the executive committee.

One Lookdown can leave you watery-eyed.

At the New England Aquarium there's one basic thing separating you from 2,000 fish like the Lookdown.

A tempered plate of clear glass.

Look into the world's largest circular glass-enclosed salt water tank. Get a fish-eye view of what it really looks like to be a fish. See huge sea turtles. Moray eels. Schools of striped bass. And sharks. Some you could eat. Some could eat you.

There are other exciting exhibits too. Seals. A huge octopus. A catfish that walks. An electric eel that produces 650 volts of electricity. Sea lions. And more.

Those are some of the beauties of the New England Aquarium. Another is that it's right here in Boston. On an MBTA line. So that while you, your family and your friends are seeing something truly interesting, you don't have to burn a drop of gas doing it. Because the energy shortage is still with us, the Prudential Insurance Company thinks there are better things to do this weekend than burning a tankful of gasoline. Seeing the New England Aquarium is one of them.

Planning Mrs. Irma Mann, a Newton resident, discusses V-Day plans with Mrs. Murielle Ward of Boston.

V-Day is May 23

Irma Mann, 26 Merrill Rd., Newton Centre, is project coordinator from the governor's office for V-Day-'74, a volunteer job fair to be held at Hynes Auditorium, Boston, from 9:30 p.m., Thursday, May 23.

This state-wide volunteer day, sponsored by the Governor's Commission on Citizen Participation, will focus on new and exciting opportunities for citizens interested in programs in social action, advocacy and human services.

Gov. Francis W. Sargent will present a major noontime address at V-Day-'74. Panel discussions, workshops and more than 100 volunteer booths will also be featured. All events will be free.

Among the leaders of national and state volunteer agencies who will participate will be George Romney, former governor of Michigan, and his wife, Lenore, both active in the National Center for Voluntary Action. Government officials, television commentators and business leaders will join representatives from 4,000 volunteer organizations for the event.

Mrs. Jessie W Sargent, chairwoman, and Mrs. Isabel Besecker, director of School Volunteers for Boston, Inc., vice chairwoman, have planned a variety of workshops including "Volunteerism: Whats In It for You;" "Can Volunteers Change Anything," and "Volunteerism, Women and Liberation."

Persons wishing further information about V-Day-'74 may call 727-6325.

Disposal district to review recycling procedures

As part of Camp Dresser & McKee's most recent contract with the Newton-Waltham Regional Refuse Disposal District planning committee, the consulting firm will make recommendations on the present newspaper recycling program and will evaluate the feasibility of a proposed curbside collection of glass.

The recycling evaluation will also consider the compatibility of proposals soon to be requested for the disposal of all Newton and Waltham rubbish with existing recycling efforts in both cities and how the recycling programs can be made more effective.

Newton collects newspapers monthly, and has two recycling areas to which residents may take papers, cans, and glass. Waltham has only a paper collection.

Neither of the two cities' programs is mandatory.

A recent Camp Dresser & McKee report, which will be available in about a month, has recommended the eventual construction of a resource-recovery plant by the state in Waltham, and proposes that Newton and Waltham stay as a district until the regional facility is built, turning to transfer-haul for the solution of the solid waste problem until then.

Newton's incinerator will be shut down around the beginning of next year. Waltham's must cease operation June 30. Both are in violation of air-quality standards.

Camp Dresser & McKee's report also recommends that Waltham burn its trash in Newton's incinerator after the Waltham incinerator is closed.

Waltham Public Works Director Edward Delaney has written the district committee formally asking the district to request the permission of Mayor Theodore Mann to allow Waltham to burn between 50 and 100 tons of rubbish in the Newton incinerator from July to December.

Delaney said he would expect to pay "prevailing rates"—the same s outside contractors pay—for the use of the incinerator.

Waltham collects trash and garbage in one opeation. A proposed ordinance to establish a combined collection in Newton, proposed by Ald. Matthew Jefferson and Peter Harrington in 1970, has been held in committee since then, because of opposition to the passage through the city of trucks laden with garbage and trash and to garbage being put out at the curb.

James Salter, chief administrative officer to Mayor Mann, commented this week that the proposal to allow Waltham to use Newton's incinerator would in his opinion require the actio of the Board of Aldermen.

One-way trial

For a trial period to end June 21, Gibbs street and Bowen street in Newton Centre will be made one-way streets.

The trial is preliminary to the installation of traffic signals in the area.

During the trial period traffic flows will be observed and evaluated by police and Planning Department personnel. A public hearing will then be announced to obtain public comment on the proposal.

Concert at Babson

A theater organ concert will be given in Knight Auditorium of Babson College Saturday, May 18, at 8 p.m.

The program is sponsored by the Eastern Massachusetts Chapter of the American Theater Organ Society, a nonprofit organization interest in preserving theater organs.

Tickets are available at Hubbard Drug, Newton Corner; Fox Pharmacy in Nonantum, the What Not Shop in West Newton and Willey's Pharmacy in Newton Highlands.

Tax and insurance reform bills advance

Legislation sponsored by Senator Irving Fishman (D-Newton) to provide property tax relief for elderly and insurance reforms received a favorable report from the Joint Committees on Taxation and Insurance.

S. 1331, part of Fishman's legislative package to provide property tax relief for Massachusetts homeowners and tenants, is designed to extend the tax exemption from real estate taxes for certain elderly persons.

Currently only those grossing $6,000 or less per year are eligible for a real estate tax exemption. Under Fishman's bill federal social security benefits would not be counted as part of a person's gross income for purposes of computing the tax exemption. If adopted, many elderly property owners living on marginal fixed incomes would not have to pay real estate taxes.

Among the insurance reform bills sponsored by Fishman this session reported out favorably are an ambulatory benefits program (s. 1499) and a bill prohibiting discrimination in offering individual insurance policies to blind persons (S. 520). Both bills are soon to be taken up by the Senate.

According to Senator Fishman, S. 1499 is aimed at filling gaps in existing health insurance programs by stipulating that any health insurance policy offered in the Commonwealth must include coverage of a minimum of ambulatory benefits. If the requirement is adopted, private insurers would have to offer comprehensive coverage for routine or outpatient ambulatory care in addition to the usual reimbursements of inpatient hospital care and related services.

S. 520 would require insurance companies to offer individual accident and sickness insurance policies to blind persons. "Insurance contracts purporting to insure blind persons only under a blanket or group insurance policy are unacceptable. Accident and sickness insurance should be offered to blind persons as individuals," Fishman said.

Book Work

By ANDY FIELDING

I don't read enough.

Oh yes, I read loads of newspapers and magazines and periodicals, but I don't read enough literature, like the classics and plays and novels. Unless, of course, it's assigned to me in school.

I'm really not sure why I don't read enough. It may be that I watch too much television and listen to too much radio (where it's not really required that I use too much intelligence). Or ti may be that I approach reading a book as though it were homework — something you've got to get through and complete. And I guess there's the fear inside me somewhere that after I finish a book I'm reading on my own, someone somewhere is going to ask me to write a paper about it or test me on it.

The thing is, though, that I've usually found that when I do manage to sit down and read a book on my own, I really enjoy it. I find that it's not such a horrible experience, but is, in fact, a pretty enjoyable one.

I've also recently discovered (and it seems too bad that I couldn't have discovered it sooner), that many of the books they force you to read in school — books by authors like James Joyce ("Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man"), and William Faulkner ("The Sound and the Fury"), and Samuel Beckett ("Waiting for Godot") or works by Hemingway or Chekhov or Robert Frost really are just fantastic. Sure, you'll get the clunkers, too, but reading books and authors like these makes you think that there just might be something to that whole "world of letters." And it also shows you that just because it comes from school, it doesn't have to be all that bad. In fact, it can be pretty good.

I can't say I enjoy writing papers in school about books we read — I'm not that enlightened yet — but it still is interesting getting to know these authors and their respective worlds, their works, and observe their styles, their nuances, their idead.

In a recent CBS radio commentary, Joyce Maynard, a young author who has been recently making it pretty big with her youth-oriented essays and her reflections on her 1960's childhood, argued that we shouldn't just discard the literature we're fed in school as being without value. We should, instead, she said, try to take advantage of it, and absorb all the knowledge and the creativity that the various authors have to offer.

I myself am now, I think, just beginning to appreciate the real worth of books and literature. I'm still, by no means, a prolific reader — I do still have difficulty picking up a book, whether it's in school or out. But I think my attitude, at least is changing. I guess that's a step in the right direction.

Students stage French comedy

By PAULA BARRY

A little bit of France will be presented to Newton North students on May 9 and 10 when their Language Department presents Moliere's "Le Malade Imaginaire."

"Le Malade . . ." the second annual all school French play, is being presented because it was evident that Foreign Language Talen among the students needed to be expressed. The play is being directed by French teachers David Phelan and Richard Rude; produced by Julie Brown, a student, and choreographed by Mr. D'Agnese, also a French teacher.

The French Department chose a Moliere play twoice in a row because "he's the best," commented Phelan. A Moliere play has the advantage of being understood by speakers and non-speakers of French because of its visual aspects. The play will be "a great cultural experience," which will include historic costumes and sets, dancing, art preparation, which will be supervised by Michael Zolli, and the script by Shakespeare's French counterpart.

The plot has the intricacy of a Russian novel. "Le Malade Imaginaire," (the hypochondriac), played by David Hastings, constantly gets sick to get attention. Because his illnesses are so frequent, he thinks it wise that his daughter, Judy Wyman, marry a doctor, Philip Auslander, so that he'll have all the free medical care he wants.

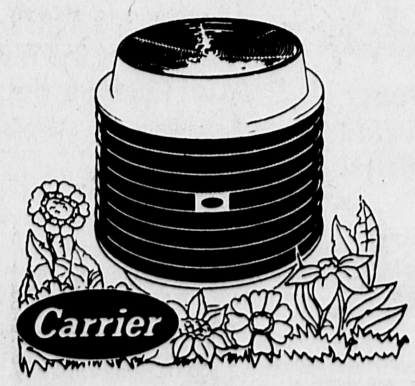

He fails to see that his much desired son-in-law is a clod who fails to earn the affection of his daughter. The girl instead, loves another man who poses as a music tutor to be near her, (Michael Sinesi).

Meanwhile, the hypochondriac's wife (Mary Elliot) is having an affair with the lawyer, Frank Bodengraven, in hopes, that he will have her husband bequeath his great wealth to her.

How to resolve these problems, is the task Moliere has undertaken, and the finished product, in Phelan's estimation, can only be termed, "plain super!"

Red Cross salutes youth

American Red Cross chapters nation-wide salute the dedication and volunteer contributions of young people during the week of May 6-12, which has been designated "Be Somebody Week," according to Barbara Kelley, Red Cross Youth Service Programs chairman of the Newton Red Cross Chapter.

"The Red Cross believes that children and youth find a place to be somebody through varied service experiences," Miss Kelley said. "Be Somebody Week offers ARC chapters an opportunity to recognize the young volunteers who serve their schools and communities so well throughout the year."

"Be Somebody Week will also focus on recruitment of summer youth volunteers for Red Cross work in hospitals, day care centers, recreation sites and orphanages; and on developing awareness in communities of the continuing year-round services of youth volunteers," she added.

"Here in Newton, the Newton Red Cross Chapter offers opportunities for youth to volunteer in hospitals, nursing homes, day care centers, nursery schools, at the Cerebray Palsy Center, on bloodmobiles, in patterning, tutoring, teaching, recreation, on First Aid field stations, and many other opportunities. There are many project various age groups can get involved in, ranging from a presschooler making decorative personal nut cups for the nursing homes during holiday times, to a graduate student coordinating a preschool seminar program for junior high and high school students.

"Last year, throughout the nation, six million students were involved in Red Cross Youth Service Programs in schools; 312,350 youth served in chapter activities; and 37, 789 elementary and secondary schools were engaged in Red Cross chapter activities," she said.

Original performance May 16

The Newton North High School Music Department will present its annual, original compositions concert Thursday, May 16, at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium. The pieces were written annual original compositions concert.

The pieces were written, orchestrated, and arranged by students of the classes in Theory I, II, and Independent Study in Composition, Henry Lasker, instructor.

The compositions include pieces for symphony orchestra, chamber and vocal ensembles, and stage jazz band embracing styles and idioms representative of the Renaissance, Baroque, Classical, Romantic, and Contmeporary periods. Many of the pieces will be conducted by the composers themselves. The choarl and instrumental groups are under the direction of Raymond Smith and Gary Good, respectively.

Tommy Monahan (left), an eighth grade student at Newton Catholic Elementary School, gives special instruction to second graders Jimmy Welch and Martin Murphy. The school has found tutoring of younger students by upperclassmen beneficial to both.

Helping out

Student composers include Eric Albert, Linda Denaro, Marcelle Fabrizi, Elizabeth Gradone, Susan Greenberg, Catherine Kelley, Jurgen Kern, David Keyes, David Klashman, Eve Minkoff, Michael O'Brien, Rosita Penzer, Barbara Rattigan, David Regal, Jeff Santis, Diane Solov, Nancy Thomason, Phyllis Wright, and VartKes Zerounian.

The public is invited. Following the concert, a reception will be held at which refreshments will be served.

Parking change affects proposed McDonald's

Although the Licensing Board has granted McDonald's a common victualler's license for a proposed new restaurant on Walnut street, Newtonville, an amendment to the zoning ordinanaces to be heard before the Land Use Committee in public hearing next week may prevent the use of the building as a restaurant.

A public outcry against the decision of the board and a ruling by the Law Department that the first decision was invalid because of improper notification of the public led only to a vote reaffirming the vote to allow McDonald's to operate.

The amendment to the zoning ordinance, proposed by then Ald. Peter Harrington in 1973, would prevent McDonald's from converting the former retail store into a restaurant without providing adequate parking spaces.

As planned, the new McDonald's would have some 260 seats and would not be the drive-in type of restaurant.

According to Frank Maher, chairman of the Licensing Board, the board cannot deny a license on the basis of parking.

McDonald's had not applied for a building permit for modification of the building before publication of the notice of public hearing. Therefore according to Assistant Building Commissioner Victor Taglienti, if the proposed amendment is passed by the Board of Aldermen, McDonald's would be hit by the law requiring provision for parking.

The Cosmopolitan Club, an exciting new organization is being formed in the Greater Boston area. Primarily, a leisure club that begins where other clubs leave off. It is designed for mature men and women, on the move and keeps you in touch with others with similar interests and is mainly for people who don't usually join clubs.

If you are interested in music, wine, art, food, philosophy etc. There shall always be something exciting to tempt you, theatre parties, sports events, mystery bus rides, week-end junkets and even international vacations.

The first meeting will be held Wednesday evening, May 15 at 8 at the Dedham Community House, 671 High street, Dedham.

For more information and reservations, please call: Brookline, 469-0072; Needham, 444-4735; Newton, 527-4306 or Dedham, 326-2733.

45th annual art exhibit opens at Jordan Marsh

Spring means many things to many people—flowers, sunshine, being outdoors—and at Jordan Marsh, spring means the opening of the 45th annual Art Exhibition of Paintings by contemporary New England artists. Opening this week and continuing through May 18th, this year's art exhibition in the seventh floor Fashion Center of the Boston store, has something for everyone.

Of the one thousand paintings submitted, about two hundred paintings were selected for the exhibition. Distinguished judges for the art exhibition include Joseph Butera, president of Butera School of Art; Priscilla Sibley, artist and member of the South Shore Art Association; and Edward J. W. Cooper, director of the Cambridge Art Association.

Three Juror Awards of $200 will be awarded as well as three gold Richard Mitton memorial medals for the winners of the Popular Vote. The awards include a $500 First place, a $300 Second Place, and a $200 Third place.

The two-week long exhibition is open to the public during regular store hours—9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., Tuesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday; and 9:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. on Monday and Wednesday. The exhibition is free of charge.

Winners of the Juror Awards and the Popular Vote Awards will be announced one week following the close of the Exhibition.

Christian Science lecture on Sunday

A free public lecture: "The Human and The Divine Economy," will be given by Nathaniel Ridgway White, a Christian Science practitioner, on Sunday, May 12 at 3 p.m., in the Wellesley Junior High School, Kingsbury street, Wellesley. Child care will be provided and everyone is welcome.

NATHANIEL WHITE

A former business and financial editor of the Christian Science Monitor, Nate White will emphasize that progress can be made in solving economical problems through understanding and applying laws of God.

Twice winner of the Loeb Award for distinguished economic reporting, he left the newspaper busness in 1963 to become a Christian Science healer. Now a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, White will share personal experiences by spiritual means alone.

John H. Hoagland, Jr., member of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Wellesley, will introduce White.

Mrs. William N. Rich, Jr., of Wellesley, is chairman of the Lecture Committee. Members of this church are sponsoring the lecture for the community.

Jazz weekend at the N.E. Conservatory

The New England Conservatory of Music celebrates Jazz the weekend of May 10 at two super-concerts in Jordan Hall.

"An Evening of Ellington," featuring the New England Conservatory Jazz Ensemble conducted by Conservatory President Gunther Schuller, will highlight several Ellington favorites at a May 10 concert. Among the pieces to be performed will be "Daybreak Express," "Cotton Tail," "Koko," "Delta Serenade," and "C Jam Blues," among others. Admission is $2 and the concert begins at 8:30 p.m.

On Sunday, May 12, the Grammy Award-winning New England Conservatory Ragtime Ensemble will make their only Jordan Hall appearance of the Spring season. The Ensemble, which recently released a second recording of Scott Joplin tunes, will perform Joplin's music as well as works of other composers of the Ragtime Era.

Tickets for both concerts are available through the Jordan Hall Box Office, telephone 536-2412.

"Haunted House" project yields $45,000 to museum

The Children's Museum Aid held its annual meeting and luncheon this week at The Country Club in Brookline and presented a generous check to Museum Executive Director Michael Spock.

Aid President Mrs. James F. Cleary told the meeting a net profit of $45,000 was realized by its special project "Haunted House-1973." She said this represented a $15,000 increase over the first ten-day similar affair initiated by Mrs. Edward J. Mitton the previous year.

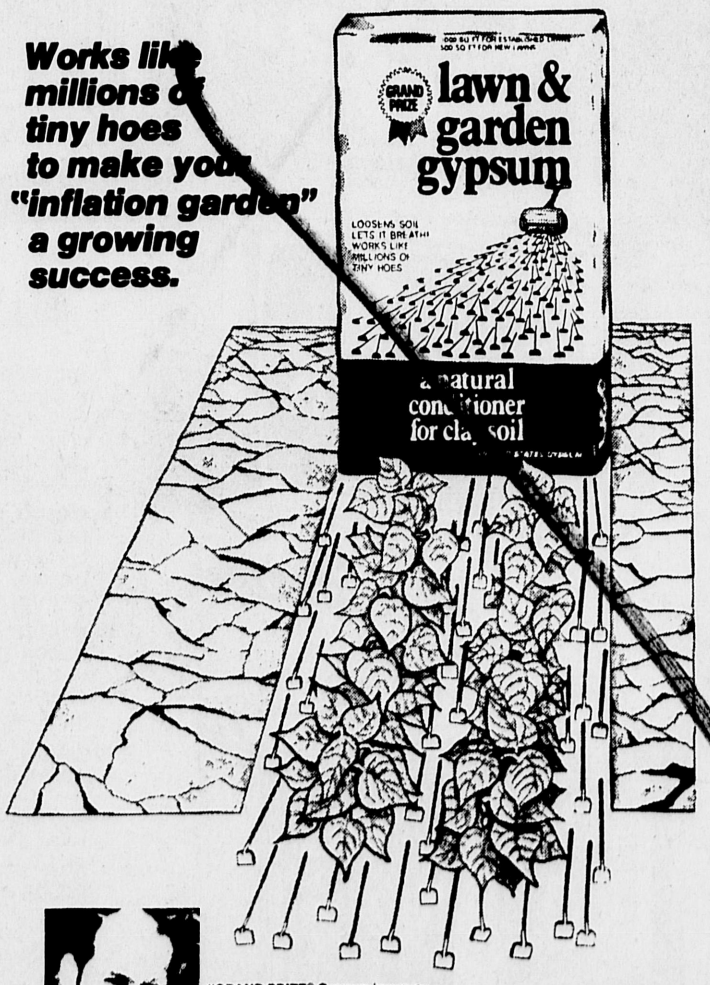

Plans for "Haunted House-1974," scheduled to run from October 18th through October 28th, are well underway and were outlined by chairman Mrs. Benjamin Carroll. Slides of the previous Haunted House were shown and Mr. Spock was the guest speaker.

Proceeds from the ever-growing, ever-popular "Haunted House" program support the Jamaica Plain Museum's increasingly ambitious community-based projects which enable its service to be extended to many surrounding areas that might otherwise be unable to take advantage of them.

Mrs. Ralph Henry, chairman of last year's Haunted House, is vice-president and other officers elected at the meeting include Mrs. Austin L. Vickery, Miss Sarah Reed, Mrs. Edward D. Rowley, Mrs. Donald Lashley, and Mrs. Edward H. McGrath.

Twenty two members were introduced by Mrs. Hollis Plimpton, Jr. Those elected as new aides were Mrs. Robert J. Allen, Weston; Mrs. Lewis E. Darby, Weston; Mrs. John H. Higgins, Weston; Mrs. Reynolds W. Thompson, Weston; Mrs. Roy Burrell, Dedham; Mrs. George Doherty, Dedham; Mrs. Gloria Rowlands, Dedham; Mrs. Richard Ulbrich, Dedham; Mrs. Francis W. Casey, Brookline; Mrs. Robert W. Donohue, Brookline; Mrs. Stephen H. White, Brookline; Mrs. Richard Clark, Scituate; Mrs. Arch Talbot Hodge, Scituate; Mrs. Bryan Cleary, W. Peabody; Mrs. John H. Foehl, Needham; Mrs. William Foehl, Dover; Mrs. Neville E. Gillmore, Westwood; Mrs. Edwin F. Kakas, Sherborn; Mrs. Charles Mallett, Sherborn; Mrs. Stephen Lindsay, Wellesley; Mrs. James Ramsey, Wellesley and Mrs. Robert G. White, Milton.

Works like millions of tiny hoes to make your "inflation garden" a growing success.

"GRAND PRIZE® Gypsum improves drainage, too," reminds Jerry Baker, America's master gardener and author of "Plants Are Like People."

Now there's no need for heavy hoeing and digging to break up compacted soil. Just spread this natural mineral on your garden this Spring. Then water it in and let nature do the hard work, naturally. GRAND PRIZE Gypsum aerates hard-pan soil so it can breathe. Helps flower and vegetable seeds germinate faster and roots grow deeper. Allows costly fertilizers to do a better job, too. In fact, GRAND PRIZE adds its own sulfate sulfur and soluble calcium to soil; two nutrients essential to healthy plant growth. In the words of Jerry Baker: "Gypsum should be applied to all gardens, lawns, trees, shrubs and beds if the soil is the least bit hard or compacted." Get GRAND PRIZE at your garden center or hardware store. It's the easiest way to get hoeing!

Footlighters to present benefit for Hellenic Home

A special benefit performance of "Arsenic and Old Lace," mystery comedy by Joseph Kesselring, will be held at the Eliot House, 7 Eliot street in Jamaica Palin on Thursday, May 16th at 8 p.m.

The comic parts of the two "little old ladies" are played by Mildred Adelson and Mrs. Leroy J. Mann of Jamaica Plain.

In its 97th season, the Eliot House is presenting its 305th production by the Footlight Club Players whose current president is Miss Flornece Freeman of Weston and its play producer, Mrs. George Burbank of Jamaica Plain.

The benefit was planned by women in Jamaica Plain and surrounding communities for the new Hellenic Nursing Home in Canton, currently in a fund drive to raise $250,000. On the committee are Kay Solovicos of Jamaica Plain and Mary Jarvis of Brookline, co-chairmen, with Mrs. John Anastos and Mrs. Theodore Katsiroubas of Jamaica Plain, Mrs. Nicholas Pappas and Mrs. James Psomas of West Roxbury, Mrs. Spiro Davis of Brookline, Clara Nicholson and Mrs. George Orphanos of Brighton.

For tickets and information, contact Mary Jarvis at 232-4963.

CHARGE IT WITH YOUR

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparalleled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

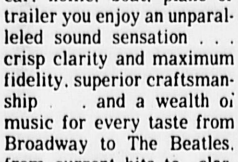

1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

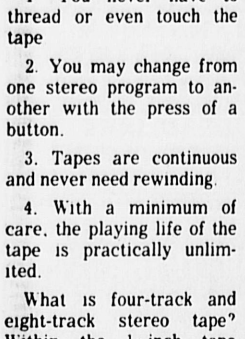

3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes

How does a tape cartridge work? Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.

Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

ROCK MUSIC

By BRUCE MEYER
United Press International

"There are these bagsful of money across the street and all we have to do is go over and pick 'em up."

The speaker is Stephen Stills and he is talking about a newly announced summer tour by Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young —a tour many people thought could never happen. There are still problems, though.

"We're going to have to start rehearsing or we can't get it together, though," Stills said. "We can't go out and fall on our face—we've got to put on a good show. If everzbody would just relax, it would take about a week to get it together. All we have to do is learn the songs."

It was about a half-hour before Stills was due for a sound check at a nearby auditorium where he was performing solo with his new—and unnamed—band.

Card Scene

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Amarillo Slim, self-styled world champion poker player, will make his debut as an actor playing cards in a scene from "California Split" which stars George Segal and Elliott Gould

Wants Studio Album

"The first gig is the 4th of July in Tampa, Fla. We're going to be playing football stadiums—just 10 dates."

Will there be a new CSN&Y album?

"Yes—I want to do a studio album. I hated the (CSN&Y) live album so much—and the others wouldn't cheat. I mean it may sound fine out front at a concert, but if you're listening close on a stereo—you gotta cheat, overdub some voice tracks so it will sound in tune."

Stills talks to interviewers with a good deal more candor than most performers. "Blunt" would be another way to put it, and Stills concedes that he frequently finds his foot in his mouth. It's refreshing, but sometimes gets him into trouble.

Example: "Graham (Nash) doesn't like the style of my solo stuff—he thinks it's too loud and too lush. But then I think his album drags."

Little in Common

Then, after a thought about the summer plans: "Yeah, that'll really help get it together."

CSN&Y was one of the first of the late-60's musical realignments to be dubbed a "supergroup"—and unlike most of the other bands to receive that label, it was true: David Crosby from the Byrds, Stills and Neil Young from the Buffalo Springfield and Nash from the Hollies.

Beyond a certain mellowness in their backgrounds, CSN&Y had little in common. And it is this diversity—plus unusual professionalism —that produced their unique electric cowboycum-folkie sound and made them one of the most popular groups in rock history.

They also managed to make music together while retaining a great deal more individuality than most musicians who find themselves selling millions of records as a group. All have produced solo albums—Stills' and Young's the most successful—and generally kept the audience guessing when (and whether) they would perform together again.

Now Stills has put together a fine band—probably the best he's ever had—and with only minor changes, it will form the base on which the CSN&Y tour will build.

Stills is also working on a solo album using the new band. Originally planned as "an album of all old stuff," the initial idea and several completed tracks have been shelved in favor of an all-new studio LP. Two tracks remain to be recorded and the album will likely be out in a couple of months.

Local residents celebrate 50th

Mr. and Mrs. Charels Bernard Gallagher of 63 Pleasant St., Newton Centre, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last Sunday (May 5), at a Concelebrated 50th Jubilee Mass at the Sacred Heart Church in Newton Centre. The celebrants were Msgr. William Granville, Rev. Donald Clifford, Rev. Girard Barry, Rev. John Corcoran and Deacon Hughes.

The Gallaghers, Newton residents for over 30 years, were the guests of honor at a reception held at the Bishop MacKenzie Center. The affair was hosted by their children, Sr. Patricia Gallagher of Concord, N.H.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Capstick (Elizabeth); and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Ross (Lorraine). They were married on May 3, 1924 in Marlboro.

Among the many friends and relatives attending this joyous occasion were the couple's ten grandchildren and two great grandchildren. Out-of-town guests included those from Florida, Maine, California, Pennsylvania, New York and New Hampshire.

Mrs. Gallagher, a past employee of the Newton Savings Bank, and Mrs. Gallagher, formerly employed by Boston College, have recently returned from a seven-week trip around the world. They observed their 48th wedding anniversary in Cypress.

Committee members

Arthur Morton of 26 Forest street, Westwood is the manager of the new Perkins Tobacco Shop in the Mall at Chestnut Hill.

Morton, who was in the motion picture theater business in Boston for many years, was formerly at the Perkins in Natick.

Senior citizens have celebration

April was anniversary month for the residents of the Horace Mann Apartments in Newtonville.

The anniversary was celebrated by the Horace Mann Associates, the senior citizen group, with a program presented by the Garden City Squares under the sponsorship of the Newton Recreation Department.

The program and the refreshments were planned by the executive board; Mrs. Alice Fontanny, president, assisted by Mrs. Robert G. Toher, recreation leader; Mrs. Miriam Sawyer, past president and Mrs. Herbert Duvay, treasurer.

The regular monthly meeting of the Associates will be held Tuesday, May 14. Mrs. Grace Lepore, a member of the Associates, will present a program featuring slides she took on a trip to the British Isles.

Many members are making plans to attend the city-wide senior citizen luncheon on May 22.

A trip to the Fuller Gardens in Rye, New Hampshire and then to Hampton Beach is coming up in June. Recreation Leader Mrs. Robert G. Toher of the Newton Recreation Department will accompany the group.

Debra F. Horowitz

Saunders-Fitzgerald

Dr. and Mrs. William L. Saunders of West Hartford, Conn., announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathryn Mary, to Kevin Neil Fitzgerald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Fitzgerald of 34 Harrison St., Newton Highlands.

Miss Saunders is a 1969 graduate of Northwest Catholic High School of West Hartford and a 1973 graduate of St. Anselm's College in Manchester, with a degree in nursing. She is presently employed as a registered nurse at Tufts-New England Medical Center Hospital.

Mr. Fitzgerald graduated from Catholic Memorial High School of West Roxbury in 1969 and also graduated in 1973 from St. Anselm's College with a B.A. degree in history. He is presently a candidate for the Mass. State Police.

A September wedding is planned.

Horowitz-Daniels

A June wedding is being planned by Debra Faith Horowitz and Marvin Charles Daniels.

The future Mrs. Daniels, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Horowitz of Fall River, is a graduate of the University of Mass. and is currently employed in the trust dept. of the Fall River National Bank.

Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Daniels of Newton Centre, graduated from Newton High School and the University of Mass. Presently, he is a teacher in the Boston public school system.

Weddings

Washington, D.C. residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Messer

The Sacred Heart Church in Newton was the setting of the Easter Sunday wedding of Sandra May Shirley and William Alan Messer. The ceremony was partly written and arranged by the couple, and the reception was held at the Coral Gables in North Weymouth.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Shirley of Newton, wore a full length ivory antique satin gown, adorned with appliqued lace roses and pearls and highlighted by a matching headpiece with athree-tiered full length veil. She carried a cascade of gardenias with pink and yellow sweetheart roses.

Ms. Lillian Liccardi, protocol officer of the U.S. Mission to the U.N., was her niece's maid of honor and Eileen Swarz and Patricia Lurie were bridesmaids.

Mr. Messer, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Messer of Escondito, Cal., was dressed in antique ivory brocade with black velvet trim. For his best man, he chose Charles Mann, staff member of the Department of the Interior. Michael Swarz and Anthony Virgilio served as ushers. The flower girls were Kim and Kelly Rasmussen and the ring bearer was Keith Glynn.

Chestnut Hill group sponsors 'Hadassah Hothouse' May 15

A display of hundreds of unusual indoor and outdoor plants will be on sale at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Garber, 108 Woodchester Drive, Newton, on Wednesday, May 15 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Sponsored by the Chestnut Hill Group of Hadassah, the public is invited to attend this unique plant and flower sale where well-known experts on plant care and growth will speak intermittently throughout the day.

Mrs. Alice Sherman, an outstanding landscape designer, will lecture and demonstrate on "How to rejuvenate your old garden" and Michael Werman of Glo-Worm, in Picadilly Square, will discuss "Growing indoor plants with lights."

Included in the price of admission will be a luncheon, which will be offered continuously throughout the day to those in attendance, as well as a selection of gardening books, accessories and other items available for purchase.

Advance ticket information or presale orders can be had by contacting Mrs. Jules Seletz, Newton, or any of the following members on the Planning Committee from the Newton area: Ruth Rosenblatt, Judy Rubinstein, Rhoda Klayman, Carol Weinraub, Eunice Schneider, Irma Spencer, Judy Slater, Vivian Shatz, Sarabeth Lukin, Roz Hurwitz, Elaine Goldenberg, Adrienne Silverstein, Linda Weis and Jeanette Werman.

Proceeds will benefit Hadassah's multi-faceted projects and programs in Israel.

Banquet May 22

The Zionist Organization of America, New England Region, will present the multi-media production, "Israel: The Reality and the Dream", on Wednesday, May 22 at a dessert banquet at the Dorothy Quincy Suite in John Hancock Hall at 8 p.m.

Sen. Jack H. Backman (D. Brookline), chairman of the Joint Committee on Social Welfare, will be Chairman of the event.

To Mom With Love,

Mother's Day wishes from all of us at the Bay State Beauty Mart.

For the young mom we have it all. Give her the hair blower and curling iron she needs, the electric shaver and electric roller set to please, also the sauna to beautify, plus the perfumes she desires. We have them all. Yes, in Shalimar, Arpege, Chanel, Revlon, Cachet, Charlie, Nate, Emeraude, Maja, Norell and dozens of others. For the beautiful thought in jewelry, the Eisenhower coin in gold, the indian head penny in gold on chains, the gold coin in a bracelet, so real even your jeweler can't tell.

Some mothers have the travel bug. Please her with the latest in Trina's cosmetic travel bags, fitted and unfitted, jewel cases, in luscious printed satins, even satin eye masks to hide the glare and soothe the eyes. For the tennis buff, the red, white and blue tennis purse. All at the most nominal cost, free gift wrapping.

If you're absolutely stumped give her a gift certificate for a fabulous new shorty styled wig in beautiful Elura. But do give her something from our fabulous collection at the new Bay State Beauty Mart, at 31 Lincoln St. in Newton Highlands. Open 6 days, 9 to 5:30. Use your Master Charge or BankAmericard. Information Please

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Question: I'm looking for a recipe for a salad dressing that has both mayonnaise and chili sauce in it. I don't know what it's called but it's really delicious. I look forward to your column every week. Thank you! — Mrs. Mary T., Roslindale

Answer: Thank you Mary for your kindness. The following recipe is a very famous salad dressing from one of the best chefs in Toronto, Canada. Enjoy!

CHEF FILIP'S TOSSED SALAD DRESSING

1 clove garlic, peeled
½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup chili sauce
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ cup lemon juice
¼ cup white sugar
1 tablespoon salt
½ tablespoon salt
½ tablespoon paprika
Pinch cayenne
1 cup salad oil

Slice garlic clove very thin and combine with all ingredients except salad oil. Let stand for 30 minutes. strain out garlic. Add oil slowly, beating constantly. Store in refrigerator and shak well before using. Makes 2½ cups.

Question: I know this is going to sound crazy — but, have you ever heard of a Pepper Pound Cake? My friend's mother suggested I write to your column — that perhaps you have this recipe. I would appreciate your helping us.— Mrs. J. H., Walpole

Answer: It's a great idea to get away from the humdrum recipes you've always used — be daring and make this Old-Fashioned Pepper Pound Cake — that 1 teaspoon black pepper adds an interesting flavor!

OLD-FASHIONED PEPPER POUND CAKE

8 eggs, separated
2¼ cups all purpose flour
¼ teaspoon baking soda
2¼ cups sugar
1½ cups margarine, softened
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1 teaspoon ground black pepper
⅛ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons cream of tartar
Confectioners' sugar

Sift together flour, baking soda and 1¼ cups sugar. In large bowl blend margarine with flour mixture slightly, using low speed of electric mixer. Add lemon juice and vanilla. Beat in egg yolks one at a time, using low speed. In another large bowl beat egg whites until frothy. Add pepper and salt. Gradually add 1 cup of the sugar with cream of tartar, beating well after each addition. Beat until soft peaks form. Fold egg whites into batter. Pour batter into 10-inch greased and floured tube or bundt pan. Using spatula cut through cake batter. Bake in a preheated oven, 325 degrees, for 1½ hours or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Turn off heat and allow cake to remain in oven 15 minutes longer. Cool cake on wire rack for 15 minutes. Unmold cake and cool thoroughly. Sprinkle with confectioners sugar. Yield: 1 10-inch cake.

The following is an excerpt from a letter received from a reader — her enthusiasm brightens our day! "Every time my sister-in-law visits her family in Oregon, she brings home a super-duper recipe, and this time it's a Grasshopper Cake that is better than any cake I've ever eaten! And so here it is — I hope you will put it in your column with my sister-in-law's name, please." (Here it is, and thank you. Emily!)

EMILY'S GRASSHOPPER CAKE

Cake:
4 squares (1 oz. ea.) unsweetened chocolate, melted
½ cup boiling water
¼ cup sugar
2¼ cups sifted cake flour
1½ cups sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup salad oil
7 egg yolks
¾ cup cold water
1 teaspoon vanilla
7 egg whites
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
Grasshopper Filling:
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
One-third cup white creme de cacao
½ cup green creme de menthe
2 cups whipping cream

Cake: Mix together the melted chocolate, boiling water and ¼ cup sugar, blending well. Cool. Sift the flour, remaining sugar, baking powder and salt into a large mixing bowl. Make a well in the dry ingredients and add the oil, egg yolks, cold water and vanilla in order given. Beat till smooth. Stir chocolate mixture into egg yolk mixture. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar till very stiff peaks form. Gently fold egg yolk mixture into egg whites. Turn into an ungreased 10-inch tube pan. Bake in a preheated 325 degree oven for 1 hour and 5 minutes or till cake tests done. Invert pan. Cool.

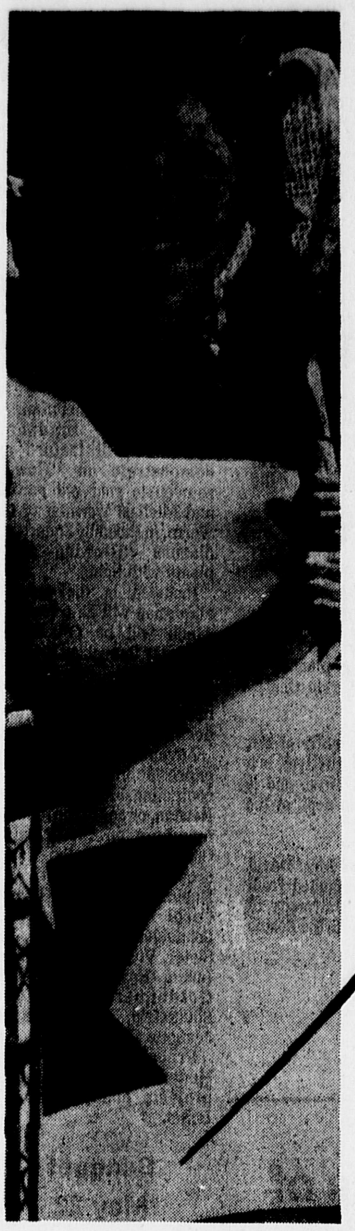

Grasshopper Filling: Soften gelatin in cold water. Combine creme de cacao and creme de menthe in a small saucepan. Heat through. Dissolve softened gelatin in heated creme de cacao mixture. Cool. Whip cream. Fold in gelatin mixture. Refrigerate for 15 minutes. Split cooled cake crosswise into 3 layers. Spread Grasshopper Filling between layers and on top of cake. Refrigerate until serving time.

HELPFUL HINTS: Freeze unfrosted cake before splitting the layers or cutting it into fancy shapes. It will be easier to cut, neater and have fewer crumbs.

Adjust the seasonings when baking for the freezer. Cloves, garlic, black pepper, green peppers, pimiento and celery become stronger in the freezer. Onion, salt and chili powder tend to taste weaker after storage in the deep freeze.

A simple recipe for the novice cook has only 2 ingredients: 2 cups enriched self-rising flour and 1 cup dairy sour cream, warmed to room temperature. Blend the sour cream into the flour to make a soft dough. If the dough is too stiff, you can add about 1 teaspoon water or milk. Pat or roll the dough on a lightly floured surface to ½-inch thick. Cut with floured biscuit cutter or inverted glass. Bake on ungreased baking sheet in preheated 450 oven.

Give your family a variety of breads for each meal. Buy several kinds at the supermarket; then repackage the bread into your own custom loaves — 2 slices enriched white, 1 whole wheat, 1 honey wheat, 2 cinnamon, 1 pumpernickel, 2 rye, etc. — and pop them into the freezer.

Set Free Tenniswear

Tennis Everyone

Mention the word "love" nowadays and you're apt to hear a half dozen people tell you in great detail — about the terrific day they had recently on the tennis courts.

Tennis is definitely the "in" game today, its popularity due to the availability of indoor as well as outdoor courts making it a 12 month sport, according to Teri Brock, a relatively new designer of tennis fashions.

Hardened old hands in the sportswear manufacturing business have welcomed her to the "fashion jungle" claiming the tall, slim, attractive "ball of energy" to be a "breath of fresh air." How did it all happen — why did she desert the comfort and ease of the suburban country club life and plunge into this highly competitive business? The answers come quickly, honestly and with good humor as she describes her first year at head of "Set Free" sportswear.

"I played tennis quite a lot and loved the game but was always complaining because the tennis dresses I bought were too short and not at all attractive. What I wanted was tennis dresses that could be worn to tennis parties — dresses that were not just for 'cute-young girls' but for me too. Most dresses were cut short and looked great on young figures but for the woman between 30-70, the woman who really was coming onto the courts and spending money for her outfits, there was little choice.

"So," she reminisced, "I thought I'd like to open up a little store selling tennis fashions and equipment. I spoke with an executive in a prominent specialty shop regarding opening a tennis boutique in his store, and his response was that if I was so enthused about what tennis dresses should look like, why didn't I manufacture and contract them . . . and I realized he was right.

"In October of 1972, I met with designer Alfred Fiandiaca in his Newbury Street shop, and by March 1 had his designs for the first line — my current line. I then found a contractor and in August of 1973 my first customer was Saks Fifth Avenue. I began with 12 styles and thankfully, the line has been most enthusiastically accepted."

Because of her tennis background, Teri was able to offer suggestions to Fiandiaca; such as the adjustable shoulder with buttons and the attractive shoulder tie. Scalloping around the neckline and the hemline was also a flattering style that softened the white look on the courts. Fabric, to Teri is most important.

"Although most women really don't perspire the way men do," she said, "I know what it's like on a very hot day when you're running on the court for hours and you think you're dying. That's why I went to the Cotton Council in New York and found that 100 percent cotton is practically impossible to get. Therefore, we have fabrics that look like cotton, act like cotton, feel like cotton but they are not 100 percent cotton. I went into the lightest weight fabrics I could possibly get . . . one such is a fiber that looks like linen but is 100 percent washable because it's a synthetic.

"Speaking of fabrics," she continued, "we're now using a marvelous fabric called Nyesta. We've made tank tops and body suits out of it and we've trimmed white shirts and skirts with a brilliant emerald green Nyesta.

Colors on the court? Teri's enthusiasm bubbles. "I love color and have used red, blue, green and yellow to trim the dresses, tops and skirts, but I've not gone into full color and am not apt to unless it's in the warmup suit. This decision was not made as a result of my feelings alone. I asked many people how they felt about an all green or all blue tennis dress and the consensus was that girls feel crisp and great when there's a highlight of color on white — such as a navy blue top and a white skirt, but not a solid color. Bright solid colors on the court are very distracting, however, my warmup suits will be in strong, vibrant colors.

Most popular "Set Free" tennis fashion is a classic A-line dress with green or yellow piping and with a monogram. Panties come with every dress, even ruffled ones for those who like them — they are sized small, medium and large.

How does the dramatic change in lifestyle effect the mother of two, (a daughter graduating Boston University this year and a son in Colorado)? The answer, even though it comes after a long, tedious day, is warm, happy and quite frank.

"I love what I'm doing . . . I really adore it! With no background whatsoever (my accountant said 'no brains but lots of guts') I've become a business woman. I've always had to be busy doing something. I've sold insurance, I've been an admissions officer in a junior college.

"Oh I've learned by my mistakes, but now we're sold nationally — we're in more than 500 stores! My daughter is coming into business with me and we'll be mother and daughter, instead of father and son."

"I suppose I need involvement and that's why I feel so fulfilled and happy . . . but because of my business I've become a rotten tennis player," she laughed. "A group of my friends are quite loyal and though I'm no longer in their league, they continue to play with me whenever I can, which has been 3 or 4 times this year."

Teri is convinced that tennis has taken hold not only because of the availability of indoor tennis clubs but also because of the present economic conditions. People can't take vacations as they once did, and outfitting for the sport is not expensive.

"The most amazing thing," she confided, "is that young people 6, 7, 8 years old are playing amazingly well and older people — women who have been playing golf — have now turned to tennis.

"Recently, on a trip south, I saw two women on the plane. They must have been in their late 50's or early 60's and there they sat holding their racquets in their lovely needlepoint covers. It was wonderful!"

Across the Kitchen Counter

Unusual though it may seem a spinster lady who never knew the joys of motherhood is responsible for the holiday celebrated around the world, Mother's Day.

Anna M. Jarvis was a devoted daughter who nursed her invalid mother until the latter's death in May, 1905. Two years later, upset at the realization that many adult children neglected their mothers, Anna set about establishing a yearly salute honoring mothers everywhere.

Finally, three years later on the anniversary of her mother's death, May 10, 1908, services were held in a church in Grafton, West Virginia, proclaiming the day to be Mother's Day. Huge baskets of carnations, Mrs. Jarvis' favorite flower, decorated the altar. Accepted now as the official Mother's Day flower, red carnations are worn as the symbol of a living mother and white as a sign that one's mother has died.

Every family has its own way of celebrating this holiday . . . the idea being that Mother is Queen For The Day and should be catered to in every fashion. (A lovely thought—and there are 364 days for her to recuperate!)

If your mother is one who can't bear the thought of crumbs in bed, convert a sunny corner of the patio into an eating area or set the dining room table and serve a partylike brunch or dinner.

As for the cooking, let Poppa do it unless the children are capable of taking over in the kitchen. Plan something simple—Mom's pleasure will be in not setting foot in the kitchen for one entire blissful day!

BLENDER SUNSHINE SHAKE

2 teaspoons grated orange peel
4 medium to large oranges, peeled
6 large scoops vanilla ice cream
½ cup cold milk

Place orange peel in electric blender. Cut peeled oranges in half, lengthwise; cut away white core, removing any seeds. Cut into pieces and place in blender; cover and blend on low, then high speed until smooth. Add remaining ingredients; replace cover and blend until smooth. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

PUFFY BAKED ORANGE PEAR PANCAKES

3 eggs
1 cup milk
1 cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter

With blender: Place eggs, milk, flour and salt in blender container. Cover and blend a few seconds. Turn off blender and push batter down from sides of container with spatula. Cover and blend a few seconds longer.

Without blender: Beat eggs well. Add milk and beat to blend. Sift flour and salt. Gradually stir into egg mixture and beat to blend. Grease 6 (5-inch) individual pie pans with butter, using 1 teaspoon for each pan. Two (9-inch) pie pans can be used in place of small ones. Pour in batter, dividing evenly among pans. Bake in a preheated 450 degree oven for 5 minutes. Reduce heat to 400 degrees and bake 10 minutes longer or until edges are browned. Spoon Orange Pear filling (below) over pancakes and serve immediately.

ORANGE PEAR PANCAKE FILLING

1 can (29 oz.) Bartlett pear halves
One-third cup pear syrup
Two-thirds cup orange marmalade
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Drain pears, measuring one-third cup pear syrup. (Save remaining pear syrup to use as liquid in gelatin salads.) Slice pear halves, lengthwise, into thirds. Place pear syrup, orange marmalade and lemon juice in saucepan. Bring to a boil. Add sliced pears. Reduce heat and simmer for 5 minutes. Cover and keep warm while preparing pancakes.

GLAZED TURKEY ROAST

2 pound frozen turkey roast
1 jar (10 oz.) apple jelly
3 tablespoons orange juice
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon ground cinnamon

Prepare turkey roast according to package directions. Meanwhile, in a double boiler, melt apple jelly. Combine cornstarch and cinnamon Gradually add orange juice to cornstarch mixture, forming a smooth paste. Pour into apple jelly, stirring constantly until thickened. Spoon a thin glaze over top of turkey roast before serving. Slice roast into ½-inch slices.

CORN CRISPED CHICKEN

1 2 to 3 pound chicken, cut in serving pieces
1 cup cornflake crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup evaporated milk, undiluted

Mix cornflake crumbs, salt and pepper. Dip chicken in evaporated milk; then roll in seasoned crumbs. Place chicken, skin side up, in baking pan. Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees about 1 hour, or until done. Serves 4.

STRAWBERRY MERINGUE TORTE

2 cups enriched flour
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon baking power
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
One-third cup shortening
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
4 eggs, separated
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup sugar
1 quart strawberries, sliced, sweetened to taste
Whipped Cream Frosting or non-dairy topping

Stir together flour, 1 cup sugar, baking powder and salt. Blend in two-thirds cup of the milk and shortening. Beat 2 minutes with electric mixer. Blend in remaining milk, vanilla and egg yolks. Beat another 2 minutes. Pour into 3 greased and paper-lined 9-inch round cake pans. Refrigerate. Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until frothy. Add 1 cup sugar slowly and continue beating until all sugar is dissolved and meringe forms stiff peaks. Spread evenly over cake batter to within 1-inch of edge of pan. Bake in preheated 325 degree oven 35 to 40 minutes until meringue is slightly brown. Turn off heat. Allow cake and meringue to cool in oven, about 1 hour. Place one layer, cake side down on platter. Spread some of the Whip Cream Frosting on top of meringue, sprinkle ¼ of the strawberries. Place second and third layers on in same manner. When third layer is in place, spread remaining Whip Cream Frosting on sides and top of torte and garnish with remaining strawberies.

WHIP CREAM FROSTING

3 cups whipping cream
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
¼ cup sugar
Red food coloring, optional

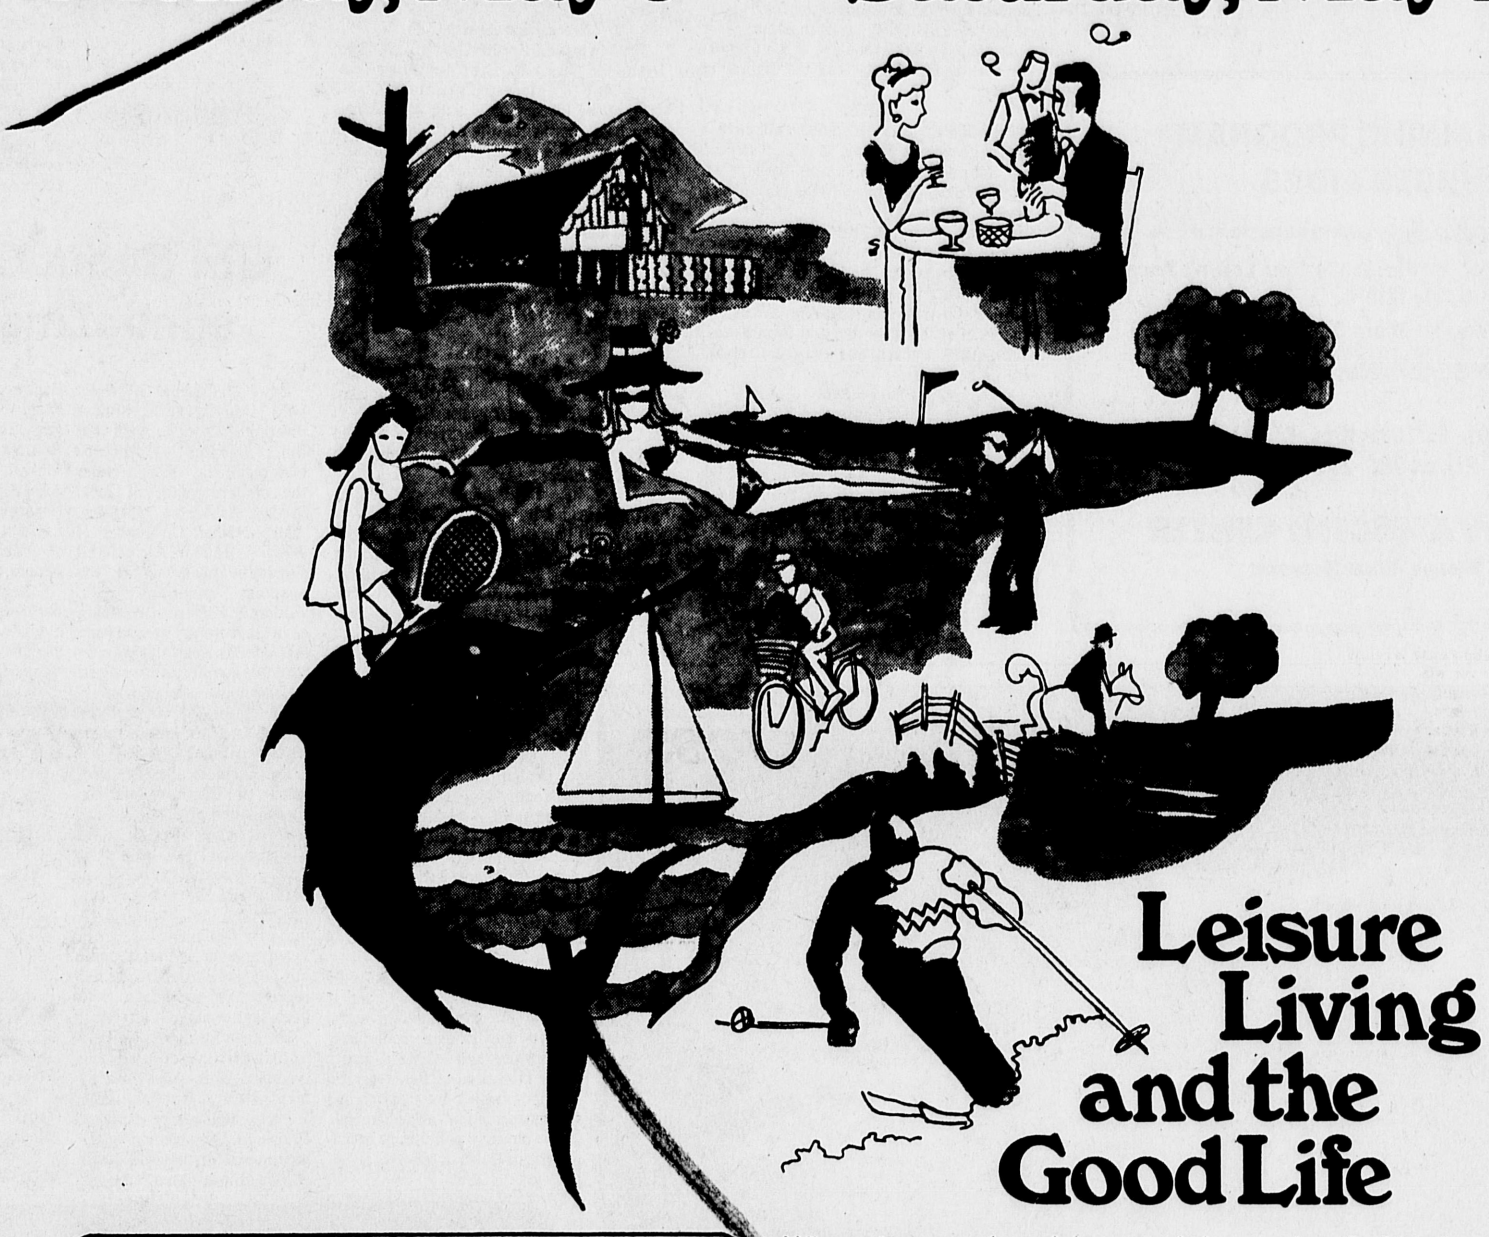

Whip together all ingredients until soft peaks are formed.

Girl Scout Council annual meeting

Bay Path Colonial Girl Scout held its eleventh annual meeting at 7 p.m. on April 24 at the Newton Highlands Congregational Church under the chairmanship of Mrs. Vincent Ashton of Marlboro.

Mrs. Nathan D. Bugbee of West Newton, council president presided at the business meeting. Mrs. William B. Kilgore of Waltham gave the secretary's report and Mrs. Morris Brown of Newton read the annual finance report.

Following dessert and coffee, Senior Troop 512 of Marlboro and Hudson presented a skit, "The Spirit of '76."

The business meeting centered on the proposal for consolidation of the Bay Path Council and Mistick Side Council and the cities of Boston, Brookline and Chelsea. Lt. Colonel O. Frank Kattwinkel led the discussion. A majority of eligible delegates voted in favor of the proposal but consolidation did not receive the two-thirds vote necessary to make it effective.

The slate for new board and nominating committee members was presented by Mrs. Henry B. Atkins of Weston, nominating committee chairman. Duly elected to the board were Mrs. Harold Curtis of Waltham, Mrs. James Hanson of Maynard, Lt. Col. O. Frank Kattwinkel of Bedford and Frank S. Perrin of Holliston, and to the nominating committee Mrs. John W. Purkis of Millis, Mrs. Norman H. Richards of Lexington, Mrs. Alfred Schiff of Natick and Ms. Alma Timper of Watertown.

Several Newton volunteers were commended for their many years of girl scout membership and service. They included: Mrs. Nathan Bugbee (30 years), Mrs. Henry Kneppenberg (25 years), and Mrs. Sandy Gilmore and Mrs. Elgie Levin (15 years).

Nobody wants to die.

The victim didn't want to die. But she had no choice.

The killer had a choice. He could afford to risk pulling the trigger. The most he could get would be life.

And life isn't death.

Which is why George Sacco, candidate for Attorney General, is for the death penalty.

The death penalty will deter crimes of this nature.

Because nobody wants to die. Not even a guy pulling off a stickup. Given the threat of the death penalty as a consequence — or taking off — the odds are he'll take off. That's what the death penalty does. The very threat of it increases the odds in favor of the law abiding citizen's right to life.

And in an imperfect world that's what George Sacco is trying to do.

Increase the odds in favor of life.

As a Massachusetts legislator for 11 years he sponsored innumerable pieces of legislation to fight crime, the seeds of crime and the after effect of the weeds of crime. He realizes that the death penalty alone is not the solution.

In the past year he sponsored legislation to: provide death penalty for certain first degree murders of any citizen; create mandatory prison sentences for illegal possession of firearms; tighten prison furlough regulations and eligibility; establish detention center for first offenders; establish protection services for neglected or abused children; seal the record of marijuana possession for first offenders. He has voted for, and continues to support increased police training and incentives.

And he has worked as hard outside the legislature to increase the odds in favor of the law abiding citizen.

George Sacco makes damned good sense.

George Sacco doesn't want anybody to die.

That's why George Sacco is in favor of the death penalty.

George Sacco.
For Attorney General.

Mrs. Cramer to give concert

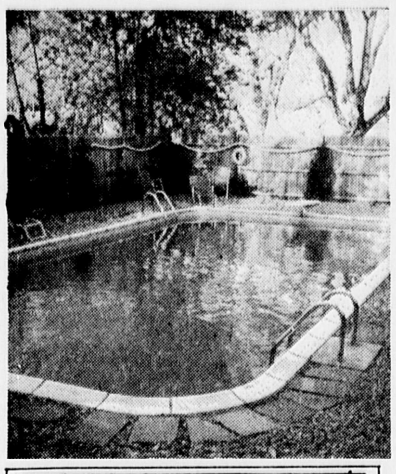

Friday evening, May 10, at 8:15 p.m. Sisterhood Sabbath will be held at Temple Beth Avodah. Rabbi Robert Miller will conduct the worship service with members of the Sisterhood participating.

Following the service, the congregation will retire to the social hall for an Oneg Shabbat and a concert performed by the pianist Bertica Shulman Cramer.

Born in Havana, Cuba, Mrs. Cramer began her musical studies at the age of three. She played a Mozart Piano Concerto with the Havana Symphony at the age of seven. At the termination of World War II, she came to Boston under full scholarship to continue her studies at the Longy Conservatory of Music in Cambridge, and became a protege of Boris Goldovsky.

During these years, she also studied with Nadia Boulanger, Claudio Arrau, Paul Hindesmith, Luboshutz and Nemenoff and Rosena Levine of the Julliard School of Music in New York. She also studied and performed at Tanglewood, Mass.

Our big size. It's worth its weight in more ways than one.

1 Whether you buy our Home Laundry 20 lb. size or our smaller, but still big, 9 lb. 13 oz. Jumbo size, you always get your money's worth of Concentrated all's unique formula. You've probably seen on TV how it breaks up greasy oil. (We drop greasy oil into 5 bowls of detergent solution. In 4 of them, the oil just sits there, while in the 5th, all breaks up the greasy oil.) all can solve your tough laundry problems, like grease... it can get everything you wash clean.

2 all's concentrated. That means you use much less than with most other detergents. So wash for wash, both the 20 lb. and the 9 lb. 13 oz. size cost less than most other detergents. In fact, no other detergent gives you more for your money.

3 Because Concentrated all comes in big sizes, it's much easier to dispense. Just scoop out what you need, rather than pouring it into a cup.

4 And with our big 20 lb. size of all, each box will last so much longer, you won't have to run to the store as often... a good chance to save on gas and a big help if you do a lot of wash.

Netmen win four of five matches

By BOB LOW

Earning three shutout wins over league opponents and splitting a pair of matches with private schools, Newton North's boys' tennis team recently improved its record to 6-0 in the league and 8-2 overall.

On Tuesday, April 30, the netmen traveled to Waltham and gained a 5-0 victory. Neal Kravitz outlasted Greg Demeo 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, while Bob Low defeated Bill Boyle 6-4, 6-2. Chip Lang bested Mike Marizio 6-4, 6-3. Newton's doubles had an easy time as Stu Brightman and Baird Haney whipped John Generoso and John Hapkins 6-2, 6-1 and Dave Medalie and Don Birmingham trounced Chris Stepp and John Callahan 6-0, 6-1.

The next day at Andover, the Tigers topped the Andover Academy J. V. 12-6. Kravitz dropped both of his sets at first singles but Haney, Low, Brightman, and John Kosa swept for Newton while LINCOLN Frank split sets to build a 9-3 lead.

In the doubles, the teams of Haney and Brightman, Kravitz and Frank, and Low and Kosa recorded wins while Lang and Dave Bikofsky, Birmingham and Medalie, and Doug Giron and Neil Goldberg were defeated.

On May 2, the netmen held their second home match of the season and defeated Rindge Tech for their seventh straight win. Kravitz, Kosa, and Frank triumphed in singles while Birmingham and Medalie, Mike White and Owen Kupferschmid took the doubles for Newton.

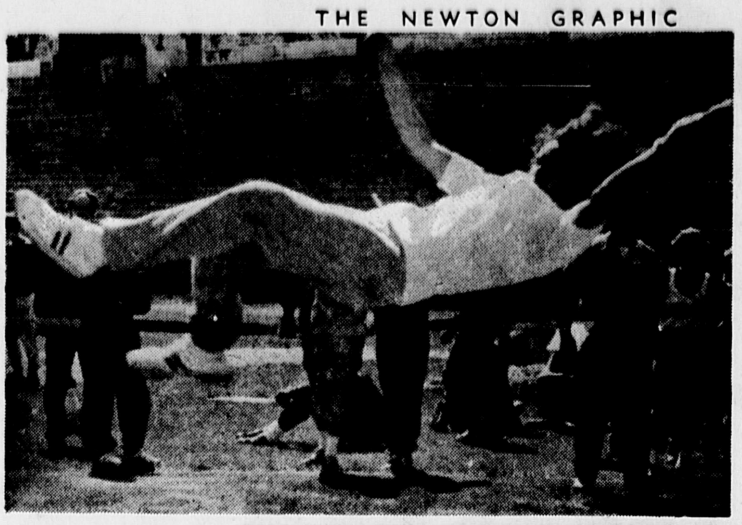

The Tigers went to Exete, N. H., on May 4 and had their winning streak stoppedd by Exeter Academy, 11-8. Newton's top seven singles players, Kravitz, Haney, Low, Brightman, Kosa, Frank,and Bikofsky, all bowed as did White, but Lang, Birmingham, Medalie, Scott, Eston, and Rich Winkeller all won.

The teams split the doubles. The duos of Low and Kosa, Lang and Bikofsky, and Birmingham and Medalie prevailed for the Tigers while Brightman and Haney, Kravitz and Frank, and Winkeller and Eston were set back.

Newton came back on Monday to gain its sixth league victory without a loss over Weymouth North. Kravitz, Low and Kosa took the singles matches in straight sets while the doubles teams of Brightman and Haney, and Bikofsky and Frank lost just one game between them in sweeping the doubles.

The Tigers finish their league schedule at Brockton on Thursday, May 9. They then go into the league playoffs which begins next week.

Neal Kravitz, Bob Low, and John Kosa have been entered in the Eastern Mass. Schoolboy Singles Tournament which will get underway at 9 a.m. this Saturday at Newton South and will continue on Sunday. Newton has also entered the teams of Stu Brightman and Baird Haney, and Dave Bikofsky and Chip Lang in the Eastern Mass. doubles tournament which will be played in Brockton.

Newton South baseball team undefeated in May

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

It looks like May might be the Lions' month.

So far this month, the Newton South baseball team has played three games and has won them all.

On May 1, Newton South defeated Wayland by a football score of 14-0. Major contributors included sophomore second baseman Bruce Jennings, who collected three hits, third baseman Pete Castellanos, who had two hits, rightfielder Mike Malkasian, who had two hits and four runs batted in, and Co-Capt. Tony Lombardo, who had one hit and three runs batted in.

Sophomore Tom Irvine made his first start of the season and pitched an excellent game. Ken Bianco relieved Irvine in the seventh inning.

South's fielding was excellent, as it has been during most of the season. The Lions committed no errors while Wayland made three.

South defeated Lincoln-Sudbury on Friday, 5-2, due to strong pitching by Bianco and timely hitting by first baseman Bill Tarter.

Lincoln carried a 2-1 lead into the sixth inning, when the Lions scored three times. Tartar delivered a bases loaded single to knock in two runs.

Bianco gained his fourth victory of the season and had fine control, walking one and striking out five batters.

On Monday, a great pitching performance by Chandler Bosworth enabled the Lions to defeat Bedford, 4-2. Bosworth allowed only four hits and struck out 10 batters. He gave up two walks.

It was a 2-2 game until the fifth inning when a Malkasian single gave South a 3-2 lead. A Bedford error in the same inning allowed another run.

The Lions' favorite play worked in the second inning catcher Hal Bennett squeezed across a run. South's other run came in the third inning wen Steve Tresca singled home Co-Capt. Rob Shahon from third base.

The Lions' third straight victory brought their record to 8-3.

Senior Steve Rittenberg and Jennings are waging a fierce battle to determine who is the leading batter on the team. Jennings has a slight edge with 13 hits in 33 at bats compared to Rittenberg's 13 hits in 35 at bats.

North gets one hit but still wins, 5-0

By RICK GORDON

Five runs crossed the plate before Newton North finally picked up its first and only hit, a fifth inning single, against Rindge Tech.

Don't be bewildered wondering how Rindge, the league doormat, could score five times, it didn't. Newton used eleven walks and four Rindge errors to more than compensate for a virtual absence of base hits in gaining a rain-shortened 5-0 victory.

Ed Aucoin mastered the punchless opposition, yielding only a pair of singles (one a fluke caroming off the first base bag) in the five inning contest.

Aucoin struck out eight and once again had excellent control, walking only one, to lift his record to 3-2.

Three bases on balls and a John Connolly sacrifice gave Newton its first run in the opening inning.

Three more walks, in the fourth, along with a hit batsman, a wild pitch and a costly error made the Tigers' lead 3-0 after four frames had gone by.

In the fifth two more walks, a sacrifice and another error made the score 5-0, before Keith Glasser spoiled a no-hit bid with a single to left.

Newton has defeated Rindge Tech twice in as many tries this season with a composite 13-0 score. Tech has managed but two hits off Tiger hurlers as John Carey pitched a no-hitter earlier in the year.

The Rindge game opened the second half of the Tigers season almost as strangely as the first half had closed.

Weymouth South exploded for 13 runs on as many hits in the seventh inning to deal Newton one of its worst modern day baseball defeats, 18-3.

Four runs on four hits and three errors gave the Wildcats a 4-0 first inning bulge. Aucoin gave up another run on a walk and a double in the second before Newton began to rally.

Triples by Steve DiBenedetto and Connolly, and a double by Connolly accounted for single Tiger runs in the third, fourth and fifth innings.

In the top of the seventh the gates burst open. Kevin Moore left after walking the lead man to complete an outstanding relief performance.

DiBenedetto and Carey each took a turn on the mound without success. The two big blows were Bill Buchan's three-run triple off of DiBenedetto and Don Hall's grand slam home run against Carey.

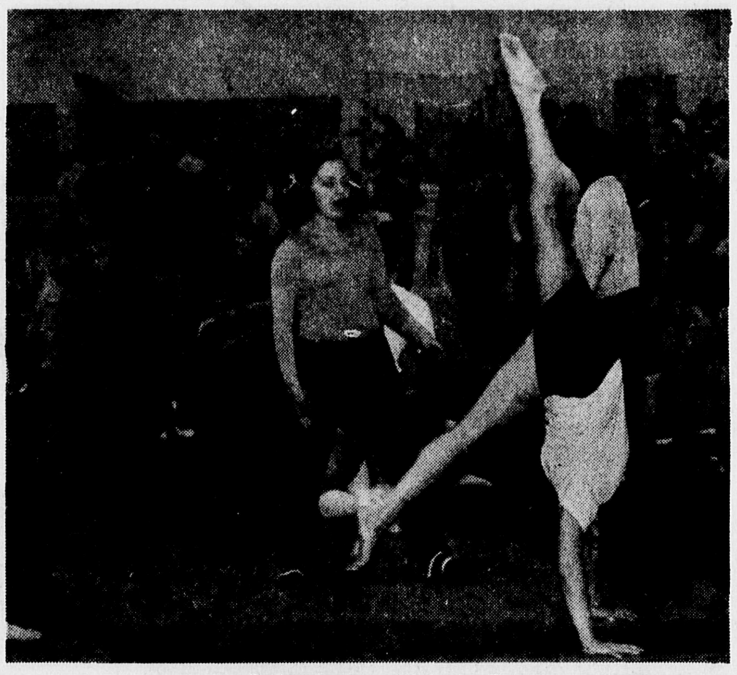

For Newton, DiBenedetto had three hits, and Connolly had two extra base markers among the Tigers eight safeties.

In other recent action, DiBenedetto stopped Brookline on seven hits for a 6-3 Newton triumph.

A typical Tiger rally of three runs on no hits, two walks, a hit batsman and an error gave Newton a 3-1 lead. In the third, Bob Vona singled home DiBenedetto and Connolly sacrificed in Vona giving Newton all they would need for the win.

Brookline added single runs in the final two innings, and Newton scored its last run in the fifth.

The Tigers record now stands at 8-3, 6-3 in the Suburban League. They seem to have a good chance of qualifying for the post-season tournament, although the hitters must begin to produce with a little more consistency. Newton should not anticipate receiving eleven walks in five innings very often as down the stretch drive the competition will get harder, not easier.

Local college athletes noted

Dave Weinberg of West Newton, a graduate of Belmont Hill School, coxed the Harvard varsity heavyweight crew to a victory in the Compton Cup Regatta on April 27.

The Crimson defeated MIT and host Princeton on a 2000 meter Lake Carnegie course in Princeton, N.J. Harvard had a time of 5:43.7 while MIT was second in 5:57.

Weinberg is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Weinberg of 10 Esterbrook Rd. He is concentrating in government at Harvard.

David Goodman of Newton Centre was the recipient of the Leif Ottesen Sportsmanship Award for soccer at the annual Brandeis University All-Sports Award Banquet.

Senior Steve Stockman of Newton Centre pitched six innings of no-hit ball for Union College this season against Hamilton College. A three error play in the ninth inning allowed four Hamilton runs and a 5-4 Hamilton win.

Sophomore Paul Murphy of Newton was leading the Boston State lacrosse team in scoring after playing four games. Murphy earned three letters last year, competing in soccer and lacrosse and wrestling.

Tryout May 12

The Newton National League, the Recreation Department's summer baseball league, has adopted a draft system for the first time ever.

The draft was accepted on a one year trial basis for this summer. Newton North baseball coach, Edwin Fraktman, said the move was, "to stimulate interest in the league and to instill more even competition in all the teams."

The draft does not affect boys who played on a National League team last year but all of the new 16-18 year old candidates will be eligible for drafting.

Athletes trying to get on a team for the first time must attend at least one of two tryouts. They must bring with them only a glove and spikes.

The first tryout will be Sunday, May 12 at 11 a.m. at Lincoln Park in Waban. The second tryout will also be at Lincoln Park at 11 a.m. on the following Sunday, May 19.

South tennis team hurt by injuries, loses twice

By MARK SHUSTER

Plagued by injuries to key players, Newton South's boys' tennis team recently lost 3-2 matches to Needham and Wayland. At full strength the Lions trounced Bedford, 5-0.

South entered the Needham match without Doug Fisher, but still hoped for a win. The team suffered a severe blow when Bill Karol, playing number one singles, hurt an ankle in the first game of his first set. Karol was forced to forfeit the match.

Humberto Fagundes won his second singles match, 6-3, 6-1. Mike Sklar, playing third singles because of Fisher's injury, was beaten 6-2, 6-3. South's first doubles team of Jeff Levin and Roger Gordon was beaten 6-2, 6-2. Lions Dan Braverman and Tom Karol won in second doubles, 6-2, 6-3.

South went into the Wayland match without its number one singles player and a first doubles player. Fagundes, played first singles, lost his first set, 6-0. He bounced back, however, to win the next two sets, 6-4, 6-4.

Braverman played number two singles and lost 6-4, 6-2. Gordon, playing third singles, won his first set 6-1, but lost the next two sets, 6-2, 6-0.

South's first doubles team of Levin and junior varsity player G. Small played excellent tennis and won its match, 7-5, 6-1. Second doubles team Tom Karol and Sklar lost 6-4, 6-4.

South rebounded with a convincing 5-0 victory over Bedford. Fagundes, in first singles, and Bill Karol, coming off a sprained ankle, in second singles, both won 6-0, 6-0.

Gordon won in third singles, 6-1, 6-3. South's first doubles team of Levin and Fisher won 6-0, 6-2. Tom Karol and Braverman were winners in second doubles, 6-1, 6-1.

Junior high school seasons in progress

The Newton junior high schools' spring sports teams began competition the week of April 22. The junior highs are fielding boys' teams in track, tennis and baseball, while girls are participating in tennis, softball and track.

In early tennis action, Warren defeated Day, 7-0, and Weeks, 4-3.

Bigelow defeated Meadowbrook, 7-0. Bigelow's line-up was Bill Zani in first singles, second singles Jim Snider, third singles Dan Schwarz, fourth singles Seth Medile, fifth singles Rich Jelin, Dave Coleman and Dave Kliman first doubles, and Mark Rosenburg and John Reichard in second doubles.

There are three baseball games scheduled for Friday, May 10. St. Sebastian's will be at Bigelow, Warren will be at Meadowbrook, and Weeks will be at Needham.

Tennis matches scheduled for Friday include Bigelow at Weeks, Meadowbrook at Newton South, and the Newton sophomores at Warren.

Track meets scheduled for Friday include Bigelow at Day and Weeks at Warren.

PLAYER OF WEEK

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Catcher Fran Healy of the Kansas City Royals has been named the American League's player of the week, it was announced Tuesday.

Healy's batting average was .381 last week, with eight hits in 21 at-bats. His hits included two doubles, a triple and two home runs, accounting for six runs batted in

Benefit game

A benefit softball game between the Newton Police Department and Mount Ida Junior College will be played under the lights at Albemarle Field, Newtonville on Friday, May 10 at 8 p.m.

Proceeds will be donated to the Shriners Burn Institute in Boston. The Institute treats badly burned children from around the world free of charge.

Kung-fu course

The Bay State Judo Club is offering an introductory course in kung-fu. Hung gar style is to be taught by Michael Tse of Hong Kong.

Classes will be held at the Hut at Tyler Terrace, Newton Centre Playground, Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 8-10 p.m. They will be open to beginner men and women, as well as advanced students.

Those interested in further information may contact the Bay State Judo Club at 332-2272 or 332-5047.

Michael Tse is a student at the Mass. College of Pharmacy, and is a disciple of Master Wo Mein Fit of Hong Kong. He was a senior instructor of the Black Dragon Kung Fu Society of London, Ontario.

Judo and self-defense courses are also available to those not interested in kung-fu.

The classes are under the sponsorship of the Newton Recreation Department

Cougars win hockey title

By RICHARD BULLWINKLE

The final Newton Youth Hockey championship game between Andy Levin's Cougars and Biff Harney's Maroons was captured by the Cougars 3-1.

The Maroons opened the scoring when Paul Staszesky penetrated the Cougar defense and headmanned the puck to his wing, Vern Aisner, who rocketed a shot to the far corner.

The Cougars reacted to the pressure on an unassisted goal by Mike Mosca. Mike picked up an errant pass, drifted through the defense, and whistled a blur into the upper corner.

Centerman Dave D'Amico made a fine offwing pass to Mike Mosca, who slapped a drive through Scott Chisholm's pads for a 2-1 Cougar lead.

The Cougars wrapped up the Senior Division title on "Marvelous Mike" Mosca's third goal of the night. Larry Magnosa fed Dave D'Amico out of the corner, skated in on Bob Rooney and deked a pass to Mosca for his first hat trick of the series and a 3-1 Cougar win.

Defenseman Rick Bullwinkle missed an open net in the waning seconds of the game.

While Mosca was generating the offense, Cougar Goalie John Dankese controlled the game on defense, picking off, kicking out, and smothering all but one of the Maroon efforts.

Sheldon Rosenberg played his usual heady game on defense, Dave Beck provided the leadership on a tyro line, and Larry Magnosa dug in the corners to make the D'Amico line go. They will be sorely missed next year.

Newton stops Melrose

By GEORGE GUGGER FISKE

(Newton High 1916)
(Dartmouth 1920)

The 1914-15 hockey season was to be an exciting one for the boys in the orange and black of Newton High School.

Coming down the stretch and the showdown game with a great three of four year undefeated powerhouse--Melrose High.

Things looked bleak for us! We had just lost our captain and star forward, Billy Wellman, through ineligibility, as well as "Staff" Brown.

"Billy," after graduation, joined the Lafayette Escradille and became world famout as an "ace of that outfit. Still later, as a movie director, his name became a household word, because of such movies as "Wings," starring Jean Harlow, and "Public Enemy," with James Cagney and Mae Clark.

Harry Carley, veteran defenseman, was elected captain, and he and "Little Frenchie LaCroix," freshman goalie, and yours truly, combined to form a pretty solid defense.

Just before the final game and showdown with Melrose, Harry gathered his players together and told us, "You know what? I think we can beat these monkeys."

Well, as a young man growing up in Auburndale, near "Norumbega Park," I'd seen a lot of monkeys, but none of them could skate like those Melrose boys: Bob Paisley, captain and star forward, Frank Ross, Ralph Leavitt, and Pendleton, all forwards.

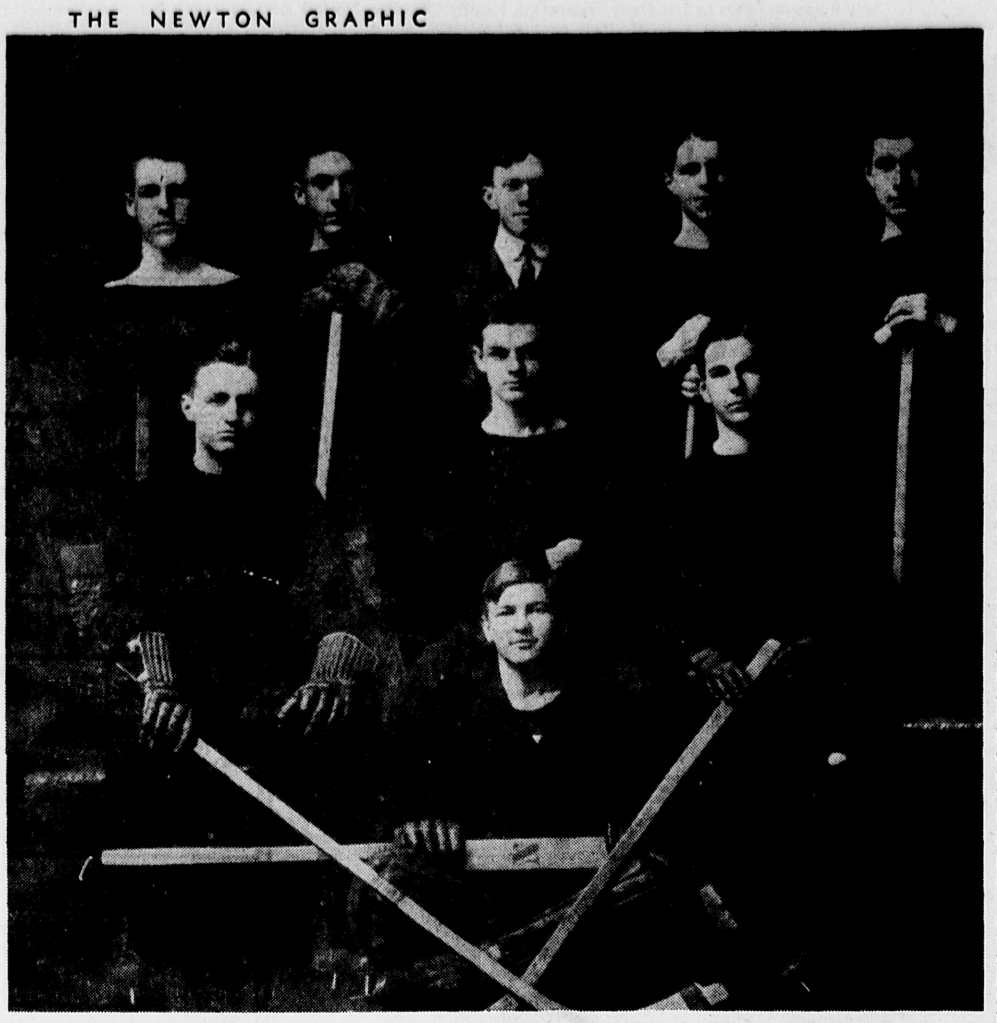

I'd watched "Jack" perform in goal, and he certainly was no monkey. In front of him were two "all-star" defensemen, Burt Nowell and Buddy Phillips.

Later on, I played Dartmouth hockey with Bob Paisley, Buddy Phillips, and the Ross brothers, Jack and Frank.

Well, in a real donnybrook, Newton prevailed, 2 to 1, largely because of the fabulous goaltending of our little Canadian, "Frenchie LaCroix."

Thus endedd one of the longest schoolboy streaks anywhere or anytime! "Frenchie" must have stopped and kicked out at least 50 or 60 shots labelled "goal," and from the black and blue marks on my body, I stopped a few, as did, I'm sure, our captain! Harry Carley.

The following season, 1915-16, "Frenchie," Melrose star "Burt" Nowell and I were chosen as the defense on A. J. Rooney's ("Boston Traveler") all interscholastic team. Forwards picked were Clint Peabody, Arlington High; Ralph Leavitt, Melrose, and Nelson Laird and MICHAEL Pendergast, both Melrose High!

Newton High's hockey team scored an upset victory over Melrose High during the 1914-15 season. George Fiske writes about his teammates and opponents above.

Tennis course

The Boston Chapter of the United States Sports Clubs (formerly the Boston Ski Club) will be conducting a beginners' tennis course at Lasell Junior College.

The courses consist of three two-hour lessons and will be held on Tuesdays from 6 to 8 p.m. on May 28, June 4, 11; Wednesdays from 6 to 8 p.m. on May 29, June 5, 12; Thursdays from 6 to 8 p.m. on May 30, June 6, 13; Saturdays from 12 noon to 2 p.m. on June 1, 8, 15; Sundays from 12 noon to 2 p.m. on June 2, 9, 16; and Mondays from 6 to 8 p.m. on June 3, 10, 17.

The complete three lesson, six hour course includes instruction in the forehand, backhand, serve, score, and rules of the game. Persons interested in more information about the course, including a free brochure and registration information, may call the Club's office in Brookline. The telephone number is 734-6726. The office is open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday through Friday, and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday and is located at 325 Harvard Street.

The classes will be taught by certified instructors, many of whom are top ranked tournament players. The program is under the direction of Morton S. Lederman, a member of the United States Professional Tennis Association and the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Athletic banquet

Awards will be given to outstanding players at Beaver Country Day School at the school's second annual athletic banquet Tuesday evening, May 14. Coaches will honor the most valuable player in each of Beaver's team sports - soccer, baseball, basketball, and hockey, and the most improved athlete. All varsity players will receive certificates of participation.

Beaver is now in its fourth year of coeducation and will graduate boys for the first time in its history this month. Open to parents of the athletes, the banquet will be held at the school.

South track team loses twice after opening win

By MARK SHUSTER

After defeating St. Sebastian's in its opening meet, 78-56, Newton South outdoor varsity track team lost to Dual County League opponents Lincoln-Sudbury and Concord-Carlisle.

This year's team has several new faces. Sophomore Rich Gosmon, senior Mike Shockett, sophomore Steve Garfinkle and sophomore Keith Washington are newcomers who are expected to help the team.

After the field events it looked like South was going to challenge Lincoln-Sudbury in an attempt for two straight wins.

The Lions swept the shot put with Chuck Bond, Peter Maples and Mike Berzon finishing one, two, three, respectively.

Senior Steve Berger took first place in the high jump and senior Peter Kotzen was first in the triple jump.

Gosman and Andy Shulman finished second and third in the long jump, and South's John Fallon placed second in the pole vault.

Bond was first in the discus and Maples was second. After the field events, the Lions were ahead, 34-20.

The running events were disastrous for South. Lincoln-Sudbury took first in the 100, 200, high hurdles, low hurdles, 440, 880, the mile the two mile, and the relay. The Lions could salvage only four seconds and six thirds in the nine events.

Good performances were turned in by Gosman in the 100, Berger in the high hurdles, Shockett in the two mile, and Garfinkle in the 220.

The final score was Lincoln-Sudbury 79, Newton South 52.

South lost its second meet in a row to Concord-Carlisle, 77-54.

After the field events, the Lions were behind, 34-20. Bond took a first in the shot put while Maples finished third. Bond was also third in the discus.

Berger placed second in the high jump, and Kotzen and Washington were second and third in the triple jump.

Gosmon finished first in the long jump and Kotzen placed third. The Lions failed to score in the pole vault.

In the running events, Gosmon was outstanding. He finished first in both the 100 and 220. Second place finishers were Berger (high hurdles), Kotzen (low hurdles), Eric Epstein (880), and Bob Lein (two mile).

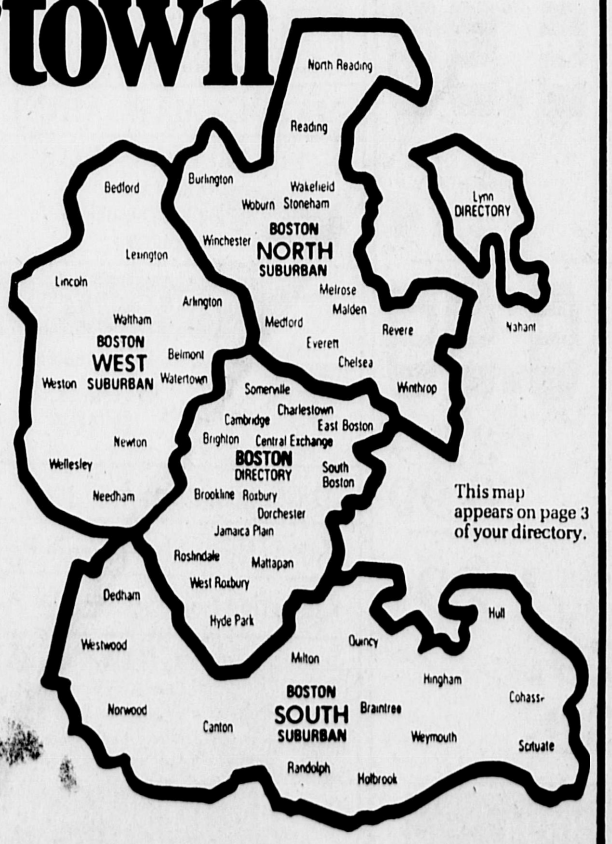

Other good performances were turned in by Andy Schulman, Neil Zaffron, Washington, Chris Capeless, and Shockett.

Parents lead activities at two community schools

At Peirce School this year, the community school concept was presented on a test-marketing basis. As the result of a community-wide poll which was used to determine and develop a course-offering with broad community appeal, classes for children and adults were initiated.

In the fall, "Movement and Song," for Grades K-6, gave participants an opportunity to expand their repetoire of favorite songs and to learn to move their bodies in free expression while singing. This course was taught, on a volunteer basis, by a Peirce parent and a former Peirce student.

"Print Workshop," taught on a volunteer basis by one Peirce parent and one future Peirce parent, was offered to children in Grades 4-6. Children produced 12 prints, representative of each month of the year, which were arranged into a calendar.

On Saturday mornings, two of Newton's leading gymnasts volunteered to teach basic gymnastic skills. The gym was filled to capacity for each of the six sessions.

The winter term offered three five-week programs for adults. In the pottery class, Peirce's art consultant taught techniques of hand building, with emphasis on form and use of texture in clay. Law was taught on a volunteer basis by a father-son attorney team,-who talked about judicial structure, tax and consumer law, wills, deeds, and other fine print.

In "Know Your Automobile,":also led by a volunteer, students learned about the engines of their own cars.

The spring term includes Printmaking II, which is concentrating on linoleum block printing, and creative dance, a 10-week course geared toward individual expression for children. For adults, there will be a continuation of the pottery class, with some wheel work anticipated, and a five week transactional analysis group.

John Ward School has traditionally offered swimming and tennis instruction in conjunction with the Newton-YMCA.

In 1971 it began to think more in tems of community school and resources. Through questionaires, a talent bank directory of Ward School parents was established for use by teachers and parents. Several new after school activities were initiated with the aid of parent volunteers as leaders.

This year, with the support and funds of the Newton Community School Committee it has been able to offer a more extensive program. Classes for kindergarten through sixth grade included woodworking, pottery, knitting and em-broidery,drama, ice skating and skiing.

A mental health lecture series dealing with the physical, emotional and mental development of elementary age children and a very well received weekly family gym night have been first steps in the irection of evening programming.

For information or questions people may contact Francine Ross, 969-4439, or Rita Moss, 332-6912.

The extras are on the houses.

Emil Hanslin, internationally renowned planner, is the founder and pacesetter of Hanslin Builders. And right now, Hanslin has six select houses available for purchase. In Marstons Mills, a sprawling 3-bedroom contemporary. In Bright Coves, New Seabury, a 3-bedroom, 2-deck contemporary. In Cotuit, one spacious 4-bedroom Cape, one quaint 3-bedroom saltbox, and just started is a 2-bedroom traditional overlooking the pond. In Sippewissett, a 3-bedroom light-filled contemporary, set off by itself overlooking the greenbelt. The extras: they were each built from the ground up by a skilled construction crew that works exclusively for Hanslin Builders. They each have a very comprehensive warranty. And they are each as highly individualistic as Emil Hanslin himself. A rare opportunity to appreciate the fine work of a master planner.

Council on Aging handles problems

DEDHAM—The Council on Aging stands ready to handle a broad range of problems facing senior citizens. When the Council cannot solve the problem itself, it acts as a referral agency to put the senior citizen in touch with those who can help.

The Council on Aging sponsors "Traveling Meals" which brings two meals a day to those who cannot prepare their own meals. Incapacitated senior citizens are recommended by the Visiting Nurses Association for one hot meal and one sandwich and snack delivered at noon time by volunteers. The "Traveling Meals" program operates during the weekdays, Monday through Friday, and volunteers to pick up meals should contact Maryanne McBay at Council office.

The Council arranges recreational activities such as bowling, plays, and baseball games. For example on May 29 free bus transportation for senior citizens is being provided to the Red Sox-California Angels game.

A "Drop-in Center" is run at the Endicott Estate, conducting such activities as knitting and crochet on Tuesdays and Thursdays. At the Old Time Community Fair on June 1, senior citizens will have a crafts table and an information booth.

Nursing home panel

Massachusetts Federation of Nursing Homes is host organization on WGBX-TV's "Catch 44" program for Tuesday evening, April 30th (ch. 44, 8:30 p.m.). Participating in show, which previews special nursing home film done by Cesar Romero, are Leonard Zola of Framingham, MFNH Executive Director Tom O'Connell of Dedham, and nursing home administrator James J. Brennan of Hampden. Brennan, Public Relations Chairman for both the American Nursing Home Assn. and the Federation, wrote and directed the Romero film.

Ceasar Romero chairs Nursing Home Week

Handsome, charming, debonair actor Cesar Romero is the first National Celebrity Chairman in the history of Nursing Home Week. At age 68, one would think Romero would be content to still have a very active career. Yet, he recently added to his busy life by opening a chain of men's stores on the West Coast, and was happy, even anxious, to take on the Nursing Home Week assignment.

Romero told a Nursing Home convention last November that care of the aged is something he could feel concerned about, that it's something most people find difficult to take a real interest in until they start getting up in years.

The distinghished actor told his audience he had learned something about the aging process, hearing from some friends who visited a mutual acquaintance that they felt it was pitiful because this man has completely lost track of time, not knowing what day it is, or even what week. They said his mind was really confused.

Romero taolked it over with his doctor, who pointed out that the process actually compares to a busy person going on vacation. No longer tied down to an exact schedule, he loses track of time.

"He assured me that forgetting what day it was didnot mean that the person was deteriorating."

When he decided that the "role" of celebrity chairman was right for him, Cesar romero took the time to look into the problems and practice of Long Term Health Care, visiting several states to see how things were done in varous locations.

He told the conventioneers:

"I learned how the nursing homes in this country have worked so hard against obstacles to provide quality care in the face of public indigestion."

He also said he had learned that every good employee in nursing homes has to do some acting, and is probably a good actor or actress.

He went on: "And I'll tell you why I say that. Because the good employees in a nursing home - that is, the well-trained, and eedicated staff members, are aware of how much pleasure they can bring to those who live in that nursing home - by the smile they wear, by the lilt in the voice, by the happy expressions they wear on their faces, xy the warmth and friendliness they offer ugh their choice and the ste patience that they have with resident at every moment.

"And to all this, these employees must do some acting. Because in a 8-hour or 10-hour shift, it's impossible for each of us to feel good and to be happy inside - every moment of the day."

Romero has narrated a quarter-hour film that is being shown on many television stations, and will be available for viewing by clubs and other groups later this year. He also voiced a series of spot announcements for both television and radio to promote National Nursing Home Week. These spots invite the general public to visit during Open House at a participating nursing home.

Facilities in this area are among those extending this invitation.

They are anxious to show you that THEY CARE.

Nursing Home Week Chairman Cesar Romero, filming special TV announcements, holds up new pamphlet, "Thinking About A Nursing Home?" Pamphlet may be obtained on request from Mass. "Blue Monday" is often "Flu Monday"

The Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association reports that "Blue Monday" is often "Flu Monday." More respiratory illnesses may blossom forth on Monday than any other day.

For six years, two researchers at the University of Michigan studied nearly 5,000 people in a typical American town - Tecumseh, Michigan - and uncovered some surprising findings. More colds and flu showed up on Monday than other days. As the week progressed, the rate dropped off gradually through Thursday, then began a steady climb over the weekend. The pattern held for adults as well as children, but was particularly striking among five- to 19-year-olds.

The researchers - Drs. Arnold Monto and Betty Pichman - said school attendance played an important part in spreading the infections. They believe that the infections are spread during the first few days of school week; the infection then incubates, and colds and flus are full-blown by the next Monday. The importance of school contact was also brought out in the statistics which showed a tremendous increase in infections during the first two weeks after school opens in the fall.

In the study, infants under one year of age had the most colds, about six a year. After that, the incidence decreased steadily with age, except for the 20- to 29-year-old group, which showed a slight upswing.

To find out more about respiratory illness and lung disease, contact your lung association. Call 326-4081 or drop by for some informational pamphlets at 745 High Street, Westwood, MA, 02090.

Money saving

Advice for seniors from HEW

RELATED MONEY SAVINGS
U.S. Dept. of HEW

Medicare

If you are eligible for social secutiry benefits, you are also eligible for Medicare, to help pay for health care. The hospital insurance part of Medicare (Part A), which pays for a large portion of any hospitalization you may require, is free. The medical part (doctor's services, Part B) will cost you $5.80 a month under current law; $6.30 per month after July 1, 1973.

Check on both Parts A. AND B with your Social Security district office. If you begin receiving social security money benefits before 65 (anytime from age 62 to 65), you do not become eligible for Medicare until you reach 65. If, on the other hand, you do not retire at age 65 and do not start collecting money benefits then, you will nevertheless be eligible for Medicare at that time.

Medicaid

If you are eligible for old-age assistance (welfare), you are probably also eligible for Medicaid (which covers both hospital and doctor's services). Check with your welfare department.

In some States, persons with incomes too high for old-age assistance but too low to handle heavy medical expenses, are considered "medically needy" and are eligible for Medicaid. Check on this for yourself with your welfare department. Medicaid is a State-administered program, differing in every State. It is 'not limited to persons over 65. Medicaid payments may also supplement Medicare after its coverage is exhausted.

After January 1, 1974, most individuals who are receiving old-age assistance and who are also eligible for Medicaid will continue to be eligible. Others may also be eligible.

Food Stamps

If you are eligible for old-age assistance, you may also be eligible at this time for food stamps, which can help stretch your food budget. Ask your welfare department about this possibility. Food stamp eligibility is not based on age but on income. Under this program, if eligible you will pay cash for the stamps but will recieve stamps worth about 30 per cent more in purchasing power than you pay for them.

They may be exchanged for the foods of your choice at most grocery stores. Only a few imported food items cannot be purchased with these stamps. The program may be phased out when the old welfare assistance program changes, but it is available now. If you live in a rural area, check with your agricultural extension agent.

Tax Relief for Seniors

DON'T FORGET you get double exemption on your Federal income tax for the whole year in which you reach 65 (even if your birthday is January 1) and, of course, for all subsequent years. You may possibly get a special exemption also on your State income tax — read the tax return form carefully.

Ever since its founding in 1903, this institution has strived to fulfill its sacred obligation, stemming from the Fifth Commandment, namely, to "Honor Thy Father and Thy Mother". The rise of the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for Aged to the position of leadership in geriatrics is a tribute to the thousands of individuals who have supported it with money and volunteer service.
Continued excellence of the Center will weigh heavily on the success of the current $8,700,000 campaign which merits the support of all thoughtful individuals concerned with the needs of programs and services for the elderly of the highest qualities.

Golden Age REVIEW

Nursing homes open to public

NEEDHAM—Even though thousands of Americans are more aware of the health problems of aged, the chronically ill, and the disabled today than ever before, there are still too many who aren't.

This is one of the reasons why the American Nursing Home Association - celebrating its 25th anniversary this year - again is sponsoring National Nursing Home Week. It is also who Hollywood celebrity Cesar Romero has agreed to be honorary chairman of National Nursing Home Week. Mr. Romero's personal interest in the problems of long term care adds new dimension and conviction to the message that nursing homes are helping to improve the quality of life for everyone regardless of race, belief, or economic status.

Beginning on Mother's Day, May 12, and continuing through May 19, the public is invited to visit nursing homes in communities across the land.

In Needham, Hamilton Nursing Home is planning a very special week of activities designed to acquaint everyone in the area with the compassionate and competent approach to quality care that it provides.

As a member of the Massachusetts Federation of Nursing Homes, and through it ANHA, Hamilton Nursing Home is participating in Nursing Home Week as part of a nationwide effort to help remove any lingering doubts about nursing homes today being as important to the well-being of a community as its hospital.

On Mother's Day, May 12, the public is invited to attend a Tea and Open House celebration sponsored by the residents.

Because of skyrocketing costs of hospital care, which is geared to short term, intensive treatment of acute illnesses and injuries, nursing homes are filling a major need for a viable, less costly alternative when the prescription is for long term treatment and care.

With population mobility and longer life increasing the demand for long term care, medical planners now view nursing homes as key elements in their schemes for community improvement.

ANHA is providing invaluable assistance to those concerned community leaders. A federation of state associations with more than 7,000 member homes whose bed capacity exceeds half a million, it is the nation's largest nursing home organization.

Founded 25 years ago, the ANHA has played a vital part in the phenomenal growth of the long-term segment of the health care industry.

Through National Nursing Home Week, ANHA is giving everyone the opportunity to see for themselves how its motto "We Care" provides hope to those for whom nursing homes have become a welcome haven in their distress or declining years.

Romero preview

A newly-produced film portraying the changing image of nursing homes will be previewed on Catch 44, Tuesday, April 30th at 8:30 p.m. on WGBX-TV, UHF Channel 44, Boston.

Narrated by film star Cesar Romero, the film will set the stage for a discussion by spokesmen for the Massachusetts Federation of Nursing Homes, including Tom O'Donnell of Dedham (Executive Director of the Federation) and James J. Brennan of Hampden, Nursing Home Administrator who is Public Relations Chairman for both the Federation and the American Nursing Home Association. Acting as host is Leonard Zola of Framingham, the Federation's Director of Communications. Zola is a former broadcast journalist.

Romero is this year's Celebrity Chairman for National Nursing Home Week, which begins on Mothers' Day, May 12th.

The 13-minute film will be made available for group showings through the Federation's Speakers' Bureau.

Roche buses set schedule

NEEDHAM—The Needham Senior Adult Center announces that starting May 7, the Roche Senior Citizens Shopper Bus will make only two round trips. The first will leave the Housing Recreation Room at 9:30, make the full circle, and return in time to start the second trip at 10:30. The second full circle tour ends back at the Housing at 11:30. (Sometimes it may be possible to hitch a ride to the Square as the bus is returning to its barn at 11:30.)

No need to sell your two-story home because you shouldn't climb stairs. Install an Inclinette on your present stairway and ride up and down with the push of a button.

Medical Society helps find family doctor

NEEDHAM-NEWTON—If you've wanted to find a family doctor but haven't been sure how to go about it, the Charles River District Medical Society can help. On April 1st, the Society initiated a new program designed to help area residents choose a physician, whether general practitioner or specialist, from its more than 750 members.

The program's goal is to make sure every person has a doctor he can call on before an emergency occurs. By making periodic visits to a physician at his office, the doctor is able to get to know you, your medical history, and your specific health needs. This information can prove to be a life-saver when illness or an emergency strikes.

Area residents can take advantage of this new service by calling the Charles River District Medical Society at 969-8314 from 9 a.m. to noon, Monday through Friday.

The Charles River District Medical Society, a regional chapter of the Massachusetts Medical Society, is composed of physicians who live or practice within Needham, Newton, Waltham, Wellesley and Weston.

House Committee snuffs non-smokers' rights bill

Statewide efforts to protect the rights of the non-smoker received a setback on April 11 when the House Committee on Social Welfare reported unfavorably on H-1688, "An Act To Limit Smoking In Certain Public Places," reports the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

About 350 people gathered in Gardner Auditorium at the State House in Boston to support this and four other so-called "non-smokers' rights" bills. The Committee, without lighting up once, listened to over two and one-half hours of testimony. Some 50 persons testified in favor while only three spoke against the measures.

By the end of the hearing, the Committee had dwindled to three members, who went into executive session and then virtually snuffed out the chances for any of the bills this year. Representative Lois G. Pines (D-Newton), who filed H-1688, in cooperation with The Lung Association, said that a similar bill was given a favorable report by the Committee last year only to be "buried" in the House Ways and Means Committee.

H-1688 would extend no-smoking laws to such public places as public conveyances, polling places, schools, elevators, public areas of hospitals and state offices, buses, mercantile establishments, theatres, public halls, museums, libraries, and others. The bill would have protected the rights of the majority since 58 percent of men and 70 percent of women of voting age do not smoke.

A spokesman for the Lung Association said that "the bill means 'peaceful coexistence.' It entitles each individual to breathe air he wants to breathe, clearing the air for healthier relationships between non-smokers and other people who are unwilling to kick the habit."

The Social Welfare Committee may turn the matter over to the Department of Public Health. But, according to Representative Pines, "As things stand now, it's only the smoking minority who have the rights."

Real estate tax exemption for veterans

State Commissioner of Veterans' Services, Charles N. Collatos, has alerted the Massachusetts Veterans' Agents Association of the following situation with regard to real estate tax exemptions that disabled veterans, their wives and widows and elderly persons may be entitled to.

January 1, 1973 to June 30, 1974 represents the transitional period (18 months) ordered by the Legislature to bring cities and towns within the new fiscal year conforming to the Fiscal Year of the Commonwealth.

The change in the Fiscal Year will occasion problems with real estate tax exemptions that veterans, their wives, and widows, and also elderly persons may be entitled to under Chapter 59 of the General Laws.

The commissioner advises all of these persons to file applications for exemptions as soon as possible after receipt of their tax bills both for the six-month period ending June 30, 1974 and the Fiscal Year beginning July 1, 1974 and ending June 30, 1975.

They can look to local Veterans' Agents for advice and assistance. Local Agents have been working with local Board of Assessors and are fully cognizant of the matter.

Mayor's commission acts on affairs of the elderly

BOSTON—In 1968, Mayor Kevin H. White of Boston established a Council on Aging within City government to address the needs of the City's older citizens and to serve as their advocate. The Council's status was raised to that of the Mayor's Commission on Affairs of the Elderly in 1970; with an official mandate to "be cognizant of federal and state legislation concerning financial assistance, information exchange, and planning for better community programming for the elderly" and to "coordinate or carry out programs designed to meet the problems of the elderly in coordination with the (State's) Commission on Aging...'. The present Commissioner, Taylor B. Wagenseil, was appointed in September, 1973.

According to the 1970 U.S. census, the City of Boston has more than 81,000 residents who are 65 or older, representing almost 13 percent of the City's total population. If all residents 60 or older are included, the figure comes to 112,508, or almost 18 percent of the total City population. One-fifth of these elderly citizens fall below the census-determined poverty level for income. The Mayor's Commission on Affairs of the Elderly assesses the needs of the City's older population and develops and coordinates governmental, public, and private resources to address these needs. In doing so the Commission is in a unique position. Not only is it mandated to address the needs of the total elderly population of the City of Boston, it also has the authority and the access to City resources necessary to pursue this mandate.

Within City Hall, the Commission works at maximizing the City's total resources for the elderly by cutting across departmental lines in expanding and coordinting essential services in such areas as health, housing, employment, recreation, cultural affairs, social services, and transportation. However, though City government can best define and respond to the needs of the City's senior citizens with appropriate services and programs, all levels of government must supply the means to realize these services. At the Stae and federal levels of government, the Commission monitors proposed legislation for its potential impact on Boston's elderly citizens and works with appropriate State and Federal officials to ensure that they recognize and address the needs of the elderly in Boston. In addition, Commissioner Wagenseil is a member of the steering committee for the Urban Elderly Coalition, which represents municipal offices on aging across the country in voicing the special needs of the urban elederly. And finally, beyond governmental channels, the Commission attempts to locate, mobilize, and coordinate other appropriate public and private resources in the city on behalf of the elderly.

In order to serve as an advocate for the needs of the City's 112,508 elderly residents, one must first determine the nature and the extent of their needs. In addition to compiling and analyzing demographic information on the elderly population and consulting experts in the field of aging, the Commission has two established channels for learning about the needs of the elderly from the best source available - the elders themselves. The Mayor's Advisory Committee of the Elderly, established in 1973, is comprised of 17 elderly representatives elected from among the senior citizens clubs in each of the City's neighborhoods, along with 15 representatives of local agencies serviing the elderly and noted professionals appointed by the Mayor. The Committee meets on a monthly basis and advises the Commission on planning, funding, and evaluating programs to serve the elderly.

An additional channel for continuous community input is provided by the Commission's Deputy Commissioner, Jim McCarthy, who serves as the Commission's "field representative" by spending most of his time at senior clubs and drop-in centers, senior housing developments, hospitals, stores, and other neighborhood spots where he can talk to elderly individuals about their personal needs, problems, and concerns. Other Commission staff often work with the Deputy Commissioner in this capacity.

Championship band in parade

A national championship band will be one of the many units marching in the Newton Memorial Day parade, on Sunday afternoon, May 26, according to word received from Henry R. Lever, Adjutant General of the Memorial Day Parade Committee.

"We are very pleased to advise that the Imperials Drum and Bugle Corpl, Pembroke, Mass. have accepted our invitation to participate with both their senior and junior units," Lever said. The senior unit, under the direction of Arthur Richards, is the 1973 V.F.W. national champion, having won this honor in competition at New Orleans, La. in 1973.

The senior unit also won the 1971-72-73 championship in the Mayflower Drum and Bugle Corp. circuit which comprises eastern Mass., Maine and Rhode Island. This entire unit is made up of 115 marchers." Lever also advised that the Junior Unit, under the direction of Henry Trembly, consists of 100 marchers, ages 9 to 13. This unit was named the Class C champions in 1972 and 1973 in the Mayflower Drum and Bugle Corp. circuit.

The Newton Memorial Day Parade committee has voted to retain the same parade route as used in past years; the units will assemble at 12:15 p.m. at Washington and Craft streets, Newtonville, proceed up Washington St. to Newtonville Square and then march up Walnut street, past Newton City Hall, to the Newton Cemetery for wreath presentations and a main address by Mayor Theodore D. Mann at the Veterans Lot.

Following the program at the Veterans Lot the parade units will march back to pass in review in front of city, state and federal officials at a reviewing stand in front of Newton City Hall.

Lever pointed out that the cemetery program, which previously consisted of two programs at the GAR monument and at the Vetrans Lot, has, by vote of the Memorial Day committee, been combined into the one observance at the Veterans Lot where servicement who served their country in the Civil War, Indian War, Spanish-American War, World War 1, World War II, the Korean War and the Vietnam Conflict are buried.

It was also pointed out that it is at the Veterans Lot that the monument for Newton servicement Missin In Action is located. "While our program in the Newton Cemetery has been reduced to one, we are conducting same at the most appropriate location where proper honors and respect can be paid to all of Newton's servicemen of all wars as well as to those missing in action," Lever concluded.

Open Door Society plans adoption seminar May 11

Governor Francis Sargen has proclaimed Adoption Week for May 5-11, urging Massachusetts families to ooen their hearts and homes to the thousands of American and overseas children who need to be adopted. In the presence of some Massachusetts and some Asian children available for adoption and also adoptive parent members of the Open Door Society of Mass., the Governor signed with a flourish. He urged interested citizens in the state to attend the Massachusetts Adoption Conference to be held on Saturday, May 11, at Regis College, sponsored by the Open Door Society.

The Open Door Society is a state-wide volunteer organization of parents who have adopted all types of children. Their Adoption Conference will feature nine seminars open to all prospective adoptive parents, as well as those who already have adopted children in their family. ODS offers to local families not only educational opportunities to learn more about adoption, but also social events and support after adopted children are placed in their homes.

Included in the topics of the Adoption Conference seminars led by adoptive parents and interested social workers are: Parenting the Adopted Asian Child, Parenting the Adopted Black Child, Parenting the Child with Special Needs, Explaining Adoption to Your Child, Adding an Older Adopted Child to Your Family, and Citizen Co-operation with Adoption Agencies. The Adoption Conference is open to anyone interested in the welfare of children, and registrations at the door of the Alumnae Building, Regis College, will begin at 9 a.m. on Saturday.

For further information concerning adoption of local children families may call Marvara Murphy (244-8508) who is the West-of-Boston co-ordinator for the Open Door Society. For information on adopting Korean or Vietnamese infants through school-age children, families may call Betty Laning (969-7025) of the International Adoption Committee of the Open Door Society.

Student officers elected

Students at Newton Country Day School of the Sacred Heart elected officers for next year's student government recently. Miss Kathy Giblin, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Giblin, Jr. of Wellesley, was elected president, and Miss Marion Martignetti, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Martignetti of Lexington, vice preisdent.

Because current seniors are on independent study projects this month, the new officers will assume their duties immediately, though formal installation will not be held until September.

Girls from several greater Boston Communities, as well as from Florida, were also elected to head the various commissions of the student government. Miss Lili Macnamara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McNamara of Weston, will be the new head of the social action commission; Miss Julie Quinn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Quinn of Winchester, head of social cultural commission, and Miss Siobhan Campbell, daughter of Doctor and Mrs. Elmore Campbell of Waban, head of the committee of games. Miss Sarah Perini, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis R. Perini, Jr. of West Palm Beach, Florida, was chosen head of the boarders' commission.

Co-editors of The Spire, the school yearbook, will be Miss Mary Frances Doyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Doyle of Roslindale, and Miss Jane Goode, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Goode of Milton.

To Wesley Gardens, Inc , of parts unknown.

Whereas a Petition in Equity has been begun against you in our Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex, wherein the plaintiff Donato D. Capasso of Newton in said County of Middlesex alleges that a cloud exists upon the title to a certain parcel of land located on Centre Street in said Newton conveyed to the said plaintiff by Wesbrook Company, Inc. by a deed dated February 1, 1974 and recorded in Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds, Book 12586, Page 421 in that the said Wesbrook Company, Inc. gave by mistake, a mortgage on the said property to the defendant Wesley Gardens, Inc. in the amount of $50,000 00, dated March 14, 1955 and recorded in Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds, Book 8428, Page 426 which mortgage was discharged by an instrument executed by Wesley Gardens, Inc on March 21, 1955 and which discharge was never recorded.

Upon the foregoing Petition, it is ordered by the Court that the plaintiff notify the said Wesley Gardens, Inc., a corporation duly organized under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, that on the first Monday of August next, which day of this order, or within twenty one days from the said return day, it does cause its written appearance to be entered and its written answer or other lawful pleadings to be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court at Cambridge, in said County, and further that it defends against the said petition in equity, according to law, if it intends to make any defense, otherwise the said petition in equity, may be adjudged and orders and decrees may be entered therein in its absence, by posting an attested copy hereof in a conspicuous place on the land described in the said petition in equity, and by publication on an attested copy thereof in the Newton Graphic, a newspaper published in Newton, once a week for three successive weeks, the last publication to be two (2) months at least before the said first Monday of August, 1974.

By the Court, (Dimond, J.)
Raymond E. Powell,

Health and Safety Committee, and the Consumer Affairs and Licenses Committees. The former is a new committee to be a liaison betwen the Board and the Fire, Police and Health Departments; the latter is an extension of the existing Franchises and Licenses Committee.

Passed a resolution calling for the Massachusetts Congressional delegation to work for the impeachment of the President, by a vote of 16-5.

Referred to committee an offer from the Chestnut Hill Mall of a jeep for the use of Newton police on detail at the mall.

Returned to committee a proposed ordinance change that would require a public hearing and aldermanic action on site plans of all new or modified public (city) buildings. This is not presently required.

Set May 22 for a public hearing on the site plan of the Underwood School, which is planned for enlargement.

Failed to suspend the rules to allow action on a proposed resolution by David B. Cohen requesting the legislature to allow a city ordinance protecting tenants of apartment buildings being converted to condominiums.

violations here for 15 years and the city has done nothing about it. The city is now going on record telling people to violate the law and then come before the Board of Aldermen and fix it."

Other aldermen spoke of the service McMullin has performed for the city. Barkin asked, "Why pick out this one site and allow other stations to operate?"

After several amendments to the number of vehicles allowed and details of landscaping had failed, the vote was 15 in favor, 6 opposed, resulting in a failure to pass the permissive use, which requires 16 votes.

Later in the meeting a reconsideration, filed by Robert Gaynor, led to a compromise offer of 15 instead of 20 vehicles or trailers to be stored at the front of the site. This amendment failed and Louis Egelson moved to postpone further action until the next meeting.

In other business, the Board of Aldermen took the following actions:

Voted $5,000 for baseline studies of soil and water in the Webster Vale to detect pollution.

Approved the establishment of two new aldermanic committees: The Public

Carleton Merrill

The end of driving came sooner than expected. Carl was driving for a car owner who didn't tell him that particular car had quick steering. He went into a lamppost, and that was the last drive.

Now his wife handles the office at home for Carl Merrill's duties at Thompson Speedway and goes with him every weekend to the track.

The position of general managing and director of racing at Thompson is the culmination of many years with NASCAR. Much of his work with that group involved improving and maintaining rules and regulations of racing and technical standards of the tracks.

Carleton P. Merrill, veterans' agent, has developed a good way of dealing with people, including youngsters. Maybe this happened because he remembers his own boyhood better than most of us.

When Pete Hamilton, a Daytona 500 winner in 1970, used to race at Norwood, Merrill told Pete's father that unless he kept his grades up (they weren't too good), he wouldn't be allowed to race.

Pete was in high school when he raced at Norwood. Rules allow boys of 17 to race with a release from their parents.

High school brings up a small sore point with Carleton Merrill. He was expelled from Newton High in 1943, right before graduation, and didn't make it into the yearbook, because of throwing an eraser at his chemistry teacher. (He did graduate

But 19 years later, when the teacher was going to retire and had to straighten out his veterans' benefits, Carleton Merrill recalls that the teacher came in, stared, and said, I always knew you'd do all right."

While he enjoys his job as veterans' agent a great deal and does more than anyone realizes for his clients, "Racing is my outlet," Merrill says. He is scrupulous in keeping his two lives separate.

He smiles when he tells his answer to a question sometimes asked him: Are you related to Carl Merrill at Thompson Speedway?

"I just tell them, 'He's a cousin of mine.' "

Center

Originally the committee had approved the new facility only if 65 per cent reimbursement were to be forthcoming from the state School Buildings Assistance Bureau. However, a letter from the state agency indicated that financial assistance would not be available without an overall evaluation of the program and space at Newton South.

Such an evaluation might, according to the letter, turn up deficiencies in the high school that would require large expenditures to correct.

Public Buildings Committee Chairman Edward Richmond felt that a public meeting held at the school some time ago would serve the purpose of a public hearing, but Cohen insisted that "we and the people don't know about the proposed building."

Alan Barkin, also of Ward 8, asked that pictures or a model of the building be made available for the neighbors to look at the public hearing.

The date for the hearing has not been set.

Towers for sale

said, "We only talked about it. I'm not really interested – we can't do business with them."

Covich feels that the project was not well planned for the land. "The cost of land and the construction cost forces the price of the apartments too high ($70,000-$250,000). The Towers should have been built in stages to see how 50 apartments at a time would sell."

"I think Goodman would be happy to get his money back out," Covich said.

Harmon Stone of Newton said he "had been negotiating in a general way," but is not now actively negotiating.

The Towers financing fell through when the construction of the building was stopped last September by the discovery that the permissive use granted by the Board of Aldermen in 1966 had expired.

Lengthy negotiations in the aldermanic Land Use Committee on an extension of permissive use resulted in an arrangement with the Newton Community Development Foundation to construct 50 units of low and moderate income housing in conjunction with the Towers and dependent on the Towers' proceeding.

The delay in construction also caused Goodman to lose a $29 million mortgage commitment, which he has apparently been unable to replace.

Spokesmen for the Towers have consistently maintained that the financing is being worked out.

Further delay occasioned by the need for approval of a revised site plan and plans for the installatin of a sprinkler system throughout the building held up until a few weeks ago the issuance of a building permit to allow construction to proceed.

According to a Towers spokesman, work is now going "full speed ahead" on the site, with utility lines already in.

Site preparation began in 1967, according to one of the Towers lawyers last October, who said then that more than $4 million has been spent on the 17-acre site.

The only structure erected so far is a model building for sales purposes.

If built, the Towers would provide the city with as much as $3 million in real estate taxes annually.

Enrollment

Lois Alexander, Chairman of the community schools commission, pointed out that schools are used for community programs as well as traditional education.

David Geikie, president of the Newton Teachers Association, presented a study which indicated that smaller classes yield a higher quality of education.

Fink was asked what the saving would be from closing an elementary school. He estimated that an average saving might be $175,000.

HeadStart deadline

The deadline for submitting Head Start applications is approaching.

In Newton the classroom is located at the Unitarian Church, 1326 Washington street, West Newton.

Any child age 3 or 4 whose family is low-income is eligible. In addition to our classrooms which operate daily from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Head Start provides at no charge transportation, snack and a hot lunch.

Head Start tries to meet each child's educational, health and social needs. The program includes various health evaluations and assists families in solving health problems as well as legal, housing and financial problems which are found.

Since Head Start is parent controlled both mothers and fathers are encouraged to participate in the program for their child.

Call Communities United, Inc. right now for an application 969-4615.

Final selections will be made in May.

Gilburd elected

Michael Gilburd of Newton has been elected a fellow of the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants. He is an accountant with Greene & Rubin in Boston.

Gilburd is a Long Island University graduate. He received a BS degree in 1965.

Gilburd is married to the former Dinah Sargon of Brookline.

Delegates at League convention

Delegates Mary Adelstein, Miriam Erlich, Elaine Leppo, and Judy Obermayer along with Anita Capeless and Beverly Smith are representing the League of Women Voters of Newton at the national convention of the League of Women Voters of the United States held this week, May 6-10, in San Francisco, Calif.

More than 1400 League leaders from all over the country are attending the League's 31st convention.

During the convention the delegates select new national officers and determine national issues that the 155,000 member organization will concentrate on in the next two years. There are also a number of special events scheduled. There will be announcement of the results of a national petition drive to gather more than one and a half million signatures of citizens who favor a comprehensive law on campaign financing.

Discussion and vote on League bylaws will determine whether men will be admitted as full voting members. A rally in behalf of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) will feature music, a singing group, speeches, and a "Peanuts for ERA" banner specially created by Charles Schulz. There will be a panel discussion of "Women in Politics: From the Ward to the White House" with participants Barbara Mikulski, Baltimore City Councilwoman and member of the National Democratic Party Compliance Review Commission; Jill Ruckelshaus, former Special Assistant to the Counsellor to the President; Mary B. Newman, Massachusetts State Secretary for Manpower Affairs and Doris Davis, Mayor of Compton, Calif. Eminent historian Henry Steele Commager will give the banquet address.

PTA Fair on May 11

The Burr School PTA will hold its thirtieth annual May fair on May 11 from 10 a.m to 3 p.m. at the school playground on Pine Street, Auburndale.

This year's fair will feature a concert and gymnastics display by students of the school, as well as field events for all age groups.

Gifts, plants, handicrafts and games will be available, and an action of selected "white elephants" will be conducted at mid-day.

Pine Manor picks president

Donald A. Gordon, 40, of Santa Barbara, Calif., has been chosen as the fourth president of Pine Manor Junior College in Chestnut Hill, effective July 1.

Gordon, who has been on sabbatical leave from Phillips Academy since 1973, served as headmaster of the Barstow School in Kansas City, Mo., prior to his tenure at Abot.

Donald Gordon

A career educator, Gordon most recently served as principal of nationally known Abbot Academy in Andover, now merged with Phillips Andover. While at Abbot, he forged a successful combination with Phillips and saw marked increases in enrollment selectivity and diversity, in the composition and quality of its faculty, and in financial support and management.

The decision brought to a close a seven-month nationwide search during which a nine-member search committee headed by Charles C. Cabot Jr. considered 184 men and women for the post.

Gordon's background includes a B.A. in English from Yale University and an M.A. and doctoral work in American Civilization at the University of Pennsylvania. His professional memberships include the National Association of Independent Schools, of whose Task Force on Education of Women he is a member. He is a former vice-president of the Independent School Association of Massachusetts and serves on the board of directors of the American Association of Sex Educators and Counselors. Gordon has also served on the board of the New England American Studies Association.

He is married and has two children, ages four and seven.

In assuming the presidency of Pine Manor, Gordon succeeds Frederick C. Ferry, Jr., president of the college for 18 years.

NBC's "Adam-12" police series will begin its seventh season next fall with Martin Milner and Kent McCord still its stars.

Lawn Doctor®
If you like what we're doing for someone else's lawn... you'll love what we do for yours!
No two lawns are exactly the same. That's why Lawn Doctor gives you customized service!
Year round, your Lawn Doctor specialist gives you customized service tailored to your own lawn's unique needs. What's right for your neighbor's lawn or the fellow's down the street isn't necessarily right for yours.
Your neighbor may have a chickweed problem. The guy across the road may be fighting off armyworms
But your lawn's worst enemy may be fungus, grubs or billbugs. That's why Lawn Doctor chemically analyzes your lawn before prescribing the best treatment to keep it healthy and beautiful.
Seeding, fertilization, weed, fungus and insect control—these are just some of the services we customize for your lawn's year-round care. And we always follow through with periodic checkups to ensure that your lawn receives the best possible care!
Special $24.95 introductory offer.
Take advantage of the special one-application introductory offer available now from your local Lawn Doctor lawn service. It begins with a thorough examination of your lawn. This includes soil tests to determine the exact composition of your lawn. Once the results are analyzed, you get seed, two kinds of top-quality fertilizer, power aeration, power rolling and all labor. You get all this—for an area up to 4,000 square feet—for just $24.95. That's practically what you'd pay for the seed and materials alone!

Change way of life

Q. I am in my late forties, never married, work steady but question will I ever get a chance to change my life? I was born on July 10, 1926, in Bristol, Conn., I do not know the time. Please send the information to the address below.

M. N.

A. Sorry, but as stated at the end of this column, questions can only be answered through this column (none by mail).

The amount of astrological information available when the time of day is not known is quite limited since every two minutes of the time of day of the birthdate makes some difference. In a ladies noroscope the "Seventh House" of the chart and the position and aspects of the Sun are indicative of her matrimonial prospects, among other things. Since without the time of day of birth the Seventh House cannot be calculated, only your Sun position is left to judge.

Based on this, it appears you were blessed with much energy which you can direct towards some well defined objective or waste them in emotional and sensational matters. If you were born before 7:51 p.m. Eastern Standard Time that day, the Moon was in Cancer as well as your Sun, indicating you are inclined to be hypersensitive.

You are extremely touchy, can be easily offended and you let your feelings influence your better judgement. Try not to take things from so personal a point of view. By keeping your mind outside of yourself you will have better nerves as well as much clearer thoughts. Concentrate on some study or mental pursuit, doing so will have better control of your emotions and reduce the chances of depressed feelings.

The chances are you are "standing in your own light." To bring about a change for the better in your way of life, start by changing your perspective which must come from within. It is not too late, remember Wally Simpson, at age 40, married the Prince of Wales who gave up a throne for her.

How to weigh water

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Every day, hundreds of experts meet in solemn congress in dozens of rooms in the European Common Market to pass judgment on the major issues of the day.

Like how to weigh the water in a frozen chicken.

Critics of the Common Market say it spends too much time talking trivia. The current Exhibit A is a document, issued in six languages and named "Standards for the Moisture Content of Certain Fowl Carcasses," or "COM (74) 79" for short.

If adopted by all nine Common Market nations, the document would standardize chicken-weighing throughout Europe, in 11 detailed steps, to wit:

1. Wipe the chicken's wrapping and weigh it.
2. Take the chicken from the wrapping and weigh the wrapping—not the bird.
3. Subtract weight 2 from weight 1. That's how much the chicken itself weighs.
4. Stick the chicken into a dry, waterproof plastic bag with the abdominal cavity at the bottom.
5. Put the bag into water of 86 degrees. Hold the bag so no air escapes, no water gets in and the sides of the bag lie against the chicken.
6. Keep this up for two hours.
7. Throw out the water. Pierce the bottom of the bag to allow water produced by thawing to escape.
8. Let the chicken drain for one hour.
9. Take chicken from the bag and dry it out.
10. Weigh the chicken.
11. Subtract weight 10 from weight 3. That's the moisture content.

The document, with straight face, insists that the bag have a thickness of exactly five-hundredths of one millimeter

Rainier's Jubilee

MONTE CARLO (UPI) — Monaco celebrates Prince Rainier's silver jubilee as its ruling prince this week, starting Wednesday and continuing through next Sunday.

The Prince wants it to be a "family and national" affair.

"This isn't the time for expensive ceremonies," said the Prince, who celebrates his 51st birthday later in the month, May 31. "We will mark the anniversary mainly among ourselves."

Several stars and jet setters nevertheless are expected to be present—a large number of celebrities begin drifting down to the Riviera about this time of year.

The highlight of the celebrations is a formal dinner on the actual date of the accession, May 9. Earlier that day the entire royal family will be on hand when Princess Grace unveils a bust of Rainier by the Italian sculptor Messina.

Varied programs at libraries

People may celebrate the coming of spring at the Newton Free Library and its branches by attending varied programs and four different exhibits during the month of May. .

On Thursday, May 9, three Chaplin classics will be screened in Chaffin Hall at the Main Library at 7 p.m. Free films will be screened each Wednesday and Thursday throughout the month.

"Batik Works" by Jane Steinberg of Newton will be on view throughout the month at the Main Library.

Dr. Michael Sperber continues his informal seminars: "Literature and Psychiatry" Tuesday, May 21 at 7:30 p.m. in the Trustees' Room.

An exhibit of hand-made dulcimere loaned by Mr. George Brewer of Newton will be on view in the glass cases at the Main Library.

A four-week investment course given at West Newton branch by Mrs. Theresa Contardo of Merrill Lynch continues on Wednesdays May 15, and 22 at 10 a.m.

The library will participate in Newton's community celebrati n, "Spring Fest '74," on Sunday May 19, with a booth displaying the library's multi-media approaches to meeting the needs of the community.

On May 22 at 10:30 a.m. branch librarian Velda Model will review books at a coffee hour at Newtonville. The public is invited to attend, and to borrow the just reviewed books on-the-spot.

At Auburndale Branch, Mrs. Marie Simpson, branch librarian will give a book review Thursday, May 30 at 10:30 a.m. Refreshments will be served.

Newton Centre branch has an exhibit of water colors by Mrs. Carl Grant of Newton. Mrs. Grant studied at Swain School of Design in New Bedford and currently teachers painting in Newton Centre.

""Faces of Israel," photographic portraits by Ernest Singer of Newton are on view at Newtonville now through June.

Other library activities during May include 50 pre-school story hours; 19 school age story hours; 11 film programs and three creativity programs; and meetings of the bridge, camera, and chess clubs, the great books group, the teen-age book club, and the young adult drama workshop. People may read the Newton Free Library "Bulletin," available at all Newton libraries, or call 527-7700 for specific dates and times.

Main Library hours are Monday-Friday, 9 a.m.-9 p.m., Saturdays 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m. and Sundays 1-4 p.m.

Comedy

"Give me that pocketbook," Barney Cashman demands in a scene from Neil Simon's comedy, "Last of the Red Hot Lovers." The play will be presented by the Auburndale Players May 9, 10 and 11. Howard Schuft plays Barney Cashman and Betty Schuft (pictured) plays Jeanette Fisher. (Lupo photo)

Auburndale Players offering Simon play

John Malloy, Paul Masse, and Jackie Meily are co-directing the three acts of the Auburndale Payers' spring production, "The Last of the Red Hot Lovers" by Neil Simon.

Malloy, who is directing act one, has appeared in such Auburndale productions aa "Wake Up, Darling," "Send Me No Flowers," "The Odd Couple," and "Plaza Suite." A former Auby winner, John also produced and directed "The Inventions," the Auburndale Club's successful first attempt at a children's play this past winter.

Masse, the director of the second act, has appeared in all but tow of the Auburndale Club's productions in the last four years. Also an Auby winner as best actor, Masse took a turn at directing the 1971 fall production of "Desk Set,"

Ms. Meily has also appeared in most of the Auburndale productions over the past few years, among them "Arsenic and Old Lace," "You Can't Take It With You," "Desk Set," and "Third Best Sport," She makes her Auburndale Club directing debut as she handles the rein for act three of this production.

"The Last of the Red Hot Lovers" will be performed Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 9, 10, and 11, at 8:30 p.m. at the Auburndale Club, 283 Melrose St., Auburndale. Tickets may be reserved in advance by calling Diane Rooney at 332-6869.

North High Night at Pops Friday, May 24

The annual Newton North High School Night at the Boston POPS with Arthur Fiedler will be held on Friday, May 24, at Symphony Hall at 8:30 p.m.

Featured on the program will be pianist David Keyes, Class of '74 and the Newton North Concert Choir, directed by Raymond Smith. Fiedler has invited David to perform the Capriccio Brillante by Mendelssohn. The entire program will be available soon.

David Keyes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elliot Keyes of 20 Duffield Rd., Auburndale, is a senior at Newton North High School and has been studying piano with Mrs. Nini Perlo at the All Newton Music School for the past several years.

He has performed in over 30 recitals in Newton, Brookline, and Boston. For the past three years he has studied theory and composition with Henry Lasker at Newton High. One of his pieces has been performed by the Newton Symphony, which Keyes himself conducted, at the invitation of Michel Sasson, music director. He has just completed a three movement piano concerto. Keyes is a member of the Newton High Chorus, Raymond Smith, director.

Outside of music, Keyes is captain of the hgh-ranking Newton North Math Team and is student director of Newton's Environmental Science Program. Last summer, he attended a six-week chemistry program offered by the National Science Foundation at San Diego State. He is a finalist in the National Merit Scholar Program. Next fall he will attend Princeton University to concentrate in the areas of chemistry and musical composition.

The Concert Choir will include portions of the Peaceable Kingdom by Randall Thompson, I Hear a Voice A-Prayin' by Houston Bright, conducted by Betsy Gradone, '74, and My Bonnie Lass She Smelleth by PDQ Bach, conducted by Marco Mishler, '73.

METCO program increases

The Newton School Committee unanimously approved this week a recommendation from the school administration that enrollment in Newton's METCO program be increased to 200 next year.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink said that the School Committee authorized 181 places for this year, but that peak METCO enrollment was only 176. The present enrollment is 169.

Fink pointed out that with 15 METCO students graduating from Newton's high schools this year, an increase to 200 would mean 47 new students in the first and second grades next year.

Three elementary schools will have METCO students for the first time next year. Angier will have nine first graders, Cabot will have five second graders, and Beethoven will have four first graders.

Fink said that correspondence from Angier indicated support from its staff of the METCO program. Helen Thomas, acting principal of Cabot, said Monday that the school is "looking forward to having METCO students enrich our program."

Fink recommended "some attempt to bring in Spanish speaking students." He added that charging of tuition was

Land Use

Parking dominates hearings

By CYNTHIA BLACK
Of The Graphic Staff

Parking and more parking dominated the Land Use Committee meeting this week as it heard petitions for the expansion of Sidney Hill Country Club and for new rules governing off street parking for new businesses.

The 1973 ordinance, proposed by then Ald. Peter Harrington, would require off-street parking when any new construction or change of existing use took place at a business.

People opposed to the proposed construction of a McDonald's restaurant in Newtonville square took advantage of the hearing to voice their grievances.

It had been reported last week that passage of this Harrington ordinance might preclude McDonald's from moving into the area.

About 200 people were present for the hearing. Many Newtonville residents spoke in opposition to the McDonald's, citing it as a traffic hazard, a danger to children crossing a busy street, and a restuarant in an area already saturated with restaurants.

One resident, Richard Drew, told the committee, "we are drowning in a sea of automobiles."

Another, Michael Miller, a Newtonville square merchant, said to the committee, "I wish you would listen tonight to the people of the area because we're asking for you to do something to help us."

When it became apparent that any of the residents appearing to support the ordinance proposed were there because of the McDonald's, Alderman Alan S. Barkin asked if they understood what the hearing was really about.

He pointed out that the ordinance in question, first proposed in June, 1973, affected all areas of the city. He told residents that it was the city's Licensing Board that was empowered, and had, granted McDonald's a license.

"Now you're here asking us to pull the Licensing Board's chestnuts out of the fire," he said.

Barkin told the audience he understood that their protest was over the proposed Newtonville restaurant, and that the ordinance, if passed, might alleviate their problem.

"But you've heard, I'm sure," he said," the expression about throwing the baby out with the bath water."

"This ordinance," he went on to explain, "would also affect every other business block in the city."

Asbestos still a North problem

"Some people feel there is an immediate danger" regarding the exposed asbestos at Newton North High School, Wellington Scott, a concerned Newton citizen, said at a recent meeting of the Public Buildings Committee.

A social studies teacher at Newton North, Justine Uritam, brought the question of the asbestos to public attention last July, and again last month when she complained to the committee that the asbestos was still not covered.

Last summer, $43,000 was spent boxing in some of the asbestos-coated beams. but work was stopped a few days before the opening of the new high school.

Medical studies have shown air-borne asbestos fibers to be a producer of cancer and pulmonary problems, although the number and size of fibers per unit of air has not been determined decisively.

In 1972, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, and many labor organizations recommended the reduction of the present standards of five 5-micron fibers per cubic centimeter of air down to two fibers and ultimately none in industry.

The recommendation was not followed by the U.S. Secretary of Labor, who promulgated the five-fiber standard until July, 1976, when the tow-fiber standard would go into effect.

Many medical authorities, as quoted in a long, five-part article in the New Yorker magazine on the asbestos hazard, believe that the standard by number of fibers is useless, since there can be and are many smaller fibers in the air that cannot be measured by the standard phase-contrast microscope.

State tests last year, when the building was unoccupied, showed the asbestos fibers to be within acceptable limits.

But Mrs. Uritam pointed out that the students can and do reach up through the wooden slats or the suspended tile ceilings and pull off chunks of asbestos.

Gene Larson, Buildings commissioner, plans to do the rest of the work this summer.

Just how it will be done is another matter. Boxing in the beams cannot be done in some locations, and spraying the asbestos will not work, according to Alderman David Jackson. The additional weight of another substance sprayed onto the sprayed asbestos often causes large chunks to fall off the beams.

Larson also allayed fears about the presence of asbestos circulating through the ventilating system. Each room has its own sealed-unit ventilator, Larson said, and elsewhere the ductwork is sealed.

School Committee member Gerard Byrne suggested that perhaps the covering work should be done immediately. Public Buildings Committee Chairman Edward Richmond asked, "Then why didn't the School Committee vote it in October?

The work, expected to cost about $150,000 total, will be paid for by a $370,000 bond issue and a $130,000 fund transfers, which will also pay for increasing the height of stair railings and other corrective work at the new school.

Ethnicity: a new word for an old problem

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
Staff Correspondent

A new word has arrived on the scene too describe an old problem. The word: ethnicity. The problem: understanding our differences.

Formerly, it was popular for Americans to think of themselves as a mixture, part of a melting pot. However, in the late '60's, ethnic identity began to ride. Today, ethnicity is recognized as having a definite impact on education.

s a result, Social Studies Coordinator Edward Lerner recently introduced an in-service course on "Responding too Ethnic Differences in the Newton Community." The month-long course drew over 200 people from the community, teachers, administrators, policemen, social workers and guidance counselors.

"We are trying to sensitize the staff as to who lives here and their individual and group differences," said Lerner. He explained that "although no accurate figures were available, the largest identifiable ethnic groups, other than Anglo-Saxon Protestants, are Irish, Italian and Jewish."

Stressing options is something else Lerner talked about so that people can be toold "here's where it can be if you want it or you can let it face." They don't have to hold on to their ethnicity if they don't want to.

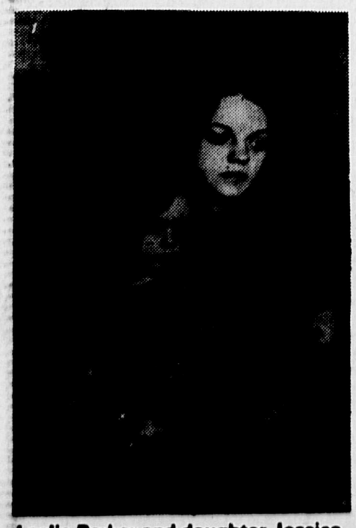

The program was not oriented to teach about ethnicity, but to merely provide a general background about the local past and present.

Lerner said that students could be "alienated on ethnic grounds unless teachers were at ease with their own ethnicity and the kids' ethnicity." For instance, an alert teacher spotting a child bringing in something "different" for lunch and getting teased by peers could use the situation as an opportunity for discussion. This could in the long run raise the child's self image while having the group appreciate American diversity.

Fred Adelman, Massachusetts Teacher's Association Professional Development staff member, led one of the last sessions, addressing himself to the impact of ethnicity on education.

Homeless mother and daughter wonder, 'Can this really happen in Newton?'

Leslie Parker and daughter Jessica

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

Leslie Parker is a quiet, bewildered, 21-year-old mother of a 3-year-old daughter.

On April 22, Leslie and Jessica were evicted from their Lexington Street apartment.

So far all the combined forces of city agencies and the state welfare department have been powerless to find another home in Newton.

Leslie's mother and father are dead, and her sister Pamela in Roslindale has taken her and Jessica in temporarily. But Pamela's four-room apartment is already crowded with her four children.

Leslie wants to stay in Newton, where she has lived most of her life since 1962. She had planned to enter Jessica in Head Start next fall and go back to schoo herself.

Leslie's predicament began last October when she moved into the Lexington Street apartment. She is separated from her husband, and receives $109.90 every two weeks from the state Public Welfare Department.

She had expected a friend to share the apartment and the $200 monthly rent with her, but that agreement fell through. Leslie fell behind in the rent, and on April 8, her landlord's lawyer sent a constable to see her to tell her she was in a serious situation.

Jessica became ill from the inadequate diet her mother could provide with the little money available, and now has been ordered onto a high-protein diet.

In early April 8, according to Diane Sinclair, supervisor of the Brookline welfare office, Leslie's social worker discussed the situation with the landlord's lawyer, who indicated that he would not want to continue Leslie's tenancy even if the welfare department paid the back rent.

At Alderman Richard McGrath's behest, the lawyer agreed not to do anything until McGrath and Leslie had had a chance to look for another apartment.

Diane Sinclair has notes in her office indicating that the lawyer was to notify the social worker before any further action was taken.

Somehow, by a failure in communications all around, on April 22, Leslie's furniture was taken out and she was evicted.

McGrath has spoken with the Newton Housing Authority, the Newton Department of Human Resources, Veterans' Services, and anybody else he can think of, and has tried on his own to find Leslie an apartment.

The executive director of the Housing Authority, Frank Quinn, confirmed this week that the Authority has no emergency housing.

"If a person finds an apartment himself, we might be able to subsidize the rent," Quinn

Winchester man accused of kidnapping Newton boy

The alleged kidnapping of a four-year-old Newton boy led to the arrest of a Winchester man last weekend.

James F. Sousa was released on $5,000 bail after pleading innocent to kidnapping and accessory to robbery charges. Waltham District Court continued his case to June 10.

Sousa was charged with the alleged kidnapping of John K. Jennings Jr., 50 Dudley Rd., Newton Centre.

Jennings' father reportedly went to 395 Totten Pond Rd., in Waltham on Saturday to deal in silver coins with Sousa. While he was there, two masked men allegedly entered, and took $20,000 from him.

The masked men, Sousa, and Jennings' son then reportedly left.

On Saturday night, Jennings reportedly learned from a friend that a man had called her, saying that he had John Jr.

The friend was allegedly told to pick up the child at a Cambridge house. Police eventually recovered the child from the friend and he was returned to his father.

Sousa was arrested at a Cambridge motel at about 4 a.m. on Sunday. The arrest was made by Capt. John McDonald, Det. Lt. Joseph P. Keefe, and James V. Marchese of the Waltham police.

Several breaking and enterings in Newton were also reported early this week.

A front apartment door was reportedly jimmied at 16 Tanglewood Rd., Newton Centre, and a television, a set of golf clubs, and a speaker were allegedly missing.

The Chestnut Hill Food Shop, 11 Commonwealth Ave., was reportedly robbed of $1500 worth of cigarettes between 8 p.m. Monday night and Tuesday morning. A pane of glass was reportedly broken and a rear cellar door jimmied.

The Little People's School, 1507 Washington St., was reportedly broken into also. Padlocks on trailers at the rear of the building were allegedly cut, and an IBM typewriter and a photocopying machine were reportedly missing.

Newton police said that 13 bicycles were reported stolen over the weekend. This included 11 different incidents as two bikes were missing from two locations.

There will be a free bicycle engraving at the "Newton Graphic," 1178 Walnut St., Newton Highlands, on Saturday, May 18, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. It is sponsored by the newspaper, the Newton Jaycees, and the Newton Police.

'Y' observes 97th year

The Newton YMCA will observe its 97th year of service to Newton at its annual meeting May 15 at the "Y."

Rev. Oscar A. Guinn Jr., pastor of the Carter Memorial United Methodsit Church in Needham, will be the speaker. Guinn will draw on his experience in serving pastorates in Virginia, Georgia and Massachusetts — in addition to his missionary service in Malaya and China — while speaking on the subject "The Family in a Changing Day."

Special recognition will be given at the meeting to Newton "Y" members of over 50 years standing, and other service awards will be presented.

President Charles E. Smith will preside over the business meeting, which will deal with three proposed changes to the association's constitution and by-laws. "Y" members may secure an advance copy of these proposals at the YMCA office.

There will be a baked chicken dinner preceding the annual meeting and reservations may be made by telephone or in person at the "Y." Members and the general public are invited.

McGrath chairman

Ald. Richard McGrath has been appointed chairman of the new aldermanic committee on public health and public safety by Board of Aldermen President Eliot Cohen.

Other members of the committee are Ald. Joan Saklad, Thomas Concannon, Richard Bullwinkle, Susan Schur, Michael Lipof, Ernest Dietz, and Mark White.

The new committee was established to provide a liaison between the Board and the Fire, Police and Health Departments, and to review activities of the various city health agencies.

Fund-raising breakfast at North May 19

Newton North High School will hold its fourth annual Mary C. Gianferante Scholarship Breakfast on Sunday, May 19 from 8-11 a.m. in the Newton North cafeteria.

This is a fund-raising event to assist seniors to further their education. The public is invited to attend.

The menu will consist of pancakes, sausages, danish pastry, donuts, bagels, cream cheese, orange juice, coffee, and milk.

Chairman for this year's breakfast are Mrs. Florence Taplin, Adams House secretary and Mary Lou DeSouza, NNPTSA president. Their committee will consist of faculty members, students, PTSA members, and Newton citizens.

Tickets may be purchased from the Adams House office, from the PTSA officers, or at the door.

Hammond area a parking lot?

Chestnut Hill Mall developer Dan Rothenberg has disclosed ongoing "tentative" talks with City Planner Charles Thomas and Secretary to the Conservation Commission Helen Heyn over a proposed land swap in the Hammond Pond area.

Rothenberg owns the MDC parking lot in back of Stearns which is used for overflow mall parking. Rothenberg says that the conversations "have taken place to see if we can work something out to avoid pedestrian crossover."

The developer suggests swapping this piece of land for another near the mall which is part of the Hammond Woods. He would like to utilize this new piece for parking.

He also stated he would be willing to "do some work" on the parking lot and fix it up since it is next to Hammond Pond.

"I am not joing to let Mr. Rothenberg undo another square inch of that land... he'll do it over my dead body," asserted Mrs. Heyn.

In view of this "continued pressure for diversion of MDC parkland in the Hammond Pond area," the Conservation Commission will discuss the matter at their May 22 meeting with Mrs. Julia O'Brien of the MDC.

Rothenberg said that the only traffic jams are on Saturdays from 12-4 and "we credit most of it to tourist traffic since the stores do less business then than on Mondays. People come from 60-70 miles away and we expect this to taper off."

Campfire girls to meet May 28

The Campfire Girls of Newton are planning their annual Council Fire and Fly-Up on May 28 on the grounds of the Marriott Motor Hotel in Auburndale.

This ceremony will take place at 7:15 p.m. and will have as its theme, "Friendship." The girls are preparing friendship sticks, which will be exchanged during the program, and they will also float "wishing boats," with candles, on the Charles River.

Jean Willis and Kay Greene are the co-chairwomen for the event. Also on the committee are Bea Dragon, Bea Hendrix, Jane Murray, Mary Ridge and Lois Doyle. In case of rain the ceremony will be held on May 30 at 24 Radcliff Rd., Waban.

Mental Health march

The second annual March for Mental Health will be held Sunday, May 19, from 10 a.m. to noon.

Starting points include: Waban Playground, Sacred Heart Church, Falow Park and Warren Junior High School.

Each route is about three miles long and will end at City Hall, just in time for Springthing '74.

For additional information, call Jeff Cornell at 965-0200.

Rosoff named

Arnold Z. Rosoff of Newton Highlands, president of Arnold & Company Inc., has been named publicity chairman for the 35th reunion of Harvard's Class of 1939, which will take place in June.

Youth groups to march in Memorial Day Parade

The youth of Newton will play a major part in the annual Memorial Day Parade which is set for Sunday afternoon, May 26, 1974 with a starting time of 1 p.m.

Joining with veteran, patriotic, fraternal and civic groups will be members representing the Newton Boys' Club, Campfire Girls, Bay Path Colonial Girl Scout Council, Cub Packs BSA, Norumbega Council Boy Scouts of America, the Watanka Indian Dancers-Order of the Arrow, B.S.A., and units representing the Newton Community Center.

Jayne C. Driscoll, secretary of the Memorial Day Parade Committee, has advised that all Newtons youth groups are invited to participate and that even at this late date additional units are still welcome to march.

Information regarding the parade may be secured by the youth group adult leaders by contacing the Veterans' Services Department, Newton City Hall, telephone 244-4700 Ext. 278.

The musical units for the parade will be headed by the combined bands of the Newton North and Newton South High Schools under the direction of Gary Good, director of instrumental music. Additional music units will be the senior and junior units of the Imperials Drum and Bugle Corp., Pembroke; St. Agnes Senior and Junior Bands, Arlington, the senior unit having been judged "Best of Parade" in the 1973 Christmas Parade and the 1974 St. Patricks Day Parade, Lawrence, Mass. as well as having been the 1972 winner of the senior division in V.F.W. state competition; the Heightsmen Drum and Bugle Corp. of Arlington; St. Anthony Drill Team of Everett, winner of the C.Y.O Color Guard Championships held at Boston College in 1973 and Eastern Mass. Color Guard champions for 1973, this unit recently won six trophies in Color Guard competition at Long Island, N.Y.

Also joining the various musical units will be the "Dantes" of St. Joseph's, Hyde Park, this unit being the 1971-72 Elks State Champions and was judged the "Best of Parade" in the 1973 Loyalty Day Parade, New Britain, Conn.

Parade Adjutant General Henry R. Lever has advised that all marching units will form in parade column at 12:15 p.m., May 26, at the First National Store parking lot, corner of Washington and Crafts Streets, Newtonville, and that the entire column will "step out" promptly at 1 p.m.

Cowin to run for attorney general

William I. Cowin of Newton has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination to the office of attorney general of Massachusetts.

Cowin announced that he had tendered his resignation, effective May 9, from the office of secretary of administration and finance for the commonwealth.

"I seek the office of attorney general," Cowin said, "because it offers an opportunity for leadership and public service that few other offices can match. The attorney general is the state's chief law enforcement officer. He is the chief legal counsel for the executive branch. He plays a vital role in combatting deception, discrimination, corruption and invasion of personal liberties."

Citing his experience in government, Cowin said, "I believe that I bring a special combination of qualifications to this office. I have spent 11 years in government. I have administered large, complex agencies. I have made decisions and exercised authority. Government has not been a hobby or a diversion for me; it is my profession."

In discussing his plans for the office of attorney general, Cowin stressed law enforcement, consumsr protection and protection of civil liberties. Cowin pledged to investigate all allegations of government corruption "thoroughly and rapidly, so that clouds of suspicion will not hang over the government or accused officials."

He promised to "expose patterns of deception and discrimination in the market place, rather than merely responding to the complaints or investigations of others," and to concentrate in utility rate cases on "promising issues, such as quality of service and discrimination among customers, rather than self-serving but unrealistic tirades."

Cowin stressed the need for protection of civil liberties.

"The Attorney General must lead in protecting the freedom of adults to say, read and do what they like, so long as the freedoms of others are not violated. He must assure that citizens can pursue their lives without being hounded by government or haunted by their past."

After graduating from Harvard Law School, Cowin spent three and one-half years in the office of then Attorney General Brooke, as assistant attorney general and chief of the Administrative Division. He spent a year and one-half as legislative assistant to Brooke in Washington, and a year as Special Counsel to Boston Mayor White before receiving appointment from Governor Sargent as Chairman of the Department of Public Utilities. He was then appointed by the Governor as the first secretary of consumer affairs, and later as secretary of administration.

Cowin, 36, lives in Newton with his wife and three children. His wife, Judith, a graduate of Wellesley College and Harvard Law School, is an attorney and former counsel to the chief justice's administrative office, Massachusetts District Courts.

School Board hears about Meadowbrook

By TOM GRAVES
Of The Graphic Staff

Acting principal William Jesdale noted some recent changes at Meadowbrook Junior High School at a Newton School Committee meeting this week.

Jesdale said that there has been a consolidation of general curriculum, and "some critical staff shifts" into skills areas.

He also said that an attempt has been made to get parents into the school. Parents observe classes and meet with Meadowbrook staff.

Monday's meeting indicated that intersection with parents has had positive results. Nancy Fleming, a mother of two Meadowbrook children, said that she is "delighted with their education here." She added that at Meadowbrook her children have met for the first time "teachers who care for them."

Another parent reported "enthusiastic support of Meadowbrook." The parent said that "my child enjoyed coming to Meadowbrook," and that this was the greatest asset of the school.

Bernard Feldstein, a parent of two Meadowbrook children, expressed pleasure at the accessibility of the Meadowbrook faculty and administration.

Jesdale said that he thought, in 1974, that "the uniqueness of Meadowbrook lies in its advisory program." This is a program which connects each student with a faculty advisor during his three years at Meadowbrook.

Marilyn Wightman, a math teacher, said that as an advisor, she felt responsible for kids' entire programs. She noted that she confers with other teachers at the school about her advisees when they are making course selections.

School Committeeman Henry Delicata asked about Meadowbrook's concern for the "social progress" of students. He asked for a definition of the expression.

George White, an English-social studies teacher, said that "how well students get along with others may have a big effect on how well they work in the school."

In response to a question from School Committee member Joan Needleman, Jesdale said that first-term seventh graders at Meadowbrook have no choice about what courses they take except for in areas such as art and metal working. He said that some choice is allowed in the second and third terms with consultation with parents, advisors and teachers.

School Committeeman Alvin Mandell expressed concern that students may not get sufficient exposure to United States history.

Jesdale commented that it would be difficult for a Meadowbrook student to avoid taking a U.S. history course.

There was also discussion of how history should be taught. One teacher remarked that "we have not yet come to a conclusion about whether histoory courses should be taught sequentially." Some history courses at Meadowbrook deal with specific periods such as the 1920's or the years between the world wars. Jesdale said that sequences have to be translated into something which makes sense for kids.

Mandel put in a plea "that before a student gets out of the Newton School System, he has some exposure to the U. S. Constitution."

Jesdale said that courses at Meadowbrook such as "Teens and the Law" do deal with the Constitution. Also, a year of U. S. history is required of all high school students before graduation.

One teacher commented that some courses look at how the life of the student is bound to thee history of his state and nation.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink said that "maybe we ought to say that there are certain areas and experiences all kids ought to have. I happen to think the American experience is one of them."

It was suggested that Meadowbrook may emphasize "fundamental lasting principals" rather than learning historical facts by rote.

Mandel noted that teacher turnover at Meadowbrook produces a flux in course offerings.

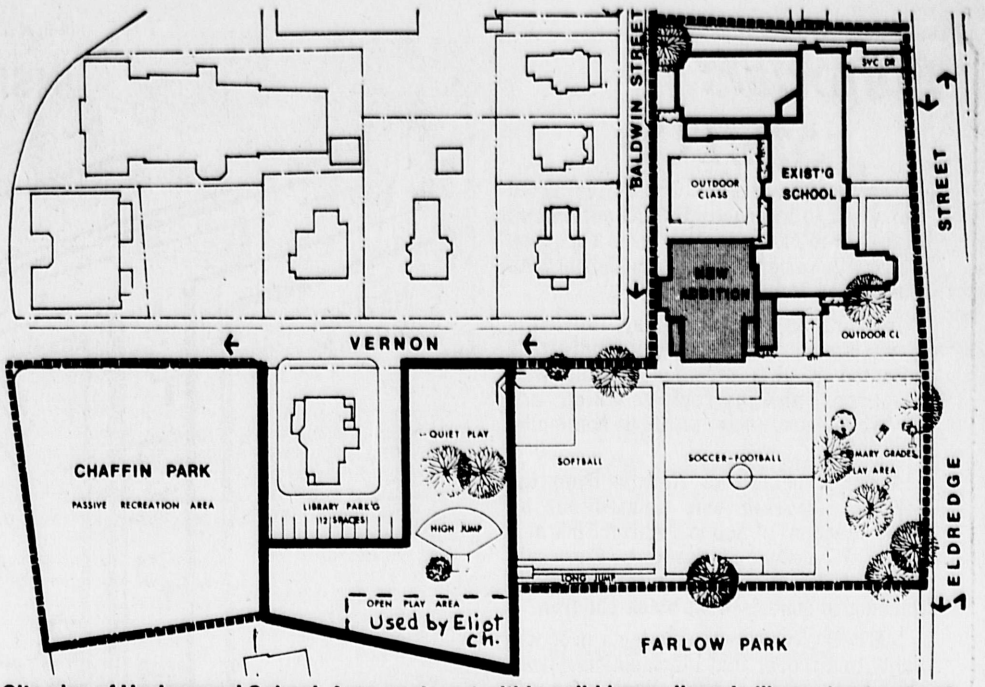

Jesdale responded that "to a degree it should. We want to encourage people on the faculty to work in aras in which they are strongest."

Jesdale added that Meadowbrook has attempted to build a "course bank" so that courses which are working may be duplicated. He said that "There should not be a major renovation of the program every time there is teacher turnover."

It was pointed out that new teachers at Meadowbrook work with already established materials.

In response to a question from Mandell, Jesdale said that Meadowbrook has paid particular heed to a seven-year math longitudinal study. "It indicated very clearly that there was an area where we were weak," Jesdale commented.

"We hope to extend more energy to kids with a low ability in math," Jesdale added. He said that it is hoped that a decrease in the seventh grade enrollment along with no cuts in the math department will help.

Site plan of Underwood School. Area enclosed within solid heavy lines is library land and will not be given to the school.

Underwood design approved

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

Schematic design plans for the $1.35 million addition and renovations for the Underwood School were approved by the aldermanic Public Buildings Committee last week, but approval of the $70,000 architects' fee for design development was held up pending results of a public hearing on the site plan May 22.

Two problems came to light at the committee meeting, neither of which was regarded as threatening to the project.

Chairman of the public library board of trustees Arthur Vershbow presented the position of the board that it will not sign over some of the land surrounding the Boys' and Girls' Library on Vernon Street to the School Department "unless we knew it was holding up the school."

It had been assumed that the land (see plan) was city-owned property and could be diverted to school use; Vershbow claimed that it is owned by the library.

The land had been planned for use for quiet play, for a high-jump area, and as an access to Chaffin Park, also to be used for quiet recreation. Both areas were shown as available for school use in plans to be presented to the state School Building Assistance Bureau when the city requests 65 per cent reimbursement of construction costs.

Ald. David Jackson disputed the library's claim to ownership of the land, and suggested that the library might simply "want to be credited with the value of that land, as having given whatever dollars to the city," against the day when there might be a new library built.

City Solicitor Howard Levine said this week he is looking into the land ownership.

The committee voted that the site plan should be amended to show the contiguous Farlow Park as available for some school uses in addition to Chaffin Park and the school's play areas.

Following up on Planning Director Charles Thomas' comment that the site plan confining the school to city-owned land "does not allow addressing all needs," mainly parking, the committee also will recommend to Mayor Theodore Mann that he "initiate contacts" with owners of three houses on Vernon Street and two on Baldwin Street indicating the city's interest in eventual purchase of the properties.

Ald. Susan Schur caused some consternation by a discovery that there appeared to be no waiver of provision for handicapped children in the new construction. The architect, the chairman of the Design Review Committee, and Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson all looked toward the School Department representative for some clarification, but none was given.

Larson said Tuesday that he will go before the Department of Public Safety to try to obtain the necessary waivers, basing his request on the fact that several schools are equipped for handicapped children.

All new public buildings must, bu state law, provide wheelchair access and have toilet facilities and water fountains designed for use by persons in wheelchairs, besides having an elevator.

The architect estimated that the total cost of including such facilities would come to not more than $80,000, including an elevator.

The Underwood School renovation and addition will take place in three phases. Completion date for the project is expected to be July, 1976.

Committee plans to recommend preengineered South auto center

Hoping to save time so that the Newton South automotive center could be in operation by the end of 1974, the Public Buildings Committee has voted to recommend asking the mayor to proceed with plans for a pre-engineered metal building.

The Public Buildings Committee denied the request of Herbert Regal, spaking on behalf of the School Committee, to appropriate money for an architect.

Regal said the School Committee "really urges that an architect be hired for this project." Regal added, "I wouldn't put this kind of addition on my house without an architect - it is in the best interests of the city to get the help of a professional."

Ald. David Jackson felt that the city would get "more space for the buck" with a metal building, which would be predesigned and would not need an architect.

The School Department, according to School Superintendent Aaron Fink, wants the minimum size that the School Buildings Assistance Bureau will approve, reportedly 2160 square feet, and has gone ahead with the study necessary to present to the SBAB for consideration of reimbursement for the auto center.

The SBAB will not approve reimbursement of an addition without a review of the entire space and program at the school.

Ald. Alan Barkin prevailed on the committee to agree to hold a public hearing on the building, so that neighbors will have an opportunity to see pictures of similar buildings and express their opinions on "what they'll have to look at every day."

The resolution of the Public Buildings Committee urging the mayor to proceed with the metal building, which is estimated to cost about $50,000 less than a masonry building ($100,000 vs. $150,000) will not negate SBAB reimbursement of 65 per cent of the cost, if SBAB approval is obtained. The SBAB will decide by June 15.

If the automotive center were built of masonry with the services of an architect, plans would have to go through the lengthy process of review by the Design Review Committee, which would add about a year to the time by which the center could be put into use.

City asked to contribute housing money

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
Staff correspondent

The Newton Housing Authority voted unanimously May 8, to go along with the recent Department of Community Affairs suggestions for building low-income family housing on Beaconwood Road. However, the project is still far from a reality.

The DCA suggested that the site be taken by eminent domain at a cost which they would cover. However, Newton is being asked to foot the $150,000 bill for site development.

If the city does not pay this amount, the Housing Authority has been directed to reject the bids for construction, and if instructed by the DCA, must sell the land it has acquired.

This cost is where Mayor Mann is balking, stating that in "original talks with the DCA there was mention of a possible pilot program" under which the state would offset this cost by payments in lieu of taxes. To date the DCA has not commented on this.

"This is the first time, that I know of, that the state has asked a city for a dollar contribution," Mann said.

Authority Vice Chairwoman Donna Berman also expressed doubt concerning Newton's contribution saying, "I am afraid of setting a precedent so that cities who can't afford it may find it impossible to build low income housing."

However, Leo Karras, newly appointed member to the NHA said "we were designated to build housing and if we don't take this step, we will be finished for a long time. I hope the administration will find some way to cover this."

The DCA had twice turned down bids on the project, taking issue with the per unit cost, $56,021 a duplex, which they feel is too high. After the second refusal, Mayor Mann, NHA Chairman James Miller and former chairman Anthony Medaglia personally paid Governor Francis Sargent a visit asking him to intervene. The result was the latest development.

Construction on Beaconwood Road has always been tied into two other sites. Victory Field and Thurston Road, by aldermanic order. The authority plans to ask the board for a seven month "permissive use" extension to give the architects, Architectes Collaborative, time to get bids on the two sites.

If the city goes along with the DCA's suggestions, the other two sites will be able to move forward independently.

Victory garden plan perishing

Although the Board of Aldermen has not even had a chance to vote on the proposal, Ald. David Jackson's plan for "victory gardens" will probably not bear fruit this year.

Commenting by letter to Jackson, Mayor Theodore Mann said he would like to limit the garden experiment to a one-year trial in a few locations, instead of the 24 sites suggested by Jackson.

The four locations chosen by the mayor were a half-acre in the Webster Conservation Area, a portion of the old city infirmary land on Winchester Street, a portion of the Pine Street dump, and a portion of the Rumford Avenue landfill site.

According to Jackson, since he first made up his list of locations, he has found that the Rumford Avenue soil is not adequate for growing.

Of the other three sites, Jackson said, the Webster Conservation Area land is being used by the MBTA for storage of material during the track reconstruction, and the Recreation Department has advised that the minibike program in effect at the infirmary site would subject gardens to vandalism.

One good site is left, Jackson said — the north end of the Pine Street dump.

The matter is still before the Board of Aldermen.

Compost still there

Has the high cost of fertilizer for your garden gotten you down? Perk up! The city of Newton has free leaf compost waiting to be put to good use. To pick up your free compost, come to the Beacon Street "snow dump" near Four Corners on any Saturday from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and be sure to bring your own containers.

This rich black compost is a valuable soil additive and conditioner. Just work it into your soil and plant your garden.

This year beat the high cost of living and plant your own garden — and use plenty of free compost.

METCO

The Newton School Committee voted this week to increase METCO enrollment next year to 200 students. This is a decision which will be beneficial to students of both Boston and Newton.

In a limited, controlled way, Newton is giving Boston students an opportunity to be educated in less crowded schools with resources and materials which are probably unavailable in their home districts.

A major benefit to Newton from the METCO program was pointed out by Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink at a recent PTA Council meeting. Fink said that "we know there is less stereotypic thinking in schools with black children."

METCO gives Newton students an opportunity to discover that black children from the city have the same feelings and needs which they have. It can help to dispel misconceptions and prejudices about blacks which may have been picked up from parents or other sources.

METCO also brings diversity to the Newton schools. Growing up in Boston is different from life in Newton. METCO can make the Newton schools a more real environment, more similar in make-up to the world outside of Newton.

The School Committee must also be commended for continuing to not charge tuition for METCO students. The METCO program has a limited amount of funds, and the charging of tuition would likely reduce the number of students who could come to the suburbs.

METCO does not cost Newton any money. The budget for the Newton program is reimbursed by the state.

Newton has carefully limited METCO enrollment to schools where additional students will not make class sizes larger than 25, and where more students will not require increased staff.

METCO Coordinator Kathy Jones has explained that the increase from a present METCO enrollment of 169 to 200 next year was not an arbitrary decision. Elementary schools have been surveyed about available space and attitudes toward METCO.

Newton accepts METCO students in only the first and second grades. This is so they may have a lengthy experience in the Newton schools.

The response of the Newton community to METCO has been gratifying. Many organizations have endorsed increased enrollment. At a recent School Committee meeting, the audience gave sustained applause to show its support for METCO.

METCO is not going to solve Boston's racial imbalance. It gives a few Boston kids a chance for a better education than they could have had at home. And it gives Newton children an opportunity to learn from people they cannot meet in their own neighborhoods.

Vandalism

The phone was ringing and ringing insistently. The people inside, an elderly couple in their 70s were too frightened to answer. The year: 1974. The place: Newton.

Why were they afraid?

The night before, on Shabbat, the Jewish Sabbath, as they lay sleeping, vandals crept up to their home and sprayed black paint from aerosol cans all over the windows forming hideous, historical swastikas.

The symbol of fear to all Jews. The symbol of death to Jews.

The vandals also left obscenities imprinted on their house.

And in a final gesture of madness, they broke the back windows on the house.

The next day, when a reporter contacted the elderly couple, the wife said she was "too shaken up to see anybody." They said, however, that the night after the devastation, they received a phone call.

The vandals threatened to come back and bomb the house. Newton police, who are covering the area and keeping the home under surveillance declined to comment on the couple's behalf. A spokesman said that there "is an investigation and no apprehensions have been made."

Why? Why did this happen? The wife thought it might have been someone their son knew . . . a son they "haven't seen in years."

But what kind of madness really prevailed that Friday night?

INSIDE OUT

Political Highlights

by James G. Colbert

Governor Francis W. Sargent and Lieutenant Governor Donald R. Dwight not only are strong enough so that they probably will be able to swim against the Democratic tide next autumn, but the likelihood is they also will be able to save other Republican candidates from being dragged down by the political undertow caused by the Watergate mess and the other related White House scandals.

Yet, about one-fifth of the state's Republicans—the most conservative sons and daughters of the GOP on the far right— are disenchanged with Sarge although it does not seem at this point that they conceivably could vote for any other gubernatorial candidates next Nov. 5.

The arch-Republicans on the extreme right believe that Governor Sargent has been too liberal, that he has not done enough to rebuild the GOP, that he has appointed too many Democrats and not enough Republians and that he has been unkind and unsympathetic to President Nixon.

By the time Sarge's consecutive Republican critics get through explaining why they are not enamored of him, they usually drop a tidy windfall of votes into his lap from listening Democrats who decide that the Republican Governor can't be all dad if he has done so much for Democrats. (Mr. Sargent's diplomatic answer is that he is the Governor of all the people of Massachusetts which happens to have substantially more Democrats than Republicans.)

Most of the Republican Governors we have known back through the years would not have tolerated the same amount of nonsense from their conservative critics in their own party that Sarge has taken.

But governor Sargent, who is never reluctant to pursue an individual vote, was in a conciliatory rather than a belligerent mood, when he appeared before a small number of conservatives in Faneuil Hall at a hearing held by the committee which is drafting a proposed platform for the June 1 unofficial Republican State Convention.

Drafting a platform for either a Republican or Democratic State Convention is always a sort of Alice-in-Wonderland procedure.

A platform usually is forgotten the day after it is adopted. A real issue such as a sales tax surfaces about every 20 years, but most of the time nobody pays any serious attention to the platform except the people who prepare it.

If the platform actually meant anything, it would be drawn up by the Governor, who is the only one who can implement it, and the June 1 convention will adopt whatever platform Governor Sargent desires it to approve—if he makes known his wishes.

Governor Sargent was too diplomatic to say that at the platform hearing. Besides, he presumably didn't want to spoil the fun of the candidates who were proposing planks for the platform. One member of that group was Carroll Sheehan, who presently at least, is opposing Francis Sargent for the Republican nomination for Governor.

Sarge was in so forgiging a mood that he told the Nixon adherents in his audience that he has neither prejudged President Nixon in the Watergate mess nor called for Noxon's resignation.

He didn't explain what he meant when he said the elevation of Vice President Gerald Ford to the Presidency would be like providing a breath of fresh air, but that, undoubtedly, was because he didn't want to offend the sensitivities of the Nixonites listening to him.

Mr. Sargent said he might not agree with everything in the platform that will be adopted but that he will help to develop it. If you understand what that means, drop us a note. It sounds like a bit of political sweet talk.

If Governor Sargent chooses to make the effort, the platform adopted at the June 1 convention will not contain anything to which he is opposed. Up to now there is no evidence that Sarge considers the platform important enough to control what goes into it.

Present indications are that Governor Sargent will best former State Commerce Commissioner Carroll Sheehan by about a 5-1 margin at the unofficial June 1 Republican State Convention.

Lieutenant Governor Dwight will prevail by an even larger margin if he is opposed by an 11th hour adversary.

Sargent and Dwight are taking nothing for franted as far as the conventio is concerned.. They are contacting every delegate. If a delegate appears to be hostile to them, the trouble-shooting Dwight takes over.

Sarge's political advisers have a problem. They went their man to win overwhelmingly at the June 1 conclave. But they don't want to see Sheehan beaten so fadly that he withdraws from the September primary.

They believe that a run against Sheehan in the primary would sharpen Sarge up for the final election and give him an additional opportunity to review his accomplishments for the voters.

Their reasoning seems sound. But they can't have it both ways. If Sheehan suffers a crushing defeat at the convention, there will be a real possibility that he will withdraw rather than go on to meet more of the same in the primary.

Jackson Could Run For President and Senate

The House of Representatives in the State of Washington has approved a measure which would allow Senator Henry M. Jackson to run for the Presidency or Vice Presidency in 1976 and at the same time stand for reelection to the U.S. Senate.

If Senator Edward M. Kennedy asks the Massachusetts Legislature to do the same thing for him, we will be convinced for the first time that Ted will seek the Presidency two years from now.

Until and unless he does that, we will stay with the school of thought which believes that Ted will yield to the members of his family who don't want him to become a Presidential contender in 1976 because they fear he may be assassinated by some kook, as were his two older brothers, John and Robert.

While Senator Jackson is the favorite of the conservative Democrats, there actually is not much likelihood he will be nominated as the Democratic candidate for President in 1976.

Democratic and Republican national conventions don't change a great deal in their political makeup over a four-year period. Republican conventions generally are controlled by the conservative wing of the GOP and Democratic conventions by the liberal element of the party.

The 1976 Democratic national convention probably will not be quite as liberal as was the '72 conclave which nominated George McGovern, but it is not likely that it will be conservative enough to tap Senator Jackson.

Senator Kennedy, of course, can have the Democratic Presidential nomination for the asking in 1976. If he decides not to run, a wide-open fight for the Presidential nomination probably would develop, and Boston Mayor Kevin H. White might well be in the middle of it.

While Ted is keeping his political options open for 1976, the weight of the evidence indicates to this observer that he will not be a candidate for the Presidency two years from now.

Ted declares that he would like to be President, but when the question is put to him, he says that if he had to make a decision now, it would be to stand for reelection to the Senate in '76.

His late, great brother, John F. Kennedy, ran for the Presidential nomination for four years. He began his drive for the 1960 Democratic national convention immediately after he was defeated by Estes Kefauver for the Vice Presidential nomination in 1956.

Ted says he will make a definitive kind of decision about his political plans by late next year and possibly earlier.

That would not leave much time for setting up slates and organizations in those states where he would contest in Democratic Presidential primaries.

It's true that the Democratic nomination for President is Ted's for the asking and taking in 1976. But if he becomes a candidate for the Presidency, he would be virtually bound to enter some Presidential primaries. His brother John contested in all of them.

Ted says his family will not have veto power over his decision on whether or not to run for President.

But you can be sure that Ted will give careful consideration to their wishes. He takes seriously his responsibilities as the only surviving male member of the Kennedy clan and as the father of a courageious young son whose leg was amputated to prevent the spread of bone cancer.

Some very important considerations stand as obstacles in Ted's path to the Presidency.

Our guess is that if he does run, his Republican opponent will be California Governor Ronald Reagan.

Go indulge in Springthing

By CYNTHIA BLACK

We're going to have our first "citywide cultural arts festival" Sunday and everyone is invited to attend.

Springthing '74 will take place from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the City Hall grounds. The day-long event will include music, art, poetry, drama and an intriguing array of craft and food items, the first real showcase of local talent.

On the menu Sunday will be Armenian, Indian and Chinese food, plus assorted pastries.

Special attention was devoted to lining up some of the more unusual craft displays. A good example is the startling artistry of Wan's Adrienne Lowenthal and her bread sculpture, pictured below.

Craft displays will include stained glass, gold nd silver

Completely Black

jewelry, paper pottery, ceramic pottery, blown glass, calligraphy, silk screens, batik work, weaving, puppets, acrylic sculpture, leather grafts and quilts.

Performing groups have also been selected to suit all tastes in entertainment.

The Highland Glee Club, a group of 40 men, plan a 30-minute program at 2 p.m. Folksinger Lisa Neustadt, a teacher at Underwood Elementary School, will give a concert and the School Department will be represented by: the Warren Stage Band, Day Stage Band, All Newton Elementary School Orchestra, Ward School Singers, Smith Family, Newton North's jazz group, F.A. Day Special Chorus and the Troubadors.

Union Grape, presenting modern dancing and folk dancing, will also perform at 3 p.m.

Drama groups will begin performances at 11 a.m. and continue on the hour through 3:30 p.m. Appearing are: Pomeroy Peanut Players, Murray Road School, Newton Country Players, Newton Theater Co., Homestead Players and Newton Jr. College Potpourri.

After sampling music, drama and exotic food, visitors will also have a chance to see an art exhibition in Memorial Auditorium. The art show was open to all Newton resident artists and will continue through June 7.

Crafts, sculpture, paintings and graphics will be featured.

And if all of this is not enough, Children's Springthing '74 will be going on from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Morning activities include games, fire engine rides, the famous moonwalk and crafts. At 1 p.m., races and games for people 6-12 will begin. Winners will receive certificates.

Most of the activities are free.

In the days remaining, all that's left to do is pray for sunshine and a big crowd.

Voter registration at Newton South May 16

On Thursday, May 16 there will be voter registration for new voters in the cafeteria at Newton South from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m.

A special feature of the Enrichment Program this week will be a "'Visit With Mark Twain" presented by Peter Allegra as Mark Twain.

Allegra has received rave reviews for his unusual and moving portrayal of Mark Twain. His unusual interpretation reenacts for the audience the way the legendary figure of Mark Twain may have thought and acted, rather than merely re-telling his stories. The performance includes costume and makeup. It is presented in a series of four vignettes.

From May 20-23 there will be a continuous showing of the French movie by Jean Paul Satre, "Les Jeux Sont Faits" (The Die is Cast). This movie, entirely in French, is directed by Jean Delannoy.

This film illustrates Sartre's philosophy that man must exercise his free will and that to do so must not depend upon the past but rather act in the present.

The public is invited to attend any of these events free of charge.

For Rabbi Shubow

To the Editor:

On the evening of December 20, 1973, I attended the Jewish festival of Hanukkah conducted by Rabbi Alvin I. Lieberman held at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Jamaica Plain along with my Jewish comrades where I heard the cantor of Temple Kehilath Israel, retell of some of his horrible experiences in Nazi Germany where he was a prisoner in the concentration camps.

He told of the glorious liberation from abject servitude by the American Armed Forces and of the wonderful humanitarian wok done by the late Rabbi Joseph Shalom Shubow, a dear and valued friend of mine, who had served as Rabbi of Temple B'nai Moshe on Commonwealth Avenue in Brighton and it brought to mind something I have neglected to do.

I had become acquainted with Rabbi Shubow as a result of activities in Veteran affairs and I learned to love to listen to the Rabbi expound in the biblical area, brining it into the contemporary area. From my acquaintance with him, I found him ever willing to involve himself in Veterans affairs and dedicate his busy life to their cause. I learned of and witnessed his tremendous and fearless leadership of his people and I especially admired him for his untiring efforts on their behalf when the American Forces reached Berlin. He did not turn his back on his people as others might have done, and being a humane man, he did all in his power to alleviate their sufferings. I am sure there are many Americans in this area who could give testimony as to the help they received at his hands. His life history is a dedicated path, as a Rabbi, Lecturer, Zionist Leader, Civic Worker, Chaplain and Veteran. He truly was dedicated to the glory of his God and his people.

And as I stood on the steps outside Temple B'nai Moshe on the day of his funeral watching the remains of Rabbi Shubow being gently and carefully lowered through an honor guard to the waiting hearse, and as it passed the Cardinal, police commissioner, congressman, governor's representative and other prominent persons, I saw a simple, ordinary working man, weeping unashamedly and uncontrollably and then I knew that Rabbi Joseph Shalom Shubow had reached and touched his people and his fellowmen!

Icame away from the funeral services very sad, but there was a ray of happiness in that I knew this great Rabbi had led a full life in the service of mankind. He was truly a great prophet in the biblical sense of the word.

Later, I reflected upon some memorial to this great man and I remembered the statue of Philips Brooks in Copley Square, Boston and I said to myself, Rabbi Shubow was another great Bostonian well deserving of a siilar tribute, but I had neglected to do anything about it and herein I should be ashamed of my nonfeasance.

Therefore, I would like to see all the friends, followers and comrades of Rabbi Shubow lend their efforts to the erection of a Statue, in honor of him on Commonwealth Avenue, in order for all the world to see and learn that this great Rabbi had passed this way and left his "footprints on the sands of time," and, until I see this in its proper location, I will feel that this dear friend and comrade of mine will have been neglected.

To the Editor:

Did you know that the Newton Chapter, American Red Cross, relies on volunteer workers to perform the bulk of the services which it provides doe rhe community?

Recently, members of the United Cerebral Palsy Foundation in Newton volunteered their time to help prepare a newsletter which was sent to Newton households. They worked diligently stuffing envelopes and stamping return addresses for the better part of a morning at the Chapter House.

As a result of their hard work, many Newton residents have been notified that the 1974 Red Cross membership and fund drive is underway. In this newsletter, Anthony Medaglia, membership chairman, stressed the need for volunteers to become actively involved in the various programs sponsored by the chapter. There are many jobs which need to be done.

The Red Cross sponsors youth programs in schools, water safety programs for children and adults, first aid courses, health programs, disaster assistance, and assistance to members of the armed forces, veterans, and their families. Another most important function of the chapter is the volunteer blood-donor program which it organizes and carries out entirely with volunteer help.

All of these programs rely heavily on you and your neighbors to provide the manpower. These programs are only as effective as you help make them. A few hours of your time a week may mean that a group of children will be taught water safety or a first aid course. Or, a few hours of driving once a month will mean that life-saving blood is delivered to hospitals. Inquire now at the Chapter House to find out what needs to be done and then volunteer to do it! Better still, apply for membership. Become involved. "Help the Red Cross help others." The American Red Cross, Newton Chapter, 21 Foster Street, Newtonville, Mass. 02160.

Freed responds

Dear Editor:

In response to "H. Levy's" letter concerning your editorial approval of my suggestion that inquiry be made into the propriety of deductions for contributions to the American Civil Liberties Union, I would just like to ask Mr. or Mrs., or Ms. Levy whether deductions should be denied (as they are) for contributions to the League of Women Voters as a "political" organization merely because LWV is engaged in promoting legislation (frequently worthwhile), but should be allowed for contributions to the ACLU, which is engaged in straightout political activities, far beyond the scope of its traditional purposes.

Incidentally, there are six Levys in the Newton phone book with first names commencing with an "H." Wouldn't it be both a little more decent and courageous on your correspondent's part to indicate which "H. Levy" it is that chooses to indulge in characterization of my own personal politics?

Grassroots indeed!

To the Editor:

As I am one of the first group of members of the Newton Coalition for New Politics, your editorial "Grass Roots" really interested me, especially the inaccuracies obtained there-in. The Coalition has always been, and still continues to be, opposed to politics as usual. We have consistently supported and endorsed non-regular politicians, we have always spoken out on important issues, and most of all we have tried to appeal to the public to join us.

The main reason why many people have not attended our meetings or taken part in some of our activities is, as you second to last paragraph so aptly phrased it, that we have not received "adequate publicity and advertising," and the main reason for this is that newspapers like the Newton Graphic have continually refused to accept articles inviting the people to events or meetings, and when you finally do consent, maybe once a year to include something in the paper, we inevitably get on the obituary page in very small print.

Clearly it is the fault of yours and other local newspapers that the public is not well informed. The Democratic Caucus, which did not attract a tremendous crowd, certainly should have had more publicity, not by press releases sent to you, but by your sending reporters to get all the information and explain fully what it was all about. I hope you will make an effort to contact the Coalition so that every citizen who is interested can take part in "grassroots" politics. Everyone is welcome at meetings, Democrats, Republicans, and Independents, and reporters and editors from the Newton Graphic.

Maiden-name bill before Senate

Senator Irving Fishman is continuing his fight for women's rights legislation. His bill authorizing a married woman to use her maiden name, which almost passed the legislature last year, is again before the Senate, after an adverse committee report was overturned.

Fishman's bill (S.1072) would authorize a married woman to retain the name she used immediately prior to marriage after filing a notice of intent to do so.

"A woman's name is a fundamental part of her identy," Fishman said. "Massachusetts common law affirms that one's legal name is that by which the individual is known in the community. Many women are known by and seek to retain their given names for personal and professional reasons. Our task is to bring statutory law into compliance with a woman's common law right to retain her birth given name after marriage."

"Recording this information at the time of marriage assures the accuracy of state records and provides the woman concerned with proof of name for identfication purposes," Fishman said.

"This legislation will eliminate unnecessary problems and confusion now encountered by women using their maiden names in matters of voter registration, credit, and other areas involving personal identification," Fishman said.

Fishman's maternity leave bill would permit a woman to apply her accumulated sick leave to that period of time when she could not work because of a pregnancy-related disability.

"Unfortunately, at the present time a majority of companies prohibit female employees from using their sick-leave time for pregnancy-related disabilities. This is in clear violation of Title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. Senate Bill 806 will guarantee compliance with the law and give women fundamental rights that have too long been denied," Fishman said.

Playground equipment repaired

The playground on Beethoven Avenue in Waban had its equipment and grounds repaired by members of Brownie Troop No. 362 and Girl Scout Troop No. 828, both of Beethoven School.

The Recreation Department and Waban Improvement Association both supported the project with Supplies and materials.

Now at the playground, everything sports a coat of red or blue paint.

Voter registration by mail asked by Cong. Drinan

Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D.;Mass.) recently urged the House of Representatives to reconsider a bill authorizing voter registration by mail.

The House defeated, 204-197, a rule which would have cleared the way for debate on final passage of the Voter Registration Act (VRA).

The VRA provides for a system of voter registration by postcard in federal elections. It would create a Voter Registration Administration in the General Accounting Office which would supervise the distribution of registration forms to eligible voters across the nation.

"Today's vote in the House must be considered a setback for this critical proposal to facilitate participation in the American electoral process. If we are to have a truly representative government, we must promote and encourage the widest possible involvement by the people in the choosing of their officials," Drinan observed.

"The number of Americans who participate in elections is appallingly low — too low in fact for a government based on the consent of the people," the Congressman noted. According to the United States Census Bureau, approximately 50 million persons did not vote in the 1972 presidential election.

In the debate on the rule, Congressman Drinan referred to a study commissioned by the National Movement for the Student Vote after the 1972 election. That study showed that 75 percent (or 37 million people) of those who did not vote in that election could not do so because they were not registered.

"The study found that non-registration was due largely to restrictive registration procedures which impose difficult and, in some cases, insuperable barriers to the right to vote," the congressman continued.

"Such obstacles place peculiar and onerous burdens on the working class, the poor, and the minorities. The study showed that these groups are disproportionately represented among the non-registered," Drinan maintained.

The study also examined the question of reforming the voter registration system. "When voters, both registered and non-registered, were asked which of four plans they preferred, the overwhelming number of them favored postcard registration. The survey estimated that, if such a system were adopted, registration would increase to 80 per cent of the eligible voters," the congressman contended. "That prognostication cannot be disregarded," he said.

During the floor discussion, Drinan stressed that passage of the Voter Registration Act would not preclude the states from liberalizing their laws in other ways. "Surely the Act would not foreclose the use, for example, of a door-to-door registration system. I would hope that enactment of this law would encourage broad-scale revision of stringent procedures so that all citizens will have the opportunity to participate in the electoral process," Drinan said.

"For too many years we have allowed overrestrictive registration procedures to burden the right to vote. Racial minorities, the working class, the disadvantaged, and the highly mobile are particularly affected by these barriers. It is time to sweep them away," Drinan concluded.

Swimming lessons

The Newton YMCA has announced that swimming lessons for children three years old to 15 years old will be offered this summer at the Chickami Recreation Center in Wayland.

Located on 25 acres at 139 Boston Post Rd., the center features an Olympic-size outdoor swimming pool with an adjacent locker room and hot shower complex. Certified YMCA instructors will teach the eight-week program, with a maximum of five children per instructor.

Separate classes are scheduled for three age-groups: 3-5 year olds (tiny tots), 6-7 year olds (tadpoles), and 8-15 year olds. Tiny tot and tadpole classes are 30 minutes in length, while the 8-15 year old groups have 45 minute classes. All classes are on Saturday mornings, with postponements due to inclement weather being rescheduled. The fee is $12 for the program.

For further information people may call the Newton YMCA at 244-6050.

Exhibition

There will be a combined synchronized swim and scuba exhibition on Monday, May 20 from 7 to 8 p.m. at the Newton North High School pool.

The exhibition will be given by members of classes taught by recreation instructors John Walsh Sr. and Beth Carleo.

Temple Reyim registration on May 19, 21

On Sunday, May 19 and Tuesday May 21, Temple Reyim members and prospective members may renew and-or register for the coming year at the Temple Office.

The officers of the temple will be available to welcome any member or new member to discuss matters pertaining to their temple membership.

At the same time, the temple will accept registration to its Hebrew school. The School is supervised by the Bureau of Jewish Education and is a member of the United Hebrew Schools of Greater Boston.

The temple has a pre-Hebrew School for children five years of age. Its elementary school has two divisions, an intensive department which helps pupils to enter the Hebrew College High School and the regular department.

Inquiries may be made by calling the school office, 527-2410.

Brandeis Club honors Cutler

Arnold R. Cutler of Chestnut Hill, a partner in the law firm of Laurie & Cutler, has been named "man of the year" by the Greater Boston Braindeis Club.

The award will be presented at a testimonial dinner Wednesday, May 29.

Cutler is a Brandeis trustee and a former senior vice chairman of the Fellows of the University and a former member of the Brandeis President's Council. He has also been an officer, trustee or director of many other civic and charitable organizations.

Sale to benefit eye research

The Newton Lions Club light bulb and white cane sale will e held Friday and Saturday, May 17 and 18 in the parking lot across from the Newtonville Star Market.

The proceeds from these sales and contributions go toward eye research.

The Newton Lions Club also sponsors lazy eye and glaucoma clinics. These are free to the public, and are conducted by trained opthalmolgists. They may detect the presence of glaucoma, which can be checked if discovered in time and treated by prescribed medication.

Chess Chatter

By ANDREW SCHMIDT

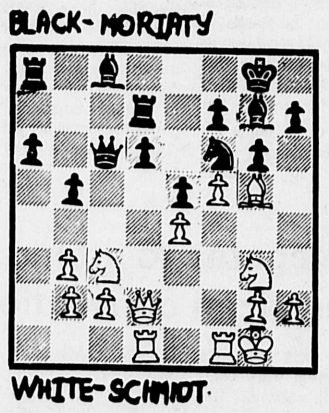

The recent Massachusetts State Championships at the Brockton High School once again proved something I have been saying to non-players for years . . . tournament chess, although fun, is very hard work. Two day tournaments such as the Mass Open, usually contain five games, two on Sunday and three on Saturday. At 8 a.m. on Saturday, April 20, the Newton delegation of John Hooker, Daniel Shiman, Robert Shor, Rudge McKenney, Louis Germani, and Andrew Schmidt left Newton for the 60 minute drive to Brockton. Although some stayed overnight, three of us returned to Newton after midnight, only to drive back down at 9 a.m. the next morning. (Six and one-half hours of sleep). That Sunday evening, after four one-way trips and five games lasting a total of some 13 hours, we were exhausted.

Perhaps the reader can understand why none of the Newtonites scored better than 50 percent! Playing in respective sections, Germani, Schmidt, Shor, and Hooker scored an even 2½-2½. Shiman and McKenney both had 1-4. With a total score of 12-18 for the Newton players, we can offer no excuses . . . just a look to the future . . . perhaps the Mass Amateur in Worcester later this summer will provide for better results.

The reader will find Schmidt-Moriarty from Round Four of this tournament presented here. In a Sicilian, Black mixes all sorts of systems with moves 6 through 8 with P-K3, P-QR3, and P-KN3. By the 20th, shown in the diagram, White has built up a winning attack with P-KB4-KB5, for 20 PxP leaves the Black Knight in a 2-for-1 attack which leaves the Bishop-pawn free for the asking. The rest is typically a mop-up on the Kingside. Black never started rolling!

Little red schoolhouse

Horace Mann honors retiring principal

Horace Mann School parents honored retiring Principal Ruth E. Chadwick with a reception at the school Friday, May 10.

Miss Chadwick is an internationally known grammar school educator. She is particularly recognized for her implementation of modern open classroom techniques with accepted sound educational methods. A Newton educator for 16 of the 34 professional years, she was principal at the Hamilton School before being assigned principal of the Horace Mann School.

The setting for the reception was the school auditorium which was elegantly transformed with silver and china appointments on damask covered tables where coffee, tea, punch, dessert and hot hors d'oeuvres were served to almost 300 guests. Four flower centerpieces, arranged by Mrs. Frances Philbrick, graced the tables, with a special bouquet at the table set out for Miss Chadwick, her parents, sisters, brother-in-law and longtime friend.

Mrs. Elizabeth Robinson designed and decorated a cake shoped as a "little red schoolhouse" surrounded by green grass and a pond, which was placed on a table located at the center of the school stage.

Citations from the City of Newton and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts recognizing Miss Chadwick's outstanding achievements in the field of education were presented by Mayor Theodore D. Mann and State Representative Peter P. Harrington.

Mayor Mann, who attended with his sister, Mrs. Thelma Barkin, introduced Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink.

Fink spoke of Miss Chadwick's worldwide acclaim and captured the essence of her contribution to the Newton School System when he stated, "Ruth Chadwick's indelible mark has made the Horace Mann school a featured stop on the map of the touring educator."

"She will be present always through her ideas and her influence will remain with all of us who have had an opportunity to know her," he said.

Dorothy Reichard, vice-chairwoman of the Newton School Committee, extended the felicitations of the committee and personally remarkedon the interest in new reading method she had derived from knowing Miss Chadwick. Other members of the School Committee who attended were: Eleanor Rosenblum, Chairwoman; Joan Needleman and Herbert Regal.

Shirley Zabchuk, chairman of the Room Mothers Council, presented the parents' gifts to Miss Chadwick; a framed serigraph of seagulls and a potter's wheel.

Photographs of the evening's events were taken by Joanne Horgan and many other parents contributed the baked delicacies.

Among the guests were parents of students who had been graduated from the Horace Mann Schoool, parents of former students of the Hamilton School;, Ward 4 Alderman-at-large Louis Egelson, friends from the Horrace Mann Apartments for the elderly, and past and present teachers.

The committee which hosted the evening's events were: Mary Alemian, school secretary; Ann Nngier, Marcy Armsby, Lorraine Aswad, Sally Benson, May Camerato, Rita Guzzi, Joan Harrington, Pat Norton, Eleanor Pambookian, Pat Redmon, Elizabeth Reynolds, Elizabeth Robinson, Joan Sakakini, Annlee Vachon, and Shirley Zabchuk.

Zazofsy debuts with symphony

Peter Zazofsky, a former resident of Newton, recently appeared with the San Francisco Symphony.

Under the direction of Seiji Ozawa, Zazofsky performed the Mendelssohn E minor Violin Concerto.

Zazofsky was chosen to debut with the symphony after winning the symphony's foundation member's competition. He was also awarded an $1800 prize.

"The San Francisco Examiner" reviewed Zazofsky's performance. "The slow movement was marvelously dreamy, but well-ordered, and the finale had a dainty playfulness that was special too," it said.

Zazofsky, 20, has been living in Philadelphia, and has been studying at the Curtis Institute under Ivan Galamian and Jaime Laredo. He is a former pupil of Joseph Silverstein, and has played solo with the Boston Pops and at Esplanade concerts.

Zazofsky is the son of George Zazofsky, former first violinist with the Boston Symphony. His father now lives in Coral Gables, Fla., and is a professor of music at the University of Miami.

Zazofsky's sister, Mrs. Steven Goldberg, lives in Newton with her family.

Zazofsky is a former Weeks Junior High School student.

Rep. Pines' amendment allows fetal research

Rep. Lois G. Pines was successful last week in amending the proposed legislation which would have severely limited medical research using fetal tissue.

The amendments will allow medical researchers and scientists to continue critical birth-defect research requiring the use of tissue from dead fetuses and will continue to permit pregnant women suspected of carrying a mongoloid or Tay-Sachs unborn fetus to undergo procedures such as amniocentesis, a test which determines the presence of these syndromes while the fetus is in utero.

Under the provisions of the amended bill, medical experimentation on live fetuses will be prohibited. Any individual convicted of violating the statute would be guilty of a felony punishable by one to five years in prison.

Prior to Pines' amendments, the bill would have prohibited procedures such as amniocentesis from being used by a physician. It would also have substantially curtailed research on birth defects.

Rep. Pines stated: "Members of the medical profession requested my assistance in softening what portended to be a real blow to future efforts in finding cures for congenital brain damage and other birth defects and many of the illnesses that plague humanity.

"The Speaker of the House, David Bartley, agreed, at my request to meet with members of the medical profession and scientists conducting birth-defects research. Our successful meeting last week resulted in the drafting of a compromise bill."

merce, was one of the people who spoke against passage of the ordinance.

He described the proposal as having "unreasonable public controls without reasonable relief for business."

He also said it was "vague" and "ambiguous."

Former alderman Harrington's amendment would eliminate existing exemptions from off-street parking requirements based on floor area of the store and would substitute a requirement that off-street parking be provided in conjunction with any new construction or change of use of the premisis.

Songer suggested that if this ordinance was passed, the Board of Aldermen "would be deciding each and every permit granted by the city."

He said the ordinance also presumes that if an office "changes hands," more parking is needed instead of less.

Songer also predicted the ordinance would create "serious operational problems for the business community, reduce the variety of services offered, and would lead to boarded up businesses."

Richard S. Bram, an owner of the property McDonald's is trying to lease also spoke in opposition.

He said it would "bring economic harm to may parties and would not be in the city's best interest."

He pointed out that neighborhood business areas are dying because of migrations of businessmen to shopping centers and said the effect of this ordinance would be "catastrophic."

Hints of noncompliance and patronage marked the hearing on proposed expansion of the Sidney Hill Country Club.

The country club is seeking to add tennis courts and paddle tennis courts to its facility, and to its coffee shop, and legalize an illegal addition to the club that has already been built.

A packed house, at least 150 people, stayed long enough Monday night to witness this hearing and, at its end, indicate their overwhelming approval of the proposed additions.

Neighbors did, however, appear to oppose the project.

Sidney Hill is asking for permission to construct five indoor tennis courts, complete with lounge and pro shop; six new outdoor clay courts and two or three paddle tennis courts, and an addition to its coffee shop.

It is also seeking approval for an addition to the card room constructed last year without aldermanic approval or a building permit.

The club's attorney, Robert Freeto, stressed that Sidney Hill management was interested in providing indoor tennis facilities because its membership wanted them and "the club suffers in the winter due to its inability to accomodate members on winter tennis."

One bone of contention brought up at the hearing wa the club's parking capacity.

As pointed out in a report on the proposal prepared by the Newton City Planning Department, Sidney Hill, eating up parking spaces with new facilities, could fall about 100 parking spaces short of those required for construction in an ordinance passed after the origin[illegible] facility was built.

The club's management has asked that the city consider modifications because it offers valet parking service and the city is considering this fact.

Areas residents opposed to the expansion cited Sidney Hill's violations in the past of its city restrictions as reason for their present opposition and alluded to possible conflict of interest on the part of some aldermen, not named, who are members of the club and will vote on this package.

Michael Moskow of 190 Dudley Rd., suggested that aldermen who are members of the club consider disqualifying themselves from voting on the expansion.

Moskow, an abutter, said the city has "safeguarded the tranquility of" his neighborhood except when discussing Sidney Hill.

Moskow said that he was involved with the club over its responsibility, per Board order, to maintain fencing and planting along its boundaries and was still not satisfied with the maintenance.

It was also indicated in the Planning Department's report that maintenance of lantings and fencing was not up to par.

"Once they (businesses) get a foothold, development continues to take place until massive density is achieved," Moskow observed.

George Buffington, representing the Oak Hill Improvement Association, also indicated his group's opposition to the expansion because of "inadequate parking, overuse of limited lot in a residential zone and the Board's continued consideration of a nonconforming use."

Buffington suggested Sidney Hill management consider "indoor-outdoor" tennis courts, courts with a roof that could be opened or closed, as a solution to its winter tennis problem.

The appearance of David Gordon, former Sidney Hill general manager, drew hisses from the partisan audience.

Gordon, describing himself as someone who "ran Sidney Hill for several years," said that he had been notified of the hearing and had also received a letter from a Sidney Hill attorney warning him that any questionable statements he might make at the hearing could subjeect him to prosecution.

Gordon, identifying himself as a Weston resident, got up before the committee and read the letter. It said that if he made statements questioning "the motives and operations" of Sidney Hill, legal remedies would be taken.

"Malice" was the otive cited for any such statements in the letter.

When Gordon finished reading it, he stated that "any man may appear at a public hearing without intimidation or threat," and moved to take his seat again. He said that he was not planning to attend the hearing until he got the letter.

The former manager was challenged by Alderman Sidney Small who quizzed him on his connection with the club and tested some "allegations," particularly the one about aldermen who are members of the club and the rumor that some have gratuituous memberships.

Small, after the hearing, acknowleged that he is a member of the club and said he was "a member long before he was an alderman."

Small also challenged other allegations made that aldermanic club members paid reduced fees or were members for free at Sidney Hill.

Earlier, he asked Moskow, after Moskow made a similar allusion, if he had ever seen the club's books.

Moskow said he had not.

Arthur Obermayer elected treasurer

Arthur S. Obermayer of West Newton was recently elected treasurer of the American Jeiwsh Historical Society at the Society's annual meeting.

President and chairman of the Board of Moleculon Research Corporation in Cambridge, Obermayer is a scientist and industralist and serves as a director of the Smaller Business Association of New England.

He also is a member of the advisory panel of the experimental research and development incentives program of the National Science Foundation and currently serves as president of the Association of Technical Professionals and vice president of the American Association of Small Research Companies.

From 1971 to 1973 Obermayer was treasurer of the Federation of American Scientists and from 1972 to 1974 was a member of the Massachusetts State Manpoer Planning Council.

Obermayer has testified on proposed scientific and technological legislation before congressional committees and White House task forces.

Christian Science lecture

What a new concept of man can mean for a changing world will be brought out in a public lecture in Newtonville Friday, May 31.

Catherine H. Anwandter of Santiago, Chile, will speak in the church auditorium, 391 Walnut St., Newtonville, at 8 p.m. under the auspices of the First Church of Christ Scientist.

Local arrangements for the event are being coordinated by Adrian Marinus of Newton Upper Falls.

METCO—

not recommended. According to METCO Coordinator Katherine Jones, the School Committee chose in 1968 to not charge tuition, unlike some communities.

The budget for the 1974-75 METCO program will be $165,004. This includes 5.6 staff positions and $74,955 for transportation. It is expected that these costs will be paid for by the state.

Newton's policy is to accept METCO students only into first and second grades.

Other conditions are that METCO enrollment will not increase class sizes beyond 25 students, and will not cause new staff positions. An attempt is made to send at least five METCO students to every school which participates in the METCO program.

Ms. Jones reported that a survey was sent to elementary schools this spring to learn what space exists. It also attempted to find out what the attitudes of schools and their communities are toward the METCO program.

Annette Drater, a senior at Newton North High School, talked about her experiences in the METCO program. She said that it was a "very rewarding experience."

School Committeeman Alvin Mandell said that he had heard reports that METCO students in the junior high schools and high schools are not friendly, and tend to congregate by themselves.

Ms. Drater replied that METCO kids at Newton North do tend to stay together, but that they do have white friends. She suggested that discussion could alleviate hostility.

Ms. Drater said that she had to get accustomed to Newton. She noted that from A's and B's in Boston she went to C's in Newton before getting her grades back up again.

Ms. Drater, who said she was involved in METCO for seven or eight years, is from Roxbury, and reportedly must get up to go to school at 6 a.m. in the morning.

The School Committee discussed its policy of not charging tuition for METCO students.

School Committeeman Herbert Regal said that "it seems to me that we recover all our out of pocket costs. If we charged tuition, it would be making a profit on it."

Mandell asked that the increase in METCO enrollment and the METCO budget be taken up separately. He said that he favored the increase to 200, but added that "we ought to act like practical people and get the state to pay some extras." He asked help for the Newton taxpayer.

School Committeeman Gerard Byrne asked what the inplications of taking tuition money would be. Ms. Jones replied that Newton would be less likely to get state money for services.

Regal commented that "if we charge tuition, it ultimately means that the total number of METCO kids going to the suburbs will be fewer."

It was pointed out that METCO has limited amount of money available.

Mandell said that he did not advocate collecting total tuition cost (approximately $1,700). He suggested that 50 per cent be collected.

School Committeeman Henry Delicta said that he wanted "to make sure that the taxpayers get as much as they can."

School Committee chairwoman Eleanor Rosenblum remarked that "it has been noted that Newton does collect its expenses." She added that Newton reaps benefits from the program.

School Committeewoman Dorothy Reichard said that METCO provides a "very positive educational experience" for Newton Children.

School Committeewoman Joan Needleman said that Newton is not keeping any more schools or staff because there are children coming in.

Mandell eventually withdrew his amendment that the METCO budget he passed separately, and the administration's recommendation was passed.

Numerous organizations had expressed support for the increase in METCO enrollment. They included Black Citizens of Newton, Newton Citizens for Education, the Newton League of Women Voters, THE PTA Council, the Newton Teachers Association, and the Newton Community Relations Commission.

Audience members at the School Committee meeting also showed support of the METCO program.

Masucci named director of sales

Richard Masucci, Marlboro, has been named director of sales of the Marriott Motor Hotel in Newton, according to Lewis Sherer, general manager.

Masucci comes to the Newton Marriott from the Atlanta Marriott Motor Hotel where he was convention sales manager. Previously, he had been with the national sales office for the Marriott Motor Hotel Corporation in Arlington, Va.

A native of Wilton, Conn., Mascucci is a graduate of Graceland College in Lamoni, Ia., in business and economics.

Masucci resides at 2810 Briarwood lane in Marlboro with his wife Janice and daughter, Reanna, 6.

Piano recital

Stephen Mosca of Watertown will give a piano recital at the College Club, 40 Commonwealth Ave., Boston on May 19 at 3 p.m.

Mosca is a student of Maria-Pia Antonelli of Newton.

Audubon nature walk

The Massachusetts Audubon Society will sponsor bird walks throughout the state Saturday, May 18, as a climax to Audubon Week.

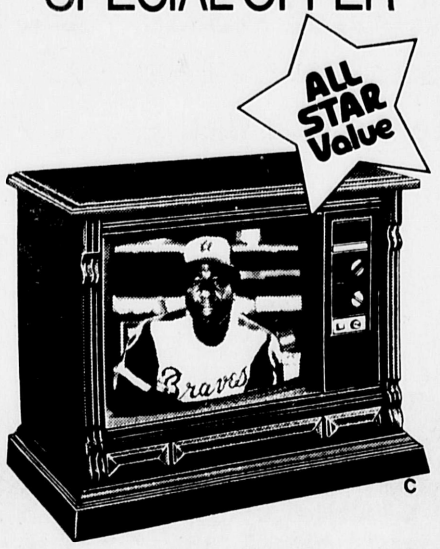

The Newton Walk will start at 8 a.m. at the Oak Hill School playground, Wheeler Road.

The walk takes place at the height of the spring migration when the countryside is at its prettiest. It offers birding and nature enthusiasts an opportunity to get together to enjoy the promise of spring and find out a little more about natural history.

The walk is informal and fun and open to everyone. The Newton Walk is being led by Philip Shapiro. For more information call 332-6487.

Lung Association marks 53rd year

The Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association celebrated two anniversaries at its annual meeting held on May 7, at the Club Car Restaurant, Norwood. Primarily, the Association celebrated its 53rd year as the Christmas Seal agency, a non-profit voluntary health organization. Secondly the group noted its first year under its new name, the Lung Association. This name, changed from the Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, connotes the wider aims of the Association, the prevention and control of all lung diseases.

Newly re-elected officers include: President, Dr. Marjorie A. C. Young Professor of Health Education at the Harvard School of Public Health, Boston; Vice-President Boston businessman S. Alan Becker of United Business Service; Secretary, Mrs. Howard T. Dickson of Wellesley; Treasurer, Herbert P. Dane of Brookline; and Assistant Treasurer, William F. Peters of Westwood

A highlight of the annual meeting was the speaker for the evening, Paul Alvarado, regional director of the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health, a division of H.E.W. Alvarado stressed the accessibility of his office to the public and noted that his job was to insure the safety and health of industrial workers. He stated that even though the United States is foremost in its level of technology it is behind other countries in providing safe working conditions for its workers

INSTRUCTOR at Academy of Physical and Social Development in Newton Centre works with pupil on a gymnastic feat

Girl gymnastics at camp in Stoughton

Ever since Olga Korbut and her teammates thrilled audiences of millions during the TV broadcasts of the last olympic games, women's gymnastics has been on the upsurge in America. Girls are attracted toward gymnastics because those all-star gymnasts not only are slim and well-muscled but also are so poised and self-confident.

The Academy of Physical and Social Development in building self-confidence since 1954, but girls' gymnastics is a new field for them.

In 1971 the Academy founded its gymnastics program specifically to answer requests from the families of male students. Now the Academy plans to portion off a part of its 11½ acre camp in Stoughton sheerly for girls' gymnastics.

The director of the program, Tony Annesi says, "We have always tried to specialize with the beginner and low intermediate at the academy gymnastics program and the camp will follow suit. Other activities will be offered, there will be plenty of swimming, for incstance, but the main daily occupation of the girls will be the improvement of gymnastics skills."

The original part of this gymnastics program is that it does not push competition or heavy training. "We try to make the girls feel good about themselves and feel good about what they are learning. This is important especially with the young girls, and doubly important with novices. It is easy to make a beginner feel uncoordinated or follish. Much more difficult, but much more worthwheil to make those who may be uncertain about their abilities in gymnastics to feel at ease with us and with themselves."

The Academy has become famous because of its unique work in physical and psychophysical therapy, but according to co-director Martin Karlin, "Most of the kids at the Academy are here for no more complex reason than to learn physical skills in a non-pressured atmosphere."

This is especially true of the kids in the gymnastics program. All the girls are treated like friends and the instructors try to relate to eah girl on an individual level, often giving one-on-one instruction if the instruction given in the small-student group is not enough.

Gymnastics is important, but at the Academy the gymnasts come first.

Works like millions of tiny hoes to make your "inflation garden" a growing success.

"GRAND PRIZE® Gypsum improves drainage, too," reminds Jerry Baker, America's master gardener and author of "Plants Are Like People"
Now there's no need for heavy hoeing and digging to break up compacted soil. Just spread this natural mineral on your garden this Spring. Then water it in and let nature do the hard work, naturally. GRAND PRIZE Gypsum aerates hard-pan soil so it can breathe. Helps flower and vegetable seeds germinate faster and roots grow deeper. Allows costly fertilizers to do a better job, too. In fact, GRAND PRIZE adds its own sulfate sulfur and soluble calcium to soil; two nutrients essential to healthy plant growth. In the words of Jerry Baker: "Gypsum should be applied to all gardens, lawns, trees, shrubs and beds if the soil is the least bit hard or compacted." Get GRAND PRIZE at your garden center or hardware store It's the easiest way to get hoeing!

Batik work at main library

"I like to make things that take part in daily life, things we tough and use. I try to make things in the simplest forms, that they may serve as many uses as possible. Their decorations, however are made as fine and rich as my skill allows," explains Jane Steinberg of Newton whose intricate, subtle and elegant selection of "Batik Works" adorns the exhibit space on the first floor of the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre street, Newton Corner now through May 31.

"The ability to sew crossed with dissatisfaction with available fabric designs, produced my craft, batik," continues Mrs. Steinberg, a skilled craftswoman now having her first one-woman show in Newton.

Mrs. Steinberg works either with fundamental geometrical elements in their infinite variations and rhythms, or with very simple floral abstractions, with their opportunity for endless variety.

Her works, wall hangings, quilts, oversize floor pillows, couch cushions and clothing have a kind of directness and clarity, unlike the typical batik work that is soft and amorphous.

She often uses rich purples, maroons and greens, combining them with unusual clear soft colors, that are reminiscent of Medieval tapestries. Other works, pillows of mellow oranges andyellows, muted blues and greens, glow with warmth.

Two hangings, Kelp No. 1, and Kelp No. 2 were inspired by photographs of underwater sea life. They are worked on rich velvets, have a great feeling of depth and mystery, and like most of Mrs. Steinberg's works convey a luxurious feeling of elegance.

A graduate of Wellesley College, with a B.A. in art history, and a fulbright scholar who studied at the University of Rome, Mrs. Steinberg has participated in several group shows, including the Massachusetts Association of Craftsmen, the Worcester "Crafts Now" show, the Dickelman Gallery exhibits in Boston, and the Jacksonville Art Museum in Florida. Currently she exhibits with the Society of Arts and Crafts on Newbury Street, Boston and maintains a studio in her home.

Jane Steinberg and her husband Michael, a "Boston Globe" music critic, live on West Newton Hill with their two boys, Sebastian, fifteen, and Adam, thirteen, both students at Meadowbrook Junior High School.

Complementing the "Batik Works" exhibit are a selected group of books from the library's extensive crafts collection. The Steinberg exhibit remains on view through the end of May.

Recreation maintenance crew busy

The Newton Recreation Department's 33-man maintenance crew is busy all year round, but the spring brings on stepped-up activity in preparation for the upcoming recreation season. The department maintains 68 regulation and junior sized baseball and softball diamonds.

Forman Frank Shea oversees the work of three carpenters, a mechanic, maintenance men, three men who handle grass cutting chores, and seven others who work to keep facilities operating at peak efficiency.

The spring cleanup starts as soon as the frost is off the ground. The first task is the grooming of the many baseball fields under the jurisdiction of the Recreation Department.

The diamonds are scarified and sub-soil added where neede to get the fields into first class condition. The scarifying treatment is possible because the Maintenance Department, using ingenuity and the services of its carpenters and mechanics, converted an obsolete mower into an efficient and time saving scarifier.

The first diamonds to be readied for use are those used by Newton North and Newton South High Schools. Newton North, because its diamonds have been replaced by the new school building, plays its home games at Lincoln Field, the junior varsity plays at the Auburndale Playground and the sophomore nine, plays at the West Newton Common.

The baseball field at South High is a so-called wet field because of drainage problems, so the varsity and junior varsity often play early season games at the Upper Falls Playground while the sophomores use the Newton Centre Playground diamond.

The Recreation Department is also responsible for the Allison Playground baseball field used by Newton Junior College, and the Newton Catholic School's home field at Cabot Park.

In addition, there are the five Little League major diamonds to be maintained. They are at Richardson, Newton Centre, Albermarle, Lyons and Cabot. There must also be many junior diamonds for Little League farm teams to play.

The number of fields is hiked by the varsity and junior varsity diamonds at the ccity's five junior high schools and the five softball fields used continuously five days a week as part of an extensive program conducted by the Recreation Department.

All fields have to be marked, as do the soccer and lacrosse fields at the high schools and junior highs.

The fact that all fields are used to capacity poses a problem for those charged with maintenance. According to Frank Shea, the only time new grass seed gets any start is between Aug. 10 and Sept. 10. Heavy use in early spring prevents establishment of newly germinated seed.

The Maintenance Department has two seven-gang mowers and one five-gang mower to cut some 360 acres of grass once a week. It is also responsible for marking fields, some every morning, five days a week. The extent to which some fields are used is emphasized by the fact that when the marking crews arrive at fields at 7 a.m., some teams are already practicing.

One of the greatest problems the Maintenance Crew must face is littering and vandalism. Bottles, cans and paper account for most of the littler, while about half the saplings planted each year are destroyed. Recently, many trash barrels were stolen and chains used to keep vehicles from entering specific areas are always handy targets for vandals.

One of the first signs of spring is the opening of the 48 blacktop tennis courts. Many of these are used as skating areas during the winter and must be drained, dried and air brushed before the nets are installed, this year in March.

Most of the city's clay courts were opened before April 19, and the remaining four a week later. Each spring these courts must be scarified, fine raked, rolled and surfaced with red marble dust.

There are two clay courts at Cabot in Newtonville; two at Auburndale Playground; two at Hawthorn in Nonantum; five at Brewer in Newton Centre; and four at Burr Park in Newton Corner.

Next comes the preparation of the swimming areas, beginning with Gath Pool. Some four or five feet of water remains in the pool during the winter to counter-balance the pressure of the ground water. This must be pumped out, the sides washed down with a chlorine solution. After this, the pool must be dried, and the sides scraped and repainted with some 50 gallons of rubber-based swimming pool paint. Once this has dried, it takes 24 hours to fill the pool.

Preparing Crystal Lake begins with painting the 24 x 24 foot raft and chipping and zinc chromating the tanks, after which they are also painted with a rubber base paint. The 15 to 16 docks and piers, each weighing four or five tons, constructed of a special rot-resisting wood, are then put into the water.

The next piece of equipment to be handled is the aqualator, a water circulating machine installed several years ago. This sends water from the swimming area out to the center of the lake and brings in fresh water. This vital piece of equipment must be thoroughly checked out before being installed for the season.

Among the many other duties facing the maintenance crew during its 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. work day, is looking after the city's two major picnic areas at Auburndale and the Cold Spring Playgrounds. In addition to the many family picnics in the two areas, some 200 to 250 major picnics are scheduled by various groups during the season.

The Recreation Department is also charged with construction and maintenance of some 70 jump pits at the city's many schools.

Recreation maintenance is a full time proposition, but spring is an especially active time for the maintenance crew.

Tennis lessons planned

A new program of adult tennis lessons has been scheduled by the Newton Recreation Department.

The program, scheduled to begin next week at the beginner and intermediate level, will include the fundamentals, sch as grip, stroke, backhand, forehand and service. It will be held at the Newton Highlands tennis courts on Winchester St., Newton Highlands. Beginning on Tuesday, May 21, there will be two, three-week, six lesson courses, two hours a week at the cost of $5.

One series of classes will be held Wednesdays and Fridays, and the other Tuesdays and Thursdays. The hours for both will be 10 to 11 a.m. and 11 to noon, and from 6 to 7 p.m. and 7 to 8 p.m.

The first program is already better than half full, while a second series scheduled to start on June 11, is now being registered for People may call the Newton Recreation Department at 969-3171 for further information, or to register.

Women's Summer Basketball

Girls 16 years and older interested in playing in the Newton Recreation Department's summer city basketball league are invited to attend a meeting at the Recreation Department office, 70 Crescent St., Auburndale, Tuesday, May 21, at 7:30 p.m. Rules, regulations and rosters will be distributed at this meeting.

League play will begin the third week in June and games will be played at Cabot, Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:30 and 7:30 p.m.

Suburban League Basketball

Recreation Supervisor Fran Towle asks all girls 16 years and over wishing to play on a team representing Newton in the Suburban Basketball League to contact her at 969-3171.

Women's Twi-softball

The Women's Twilight Softball League will open its season with a triple header at the Albemarle Playground on Sunday, May 19. The games will begin at 4:15, 6:15 and 8:15 p.m. The eight-team league will play at Albemarle regularly on Sundays and Wednesdays, and there will be some games on Mondays. Once the Little League season winds up, some of the games will be played at the Lyons Playground

Informal Softball

Informal softball activities for women will begin at the Hamilton School on the diamond next to Grove Street. The program, conducted by Jean Cole, will be held Mondays at 6 p.m. and continue through June 10.

Girls' Suburban Softball

Girls interested in playing in the Suburban Softball League should contact Fran Towle at the Recreation Department, 969-3171. The team will represent Newton, and will play against teams from surrounding towns, such as Arlington, Framingham, Waltham and Lexington. Players must be 16 years of age or older.

Exercise and Dance Class

Beginning the week of May 20 the Newton Recreation Department is conducting an exercise and dance class for women at the Newton Centre Field House.

A five-week program, directed by Amy Morse, will start on Tuesday, May 21. The classes will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. There is a charge for the series. For further information, call 969-3171. To register, merely give your name and address.

Junior College elects students

Newton Junior College has announced the results of student elections, which were held May 2 and 3.

Those elected are as follows: president of Student Council, Nazzareno Leone; treasurer, Beverly A. Prescott; secretary, Ausrey SoleCosta; and Sophomore representatives, David Gudejko and Curtis J. Arata. All newly elected officers are residents of Newton.

Freshman representatives to the Student Council will be elected shortly after the beginning of the first semester of the academic year 1974-1975.

Memorial service

Metropolitan District Council No. 3, Middlesex County, of the Massachusetts Department of Disabled American Veterans will hold its annual memorial services at 2 p.m., Sunday, May 19 at the Newton Memorial Auditorium, Newton City Hall, Newton Centre.

Acting as host chapter this year for the fifteen chapters comprising Metropolitan District Council No. 3, will be Chaplain William J. Farrell, Chapter 23, Disabled American Veterans.

There will be a special ceremony honoring the gold star mothers and fathers of Newton during the memorial service. All gold star families who have not yet been contacted are invited to participate in this service.

The public is invited to join the Disabled American Veterans in this service of remembrance.

Report submitted on youth corps program

Anthony J. Bibbo, executive director of the Newton Community Service Centers Inc. has announced that the activity report submitted recently by Project Director Alfred DiBennedetti indicates that 214 different individuals have participated in the Neighborhood Youth Corps In-School Program this current year.

The program, designed to serve Newton-Wellesley and 14 additional surrounding communities, is federally funded through the Department of Labor and administered by the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. Currently, 184 youths from this area are enrolled in the program. Among this group, 72 are from the Newton and Wellesley communities.

Salaries of enrollees are met through the contract. Youths are paid at a rate of $2 per hour and may work up to 15 hours per week in a public or non-profit agency. Among some of the work sites in Wellesley are the School Department, Youth Employment Service, library, the Youth Center coordinator office and other sites throughout the community.

Each site insures adult supervision and a positive learning experience for the enrollee. The participants are ages 14-21 and through their involvement, are able to gain supportive services, continue or resume their education, and improve their employability through paid work experience.

For additional information on the Neighborhood Youth Corps Program, people may contact the office at 527-4884.

Flags available for decorating graves

United States flags, suitable for the decorating of graves of veterans are available at the Veterans' Services Dept., Newton City Hall, Carleton P. Merrill, Veterans' Agent, has advised.

The 12x18 inch flags will be provided at no charge to citizens of Newton for the purpose of grave decoration. Merrill further advised that the Newton Veterans Lot at the Newton Cemetery would be attended to by members of the Wm. J. Ferrell Chapter No. 23, Disabled American Veterans, with flags being placed upon all graes in the Lot.

The veterans' agent has advised that if it is not possible for the next of kin of a deceased veteran to place a flag upon a grave in a private lot at the Newton Cemetery, he may contact the Veteans' Services Dept., Newton City Hall and arrangements will be made to have the flag placed

The agent also mentioned that the Veterans' Service Dept. would place flags on the graves of veterans buried in the old city cemeteries at Centre and Cotton streets, Newton; Needham street, Newton Highlands and River street, West Newton.

Jo Brewer retires as president of pen women

Jo Brewer of 300 Islington Rd., Auburndale, was hostess Friday, May 10, to the Wellesley Branch, National League of American Pen Women, as members elected officers for the next two-year term.

Mrs. Brewer, outgoing president, turned the gavel over to Mrs. David W. (Christina G.) Laurie of Wellesley. Among members present was Mrs. Loy L. Long of Auburndale.

The guest speaker was a member of the Charleston, W. Va., Branch, NLAPW, Miss Mildred Jones Keefe. Before her retirement she was director of drama and fine arts at Greenbrier College in Lewsburg, W. Va. she had as her subject, "The Cultural Life of Russia, Old and New."

Library seminar on May 21

The Newton Free Library's seminar, "Fiction and Psychiatry," led by Dr. Michael Sperber, a psychiatrist affiliated with the Harvard Medical School, meets for its final session Tuesday, May 21 at 7:30 p.m. in the Trustees' Room at the Main Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner, Mass.

The seminars, a series of five discussions open to all interested citizens, have provided opportunities for open-ended informal discussions of the issues of every day living as well as the relationship between fiction and psychiatry.

The readings have been organized around the concepts of guilt and shame and have included discussions of Conrad's "Lord Jim," Chekov's "The Darling," "Portnoy's Complaint" and Crane's "The Red Badge of Courage."

Sperber lives in Newton Centre with his wife Renee and their two children, Lisa, two, and Jeffrey, five.

Homeless-

said, but the apartment must meet minimum city codes for wiring, plumbing, and so on, and would be inspected by the city before an occupancy permit is given. Most low-rent apartments would not meet standards.

Quinn said that Leslie had applied for housing about two years ago. The Authority tried to reach her since then but was unable to locate her, Quinn said.

The Authority tries to add to its listing of landlords willing to participate in its leased-housing program by sending letters of request to churches and real estate firms, but does not go out and look at advertised apartments. The Housing Authority has a two-year waiting period for its present housing, all its family housing is leased from apartment owners.

Jane Pitt, director of the city's Department of Human Resources, said about Leslie's case, "Some system has to be worked out in this city to help with this kind of thing."

In the past two weeks, Ms. Pitt said, Human Resources has had five requests for emergency housing, but has no means of locating reasonably priced, available apartments.

Carleton Merrill, veterans' agent, was approached about Leslie, since her husband was in the service. But his dishonorable discharge prevents her from receiving any benefits.

Merrill, who often works behind the scenes in such cases, whether or not the person in trouble is a veteran, said he had talked to eight or ten real estate firms, but none had apartments at low enough rental.

He, too, deplored the lack of resources in the city for emergency housing, and has been meeting with Ms. Pitt on trying to reach real estate firms.

Since Leslie's evection, her social worker has left the welfare department, and she has been assigned no regular worker. Jane Pitt said that if the welfare department doesn't come through with a social worker her department will at least meet with Leslie and counsel her.

Meanwhile, Leslie and Jessica are adrift.

And the question keeps recurring—how can this have happened, and what can be done now?

Ethnicity-

"How a teacher sees him or herself can interfere with the good things going on in a classroom."

Andelman had the audience attending this session break up into subgroups to siscuss how they felt about ethnicity and how they rated their own ethnic identity. One questionnaire had to be marked Strongly Agree, Agree, Disagree, Strongly Disagree.

Some statements for thought were:

1/8. Ethnic groups add group identity should be encouraged in our American democracy.

1/4. People who focus on ethnic identity are "covering up for some deficiency.

3/8. All ethnic groups which have the desire and-or the need should be able too establish their own school clubs and associations and control their memberships and policies.

Those attending the course also had the opportunity to har some national experts. Among them were Newton resident, author and professor, Marshall Sklare, who is a well known expert on the Jewsh community and has written "America's Jews."

Another speaker was Dr. Richard Gambino who recently appeared on the Today Show to discuss his new book, "Blood of My Blood," a work about Italian-Americans.

Other speakers were Philip Perlmutter, New England director of the American Jewish Committee; Professor John Donovan, Boston College; Professor Frederick Busi, U. Mass. (Amherst); Msgr. Geno Baroni, executive director, National Center for Ethnic Affairs; Richard Rand, N. E. Director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Perlmutter, like most of the other speakers felt that ethnicity should not disappear. He felt it provided a convenient way for people to organize themselves, provides a sense of security, a sense of self steem and a way of fulfilling one's identity.

One delightful aspect of the course was the coffee-break during which ethnic refreshments were served. The audience munched on Irish soda bread, Greek, Italian and East European pastries, and bagels.

Twenty percent of the funding for the course came from Newton schools and 80 percent from outside agencies. The largest single contributor was the Lieutenant Simmons-Gutman Foundation. Other contributors were the National Conference of Christians and Jews, American Jewish Committee and the Massachusetts Committee for Education in Human [illegible]R The Massachusetts Teachers Association also provided materials.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparalleled sound sensation crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation

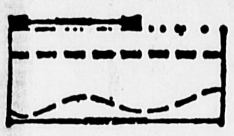

1 You never have to thread or even touch the tape

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button

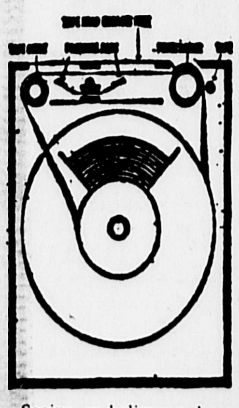

3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes

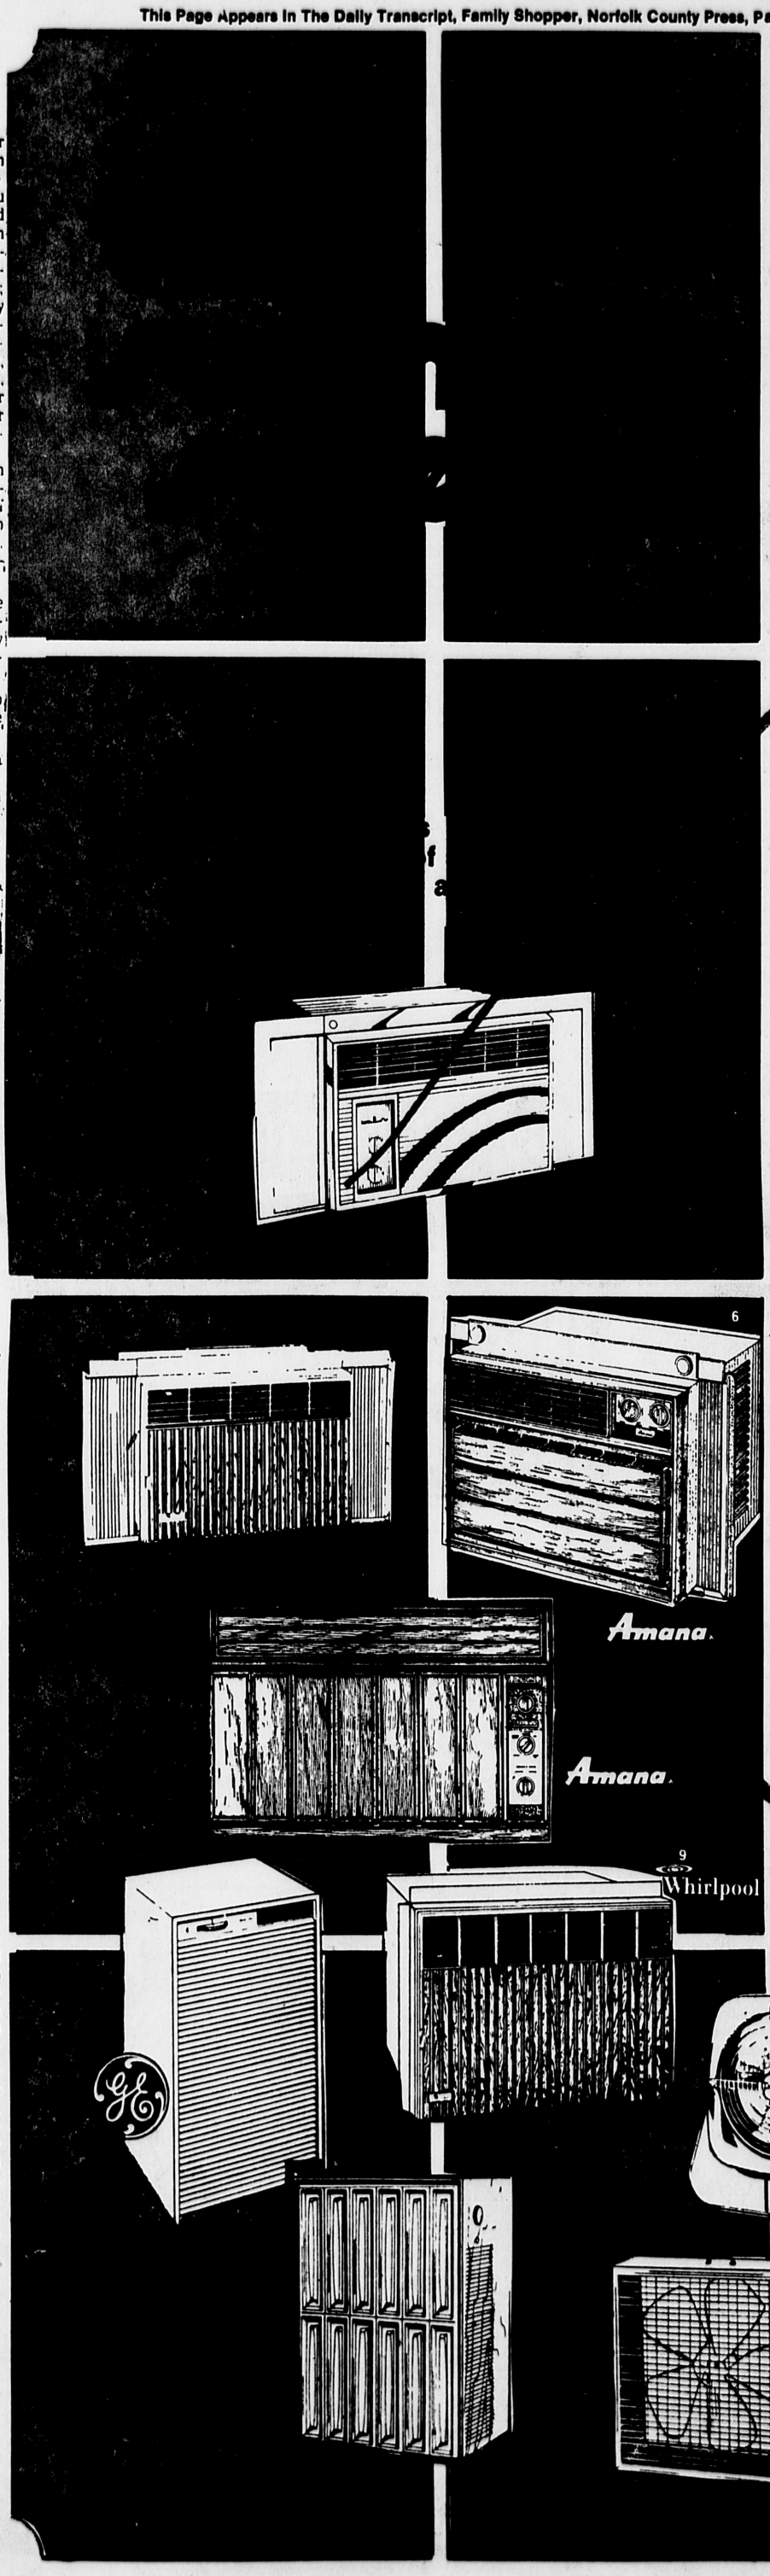

How does a tape cartridge work? Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.

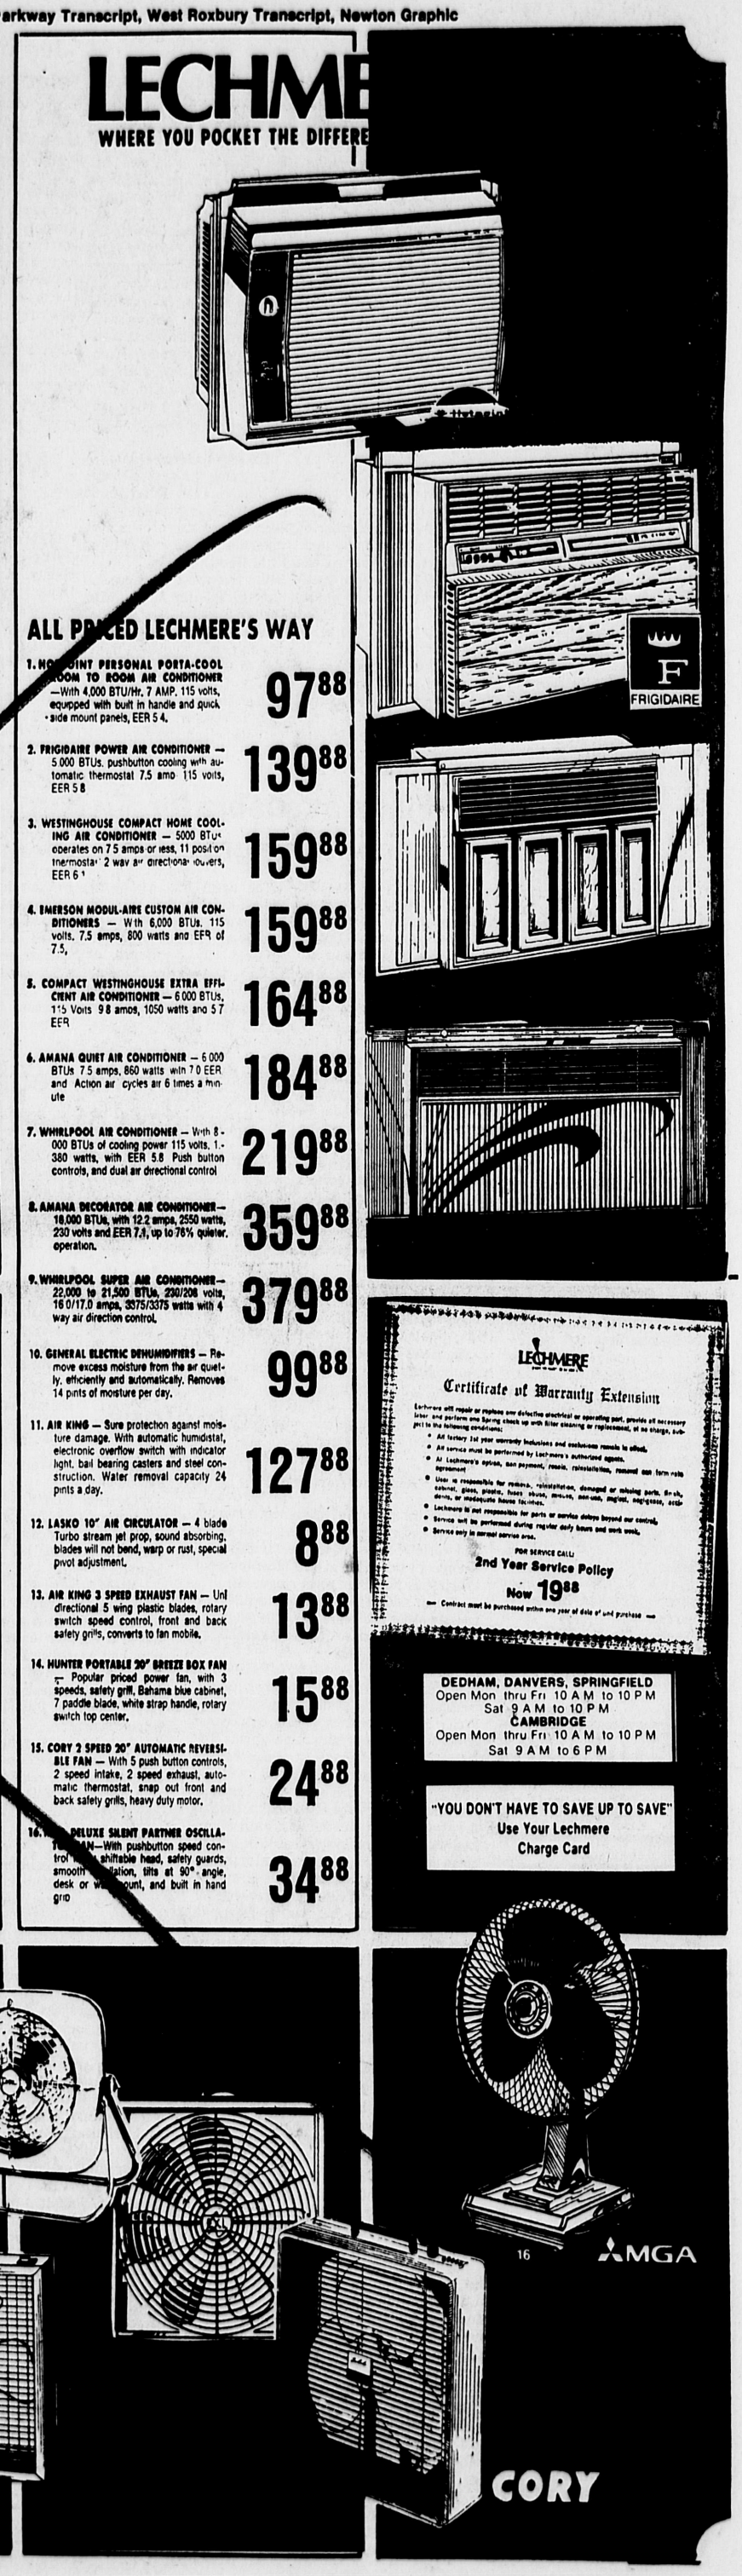

Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments

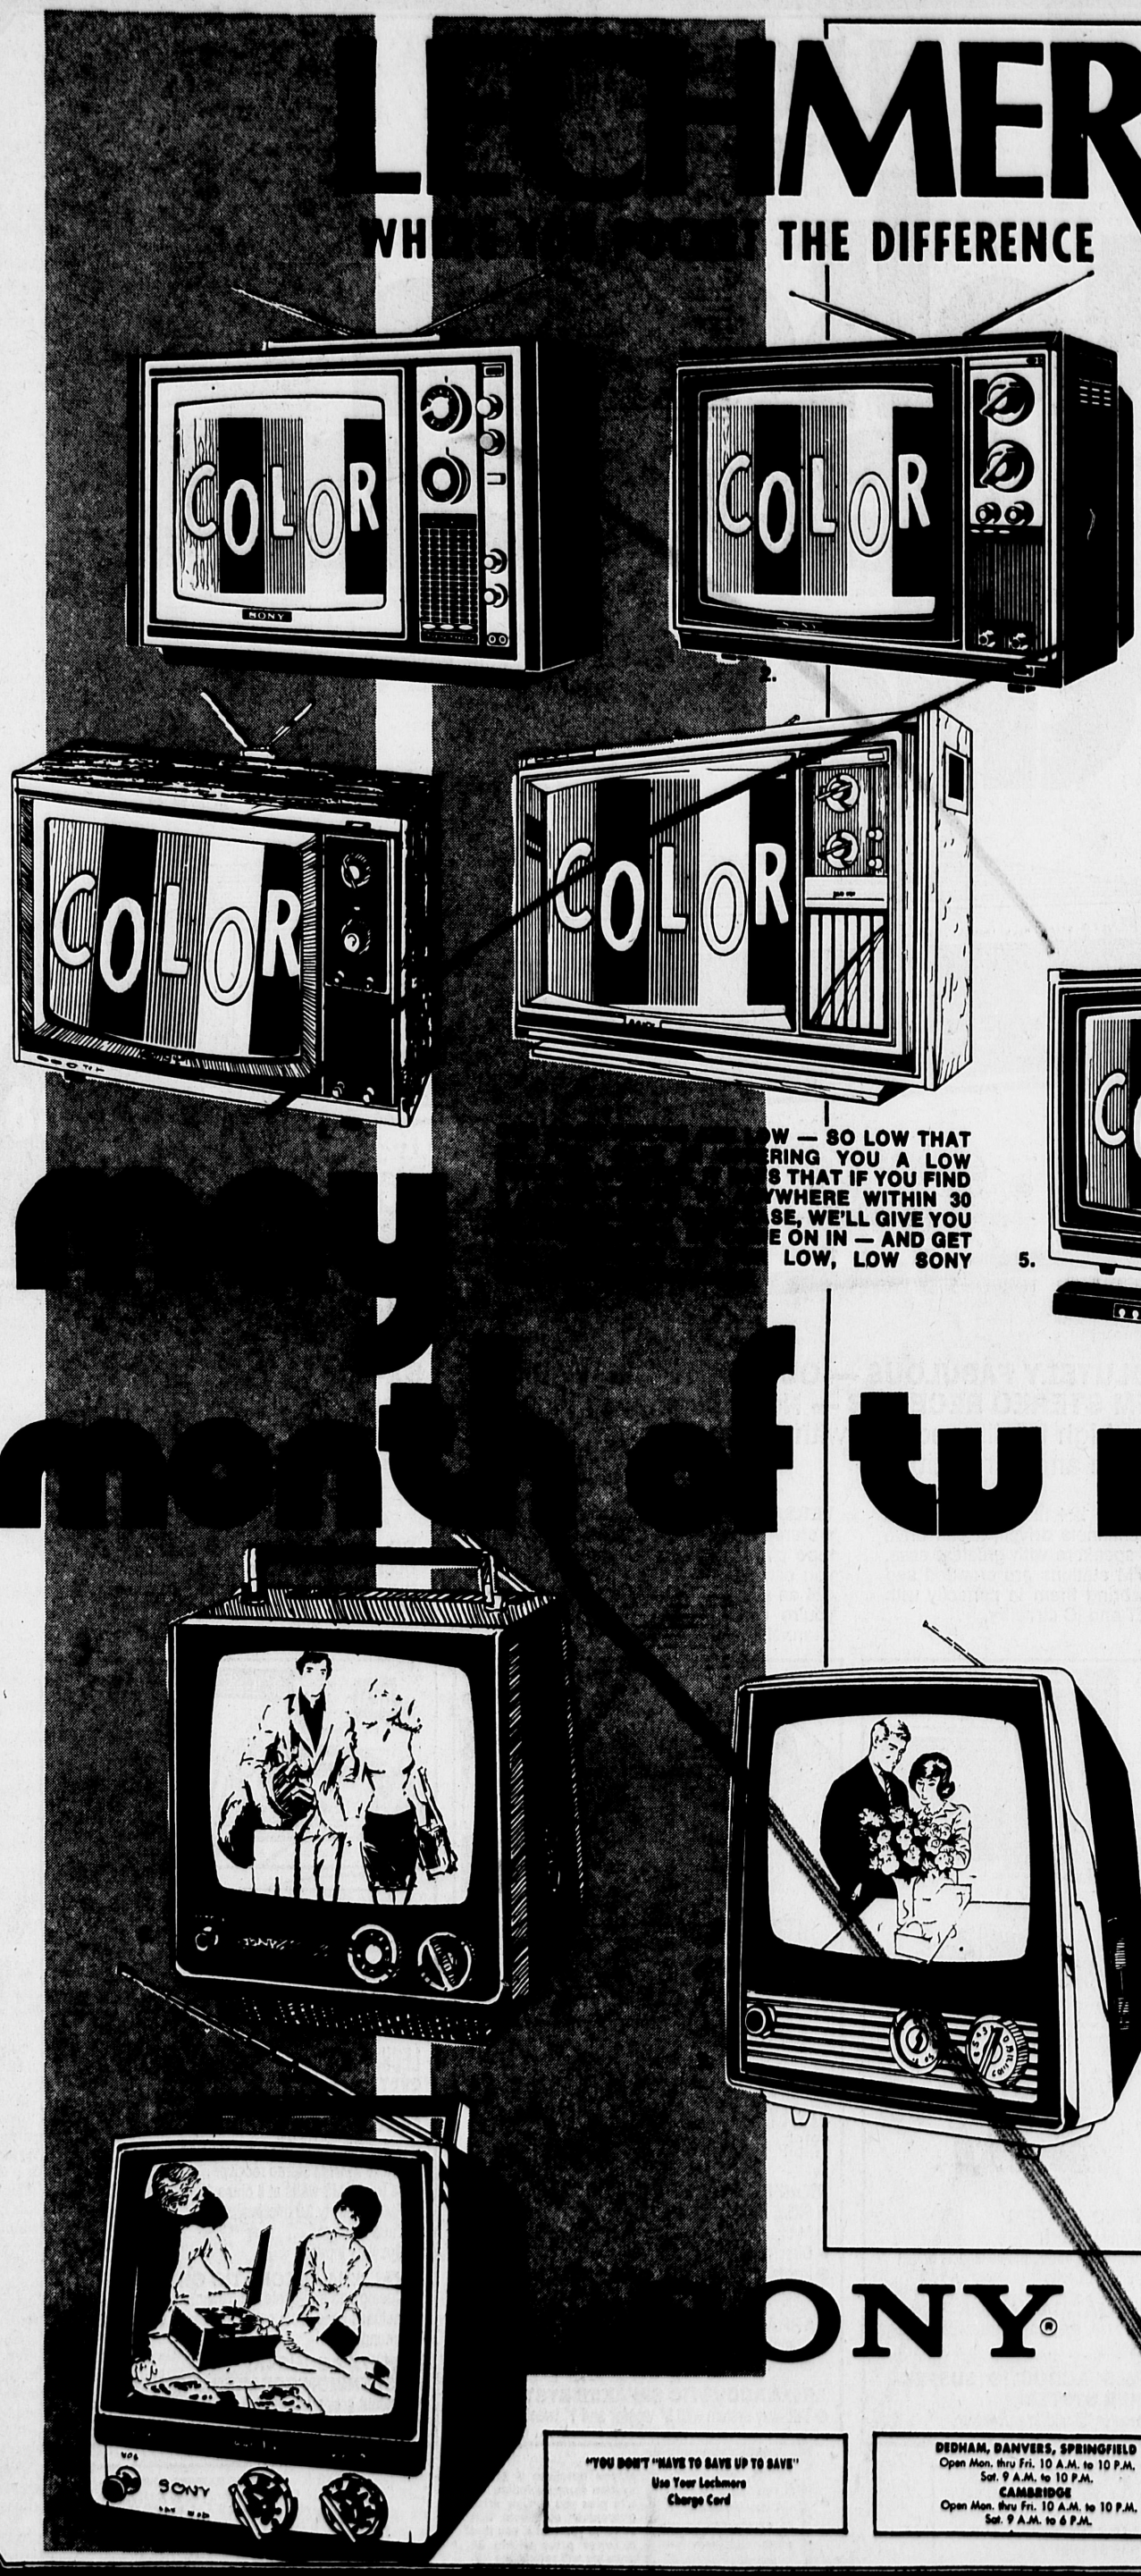

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience

Springtime means soft, velvety tulips standing proudly, the heavenly scent of purple lilacs and birds singing.

It's also a time when jade green fingers of asparagus and young pink rhubarb stalks brighten the vegetable counters everywhere. Asparagus, a true aristocrat of vegetables, has been grown in America since Colonial times. Since it arrived on the colonists' tables early in the season, asparagus probably helped curb the "spring fever" that was thought to come from eating only salt meats and root vegetables during winter months.

Thankfully, asparagus is low in calories and a good source of vitamins. To prepare for cooking, grasp the long stalks by the ends and break—they'll snap at the tender line. Then rinse thoroughly in water. They may be left whole, cut into 1½ inch pieces or sliced diagonally, making the slanting slices about 1½ inches long.

To cook whole asparagus, tie them in a bunch with a band of foil, and stand the stalks upright in about 1 inch of boiling salted water in a deep pan. If you cook asparagus laid flat in the pan, place them on a strip of foil so that they can be removed easily by lifting the ends of the foil strip. Cover and cook until stalks are just tender when pierced with a fork, about 10 to 20 minutes. A little salt and margarine and butter are all that's necessary, but if you want the gourmet touch, prepare an easy hollandaise sauce.

Rhubarb, a plant that should grow in everybody's back yard, is a particularly ornamental one, often several feet tall. Mention Rhubarb Pie to a New Englander and you're bound to hear a sigh of ecstacy while out-of-towners are amazed that anyone would every eat a pie made of a tart vegetable. Sometimes called a "spring tonic" we call rhubarb delicious!

EASY HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

3 egg yolks
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
One-third cup butter or margarine, melted
¼ cup boiling water

Beat egg yolks slightly; add salt and lemon juice. Stir in melted butter or margarine and add boiling water. Place over hot but NOT boiling water and cook stirring, until thickened, about 5 minutes. Serve immediately, or set aside, and reheat when needed. Makes ¾ cup.

HOT ASPARAGUS CANAPES

20 slices (thin) white bread
3 ounces blue cheese
8 ounces cream cheese
1 egg
20 spears of cooked asparagus
½ pound butter, or margarine, melted

Trim crusts from bread and use rolling pin to flatten slices slightly. Blend cheeses and egg to workable consistency and spread evenly on each slice. Roll one asparagus spear in each slice, use toothpick to fasten and dip in melted butter or margarine to coat thoroughly. Place rolls on cookie sheet and freeze. When frozen firmly, slice each into three equal-sized sections. Bake in hot 400 degree oven for about 15 minutes, or until lightly browned. Yields: 75 canapes.

BASIL CRUMBED ASPARAGUS

3 pounds fresh asparagus
½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup soft bread crumbs
2 teaspoons basil
2 medium onions, chopped fine
One-third cup lemon juice (fresh)
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Place washed asparagus in skillet containing one-half inch boiling salted water. Cook, uncovered, for 5 minutes; cover and cook 8 minutes longer. Meanwhile, in skillet melt butter; add crumbs and basil; brown lightly. Stir in remaining ingredients and reheat. Put crumb mixture atop asparagus on warm platter and serve immediately. Serves 6.

ASPARAGUS FONDUE-BAKE

1½ cups fine bread crumbs
2 cups milk
1¾ cups shredded Cheddar cheese
3 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine
2 cups cut asparagus, cooked and drained

Soak crumbs in milk. Add 1½ cups shredded cheese, beaten egg yolks, seasonings and butter. Add 1½ cups asparagus. Beat egg whites until stiff. Fold into mixture. Pour into a 2-quart casserole rubbed with butter or margarine. Bake in slow oven, 325 degrees, for 1 hour or until a sharp knife inserted into center comes out clean. Sprinkle top with remaining ¼ cup cheese and garnish with remaining asparagus. Serves 6 :serve immediately).

DEEP DISH RHUBARB PIE

2 cups (1-inch) pieces rhubarb
2 cups whole strawberries
3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
1½ cups sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Pastry for one-crust pie

Combine rhubarb, strawberries, quick-cooking tapioca, sugar and salt. Pour into an 8x8x2-inch baking dish or 1½ quart casserole. Dot with butter or margarine. Let stand about 15 minutes. Meanwhile roll pastry ⅛-inch thick. Cut several 2-inch slits or fancy designs near center. Fold pastry in half or roll loosely on rolling pin. Center on filling. Trim pastry allowing to extend ½-inch over edge of dish; fold pastry under and press onto edge. Bake in a pre-heated 425 degree oven 45-50 minutes. Serve as is or with vanilla ice cream.

RHUBARB CAKE

1½ cups brown sugar
½ cup margarine
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 cups all purpose flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup sour milk
2 cups thinly sliced rhubarb
One-third cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Cream together the sugar and margarine. Add the egg and vanilla, mixing well. Sift together flour, cinnamon and baking soda. Add to the creamed mixture, alternately with sour milk. Fold in the sliced rhubarb. Turn into a greased 9x13x2-inch baking pan. Mix together the remaining brown sugar and cinnamon. Sprinkle over top of batter and bake in a preheated 350 degree oven 30-35 min. Serve with lightly sweetened whipped cream or vanilla ice cream.

Denim look pantsuit

Older's better!

New is nice, but old is better.

And that just about sums up today's attitude towards the blue denim craze. Wherever you look, whether among the high fashion collections, boutiques or the five-and-dime stores, you'll find one fabric the number one attraction — denim.

Why this fabric has so great an appeal to people of all ages and stations in life has been a subject of conversation for psychologists. One doctor speculated, "The kids are responsible . . . it was their way of saying that dictated fashions are not for them. In their stand for individuality, appearance took second place to comfort and jeans, once "broken in" became friendly, warm and trusted."

You can wear jeans old and faded and frayed (it is even possible now to buy them recycled) or brand new and, horrors, stiff. As an aid to anyone who has had to buy brand new jeans, the following method of aging them is suggested by the Denim Council.

Toss the new ones into warm water, add a quarter to half a gallon of bleach, stir well and retrieve the jeans after a half-hour of soaking. Machine wash to remove the bleach smell. The jeans, when dried, should have the stylish faded look.

Also, it is suggested that before wearing the jeans have the sizing removed with a couple of washings and a generous dose of fabric softener. Machine dry (but don't overdry) so wrinkles won't set.

Have you ever wondered where the words "jeans" and "dungarees" originated? Both words have foreign origins. Dungarees is a derivation of the word "Dhungarees." And dhungarees had nothing whatsoever to do with the cowboys of the West — on the contrary, rather than the dry, arid wastelands, their beginnings was the ocean, for this was the name of seamen from the small town of Dhunga on the coast of India. The term "Dhungarees" applied to the strong woven cotton denim pants the sailors wore.

Strangely enough the word "jeans" also evolved from the sea. The word comes from the Italian seaport Genoa which sent men out on ships also attired in the sturdy cotton denim pants—called "genes." As a matter of fact, it has been suggested that this dependable fabric was used as sails by Christopher Columbus on one of his famous ships, the Santa Maria.

Decorated jeans know no boundaries. Though you can buy already decorated jeans (and spend as much as $200 for them) the creative person today will follow a do-it-yourself process. Even the not-so-artistic individual can join the parade by purchasing sew-ons and transfer patterns that will turn a new jean into a joy.

One of the most difficult methods of decorating jeans is embroidery, and everyone's doing it, male or female. One suggested method is using six strand cotton embroidery thread because it's relatively inexpensive and stands up well under repeated washings.

Though wool and silk yarns are colorful as well as adding a textured look, they don't wear as well and must be dry cleaned.

If you're into jean decoration, there are all sorts of appliques to give your jeans a brand new personality. Rummage around in the second hand stores for leather scraps and if you've got the patience you can sew them down the seam leg of the pants or around the cuff.

Designs for jeans and work shirts can be transferred with the aid of a tracing wheel, and if you look in a child's coloring book you'll find many excellent transfer pattern ideas.

While you're at it, don't forget the beautifying of work shirts, the type originally worn by carpenters and farmers. (European designers have copied this time honored fashion—their "work shirts" sell for hundreds of dollars, depending upon the appliqued jewel or hand embroidered motif.) One bright college girl took six shirts apart and reassembled the pieces, mixing and matching fabrics—she came out with varied backs, fronts and sleeves plus the admiration of her friends.

Makers of casual footwear are carrying denim blue tie-dyed espadrilles, a two-strap sandal with a rope heel and a wedge-heeled slipper with fruits and rhinestones just for fun.

And speaking of rhinestones, that's what the well-dressed jean wearer will be sporting this season. Of course you can buy a rhinestone studded T-shirt for around $75, but you can invest in a packet of rhinestones and backs and glitter yourself into fashion. The method of application is simple: draw the design on the wrong side of the fabric with a ball point pen. Place the rhinestone back along the design, the stone itself on the right side of the fabric and bend the backing's prongs down with a pencil.

Be careful about the cleaning of your rhinestone ready-mades—machine washing and dry cleaning tends to break the stones, so you'll have to hand wash these garments.

Overheard the other day, "I'm never going to throw away my jeans, they mean too much to me . . . I'm going to save them for my children and grandchildren."

Information Please

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026

We welcome letters and cards from readers, whether they are recipes, hints or just "hellos." A special thank you to Mrs. D. C., who writes: "I've never been considered a good baker but when it comes to this recipe, Mocha Almond Cream Roll, I'm able to sit back and collect well earned compliments.

Here it is as a thank you for the many fine recipes I've collected through your columns."

MOCHA ALMOND CREAM ROLL

4 eggs
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon almond extract
¼ cup sifted flour
¼ cup dry cocoa (not cocoa mix)
¼ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups (1 pint) whipping cream
One-third cup confectioners' sugar
1 tablespoon instant coffee powder
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
One-third cup sliced almonds (toasted if desired)

Lightly oil a jelly roll pan (15 x 10 x 1-inch), line with waxed paper and lightly oil the waxed paper. Beat eggs in medium size bowl until foamy; gradually beat in sugar until mixture is very thick (about like whipped cream); stir in almond extract.

Resift flour with cocoa, baking powder and salt; fold into egg mixture. Pour batter into pan and spread evenly to edges. Bake in 350 degree oven for 25 minutes or until top springs back when pressed lightly. Sprinkle a smooth tea towel with confectioners' sugar. Loosen cake from sides of pan with small spatula; invert onto towel. Carefully peel off waxed paper. Cut crisp edges from cake to make rolling easier. Roll up cake very gently from narrow end, rolling towel up in it. Lift cake onto wire rack to finish cooling — about 1 hour. Beat cream, gradually adding sugar, coffee and vanilla. Continue beating until cream is stiff. Unroll cake carefully; spread evenly with about two-thirds of the cream mixture to within 1-inch of cake edges; re-roll cake, finishing with open end of cake on underside. Place on serving plate; frost with remaining one-third cream mixture. Sprinkle with almonds. Chill at least 1 hour. Slice crosswise in about 1-inch pieces. Or- freeze as an ice cream roll. Serves 8.

Question: I hope you can help me, even though I am not asking for a recipe. Recently I entertained and because my husband does not approve of smoking, we do not offer cigarettes, especially at the dinner table. One of our guests lit a cigarette after the first course was served and used a saucer as an ash tray. My husband controlled himself but I was helpless and said nothing for fear of insulting my guest. Should a guest smoke during dinner when it is obvious that there are no ash trays on the table?

Answer: It has always been considered bad manners to snuff out a cigarette on china dishes that were not meant to be used as ash trays. Your guest should have asked your permission to smoke, and it would have been correct for you to gently inform the party that you would appreciate their waiting until after dinner before lighting up.

Question: Our neighborhood fish market often has red snapper and I've never bought the fish because I've never had a recipe to prepare it. Do you have an easy recipe — nothing complicated because I'm a working girl and don't have too much time to fuss in the kitchen. Thank you. — J. U., Dedham

Answer: Easy, delicious as well as eye-appealing, here it is!

RED SNAPPER BAKE

2 pounds red snapper or other fish fillets (fresh or frozen)
3 tablespoons margarine, melted
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 to 2 teaspoons grated orange peel
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
Dash nutmeg

Thaw frozen fillets slowly in refrigerator and cut into serving pieces. Place in single layer, skin side down, in well greased shallow baking dish. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over fish. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 25 to 30 minutes or till fish flakes easily when touched with a fork. Serves 6.

Question: I have a problem. Our daughter is graduating from college and I would like to have a small gathering in honor of the occasion. I am planning on cold cuts and molds and I'm looking for an interesting mold that would contain chunks of cooked chicken and celery. I'll look forward to your answer. —

Mrs. S. C., West Roxbury

Answer: How about chunks of cooked chicken, crunchy celery and pecans enveloped in lemon gelatin and chicken consomme — unmolded on a bed of crisp lettuce.

An elegant dish for any occasion.

CHICKEN SALAD SUPREME

1 pkg. (3 oz.) lemon gelatin
½ teaspoon salt
1¾ cups boiling chicken consomme (May be made with 2 chicken bouillon cubes and 1¾ cups boiling water)
Dash of pepper
Dash of paprika
2 tablespoons vinegar
¼ cup mayonnaise
2 cups diced cooked chicken
½ cup finely diced celery
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
¼ cup drained, canned crushed pineapple
¼ cup coarsely chopped pecans
2 tablespoons sweet pickle relish

Dissolve gelatin and salt in boiling chicken consomme. Add pepper, paprika, vinegar, and mayonnaise; blend well. Chill until very thick. Then fold in remaining ingredients. Pour into a 1-quart mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Makes about 4 cups to serve 4.

Question: Sunday night, I like to prepare a quick snack that is not time consuming. What would you suggest? — D. R., Walpole

Answer: Your family will enjoy these "sandwich-snacks" which may be made ahead wrapped in foil and reheated at serving time.

HAM 'N CHEESE SNACK SANDWICHES

3 ounce pkg. (1 cup) thinly sliced ham
¾ cup (3 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese
1 tablespoon finely chopped green onion
1½ teaspoons prepared mustard
1 can (8 oz.) refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
1 tablespoon water
1 egg, slightly beaten
¼ teaspoon poppy seed

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Grease 8 muffin cups. In small bowl, combine first 4 ingredients. Separate dough into 8 triangles.

Spoon meat mixture on wide end of each triangle. Wrap dough around ham mixture; completely cover mixture and press edges of dough tightly to seal to prevent leakage during baking. Place in prepared muffin cups. Combine water with egg and brush on tops of crescents. Sprinkle with poppy seed.

Bake at 375 degrees for 20-25 minutes until golden brown. Refrigerate any leftovers. Makes 8 snacks.

Brownies ceremony

In an outdoor ceremony at Beethoven School in Waban, second-year Brownies of Troop 227 recently received their embroidered wings from their Girl Scout leader Mrs. Esta Wolfe, assisted by Troop Aide Lisa Ehrmann.

This important Scout ceremony signified "flying up" out of Brownies to become a junior girl scout. After bidding farewell to Brownies level of scouting with a final Brownie handshake, each new "fly up" crossed the symbolic bridge to join others in a Junior Girl Scout horseshoe formation after exchanging a Girl Scout handshake greeting with Assistant Leader Ms. Janet Holly.

After saying the parts of the law, the girls helped set the party table which was complete with a Girl Scout troop tree on a trefoil collage base.

The new "fly ups" are: Sarabeth Oakstein, Katja Bode, Judy Finger, Amy Morse, Rachel Honig, Jeanne Wolfe, Julie Crosson, Susan Yesley, Martha Ehrmann, Sarah Fraser, Wanda Miller, Alyssa Kornguth, Eva Piessins, and Sherri Frager.

Mrs. Rose invited

Mrs. Cecial Rose of 50 Green Park, Newton, a member of the National Board of The Medical College of Pennsylvania has been invited to attend the College's 122nd commencement exercises and related activities the weekend of May 17 and 18.

Weddings

St. Philip Neri Church, Waban scene of Kase-Hirsch nuptial

The wedding of Sharon Marie Kase, daughter of Carole and Joseph Kase of Newton Highlands, and Mark Douglas Hirsch, son of Edna and Irwin Hirsch of West Hartford, Conn., was solemnized on May 5, at the St. Philip Neri Church in Waban.

Rev. James Moran officiated at the double ring ceremony and the reception was held at the Chestnut Hill Country Club. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Mrs. Herk D. Hirsch

The new Mrs. Hirsch wore an old fashioned white heirloom lace gown. Her headpiece, which was worn by her mother, was of ivory orange blossoms and was attached to a floor length illusion veil.

Regina O'Malley of Newton Highlands was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Ann Klein and Virginia Chase, both of Newton; Michelle Hirsch, West Hartford, Conn.; and Carol Krumenacker of Long Island, N.Y.

Mr. Hirsch had Richard Morris of West Hartford as his best man. Serving as ushers were Scott and David Kase, both of Newton; and Jack Piccolo of Garfield, N.J.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Mass. Her husband attended the Boston Architectural Center and is presently employed by Architectural Concepts in Brighton.

The couple honeymooned in Nantucket and are now living in Brighton.

Ellen Eisenman becomes bride of Dr. Stephen E. Gellis

Mrs. Stephen E. Gellis

Miss Ellen Eisenman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hy L. Eisenman of Brookline, was married Sunday, May 5, to Dr. Stephen E. Gellis, son of Dr. and Mrs. Sydney Gellis of Newton.

The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Manuel Saltzman at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Meredith Fine of Weston was maid of honor and Dr. Robert Martuza of Boston was best man.

Mrs. Gellis was graduated from Beaver Country Day School, Simmons College and received an M.A. in Art History at Tufts University. She is now with the Institute of Contemporary Art in Boston.

Dr. Gellis was graduated from Roxbury Latin School, Tufts College, Harvard Medical School and is an intern at the Children's Medical Center.

St. Bernard's hosts communion breakfast

The annual Communion Breakfast of the St. Bernard's Holy Name Society will be held Sunday, May 19, at 9 a.m. in the parish hall.

David and Nancy Taylor are new Cairo, Egypt, residents

On May 4, at a 4:30 p.m. ceremony, Nancy Kuhns, daughter of Mrs. John G. Kuhns of Newton Centre and the late Dr. John G. Kuhns, became the bride of David Frank Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor of London, England.

Rev. Gene Bartlett officiated at the white, Victorian decorated Martha-Mary Chapel in Sudbury. The reception followed at the Wayside Inn.

The new bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. James M. Roper, was attired in an ivory peau de soie gown enhanced with seed pearls and alencon lace. Her matching head piece was attached to a floor length veil.

Mrs. David F. Taylor

She carried a nosegay of white roses, lillies of the valley and stephanotis.

Martha Jean Kuhns of Rochester, N.Y. was her sister's maid of honor. Her gown was of floral peach organza as was her picture hat. She carried a basket of Woburn Abby sweetheart roses.

Brian Watson of Middlesex, England was the groom's best man. The ushers were Dr. J. Robert Kuhns of Hartford, Conn. and Mr. Robert Morse of East Pembroke.

Mrs. Taylor, a Newton High School graduate, received a masters degree in social work at Simmons College and was a former social worker at the Children's Hospital Medical Center.

Her husband, a graduate of the Bancroft School in Essex, England and the City of London Institute of Chartered Accountants, is presently employed as an assistant manager of Mobil Exploration EgyptInc.

Following their Bermuda honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor are now residing in Cairo, Egypt.

Los Angeles future home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bernstein

Of local interest is the recent marriage of Marcia Lee Rosenberg and William Leonard Bernstein at Temple Emanuel.

Rabbi Samuel Chiel and Cantor Gabriel Hochberg officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The new bride, daughter of Mrs. Joel Rosenberg of Newton Centre and the late Joel Rosenberg, had her sister, Mrs. Leonard Antick, as her matron of honor. Jennifer and Pamela Antick were junior bridesmaids for their aunt.

Mr. Bernstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bernstein of Los Angeles, Calif., had his brother, Harry Bernstein, as best man and Leonard I. Antick performed the ushering duties.

Out of town guests included members of the groom's family from California; members of the bride's family from Connecticut; Mr. and Mrs. H. Richard Coshnear, Arlington, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Max Palder, Kansas City, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Swartz, Scranton, Pa.; and Miss Jolie Andler, Beverly Hills, Calif.

The new Mrs. Bernstein is a graduate of Newton High School and the University of Mass. She currently is employed by Collegian Sportswear, Inc., Los Angeles, Calif. as a controller.

Her husband is a graduate of the University of California at Northridge. He is presently employed by the Occidental Life Insurance Co., Los Angeles, Calif. as a computer programmer.

After a wedding trip to Paradise Island Nassau, the couple are now residing in Los Angeles, Calif.

Women at Newton College study politics, government

For a group of area women, the complex, often frustrating and awesome world of politics and government has unfolded and taken on new meaning.

These women are participants in an unusual course given at Newton College. They have spent this past year studying, working and learning about the theories, and first-hand about the realities of politics and government. Many of them plan to go on and seek office soon or in the future. Some of them aim to find jobs working in government agencies or for office holders. A couple of them already have. All of them concur that they have gained a significant amount of knowledge about how government and politics really function.

The aid of the program, titled "Women in Political and Governmental Careers," is to prepare and encourage women by helping them gain the necessary education and skills to seek elective and appointive office at local, state and national levels, and in all three branches of government, explained Mrs. Betty Taymor, who directs the Newton College program.

The program, which combines study and internships, will be offered again next season, and applications are now being accepted. Inquiries by phone or mail should be directed to Mrs. Margaret Dever, director of the Center for Continuing Studies at Newton College, 885 Centre St., Newton.

The program is divided into three trimesters and carries eight undergraduate college credits. First, a series of intensive weekly seminars meets for ten weeks during the fall. These seminars focus on the political processes and on metropolitan problems. Each week, a guest lecturer is invited to share his expertise.

Lecturers this year included Prof. Harvey Boulay, department of government, Boston University; Rep. John Businger; professor Betty Zisk, department of government, Boston University; Councillor Lawrence DiCara, Boston City Council; Hubert Jones, executive director, Roxbury Multi-Service Center; Phyllis Bauman, counsel, HUD; Dr. Dan Bernstein, associate dean, Boston University School of Medicine; Alan Lupo, former assistant editor, Boston Magazine, and Alan Altshuler, secretary of transportation, Massachusetts.

The second trimester is devoted to four-month (sixteen hours per week) internships in various government agencies or with state legislators.

Women involved in the course this year were placed in internship positions in such places as Gov. Francis Sargent's office; Rep. Barbara Grey's office; the city of Newton's Department of Human Resources; the Region 5 Office of Children; Rep. Lois Pines' office; Gov. Sargent's Legislative Committee office; the Attorney General's Office of Consumer Protection; the city of Newton's Planning Commission; the city's Office of Intergovernmental Affairs; the Mayor's Office of Transportation, and Rep. Barney Frank's office.

Internship placements, insofar as possible, are made in accordance with the interests of the student. Counseling is provided during the internship, and throughout the entire program.

The third trimester of the "Women in Political and Governmental Careers" program consists of seminars devoted to evaluation of the field work experiences and other discussions.

Students desiring undergraduate credit for the program must have at least a high school diploma and preferably some college training. Above all, an interest in the government and political processes is a must.

Commenting on the participants in this year's course, Mrs. Taymor said, "Besides acquiring a lot of knowledge, most of the women involved have developed a greater respect for themselves. They have gained new skills and insights, and they have sharpened some abilities and skills they had forgotten they had."

Betty Taymor is a former Democratic National Committeewoman, an instructor, Master of Urban Affairs Program, Boston University, and a member of the United States National Commission for UNESCO.

Ratification of the equal rights amendment would provide a final legal springboard for women seeking equality in career opportunities, but successful entrance into fields like government and politics requires skills and knowledge most women haven't had an opportunity to acquire. The Newton College program is an attempt to close that gap.

Winners

Alphonse Secinaro and Robert Pozzi of Newton won third place in the open junior duet division of the annual state competition of the Accordion Teachers' Association.

Summer program for scouts planned

Norumbega Council B.S.A. is inaugurating a new summer program for older scouts under the title of "The Norumbega Experience."

A limited number of scouts will work under a specially selected and trained staff. They will combine the activities of summer camp with new special activities. Skills that will be featured include rock climbing, repelling, water skiing, boating, nature discovery and hiking. The experience will also give the boys a chance to develop new skills of leadership for use in their units.

Staff and trained personnel: Peter Reidy, Dave Ewer, Churck Hurwitz, Fred Berman, John Reading, Tom Reilly, with the assistance of senior scouts, John Harris, Tom Texeira, Derrick Clues, Neil Hedigir, Tom Morris, Jeff Banks, Eric Nelson, Scott Pohlman, Ken Bradley, Noah Gordon, Larry Hirshberg, Mark Trumbull, Mike Shockett and Bob Sisson from Norumbega Council.

The scouts will use the Wild Goose Camp in Center Barnstead, New Hampshire from Aug. 18 to Aug. 29. Boys interested in this program should contact the Norumbega Council B.S.A. office at 2044 Beacon Street, Waban, Mass. 02168 before June 15.

Newton College again offers career program for women

For the third year, Newton College, in collaboration with the Newton Public Schools, will offer a career program that incorporates internships in the schools, seminars with the public school administrators, and course work at the college.

Newton College again will make available a limited number of scholarships to interested area women for the coming year. The program is one of the offerings of the college's Center for Continuing Studies.

The "Career Program" has two major goals. First, it is an effort to meet some of the needs of the public schools without great cost to the taxpayer by utilizing some of the human power in the community. Second, it is an attempt to offer women who may not be ready or as yet qualified for professional careers an opportunity to further their education, get college credits for their efforts and gain some status and recognition for their volunteer work.

The internships involve six hours a week in assigned volunteer jobs in the public schools. Those who have participated have worked in guidance, in reading programs, in school libraries, and in tutorial work in math and reading.

The participants also spend one and a half hours a week attending seminars led, for the most part, by school administrators, including Supt. Aaron Fink. The seminars cover such areas as: organization of public education, current issues in public education, trends in early childhood education, education of pre-adolescents and adolescents, observation in the schools and career opportunities in public education.

The students in te program also take a course at Newton College selected from a wide number of options and related in some way to their work in the schools. Six college credits (two courses) are awarded for successful completion of each semester's program.

Further information about the career program may be obtained by calling or writing to Mrs. Margaret Dever, director, Center for Continuing Studies, Newton College, 885 Centre St., Newton. Tel. 332-6700 Ext. 285.

Chamber offers trip to Israel

The New England - Israel Chamber of Commerce is offering an international business seminar June 2-9 in Israel.

Participants will meet with cabinet ministers and other leaders of government and industry. Tours of industries and information about manufacturing, import-export, and financial cooperation will be available.

For further information contact the chamber at 266-3800.

Summer environmental program to open July 1

"Park's Curious Campers" a program of environmental education for boys and girls from age six through 12 will commence its first two week session on July 1. This marks the second season following an opening in 1973.

A later two-week session will start on July 15. Children may be enrolled in either or both sessions. Each session will offer new and different experiences.

The program is designed to provide each child with an understanding, awareness, sensitivity and respect for our environment. Full use will be made of Park's new 14-acre campus, adjacent to Larz Anderson Park and other resources of the area such as the Arnold Arboretum. Field trips will be an integral part of the program.

The camp day runs from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday thru Friday. Emphasis will be on active involvement with the environment through group and individual projects supervised by teacher-naturalists.

Park's Science Department Chairman, Robert C. Robinson has been appointed director of the program and Carolyn Sutcliffe, assistant director. Robinson, a professional meteorologist, is a graduate of Michigan State and holds a masters degree in science education from Columbia and advanced study at National Science Foundation Institutes. A former Air Force career officer, he is an instructor with fourteen years experience.

Mrs. Sutcliffe brings with her years of experience as a natural science teacher and speaker with the Mass. Audubon Society. She is a former director of Audubon summer camps.

Additional staff members have been chosen on the basis of their ability to relate to young children and their enjoyment and expertise in natural history.

Brookline High class reunion

Former members of the Brookline High School class of 1954 now living in this area may be interested to learn a twenteith reunion will be held on June 7. There will be a dinner dance at the Marriott Hotel in Newton. Information has been mailed out but many addresses are unknown.

Those wishing information about plans or tickets may call 734-8420 or 444-5238.

Murray Road students involved in special projects during May

Classes — in the conventional sense — have been suspended at Newton North's Murray Road Annex for the month of May. Instead of the usual pattern of following a class schedule in several subjct areas, each of the school's students is now involved in a single learning activity, either individually or in a group.

One such group, calling itself "Courts and Justice," spends hours each day in activities such as visiting courtrooms in Newton and Boston, meeting with attorneys and judges, visiting penal institutions, and trying to find out how and how well the judicial systm works.

Another group is planning and building a playground area for the children in the preschool which is operated and staffed by students at the annex. Using discarded truck tires, telephone poles, and other materials they are giving form to a play area behind the school building.

Other groups are focused on such matters as determining priorities for the annex for next year, producing a film, or operating the Murray Road Preschool.

Not all of the students choose to work in groups, however. One girl arranged to participate in an archeological "dig" in New Mexico. Another student is participating full-time on the volunteer staff at the Franklin Park Zoo. Several students are spending the time in other schools in other cities, with a view to comparing their programs with Murray Road's. Some have gone into politics: they are working on the campaign staffs of candidates for state office.

"These concentration periods give me a chance to spend full-time on one thing for a while," says one student, "instad of trying to do a lot of unrelated things at once. It's a change, and I appreciate it." Another adds, "Without this kind of time block, I wouldn't have been able to do my projeect at all. I've learned so much by helping to organize and run a political campaign."

Early in the year, the school's staff and students set aside this time by planning to complete the courses in the more usual subjects by the end of April. At the end of May, everyone will return to the school to end the school year together, with a special community project.

BENJAMIN GOLDFARB of 235 Upland Rd., Newtonville, will receive the 1974 award of merit from the Brotherhood of Temple Sinai in Brookline. A former brotherhood president and current president of the temple, Goldfarb will get the award at the annual meeting Sunday, May 19, at 7 p.m. in Ehrenfried Hall. Election of officers will also be held.

Red Cross meeting at Post 440 on May 22

The Rev. Oscar A. Guinn Jr. will be the featured speaker at the fifty-sixth annual meeting and dinner of the Newton Chapter, American Red Cross, on Wednesday evening, May 22.

The event will be held at the American Legion Hall, Nonantum Post 440, 295 California St., Newton. A social hour will precede the dinner at 6:30 p.m. The 7:15 p.m. dinner will be followed by an annual business meeting.

Rev. Guinn is presently pastor at Carter Memorial United Methodist Church in Needham. He has held several pastroates in the United States and abroad, and has also served as a missionary in Southeast Asia and China.

He will speak of "service above self," and the subject of his talk will be his experiences as a missionary, especially those he had under the communist regime in China.

Members and friends of the chapter are invited to attend for the purpose of elections, reports and other business that may come before the meeting.

Anyone wishing further information may call the American Red Cross Chapter office, 21 Foster St., Newtonville, 527-6000.

Meeting May 23

The Animal Betterment Citizens Action League's May meeting will focus on its upcoming summer program to combat cruelties to domestic and wild animals.

People interested in becoming active n this group may come to the Newton YMCA on Thursday, May 23 at 8 p.m.

Brochure on camps available

The Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., has announced its plans for this summer's programming through a brochure available at its 429 Cherry Street headquarters in West Newton and at 84 Eldredge Street in Newton, according to Mr. Anthony J. Bibbo, executive director.

Featured in the brochure is a description of two summer camp programs for youngsters three and a half-12 years of age. In addition, announcements relative to the Youth Center Summer Program for teenagers, Newton Job Bank, Day Care and the Retired Senior Volunteer Program are included.

A day camp for Boys and Girls six and a half-12 years of age will be headed by G. Michael Gardner. The private camp site located at Hale Camping Reservation in Westwood, includes 30 acres of tree covered land, swimming facilities, cookout accommodations, and 300 acres of long winding nature trails.

Activity is varied with swimming (instruction and free swim), arts and crafts, hikes, sports, cookouts, boating, games, and trips included. In addition, regular overnight campouts will be offered as well as other special activities. Some youngsters may want to be involved in a special confidence-building "ropes course" which is aimed at improving coordination and agility, facilitating group involvement, and enhancing feelings of joy and trust in one's self and others.

Campers leave from the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart, 785 Centre Street, Newton, by bus each morning, Monday-Friday at 9 a.m. and return at approximately 4 p.m. (3 p.m. on Fridays). Children bring sandwiches and are served milk.

Kinder Kamp for Boys & Girls three and a half-6 years of age, to be headed by Miss Bonnie Algeri, is located on the grounds of the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart, Newton Centre. The facilities make Kinder Kamp an all-weather, Monday through Friday program: 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday-Thursday, and 9 a.m.-3 p.m. on Fridays.

During the camp day, children participate in many activities in assigned areas: art, swimming, games, stories, music, and activities created from the imaginations of the counselors for the campers.

The children are separated according to age, into small groups with two staff members assigned to each group.

An open house will be scheduled prior to the start of the Kinder Kamp program.

Both camps will run for an eight-week period divided into two-week sessions, with each child obliged to enroll for at least one complete two-week session. Campers may be registered for any number of sessions desired. Transportation will be available from designated elementary school sites.

For additional information on the camps or other offerings, people may contact the Centers at 969-5906, Monday-Friday, 9 a.m.-Noon and 1 p.m.-4:30 p.m.

Youth congress to meet May 18

Sacred Heart parish, Newton, CYO has been selected to serve as host for the annual Archdiocesan Youth Congress Saturday, May 18, at Sacred Heart High School, Newton Centre. Rev. Donald P. Clifford is Sacred Heart's CYO director.

Kevin B. Harrington of Salem, president of the Massachusetts Senate, will be the keynote speaker at the event, which will include election of officers of the Archdiocesan Youth Congress.

Voting delegates from the Newton-Waltham Deanery, approved thus far, include Julie Murray, Mary Ellen MacAskill, Michael Ross, and Cathy Clark, Sacred Heart, Newton; and Patti Arsenault and Denise Staab, St. Jean's, Newton.

Harrington will give his keynote talk at the opening plenary session of the Congress at 12:30 p.m., and Msgr. Robert W. McNeill, Archdiocesan CYO director, will be the speaker at the second plenary session at 2:15 p.m.

Msgr. McNeill and the reverend CYO deanery directors, will celebrate a Folk Mass at 5:30 p.m., after which awards will be presented to outstanding youth and adult leaders engaged in the youth program.

The Congress will close with a buffet dinner and dancing.

President sets arthritis month

WALPOLE—Mr. Bruce Norwell, 195 North Street, Walpole, Chairman of The Arthritis Foundation Committee in the Walpole area, announced today that President Nixon has proclaimed May as Arthritis Month in the United States. The President's statement reads in part, ". . . Arthritis and the rheumatic diseases are the nation's number one crippling disorders, affecting 20 million Americans of all ages, causing them great suffering and limiting their activities. Arthritic disorders are second only to heart disease as the most widespread chronic illness in the United States today.

"This disease cripples people not only physically, bringing them untold pain and anguish, but also financially. The total cost of arthritis to America in terms of medical costs and lost production is estimated in the billions of dollars.

"Each year, as medical science advances through publicly and privately supported medical research and education, thousands of people receive improved treatment and live more comfortable, more productive, and more satisfying lives. Yet, despite research efforts, this dreadful disease continues to be a major threat to human well-being. America must do more to treat and eliminate the curse of arthritis.

". . . I urge the people of the United States and educational, philanthropic, scientific, medical, and health care organizations and professionals to provide the necessary assistance and resources to discover the cause and cure of arthritis and rheumatic diseases and to alleviate the suffering of persons struck by these disorders."

Mr. Norwell stated, "On behalf of the 580,000 arthritics in Massachusetts, we greatly appreciate the President's proclamation. With the continuing help of the people of Massachusetts, we look to the day, not too far in the future, when arthritis may be cured."

Politicians Fueling Us?

HOUSTON (UPI) — Misguided and misinformed politicians are to blame for the fuel crisis, according to George P. Mitchell, head of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association.

The president of the largest state group of independent oil men in the nation said political leaders misinformed the public by saying petroleum imports would keep the price of oil down.

"But there is no free lunch oil from abroad—neither cheap nor plentiful — and government, again led by misguided and misinformed political leaders, has maintained the wellhead prices of natural gas at such low levels that the amount of exploration has decreased at least 50 per cent in the past 15 years," he said.

10 localites win top honors in 4-H show

BOLTON—It was some show and tell with 4-H visual presentations as varied as the interests of today's youth.

On Saturday, April 20 at Nashoba High School, Bolton, over 250 4-H members representing ten counties in Massachusetts demonstrated their expertise and knowledge by talking about everything from Rocket Engines to Geometric String Designs.

Science, crafts, food and nutrition, clothing, animal care and management were only a few of the 50 categories from which "presentations" were created.

The 4-Hers competed before judges for silk red and blue rosette ribbons which would proclaim them winners in the Massachusetts 4-H Presentation Finals.

Norfolk County 4-H members produced some of the very best of these presentations in the State. Of the 31 representatives from Norfolk County, ten of these 4-H members won top honors.

"4-H Presentations give members an opportunity to learn public speaking in the easiest way possible, by talking about those subjects they know well and are personally interested in" said Mrs. Dena Hamilburg, 4-H Urban Agent and judge at State Presentation Day.

Blue Hills Girl Scouts to hold annual meeting

RANDOLPH — The tenth anniversary celebration of Blue Hill Girl Scout Council will highlight the council annual meeting and election of officers on Thursday, May 16, at the Holiday Inn in Randolph.

Blue Hill Council was first chartered in June, 1964, to administer Girl Scouting in an 18-town area which had previously been served by eight small councils. The town of Wellesley joined the council in 1967, and in 1970 it began serving the Dorchester and Neponset Valley districts of the disbanded Boston Council.

Blue Hill Council now serves over 9,000 girls and more than 1600 adults. During the council's ten-year history, it has had more than 40,500 different girl members and thousands of adult members and volunteers.

Many of those adult Scouts will be at the annual meeting to reminisce, review the progress of the council, consider its future, and be recognized for their contributions to Girl Scouting.

The dinner meeting will include entertainment by the "Grasshoppers", a Girl Scout singing group from Norwood. A business meeting will be held to receive the committee reports, elect officers, board and nominating committee members, and to consider proposed by-law revisions. Voting delegates at the meeting represent each of the 19 communities served by the council.

The program will also include recognition and awards for adult volunteers who have given outstanding service, and all graduating Seniors will be invited to participate in a welcoming ceremony into adult Girl Scouting.

A review of the council's history will be conducted by Senior Scout Heidi Larson of Braintree, followed by the installation of officers by another Senior. Carol Liddell of Needham, who is president of the council Senior Planning Board.

Over 250 adult volunteers, neighborhood delegates, guests, and girls from all towns in blue Hill Council are expected to attend the meeting.

Garage sale at Museum of Science May 18, 19

The Museum of Science is selling the Boston skyline, and that's just the beginning.

They're also selling a dinosaur footprint or two, a basketball hoop, a dinghy and oars, and a helmet that probably belonged to a German World War II soldier. All this and much more will go on sale at a garage sale in their giant garage, Saturday and Sunday, May 18 and 19, from 10 to 4.

A 7267-square-foot area in the five-story garage is being turned into a bargain-hunter's heaven for those two days by the Museum's Service League, whose members have gleaned a dazzling variety of items from throughout the Boston area. All proceeds of the sale will go towards the Museum's ever-increasing operation costs. As a special thank-you, parking fees will be refunded to everyone whose purchases total $10 or more.

How can the Museum sell the Boston skyline? It's really a miniature, approximately 190-foot, three-dimensional skyline of the city — well known for years to audiences in the Charles Hayden Planetarium there. With the city's rapidly changing silhouette, Museum technicians found it impractical to continue updating the model, and abandoned it for an easier rear-projection technique. Perfect for the decor of a restaurant, function room, or large family room, the intricately made skyline is truly one of a king. As such, its value is hard to determine, and the Museum is welcoming presale inquiries.

The dinosaur foot impressions were made during preparation of the Museum's 20-foot-high Tyrannosaurus rex model. In addition to the more usual garage sale items, including sports and camping equipment, household gadgets, and toys, the sale will feature murals of Mount McKinley photographed by Museum Director and Alaskan mountain expert Bradford Washburn; a mechanical bank of a dentist pulling a tooth; and a number of Army packboards.

All purchases will be on a cash and carry basis. Families are encouraged to make a day of it by combining a trip to the Museum with a visit to the Garage Sale.

North netmen win three matches

By BOB LOW

The Newton North boys' tennis team swept past St. Marks, Brockton, and Brookline to finish its league schedule with a perfect 8-0 mark and raise its overall record to 11-2.

On Wednesday, May 8, the netmen traveled to St. Marks and came up with an 18-6 triumph. Five Newton players, Baird Haney, Bob Low, Stu Brightman, John Kosa, and Dave Bikofsky swept their singles sets. Neal Kravitz and Lincoln Frank split sets and only Chip Lang dropped both.

The Tigers fared equally well in the doubles as the teams of Brightman and Haney, Frank and Kravitz, and Low and Kosa won, while Bikofsky and Lang were beaten.

The netmen returned to league play the next day at Brockton and chalked up a 5-0 win. Kravitz routed Ed Kent 6-1, 6-0, Low topped Dave Orlando 6-1, 6-4, and Frank defeated Mike Lichtman 7-5, 6-2.

In doubles, Brightman and Haney whipped Scott Marker and Mark Gadaire 6-2, 6-2, while Bikofsky and Lang edged Bob Shakman and Ed Comeau 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

On Monday, May 13 Brookline came to Newton in a battle between the only undefeated teams in the Suburban League. The Tigers won 5-0 to wrap up first place. Kravitz overcame Mark Sadowsky in three sets, 6-0, 5-7, 6-2, Low beat Jeff Becker 6-1-7-5, and Kosa trimmed Tom Doyle 6-4, 6-2.

Brightman and Haney bested Brull and Gordon 6-1, 6-4, and Bikofsky and Lang prevailed 6-3, 6-2, over Dubir and Lemming.

The victory gave Newton first place in the league, but, to win the championship it must still win in the playoffs against the other top four teams. The playoffs begin this week and continue to next Wednesday.

Newton players did not do as well in the Eastern Mass. singles and doubles tournaments, as only one of five Tigers entries managed to survive week-end play.

In the singles, Low defeated Craig Lifner of Concord-Carlisle, Bill Gregoritch of Acton-Boxboro, and James Walsh of Catholic Memorial to advance to the quarterfinals of the region 4 draw where he will play the third seed, Kevin Nawn of Archbishop Williams.

Kravitz had been given the second seed in the region but was forced to default to Lee Hecht of Randolph. Another Randolph player, Gary Libman eliminated Kosa in the first round, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

In the doubles tournament, held in Brockton, both Newton duos survived two rounds before falling. Brightman and Haney, the second seed, were beaten in the third round by Newton South's Tom Karol and Danny Braverman 6-2, 7-5, while Bikofsky and Lang lost in the same round to Champagne and Dugger of Medfield, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3.

The tournament action will resume Saturday with the remaining quarterfinal matches being completed. On Sunday, all matches move to Brockton where surviving players from each region will be placed in a new draw.

Two losses drop North's league record to 6-5

By RICK GORDON

A struggling, slump ridden Newton North baseball team recently dropped a pair of Suburban League contests during a three game losing streak.

The losses critically hurt the Tigers' chance for post season tournament play.

Following losses to Waltham and Weymouth North, Newton's league record dippe to 6-5. A doubleheader split at Phillips Exeter Academy moved miscues to escape with a hard fought 2-1 victory.

Ed Aucoin started his third straight game for Newton, and lasted only into the second inning. Chris Yetten singled home George Vinculla off Aucoin to give Waltham a 1-0 lead.

A trio of Tiger errors behind pitcher Kevin Moore in the third raised Newton's deficit to two. Newton picked up its only run in the fourth when Bob Kinsella led with a walk and came around to score on an error.

Moore pitched excellent relief for Newton, yielding only one hit in 4 2-3 innings but Bob Vona, with two singles, was the only Tiger too contribute much offense.

In the opening three innings of their next game, at Weymouth North, it appeared the Tigers' hitting drought was comint to an end. Seven hits, including an RBI single by Kinsella, and a run producing double by John Connolly, gave Newton a 2-1 lead.

After the third, Weymouth hurler Fred Loud, took control and kept the Tigers hitless the rest of the game.

In the fifth, Weymouth moved in front with two runs on three hits, a walk, an error, a passed ball and a wild pitch. Moore replaced Steve DiBenedetto (the starter and loser) and gave up one of the safeties.

Four more runs, without the benefit of a hit, stretched the lead to 7-2 in the opposition's seventh, with DiBenedetto again on the mound. Three errors and a walk contributed too the scoring.

Every one of the Tiger players saw soe action in the twinbill at Exeter as Newton lost the opener 2-1 before salvaging the second game, 4-0.

Connolly's opening inning sacrifice gave North a 1-0 lead in the first game. A pair of hits off John Carey and an error led to the tying run in Exeter's second.

Charlie Coro and Aucoin, who relieved Carey in the fourth, dueled evenly through the seventh.

After the regulation seven innings, the score remained tied at one apiece. Acuoin game up just one hit in his 4 1-3 innings, and Newton North had five hits against Coro.

In the bottom of the eighth, a one out walk ended Aucoin's stay on the mound. Moore came in and walked and a single resulted in a 2-1 Exeter victory.

Aucoin was the loser for Newton, and Exeter reliever Dave Stymiest gained the victory.

The same pitchers who completed the first game began the nitecap. Moore pitched exceptional ball too earn the Newton triumph.

Keith Glasser broke a scoreless battle, driving home Bob Cunningham, with a fifth inning sacrifice fly.

In the last half of the inning Exeter picked up two hits off Moore, its second and third. DiBenedetto relieved for Newton and gained a save with 2 1-3 innings of no-hit, shutout pitching.

DiBenedetto and Connolly sandwiched hits around a fielder's choice to increase Newton's lead in the sixth.

The Tigers closed the scoring with two runs on one hit, a Vona single, in the seventh frame, for a 4-0 victory.

Newton was to face a tough stretch of four games in as many days this week. Victories in league contests against Brockton, Arlington and Cambridge Latin are virtual necessities if the Tigers hold any hopes of tournament play.

Boston English offers the other opposition in a re-scheduled non-league game. Newton ends its regular season next Thursday, May 23, at Weymouth South after visiting Brookline on Monday.

South baseball team in first place

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

The Newton South baseball team extended its May winning streak to five games recently.

The Lions are in first place in the Dual County League with a 10-3 record.

On Wednesday, May 8, South banged out 12 hits in a 14-5 victory over Weston High. The Wildcats lost seven of their first nine games.

South put the game out of reach early as it scored seven runs in the firs three innings. Co-Capt. Rob Shahon singled in two runs in both the second and third innings.

The first four men in the Lions' batting order all played major roles in the South victory. Leadoff hitter Bruce Jennings had two hits and three runs batted in. Shahon had two hits and four RBI's, and third batter Steve Tresca had two hits. Clean-up hitter Steve Rittenberg had two hits and three RBI's. First baseman Pete Castellanos was the only other South player to have two hits.

Sophomore Tom Irvine was the winning pitcher, but he was not as effective as he was in his previous appearance, a shutout against Wayland. Irvine gave up five runs in five innings against Weston.

Ken Bianco pitched the two shutout innings in relief.

On Monday, May 13, the Lions won their biggest game of the season, as they beat Concord-Carlisle, 1-0.

South pitcher Bianco and Concord's Bruce Crampton both pitched tremendous games. There were only five hits in the whole game. Concord had three of them.

South scored the only run of the game in the fifth inning due to great hustle and timely bunting.

Shortstop Tony Lombardo led off the inning with South's first hit of the game, a solid single to centerfield. With first baseman Phil Small at the plate, Lombardo stole second, just ahead of a throw from the Concord catcher.

Small then laid down a bunt to first base which advanced Lombardo to third base. Catcher Hall Bennett followed with an excellent suicide squeeze bunt, and Lombardo scored.

Concord came very close to scoring in the third inning. Lombardo and Bennett combined to stop a scoring attempt at the plate.

With one out, Concord had runners at first and third. Second baseman Fred Garrett hit a hard ground ball to Lombardo. Lombardo bobbled the ball, and the runner at third broke for the plate. Lombardo recovered in time to throw a perfect strike to Bennett, who tagged out the runner at home.

South Coach Neil McPhee was full of praise for his team. "We played real smart baseball today, as did both teams, and that's the way high school baseball should be played.

"I was very pleased with the way Kenny Bianco pitched today. Although he's pitched well all season, he was great today. He had real zip on the ball," McPhee said.

"I want to mention the bunt by Hal Bennett which won us the game," McPhee added. "The pitch was high and inside but he still managed to get off a great bunt. There's no question Hal is the best bunter on the team.

"Another thing I liked today was the great slide by Tony Lombardo that set up the only run in the game. Only a great slide could have beaten the throw, and that's what Tony made."

Smith Scholarship Fund formed

Friends and colleagues of the late Reggie Smith have formed the Reginald E. Smith Scholarship Fund.

The scholarship will be awarded to a Newton North High student (Male or female) attending Springfield College, Smith's alma mater.

Smith, Newton North's athletic director, was a teacher, coach and administrator for 40 years. He died in February after suffering a heart attack.

Smith was one of the most respected men in his field. Smith was a physical education pioneer and was one of the leading figures in the Suburban League. He held every elected position in the league. Under Smith's guidance, Newton North fielded nearly 40 teams in 16 sports.

He is also credited with creating the stunning new athletic facilities at the high school. Many of the innovative features in the new building were Smith's ideas.

Trustees for the scholarship are: Howard Ferguson, Al Fortune, Jeff Freedman, Stan Hackel, George Jessup, Evan Johnson, Vic Knapman, Jerome Lynch, Chris Toomey, Bob Toomey and Tom Walters.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the scholarship fund can send a check to the Reginald E. Smith Scholarship Fund, 12 Dexter Rd., Newtonville, Mass. 02160.

Weinberg on Harvard crew

Belmont Hill School graduate Dave Weinberg of West Newton worked the coxswain position for the Harvard varsity heavyweight crew in the Eastern Sprint Championships on May 11.

The Crimson won the championship for the first time since 1970 with a time of 6:02.8 on a 2,000 meter Lake Quinsigamond course in Worcester, Mass.

Weinberg, a senior, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Weinberg of 10 Estabrook, Rd., West Newton. Weinberg is concentrating in government at Harvard.

Senior Peter Huntsman of Newtonville, a graduate of Mount Hermon School, rowed the bow position for the Harvard varsity lightweight crew when the Crimson defeated Princeton on May 5.

Huntsman is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Huntsman of 430 Albemarle Rd., Newtonville. Huntsman is concentrating in social studies at Harvard.

Sophomore Olivia Haydock of Chestnut Hill has been a member of the Skidmore College women's tennis team.

Steve Scrimshaw, formerly of Newton, competed on May 4 in the fifth annual Ohio Senior North-South Soccer Bowl. The match was held at Nippert Stadium on the University of Cincinnati campus.

Scrimshaw was honored by his teammates as the most valuable player on the Ohio Wesleyan University soccer team in 1973. He was also selected as an honorable mention back on the 1973 All-Ohio soccer team.

Scrimshaw, a senior, is majoring in biology at Ohio Wesleyan.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nevin Scrimshaw, 19 Chauncy St., Cambridge, Mass.

South tennis team loses to Weston, wins twice

By MARK SHUSTER

Newton South's boys' tennis team recently traveled to Weston and was beaten, 4-1, by the Dual County League leaders.

Bill Karol, coming off a bad ankle, played well, but was beaten by Ken Swain in two sets, 7-5, 10-8. Humberto Fagundes won in second singles, 6-4, 8-6.

Dan Braverman was beaten in third singles, 6-3, 6-0. South's first doubles team of Jeff Levin and Doug Fisher lost 6-2, 6-0. Tom Karol and Roger Gordon were beaten in second doubles, 6-8, 6-4, 6-3.

South won its next match, against Lincoln-Sudbury, 5-0. Bill Karol was victorious over Perry Nelson, 7-9, 10-8, 6-1. Fagundes romped in second singles, 6-1, 6-1. Gordon won in third singles, 6-4, 6-2.

Levin and Fisher won 8-6, 6-8, 6-1, while South's second doubles team of Braverman and Tom Karol were victorious, 9-7, 6-1.

Concord-Carlisle was South's next victim. The Lions won 3-2.

Bill Karol split his first two sets, winning 6-4 and losing 6-3. He defaulted after the second set as South had already won the match and did not want to risk further injury to his ankle.

Fagundes won in second singles, 6-2, 6-3. Gordon lost, 6-8, 6-2, 4-6.

Both doubles teams were victorious. Levin and Fisher won 6-4, 6-2, while Braverman and Karol scored a 6-2, 6-0 victory.

The Eastern Mass. Tennis Tournament began last week, and the Lions are doing well.

Bill Karol, who drew a number five seed, received a bye in the first round. He then defeated Natick's number three player and Needham's number two player to reach the quarter-finals.

Fergundes drew a number eight seed. He defeated Norwood's number two player and Chelmsford's number one player to also reach the quarter-finals.

Gordon won his first match by default, but was beaten by Framingham North's number two player.

The doubles teams played excellent tennis. Levin and Fisher defeated the number one team from Needham and the number two team from Framingham North. If they get by a Medfield team this week, they will reach the semi-final round.

South's second doubles team of Tom Karol and Braverman is already in the semi-finals. They beat Needham's number two team and Newton North's number one team. The semi-finals will be held Sunday at Brockton High School.

TRAVEL

By MURRAY J. BROWN

Time was, in word association games, "Niagara Falls" would generally evoke a response of "honeymoon."

For the falls on the boundary of the United States and Canada was the mecca for countless American newlyweds following a tradition historians said dated back to 1803 when Napoleon Bonaparte's younger brother Jerome brought his Baltimore-born bride there.

But times, and people, have changed as I learned during a recent visit.

Today, with an estimated 10 million visitors annually, the falls are obviously a prime attraction to more than honeymooners. Recent surveys by Tourism Niagara Inc. disclosed that family groups (with an average of 4.8 members) comprise the largest single segment of visitors, with newlyweds far down the list.

A Leading Attraction

The first guidebook to Niagara Falls, published in 1829 by the minister of the Falls' First Presbyterian Church, stated that "the fashionable, the opulent and the learned congregate here from the principal cities of the U.S., from South America, the West Indies, the Canadas, all parts of Europe and indeed from all countries."

Their descendants are still coming. Recent polls among foreign visitors by the U.S. Department of Commerce list Niagara Falls a strong third behind New York City and Disneyland as a tourist attraction.

The first white man to see the falls was Father Louis Hennepin, a French missionary-explorer, in 1678. He was so overawed he wrote they appeared to be about 600 feet in height. Actually, they are only about one-third as high, but around 200,000 cubic feet per second of water thundering down sheer precipices is an overwhelming sight.

One of the better panoramic views is from atop the 282-foot-high Prospect Park Tower. For closer looks at the American Falls and the Canadian Horseshoe Falls, there are the "Maid of the Mist" which sails virtually under the cascading waters and the Cave of the Winds Trip which ends at Hurricane Deck in the spray of the roaring cataracts. Slickers are provided.

There also are helicopter and small plane flights over the falls, Gray Line sightseeing tours by bus, the Viewmobile Miniature train ride, and for the stout hearted white water tours of the Niagara River in specially designed rubber rafts. Other Attractions

There are other attractions, too. Within walking distance of the falls is the Aquarium with more than 2,000 creatures of the seas, including performing acrobatic dolphins. Also downtown is the new Carborundum Museum of Ceramics which offers live presentations and demonstrations such as the manufacture of bone china as well as exhibits of ceramics down through the ages.

The Museum is located in the Carborundum Corp. headquarters, the first of the new structures that have risen in the downtown area as part of the city's $200 million Ranbow Center rehabilitation rpogram.

The focal point is the $43 million 12,000-seat International Center opened in January which will host the "Miss USA" Beauty Pageant in May and other special events during the year.

About five miles north of the city, the largest hydroelectric facility in the west features a Thomas Hart Benton mural of the discovery of the falls, a diorama of the main power plant, and a sweeping view of the gorge from the Power Vista observation building.

Canada is only a five-minute stroll across Rainbow Bridge from downtown Niagara Falls. Crossing is no problem for U.S. citizens—no passport or visa is necessary, only some proof of citizenship. Americans visiting Canada for less than 48 hours are allowed to bring home up to $10 worth of purchases free of duty, for more than 48 hours the duty-free allowance is $100.

Awards given at Newton Junior College

The annual Newton Junior College Awards and Honors Convocation was held last week at College Hall.

It function was to honor those students who have distinguished themselves in their service to the college, to announce winners of various awards annually distributed on this occasion, and honor the honors students who have achieved outstanding scholarship and academic excellence.

President Charles W. Sudley welcomed the students and guests, and stressed the importance of this event. In acknowledgement of the benefactions to the College, he stated that this year he would pay tribute to those who have given moral support and devoted interest as well as to those who had generously contributed monies.

In the latter category, he stressed the continuing support of the College Scholarship Fund by the Women's Council, which, under the leadership of Mrs. Alfred O. Weaver, contributed $400 to that fund for the College year '73-'74, and which was instrumental in the donation of $500.00 by the Newton Centre Women's Club.

Dudley also thanked the Highland Circle for its annual donation, and mentioned a large anonymous gift given by a faculty member.

Dudley thanked the Newton Junior College Board of Directors for their continued service to the college and he also thanked the faculty, students and staff for the demonstrations of their interest on behalf of the future of the college.

Charles D. Merrill, dean of the college, announced the academic awards and read the departmental citations. He stated that these awards were inaugurated by unanimous vote of the Faculty in 1968. The following awards were made:

In the department of business and data processing, in business administration, presented by Miss Anna J. Radzukinas, chairman: "For combining excellence in performance and intellectual curiosity in the field of business and the related cultural fields of liberal arts and sciences. The award is presented to a student who has had to overcome many obstacles but has successfully maintained a dean's list status during the years she has attended Newton Junior College and who is now successfully matriculating at Suffolk University this semester," awarded to Miss Rose M. Mason.

In the department of jumanities, presented by Richard Yasi, assistant professor: "For superior critical understanding of contemporary literature," awarded to Miss Carol Tyman of Newton. Presented by Mrs. Betty Sole-Costa, lecturer in Spanish "For excellence in the study of Spanish," awarded to Mrs. Toby R. Steinberg of Newton.

In the department of natural sciences and mathematics, presented by William E. Burns, chairman, "For academic excellence in the study of chemistry," awarded to Miss Catherine C. Brotman of Newton. "For excellence in biology" awarded to Mrs. Geraldine V. DiSavino.

In the department of nursing, presented by Mrs. Anne K. Collins, chairman, "For Honors standing for two years, for exceptional ability in the practice of nursing, and for personal qualities which are conducive to continued growth as a nurse and as a member of society," awarded to Mrs. Gail K. Burns. Honorable mention to Miss Carol L. Lombardi.

In the department of psychology, presented by Jack Meade, Coordinator, "For consistently high scholarship in Psychology," awarded to Mrs. H. Constance Vautour.

In the department of social science, presented by Robert J. Hybels, "For distinguished scholarship in history and government, and a deep and sincere interest in the world and its problems," awarded to Gregory J. Mavrides of Newton.

The Phi Beta Kappa Scholarship Award, donated by the Newton Phi Beta Kappa Group, "For excellence in scholarship, genuine intellectual interest, high motal character, and acceptance for study at an accredited four-year college," was presented by Mrs. Dorothy Ryan, associate professor, in the name of the Student Aid Committee, to Catherine C. Brotman of Newton.

The Newton Junior College Service Awards: "In recognition of those students who, through voluntary service, have contributed markedly to the welfare of the college," presented by Leo P. Judge, dean of student personnel, to Michael Dathe, Robert Maher, Gregorio Montillo, Carol Shockley, Audrey Sole Costa, Gail Temperly, and Bruno Viscomi, of Newton, as well as Jan Abel, Claire Johnson, Carol Lombardi, and Connie Torrisi.

Judge also announced those students who were elected to "Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges" in recognition of their academic standing, service to the community, lwadership in extracurricular activities and future potential: Michael Dathe, Charlotte Ferguson, Gregorio Montillo, and Bruno Viscomi of Newton as well as Paula French and Connie Torrisi.

Mrs. Mabel Greeley, college librarian, presented the Alumni Association Book Award, "given annually to a member of the graduating class who conbines citizenship with an appreciation of good books and how best to use them" to Miss Carol Karlson of Newton.

The honors citations were presented by Mr. John D. Meade, assistant professor, department of psychology. The honors students are:

Wolpe, Carol List, Joseph More, Jr., Margaret Ruggles, Mary Shaughnessy, Barbara Smart, Teresa Wickstrom.

The Honors Address, annually delivered by a student of honor standing, was given by John Miller of Newton. Miller stated that "education should extend to all social strata" because "the key to the solution to current social problems lies in education, the foundation of rational thought." He challenged his fellow students to put their education to good use in affecting a cure for social ills.

Dudley concluded the convocation with congratulations to all students who had, by their achievement, brought honor to themselves and to the college and to the community. A reception followed.

Lewenberg to head Boston Aid to Blind

Attorney Stanley S. Lewenberg of Newton Lower Falls takes office May 18 as president of Boston Aid to the Blind, now in its sixty-third year of service to the visually handicapped.

Lewenberg is the second man to head the social service agency, maintaining a rehabilitative, educational, and social facility at 1980 Centre Street, West Roxbury. He succeeds Harold Bernstein.

Founded in 1912, Boston Aid to the Blind provides day care services for approximately 100 elderly blind men and women, most of whom have been referred to B.A.B. by the Massachusetts Commission For The Blind.

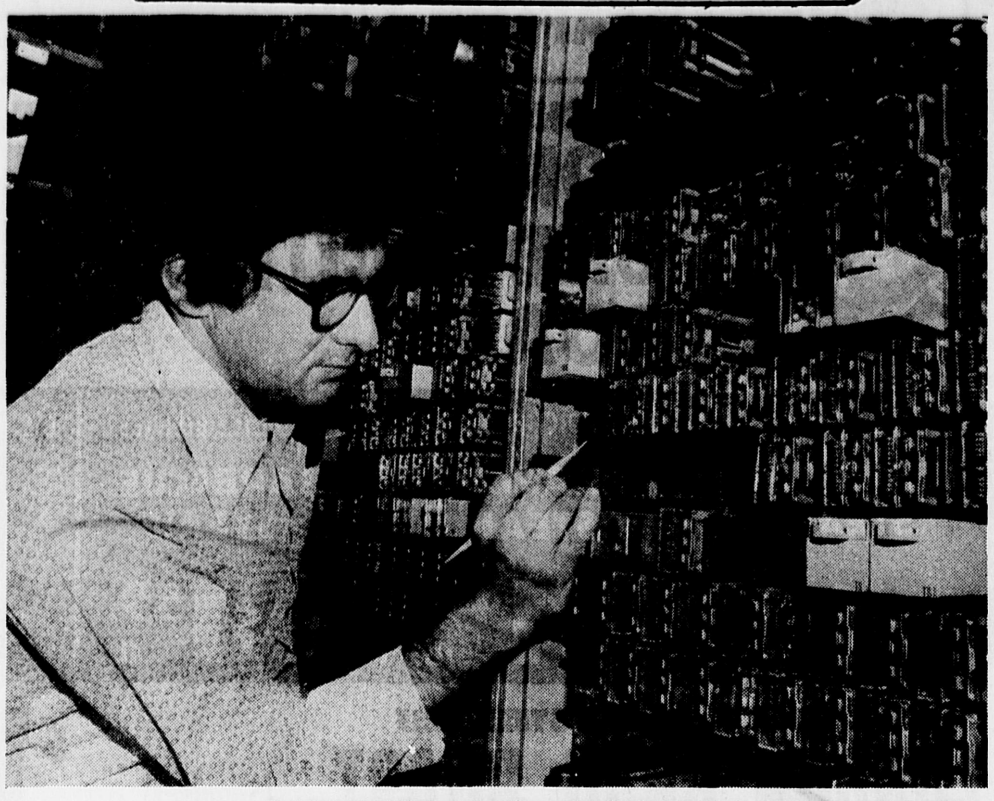

Stanley S. Lewenberg

At the West Roxbury Center, a program designed for skill renewal and the acquisition of new skills is conducted in woodworking, arts and crafts, physical exercise, literature, dramatics, bowling, dressmaking, music, and ceramics. Lectures are given in current events and problems of daily living also.

Lewenberg is a graduate of Tufts College and Boston University Law School and has held leadership roles in the alumni circles of both institutions. He served as commissioner of the Industrial Accident Board of Massachusetts by appointment of the late Governor Christian A. Herter and has lectured extensively in the field of workmen's compensation.

A past president of Temple Ohabei Shalom and the New England Council of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, Lewenberg has served also as president of the Jewish Big Brothers Association of Boston, the Newton Republic Club and the Newton Civic Association. In addition, he has served as chairman of both the Newton Human Relations Committee and the Newton Heart Fund Drive and as co-chairman of Newton Mental Health Drives.

Testing

Paul Vermette of Newton, an equipment installer for New England Telephone, tests an equipment frame at the Washington Street central office to make sure it is ready for the next phase of an equipment project. The project is designed to increase the efficiency and reliability of telephone service to area customers and is expected to be completed this fall.

Gasoline dealers meet

Members of the Newton Gasoline Dealers were among the 14 dealer groups which met recently in Framingham and announced the merger of all groups into a state association.

The Bay State Gasoline Retailers Association and Allied Trades of Massachusetts has established temporary headquarters at 15 Dorset Street, Springfield, Massachusetts 01108.

Plans were made to hold elections of delegates by counties within the next two months. These delegates will then elect a board of directors, who will be the governing body of the association. Harold P. Murphy, Jr., Springfield, was named president to serve until the election of new directors.

Frederick H. Moore, executive secretary of R.G.D.A. and Murry Langelier, Coordinator of M.A.S.S. Dealers, have been retained as consultants to supervise the operation of the new association until an executive director and staff are named by the new directors.

The association will serve as legislative liason at federal, state and local levels to protect members from unjust laws and will be represented nationally by the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers with headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Insurance plans for members and employees will be available. Special services, legal aid on leases and contracts will be furnished in developing a relationship between members and their suppliers. The association will cooperate with other groups in the Commonwealth, such as A.A.A., A.L.A., State and local consumer councils in fighting adverse legislation and in promoting regulations for the motoring public.

The following Newton residents have been appointed to seven-year terms as notaries public:

Jerome N. Weinstein, 14 Hobart rd.; Earl Ligums, 76 Hartman Rd.; Arnold L. Rubin, 2084 Washington St.; Manuel S. Taylor, 1548 Beacon st.; and Mary-Jane Chevarley, 75 Waban pk.

Telephone Co. steps up crackdown on 'cheaters'

New England Telephone announced today a crackdown on call cheaters.

It pointed out that fraudulent billing of calls is not a prank, but is punishable by both fines and imprisonment.

A recent law enacted in Massachusetts imposes a fine of $2,000 or imprisonment for not more than 12 months, or both, if an individual or individuals are convicted of publishing the number or code of an existing, canceled, revoked, expired or non-existent credit card or the numbering or coding system which is employed in the issuance of such credit cards.

"It is also a crime to use an unauthorized credit card number or charge a call to an unknowing third party," Newton business office manager, Paul Duncan, said.

"It amounts to stealing and violates both state and federal laws. In Massachusetts, conviction can carry imprisonment for up to 30 days or a fine up to $100 — or both."

In 1973, criminal charges were brought against almost 1,000 persons who were billing fraudulent credit card and third number calls. Of these, 88 per cent were convicted.

Today, there are several ways to detect illegal usage of telephone lines — including operators trained to recognize the validity of a credit card number and new electronic detecting equipment which does not involve wiretapping or conversation monitoring.

Aunified program of security investigation and centralized ticket investigation of fraudulent calls was implemented by the Bell System and the nation's independent telephone companies in 1971. As a result, losses have declined from $28 million in credit card and third number fraud in 1971 to $7 million in the past year.

"We don't want to prosecute anyone," Duncan said, "and we don't think anyone wants to risk a career over a phone call. However, if we closed our eyes and did nothing, all telephone users would end up sharing the cost of the calls made dishonestly.

"The great majority of these fraudulent calls are made from coin telephones," Duncan observed. "In some locations we have been forced to remove all coin telephones because of heavy revenue losses.

"New England Telephone will vigorously prosecute cheaters. It's unfair to expect the majority of our customers to bear the additional costs caused by a few devious individuals," he said.

Cramer Electronics awarded franchises

Cramer Electronics Incorporated, of Newton recently announced that it had been awarded three new stocking franchises for Bourns potentiometers in Denver, Seattle and Canada.

Earlier this year Cramer received new Bourns franchises in San Francisco, Los Angeles, and San Diego. This brings to 25 the total number of Bourns franchises held by Cramer at stocking locations throughout the United States and Canada.

In making the announcement, Cramer Executive Vice President A.J. Dinicola said, "We are pleased to receive this added support from one of the country's top manufacturers. Bourns' reputation for quality and Cramer's reputation for service have made us compatible business partners. Together our sales have grown impressively over the past several years. We look forward to continued success and even greater sales in the future."

Cramer has 37 stocking and service centers located throughout the world. The company's common stock is traded on the American Exchange.

DR. GERTRUDE T. HUNTER of 141 Aspen Ave., was recently sworn in as a member of the Board of Higher Education by Gov. Francis Sargent.

B.U. clinic named after Dr. Herbert Margolis

One of the nation's foremost pioneers in academic dentistry has been honored by the Boston University School of Graduate Dentistry (SGD).

The Herbert I. Margolis Orthodontics Clinic was named recently for the distinguished 74-year-old orthodontist after a half century of teaching, research, administration and clinical practice.

Margolis, who continues to consult at two state programs he initiated for more than 10,000 poor and handicapped children, was affiliated during his academic career with Boston's three dental schools — Harvard, Tufts and Boston University.

The recent dedication and reception was attended by 150 of his friends and family, former students, patients, professional colleagues and state officials.

Numerous wires and letters included congratulatory messages from the president of the American Academy of Science, Dr. Joseph Volker, his former dean at Tufts Dental School and now the president of the University of Alabama; the Tweed Foundation for Orthodontic Research, and the American Academy of Orthodontics.

The dedication was part of the School of Graduate Dentistry's $3 million development program. The four-year-old facility is currently in the midst of adding additional stories and a wing to house its growing teaching, patient and research efforts.

Dr. Margolis and his wife Ann, residents of Commonwealth Avenue, Newton, toured the 12-operatory orthodontic clinic before ceremonies. Talks included Dr. Richard H. Egdahl of Brookline, director of Boston University Medical Center; Dr. Henry M. Goldman, Grant Avenue, Newton centre, dean of the dental school and Dr. Anthony Gianelly, Palmer Road, Waban, chairman of the Orthodontic Department.

A plaque erected in the clinic and unveiled for the BU Professor Emiritus of Orthodontics cites Margolis as "pioneer in orthodontics, clinician, investigator and teacher."

Margolis, a graduate of Harvard Dental School in 1921, retired from BU in 1968, closing out a dynamic and fruitful career in teaching, research, clinical practice and organizing institutions for dental education.

He taught dental and oral anatomy at Harvard until 1940, when he joined the Tufts faculty and organized that school's Graduate Department of Orthodontics and for many years was departmental professor and chairman.

Margolis accepted an invitation from his Goldman, to organize BU's Department of Orthodontics. It became a major component of SGD with Dr. Margolis serving as professor and chairman until his retirement.

Margolis, who initiated a dental program for 7,000 children on welfare in 1950, continues to direct the Public Health Orthodontic Program for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

He also is admittedly proud of his continued participation at the Massachusetts Hospital School in Canton where he first began a program for handicapped children in 1940. This effort is sponsored by the U.S. Public Health Service.

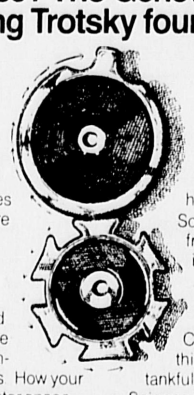

For his public service as well as his academic record, Margolis will travel to Houston next month to accept the Albert H. Ketcham Memorial Award from the American Academy of Orthodontists.

It is named in honor of the founder of the Academy and is given in recognition of "valuable contributions to the science and art of orthodontists." It has been awarded to 45 individuals since it was established in 1936.

True or false? The Geneva Movement is something Trotsky founded at age 19.

You guessed it. False.
The Geneva Movement is one of the more than two dozen devices at the Museum of Science that demonstrate principles of mechanics. These devices are fascinating. You can operate them yourself. And they show just about every movement but political.
The Museum is a wonderland of science. From astrology in the Planetarium to zoology. Demonstrations. Do-it-yourself exhibits. How your body works. How we explore outer space.
A gigantic wave tank. Live animals. A full-size, two story high Tyrannosaurus Rex (fortunately not live).
These are probably less than 1% of what the Museum of Science holds for you. But one of the Museum's best features is that it's right here in Boston. On an MBTA line. So that while you, your family and friends are seeing something truly interesting, you don't have to burn a drop of gas doing it.
Because the energy shortage is still with us, the Prudential Insurance Company thinks there are better things to do this weekend than burning a tankful of gasoline. Seeing the Museum of Science is one of them.

Gerald Fasman wins fellowship

Brandeis professor Gerald D. Fasman of Auburndale was recently named a winner of a 1974 Guggenheim Fellowship.

Fasman, a biochemistry professor, will work in "control mechanisms of genetic expression."

Fasman has been a faculty member at Brandeis since 1961 when he was named assistant professor of biochemistry. In 1963, he was appointed an associate professor, and four years later, a full professor.

In 1967, Fasman was awarded a National Science Foundation senior postdoctoral fellowship for work at both the Protein Institute at Osaka University in Japan, and at the Weizmann Institute in Israel.

He has done research at a variety of other institutes including the American Heart Association, the Harvard Medical School, the Children's Cancer Research Foundation, and at Cambridge University under a Rockefeller grant.

Fasman received a bachelor's degree with honors from the University of Alberta in 1948, and 1952 earned a PhD. from California Institute of Technology (organic chemistry). He was named the Loius I. and Bessie Rosenfield professor in 1971.

Conference on May 24

A conference designed to find ways in which the city and suburbs can cooperate to reduce racial isolation has been scheduled for Friday, May 24, at the Educational Development Center, 55a Capel Street, Newton.

Co-sponsored by the Massachusetts Teachers Association (MTA) and the Metropolitan Planning Project (MPP), the all-day conference to which teachers from throughout the state have been invited, will include workshops in curriculum development, staff development, community participation, and community resources.

The closing session will focus on the implications of metropolitan education for legislation, politics, and collective bargaining agreements.

A federally-funded project whose governing board and advisory council are made up of educators and representatives of minority groups, the MMP has as its goal to develop a ten-year proposal for the reduction and prevention of minority group student isolation.

Tribute paid to Lundquist

State Secretary John F.X. Davoren has joined in a tribute to Henry W. "Hank" Lundquist of 33 Hancock st., Auburndale, retiring from the State Department of Public Works after many years in public information.

A former radio newsman, Lundquist was the guest of honor at a retirement luncheon in the Acquarium restaurant in Boston on May 10.

Davoren who also did public information work for the Veterans Administration and the VFW before his election to the legislature, paid tribute to "Hank" for "his dedicated, devoted and outstanding service to the State Department of Public Works, on the occasion of his retirement." Presentation was made by K. Krekorian of the State DPW.

This spring, Homelite is picking up the tab for picking up the grass.

If you buy a Homelite riding mower any time between now and May 25, we'll give you a $74.95 five-bushel capacity grass catcher, free.
What's the catch? There isn't any.
You can choose from the Homelite 5, 7 and 8-horsepower models which are attractive enough in themselves.
They all have anti-scalp mower decks that conform to the surface of your lawn for more uniform cutting.
The RE-8 lets you shift from forward to reverse without a clutch pedal. So the back wheels don't spin out and neither does the grass under them.
Electric starting is available. And all three come with various comfort features like adjustable seating, effortless steering and pneumatic tires.
Check the listing below for the Homelite dealer nearest you.
You have from now until May 25 to take advantage of the free grass catcher offer. And rake in a savings of $74.95.

Myrtle Baptist 'Woman's Day' Sunday

The annual Women's Day will be held at Myrtle Baptist Church Sunday, May 19, with a morning worship service and an afternoon service at 4 p.m.

The morning preacher will be Rev. Nurjhan Govan, associate minister at Charles Street AME Church, Roxbury.

Rev. Govan's educational background includes: 1969-1972 Boston University, graduating with an M.A. in clinical counseling, 1966-1968 Boston University, an A.B. in psychology and English literature, 1964-1966 Barrington College, Barrington, R.I. phychology and literature and 1956-1960 Hartford Public High School, Hartford, Conn.

From 1972 to the present, she has been involved in the areas of youth development, drugs and crime prevention. She has been a consultant and lecturer on these subjects for various human service groups. Rev. Govan has been sponsored by such groups as United Holy Church of America, Tufts University Black Women Sororities, the African Methodist Episcopal Church, Barrington College-Junior and Sophomore classes. She has conducted seminar workshops at college campuses and churches in Illinois, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, etc. Her interests have also led her to conduct many Teen Rap Sessions, particularly with minority and drug dependent youth.

He experience includes: Clinical experience at Boston State Hospital, Lemuel Shattuck Hospital and Massachusetts General Hospital as a counselor-chaplain; Uplift Community Center in 1971 as a counseling director; the mayor's Office of Human Rights, Boston, 1970-1971; the mayor's Youth Opportunity Program as assistant to the director of the special project department and assistant to the deputy director of the program.; from 1968-1969 she served as director of youth activities at the Southend Settlement House, Boston; 1968-1970 Rev. Govan was director of the Christian Drop-In Center in Dorchester; from 1965-1971 she was chairman of Public RKELATIONS FOR Youth Retreat (An International Christian Youth Organization); she also worked with the First Half-Way House in Roxbury observing the techniques employed by staff members in counseling drug dependent persons.

The afternoon speaker is Cecelia William Bryant. She was born in Yonkers, N.Y., the second of 10 children. Upon completing her A.A. Degree at Elizabeth Seton Jr. College for Women, she transferred to Boston University from which she received a B.A. in international relations and an M.A. in political theory. She has also done some preparatory work in Harvard Divinity School.

Her interest in the Creative Arts has stimulated her to write and produce three plays: "BLACK WOMAN", "THE FUTURE OF THE MORN", and "THE BIRTH," a musical. She has had poems published in many anthologies and magazines. Mrs. Bryant is also organizational editor for the upcoming journal of the women of the first district of the A.M.E. Church.

In her capacity as chairwoman of the Research and Status of the Black Woman Committee she served as organizer of their Seminar held in Louisville, Ky., in February, 1973

Mrs. Bryant served for two years as superintendent of the Community School of St. Paul A.M.E. Church in Cambridge where she is a member.

She is the wife of Rev. John R. Bryant, pastor of St. Paul A.M.E., and the mother of two children.

Those participating in the morning service with Rev. Govan are: Pamela Pulley, lighting of the candles; the call of worship, Mrs. Edna Pulley; the scripture, Mrs. Margaret Mitchell; offertory prayer, Deaconess Loretta Mack.

Rev.Harold A. Pulley, Pastor of Myrtle, will give the altar call and pastoral prayer. Music will be provided by the ladies of Myrtle with Bashie Nails at the organ.

The participants in the afternoon with Mrs. Bryant are Christy Pulley, lighting of the candles; Mrs. Edna Pulley, the call to worship and welcome; Rev. Gaylord and the Chance Sisters, guest musical group of Boston; Mrs. Margaret Mitchell, scripture; Deaconess Mack, prayer; selections by the Youth Choir of Myrtle Baptist; prayer by Deaconess Emma Oliver; presentations by womens groups of the church; remarks by the pastor.

Mr. Hubert Walters, Minister of Music will play in the afternoon and has coordinated the music for the day.

Mrs. Pulley is Woman's Day hostess. Afternoon co-hostesses along with Mrs. Pulley, will be Madonia Ford and Helen Lomax.

The committee members are: Sletha Carter, Barbara Cooper, Mildred Garrett, Margaret Houston, Ruby Welch, Mary Williams, and Mary Winston.

The junior members of the committee are Patricia Hunter, Nancy Mathis, Sharon Taylor and Mary Jane Williams.

Many activities have been held to lead up to Women's Day - a car wash, Missions Committee dinner, raffle of oil painting, sale of stationery, plaques, pins, candy etc. and mini luncheons.

Some of the women's groups in the church will be making presentation of $100 to the proceeds of the day which will be making presentation of $100 to the proceeds of the day which will be given to the Renovation Fund of the Church as will all proceeds.

Refreshments will be served under the direction of Mrs. Carter. All are invited to fellowship after the afternoon service.

The committee and Pastor Pulley invite the churches of the community to be guests at this Annual Women's Day. A freewill offering will be taken.

Newton graduate will continue studies abroad

Maureen O'Halloran, 21, of 377 Walnut St., Newtonville, will graduate from Newton College May 18 and leave the week following for summer studies in Ireland.

Receiving a bachelor of arts degree in Political Science, she was accorded honors in her senior thesis. During four years residence at the Centre Street campus, in part on Merit Scholarship, she was equally active in affairs of Student Government as with extra-curricular employment.

She was appointed as a resident assistant to the faculty in 1973 on a salary basis and for many years before had worked as a night cashier at the Star Market Company in Newtonville, as a lifeguard in the summer and as a skateguard in the winter in local M.D.C. Recreational facilities.

Her research in Dublin will concentrate on nineteenth century Irish politics, particularly as it affected emigration. She contemplates a publication in the field.

Her own great-great--grandfather came to Newton in May of 1866 because of the strife engendered by the Fenian Movement in ireland.

Many local residents still remember her great--grandfather, Edward P. O'Halloran who was for years a police inspector in Newton and practiced law until his death in 1936 as well as her grandfather, William T. O'Halloran, M.D., who practiced medicine here until his death in 1947.

Maureen is the daughter of William Edward O'Halloran, wellknown criminal attorney, and Alice Dunbar O'Halloran, who is active in local Parent-Teachers associations.

There are six brother and sisters who attend Newton Schools.

McLean employees honored

Eight Newton residents were honored recently at the annual service award ceremony at McLean Hospital.

Dr. Lloyd M. Caplan, West Boulevard Road, and Dr. Pehlps M. Robinson, Leonard Avenue, received awards for 15 years' employment; and Dr. Harvey M. Shein, Ward Street, and Thor J. Westerberg, Lawn Avenue, for 10 years service.

Honored for five years' service were: Mrs. Janet A. Gosnell, Bradford Road; Dr. Phillip Kelleher, Hancock Avenue; Michael Kivlehan, Warwick Road; and Dr. Charles R. Middleton, Somerset Road.

Edelman to speak at conference

Peter Edelman, 19 Carlton Rd., Newton will be a speaker at a May 17 conference on family rights at Harvard University's Lowell Lecture Hall.

Edelman, a vice-president of the University of Massachusetts, will speak on child advocacy.

Other speakers will include Congresswoman Margaret Heckler and Mrs. Jessie Sargent. Workshop panels will cover a variety of subjects relating to children and the family.

The conference is open to the general public, and is co-sponsored by the Mass. Children's Lobby and the Boston Association for the Education of Young Children.

Dr. Salzman to give lecture on May 20

Dr. Edwin W. Salzman, professor of surgery at Harvard Medical School and acting chief of surgery at Beth Israel Hospital, will give the Fried Lecture at Newton-Wellesley Hospital Monday, May 20, at 8:30 p.m. His topic will be "Antithrombotic Therapy — New Directions."

Salzman, who is on the Board of Consultation at the Massachusetts General Hospital where he also has been a clinical associate in Surgery, is the author of more than 90 manuscripts and a number of abstracts, many dealing with the formation of clots in a blood vessel or cavity of the heart. Dr. Salzmanshas also contributed chapters to several textbooks on surgery as well as on thromboses.

He is a member of the editorial board of the "Journal of Biomedical Materials Research" and the "Journal of Surgical Research," a consultant to the American Red Cross and the subcommittee of platelet glass adhesion of the International Committee of Hemostasis and Thrombosis, and a member of the executive committee of the American Heart Association's Council on Thrombosis, the National Institute of Health's Thrombosis Advisory Committee, the Advisory Panel of the National Heart and Lung Institute's National Heart, Blood Vessel, Lung and Blood Program, the International Committee on Haemostasis and Thrombosis and the American Heart Association's Council on-thrombosis.

The lecture will be given in the Usen Auditorium, and the public is invited to attend.

Gardner elected

The Museum of Transportation, Larz Anderson Park, Brookline, recently held its annual meeting. Frank H. Gadner of Newton was elected president of the Board for another term. Also elected as officers were John H. Kendall of Belmont, John A. Vanderpoel of Concord, and Brian T. Broderick of Boston.

The Museum's director, Duncan Smith, reported a record year in attendance and in Museum program use. Substantial additions to the Museum's collections were made in the antique auto and carriage categories. A number of grants were received and Museum fund raising reached record levels.

A number of new trustees were elected to the Board. Among them are Robert S. Hurlbut, Jr., headmaster of the Park School, Brookline, Robert C. Sprague, Jr., vice president of the Sprague Electric Co., North Adams, Mass., Henry B. Faulkner of Brookline, and Henry Morris Burrows of Summit, New Jersey.

Group seeks to upgrade children's television

Action for Children's Television (ACT), a national organization working to upgrade children's television and eliminate commercialism directed to children, announced recently that it has received joint funding for the next two years from the Ford Foundation and the Markie Foundation.

The grants totaling $300,000 will be devoted to a variety of projects over the two-year period, beginning with the preparation of a series of catalogues based on panel discussions held at ACT's recent International Festival of Children's Television in Washington, D.C. Staff members are now preparing for the first issue, which will spotlight programming and the handicapped.

Other plans call for initiating pilot research projects analyzing commercials and public service announcements on children's programs, expaning the research and information facilities of ACT's Resource Library, and the production of a nutrition education film for parents and teachers as a follow-up to ACT's campaign against misleading food advertising on children's programs.

In announcing the funding awards, ACT President Peggy Charren said: "The grants from the Markle and Ford Foundations have been awarded to ACT at a strategic moment in children's broadcasting. Never before in the history of television has there been so much concern and interest related to television programming and advertising directed to children. These funds will enable ACT to continue working with its members and supporting organizations across the country as advocates for children in the battle for better television."

From its headquarters at 46 Austin Street, Newtonville, Mass. 02160, ACT's staff disseminates information about current research and developments in broadcasting and children; distributes "But First, This Message," a 15-minute film analysis of children's commercial television; publishes a quarterly newsletter; and provides consulting services for parent, professional, and consumer groups.

In July, Pantheon Books will publish "The Family Guide to Children's Television" by one of ACT's founders, Evelyn Kaye, with the cooperation of the American Academy of Pedatrics.

SUPERIOR COURT
(L.S.) Equity No. 36648

To Wesley Gardens, Inc., of parts unknown.

Whereas a Petition in Equity has been begun against you in our Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex, wherein the plaintiff Donato D. Capasso of Newton in said County of Middlesex alleges that a cloud exists upon the title to a certain parcel of land located on Centre Street in said Newton conveyed to the said plaintiff by Wesbrook Company, Inc. by a deed dated February 1, 1974 and recorded in Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds, Book 12586, Page 421 in that the said Wesbrook Company, Inc. gave by mistake, a mortgage on the said property to the defendant Wesley Gardens, Inc. in the amount of $50,000.00, dated March 14, 1955 and recorded in Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds, Book 8428, Page 426 which mortgage was discharged by an instrument executed by Wesley Gardens, Inc. on March 21, 1955 and which discharge was never recorded.

Upon the foregoing Petition, it is ordered by the Court that the plaintiff notify the said Wesley Gardens, Inc., a corporation duly organized under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, that on the first Monday of August next, which day of this order, or within twenty-one days from the said return day, it does cause its written appearance to be entered and its written answer or other lawful pleadings to be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court at Cambridge, in said County, and further that it defends against the said petition in equity, according to law, if it intends to make any defense, otherwise the said petition in equity, may be adjudged and orders and decrees may be entered therein in its absence, by posting an attested copy hereof in a conspicuous place on the land described in the said petition in equity, and by publication on an attested copy thereof in the Newton Graphic, a newspaper published in Newton, once a week for three successive weeks, the last publication to be two (2) months at least before the said first Monday of August, 1974.

By the Court, (Dimond, J.)
Raymond E. Powell,
Assistant Clerk

Entered: April 24, 1974.

'SUN BUG'
LIMITED EDITION

Celebrate the return of spring
We have a new Bug with a new, good look brighter than buttercups on the hearts of daisies
It has class, mood to turn in the sunshine and the scent of a greening world
There's a touch of the wild in its leatherette corduroy upholstery
And a touch of the wind in its racing type wheels
For the touch of your hands, there's a covered steering wheel and special sunburst knobs
The Sun Bug is carefree as a May morning
And it sips gas
Make or remake a few of these golden rides
If you don't buy one now you may never get another chance with a price like this.

Next time you see someone polluting, point it out.

It's a spewing smokestack. It's litter in the streets. It's a river where fish can't live.

You know what pollution is.

But not everyone does.

So the next time you see pollution, don't close your eyes to it.

Write a letter. Make a call. Point it out to someone who can do something about it.

People start pollution. People can stop it.

Steal me. Burn me. Throw me away. I'm still yours.

Once you bring me home, I'm yours forever.

Even if I'm burned. Or lost. Or stolen.

If you look for me and can't find me, just report it. And you'll get me back, as good as new.

And remember: I'll never break your heart. Or leave you stranded in the tight spots.

I'll always be there when you need me.

And that ought to make you feel pretty secure.

Energy World

By ANDREW A. YEMMA

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Quiet and unassuming, Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby makes an unlikely spokesman for the most energy-active state in the nation.

Yet during the past year Hobby has devoted more of his official time to his duties as chairman of the governor's Energy Advisory Council than anything else.

"Texas is well known as the largest energy producing state," Hobby said. "But Texas is the largest consuming state as well.

"Because our size is second only to Alaska, we use more energy in transportation. We're also a leading agricultural state, and agriculture is a large user of energy. And with our refineries we're the largest petrochemical producing state, and that takes a very large amount of energy."

Drives Small Car

As lieutenant governor, Hobby's constitutional duties prescribe that he preside over the Senate and be prepared to take over for the governor in case of illness or death. But during his first term, Hobby has maintained a low political profile, choosing to work behind the scenes on a project he believes vitally important to both his state and nation.

Though his family is one of the state's wealthiest, Hobby was driving a Volkswagen to save gasoline long before it became fashionable, and his wife, Diana, rode a bicycle daily between the State Capitol and the University of Texas during the 1973 Legislature.

"It's very ironic that the 20th Century is going to go down as the century of oil and gas," Hobby said. "All the discoveries made in this century are going to be burned up in this century."

That statement leads him to advocate new governmental regulations on the uses of the nation's cheapest fuels —gas and oil.

Must Preserve Fuels

"Natural gas is the basic feedstock for the petrochemical industry," he said. "It's a basic raw material for most of our chemical fertilizers, and the effect of the energy crisis on agriculture is something we've just begun to see.

"It's silly to use natural gas as a boiler fuel when it's so valuable as an agricultural feedstock. We have got to — through governmental policy, whether taxation or regulatory —see that gas and oil are preserved for their highest uses — transportation, agricultural and petrochemical feedstocks."

Still Hobby insists a hands-off governmental approach to the energy industry's pricing and profits policies is necessary for a healthy national economy. For that reason he opposes the Consumer Energy Act now before Congress, agrees with critics that the act may lead to nationalization of the oil and gas industry and says President Nixon "wisely" vetoed similar legislation last December.

"The real danger from legislation like that is that it would lead to the worst of both possible worlds," Hobby said. "We need more investments in the field of energy, and it's going to take the investment of mass amounts of capital funds.

Favors Co

"The Chase Manhattan Bank put out a figure just recently that was so immense that it staggers the imagination —it was in the hundreds of billions of dollars.

"But where does the investment money come from? Investment is made immense that it staggers the imagination —it was in the hundreds of billions of dollars.d still not attract the investments necessary to solve the problems."

Hobby predicts that the 1975 Legislature, with recommendations from his Energy Council, will handle its energy legislation in a routine manner. He doesn't anticipate the need for an emergency session as was contemplated at the height of the energy crisis last December.

Until the lawmakers return to the Capitol, Hobby says he will be advocating more efficient uses of the state's oil and gas reserves —like turning to coal, for instance, to fire the boilers of electrical generators.

"You can generate electricity on lignite but it's darn difficult to run a car or a tractor on coal," he said.

Business Ethics

CHICAGO (UPI) — The nation's bigger universities are skimping on teaching students business ethics and social responsibility, a survey indicates.

The Rev. Thomas F. McMahon, associate professor of the socio-legal studies at Loyola University of Chicago, reported on a year and a half survey on the teaching of socio-ethical issues in American colleges and universities.

The survey of 557 institutions asked, "How do collegiate schools of business and public administration prepare their students for incorporating socio-ethical values in their decision-making as executives?"

McMahon concluded: "Regretfully, larger secular universities tend to overlook the personal problem of role conflict when superiors demand actions that are contrary to the ethical convictions of subordinates.

"Smaller, religious institutions cover this important area more often. As expected, religious schools stress JudaeoChristian value more effectively."

McMahon said 65 per cent of the institutions questioned responded and most said they did incorporate personal values in their teaching.

But one third, mostly large, secular institutions, did not stress any particular value system in their classes, McMahon said.

He said two out of five of those answering offered courses on social and ethical values, while others felt these matters were covered in other courses.

McMahon commented, "The material is so vast, the qualifications so demanding, the problems so unique that I challenge any dean to pinpoint the classes in management, marketing, finance or any other area where the teachers actually treat socio-ethical issues in an effective way."

"This survey probably raises as many questions as it has answered," McMahon said. "If this survey reflects reality, and I believe that it does, it shows that a positive answer has already been given by the respondents."

The Roman Catholic Church maintains 23,796 churches in the United States with approximately 48,390,990 members.

There is an estimated five million tons of magnesium in one cubic mile of sea water.

Country Players to stage "The Odd Couple"

The Newton Country Players have selected four veteran players along with four new members for their annual spring show. This year the Players will stage Neil Somon's "The Odd Couple".

This comedy is being staged and directed by Jay Ginsberg of Allston. A limited number of Sundays remain open for sponsorship by groups and theatre parties interested in fund raising. Performances will be held at the Pomroy Playhouse at 84 Eldredge St., Newton Corner. Seating capacity is approximately 175.

A star of the winter production of "Black Comedy," Samson X. Greiff, returns to the boards in the role of Fexli. Previous outing by Greiff with the group include the general in "The Balcony," Stepan Stepanovitch in "A Marriage Proposal," the villain Black Jack Dalton in "The Dastard," J. Sandoe Pranz in "Bells Are Ringing," Sidney in "Catch Me If You Can," Borris in "Can Can," the judge in "Inherit the Wind," "Damn Yankees," and "Janus."

For the American Jewish Theatre Company, Greiff played the roles of father in "Black Zion" and Jacob in "Awake and Sing.". For the Playhouse 101 in Milford, N.H., he has played the lead role of Elwood P. Dowd in "Harvey" and William Marshall in "The Little Foxes."

After portraying the role of krank in "The Waters' of Babylon" for the M.I.T. Community Players, Greiff affiliated with the M.I.T. Classical Music Society, working with the latter group as the first gangster in "Kiss Me Kate," Nathan Detroit in "Guys and Dolls," and Mr. Peachum in "The Threepenny Opera."

With the Phoenix Players, Boston, Greiff played Marco in "A View from the Bridge", General St. Pe in "Waltz of the Toreador," Irving La Salle in "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter?" and Jupiter in "Amphitryon 38." A specialist in dialects, TV viewers have seen Mr. Greiff recently on the Imperiale Said Oil Commercial over Channel 56, Boston.

Tapped to play the co-starring role of the Odd Couple "Oscar" is a veteran member of the Players, Morton Landy.

Landy played multiple roles in a rehearsed reading of the original musical comedy "Puzzle Girl," and was in the lead male role of Cpl. Clive Winton in the Players production of "See How They Run." Also with the Country Players, he played the role of the captain in the 1972 production of "Sam Stiller, Private Eye."

Previous stage experience includes his portrayal of George in "Student days" with the Starlight Little Theatre, Boston, and a series of benefit improvisational performances for ORT, Brighton Marine Hospital and the Freedom House, Roxbury. Behind the scenes, he has worked extensively as set construction chief.

A graduate of Boston College, Randy Mudarri of Newton Centre, will be featured as Murry the Cop. Randy's last role with the Players was his portrayal of Prez, the union president in "Pajama Game." At B.C. he performed in the lead roles of Bob in "The Still Alarm," Gambler in "Hello, Out There," Husband in "Plaza Suite" and in a number of sequences in "Oh What A Lovely War."

His other credits include the lead role of Matt in "The Fantasticks," Johnson in "South Pacific" and Julio in "Paint Your Wagon."

Portraying the role of Speed will be longtime member of the players, Bucky Rosenberg. A performer for the players in the role of Harvey Cobble in both the fall and spring run of Sam Stiller, Private Eye," he was also a member of the cast for "Puzzle Girl".

Rosenberg's Players' credits also include Smokey in "Damn Yankees," Big Julie in "Guys and Dolls," the lead role of Alan in "Come Blow Your Horn," Bailiff in "Inherit the Wind," the feature role of the King in "The Sleeping Princess," Bailiff in "Can Can" and the soldier in "Make a Million."

He portrayed the lead role of Man in "Noah" for the people's Theatre of Cambridge, which won the New England Theatre Conference's Moss Hart Award, and has served as set construction chief on many productions. He also played the lead role of Gilber in "Not Now Darling" for the Hovey Players of Waltham two years ago.

Playing the role of Roy will be newcomer Skip Portnoy. Another newcomer, Larry Morris, will essay the role of Vinnie. The Pigeon Sisters will be played by newcomers, Tobi Pilivian and Paula Finkle. Miss Pilivian appeared as Marion in "The Music Man" for Meadowbrook Junior High School.

Now in its 18th year, The Country Players of Newton, is a non-profit, Philanthropic association comprised of local residents who, as an avocation, are actively engaged in the development, expansion and assistance of theatre activity on community and educational levels.

For information concerning backstage involvement in the production, people may phone Lee Pinkofsky at 444-1967. For membership information or ticket reservations people may call Jimmy Sloane at 969-2665 or write P.O. Box 9 Newton Centre, Mass. 02159. Odd Couple will be performed on May 17, 18 and 24,25, at 8:15 p.m.

Exhibit

Berta R. Golshny of Newton is exhibiting at the Ainsworth Gallery, 42 Bromfield St., Boston, through June 1. Her works include etchings, woodcuts and engravings, featuring a series of large wood cuts on the theme, "Thoughts on Man," and her latest engarving on copper entitled, "Yom Kippur, 1973."

Ms. Sanderson wins art show first prize

Artist William Handley was the judge of this year's show by the Newton Art Association at R.H. Stearns in Chestnut Hill.

First prize winner was Gretchen Sanderson for her jewel-bright watercolor, "The Old Lak." Dorothy Britt's oil portrait of "Grandma Hill" won second prize, while third prize went to Sherman Shatz's acrylic abstract, "Interior Rearrangement."

Chosen for "honorable mention awards" were: Doris Helm's oil painting of "Country Road Mansion," "Red House in Autumn," an oil in luminescent colors by Gordon MacMillan, and a pastel crayon portrait drawing of "Carolinda" by Eugene Faucher.

This Newton Art Association exhibit will continue to be open free to the public until May 17.

Although regular meetings are over and the annual dinner on May 16 is at hand, organized by President Eugene Faucher, and Second Vice President Elvira Suitor, activities of Newton Art Association by no means come to a halt. Members enjoy social and artistic benefits of paint-outs and critiques during the summer months. For more information on these, people may call 332-6585.

Auburndale picnic May 27

The Auburndale Community Association and the Auburndale Community Schools are sponsoring community picnic May 27.

It will be held at the Auburndale Park beginning at 10 a.m. with a Bike Clinic which will consist of a timed agility course, bike tuneups and bike safety tips.

In the afternoon entertainment for all ages will be provided in the form of a clown, barbership quartet and folk dancing and singing. Soft drinks, coffee, desserts, pop corn and balloons will be sold.

All residents of Auburndale are invited to bring their lunches and join their neighbors for a day of fun.

Glee clubs to sing on May 18

The Highland Glee Club of Newton will be the host this year to the New England Federation of Men's Glee Clubs, when the clubs meet for their annual contest and concert.

This will take place at the Aquinas Junior College, Jackson Road, Newtonville, on Saturday, May 18, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

In the contest, each club sings two musical pieces of its own choice. The concert will follow under the baton of Highland Glee Club Director Robert C. Prince.

Tickets will be available at the door or by calling 527-2449.

Notaries public reappointed

Five Newton residents were recently reappointed as notary publics, State Secretary John F. X. Davoren has announced.

The residents are: Sydney S. Kaplan, 66 Esty Brook Rd., Newton Centre; Elizabeth Selden, 57 Norwood Ave., Newton Centre; William P. Matthews, 278 Auburndale Ave., Auburndale; William D. Barry, 11 Lorraine Cir., Waban; and Richard H. Lee, 107 Mt. Vernon St., Newtonville.

The terms of the notary publics will expire in seven years.

Award for Sheehan

Edward R. F. Sheehan, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Sheehan of Newton Centre, has been given the award for best magazine interpretation of foreign affairs for 1973 by the Overseas Press Club of America.

The award was for his article "Europe's Hired Poor," which appeared in the New York Times Magazine.

Frank Walker wins Lee Daniels award

Frank Walker of Glenwood Avenue, Newton Centre was named last week as the first winner of the Lee Daniels Student-Artist Award at Newton South High School.

Walker's names goes on a permanent plaque which will be kept at the school. He was awarded a U.S. Savings Bond.

Walker, a senior, sang an ario from Mendelssohn's oratorio "Elijah" last Wednesday at the Newton South May Arts Festival. The ario is called "Lord God of Abraham."

Walker participated in every Newton South musical presented during his years at the school. He had a lead role in "Milk and Honey."

He was a member of the Vocal Ensemble at Newton South, and also has sung with the Greater Bostonians.

Walker qualified twice for the Northeast District Festival Chorus. He plans to study voice in the future.

The Lee Daniels Award honors a student who has achieved a high level of professionalism while at South, and has been an important part of the music there.

Lee Daniels was a popular teacher at Newton South who died in 1972. Ken Mayer of the "Boston Herald Traveler and Record American" wrote that Daniels "left a legacy to entertainment in the beings of thousands whom he trained, and they above all will miss him most."

Meeting on May 21

The Newton - Wellesley - Weston Area Council of the Office for Children will hold its monthly meeting on Tuesday, May 21 at 7:45 p.m. in the Barry Science Auditorium of Newton College, Centre Street, Newton.

The agenda and discussion will include priorities on needs of children, presentations on programs which have requested funding for the coming year, development of an area information and referral service, and Chapter 766 legislation.

School closing rumor stirs parents

By TOM GRAVES
Of the Graphic Staff

The mayor called it the largest meeting in Newton since the hearing on the lesh law.

Signs were on the wall of the Bigelow Junior High School auditorium calling on people to "save our schools."

This was the setting for a Newton School Committee discussion this week of a feasibility study which projects effects of closing various elementary schools in the south and central sections of Newton.

More than 300 people jammed into the Bigelow auditorium on Monday night. A show of hands indicated that approximately half the people were from the Oak Hill school district, where a rumor has been circulating that it is their school which may be closed.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink explained that the study is a response to decreased enrollment in Newton schools and rising education costs. Both he and School Committee Chairwoman Eleanor Rosenblum noted that the study does not make recommendations about which school or schools should be closed.

The study simulates the closings of 11 different elementary schools. These schools are Angier, Beethoven, Bowen, Countryside, Emerson, Hamilton, Hyde, Mason-Rice, Memorial, OMAK Hill and Spaulding.

Each simulation considers the following factors: what effect would the closing of a school have on the projected enrollment and facilities of neighborhood schools; how far would students have to travel to new schools and how many students would have to cross major roads; how many schools border the school being closed; what would staff and cost savings be if the schools were to close; and what is the current operating cost of the school.

Also, what capital improvements are planned for the school in the next three years; how much vacant space is available in each school districts, and what the population increase might be if the land were developed as zoned; and what residential building projects are planned for the near future in each district.

In an earlier study, Director of Research and Planning Vincent Silluzio projected the enrollments of every elementary sdhool in Newton through 1977. He has emphasized that his projections are based on the number of births in the city in recent years.

Silluzio's 11-school study looks at each school individually, and projects how the closing of each would effect class sizes in neighboring schools in the next two years. His summaries about the effects of closing schools refer to projections he has made for 1977 and 1978 as well.

Fink said that a purpose of the study was to get common information. He noted that there "may be factors peculiar to individual schools which are not in the study. This data is essential before you begin to think of them.

"It would be the hope of the administration and School Committee that there will be further study of the issues involved," Fink added.

There was squabbling over semantics when the School Committee discussed accepting the study. Mayor Theodore D. Mann said he was willing to accept it as a "document," but not as an "accurate statement." The study was eventually accepted unanimously.

When the discussion was opened to the audience, parents had questions and doubts about its completeness.

One parent said that it was short-sighted to think about closing a school based on a five-year projection.

After Silluzio responded that a decline in enrollment has been going on for 12 years, this same parent pointed out that a new group of people may be moving into Newton in the future which could provide a new source of school children.

School Committeeman Henry Delicata also made this observation. He noted that while enrollment may decrease in the 1970's, it may increase in the 1980's.

An Oak Hill parent asked if there is date on the average age of home owners in various school districts. Although this is not included in the study, Silluzio said that this information is available.

Two effects of school closings noted in Silluzio's study were the busing of children one-and one quarter miles or more from their new schools, and the reconversion of special classrooms to normal classroom use. Parents objected to both of these possibilities.

Lois Alexander, chairman of the newly formed Community Schools Commission, pointed out that though school enrollment may be down, school population is up.

Although the 11 school study does not recommend that a specific school be closed, it does not when it would be feasible to close each school. A summary says that "it appears from these data that sone school south of Route 9 could be closed as early as 1974 and one school north of Route 9 by 1977."

The study picks out Memorial, Oak Hill and Spaulding as the three schools which could be closed in 1974 without overtaxing recipient schools.

It would be necessary, however, to bus Memorial and Spaulding students to new schools. No busing would be necessary, according to the study, if Oak Hill were to close.

The only other closing which would not require busing is Mason-Rice. The study says that Mason-Rice could not be closed "in the forseeable future without overtaxing the facilities of two recipient schools."

The study does little to abate the fear of Oak Hill residents that there school may be chosen if one school is to be closed. The report claims that the closing of Oak Hill is the only closing which would not require students to cross a major road en route to their new schools.

The total annual savings of closing the Oak Hill School (from staff, maintenance and utilities) would reportedly be about $160,000. Closing of the school "would have no effect on the enrollments of the six schools north of Route 9. Anyone of these schools could be considered for closing as well," the study reports.

Mrs. Rosenblum reported that she had a petition with 764 signatures opposing the closing of Oak Hill School.

Silluzio's summary says that "the average savings from staff, maintenance and utilities for the 11 schools is $156,000." In response to a question from a parent, Mann said that $150,000 means about $.30 on the tax rate.

The feasible closing dates for the other schools in the study are as follows: Angier, 1976; Beethoven, 1977; Bowen, either 1975 or 1977, depending on whether the per-

Newton has a country fair

Newton had a country fair last Sunday.

Springthing was at City Hall, and instead of the smells of doughnuts frying and ham baking, there were exotic aromas of Chinese and Indian foods luring the thousands of people to the outdoor tables

Sunlit glass and beads and silver sparkled and shimmered, tempting passersby to buy. The rugged, earthy pottery of local artisans sat stolidly waiting to be felt and hefted and bought.

Candles and string art and leather and enamel jewelry all vied for attention with social causes along the walks.

As a background school bands and choruses were playing or singing, while around the corners were dance and drama groups performing almost continuously.

There was something for everybody. Across the street the Children's Fair was going full tilt all day, with games and prizes and rides in the Newton Boys Club patrol wagon or Nonantum's antique fire engine

Picnics were going on all over City Hall Park on this perfect Sunday, and Newton got together for a day.

Auto center gets 'go,' service station stalled

Upholding the vote of its Public Buildings Committee, the full Board of Aldermen this week voted a recommendation to Mayor Theodore Mann to proceed with plans for a 2,160 sq. ft. metal building for an automotive center at Newton South High School.

The Board accepted the committee's report that "a preengineered metal building" would not need an architect and voted "no action necessary" on the request for a $6,300 architects' fee.

The metal building may be in service by the end of 1974.

At a committee meeting last week the School Committee again expressed its hope that an architect would be used at least for the site plan and landscape features of the new facility.

Ald. Alan Barkin of Ward 8, where the high school is located, led the fight to employ an architect and was successful in obtaining the promise of a public hearing on the metal building.

Replying to Ald. David Jackson's comment that the School Department's request is in its third year and would be delayed another two years if it had to go through the Designer Selection Committee and Design Review Committees, Barkin pointed out that "we delayed the new high school 10 years — waiting another year or so wouldn't be so bad."

Barkin, Eliot Cohen and Wendell Bauckman, all from Ward 8, voted against the recommendation, which passed by a vote of 16 to 7.

After another long debate, the Board "laid on the table" the petition of Joseph McMullin to be allowed to continue the operation of a truck and trailer rental service at a gas station on Route 9 in Newton Highlands.

In addition to a long list of conditions imposed on McMullin, including annual renewal of the permissive use if it is granted, a final effort to limit the number of vehicles stored at the front of the property to a total of 15 failed.

The decrease from 20 was offered as a compromise that might have swung over some of those who were opposed to voting permission for such a large-scale operation. When it appeared that the failure of the amendment might mean the defeat of the entire measure, Barkin moved to lay the item on the table, forestalling further action until the Board moves in the future to "take the item off the table."

Beaconwood project money requested

Mayor Theodore Mann has requested the Board of Aldermen to appropriate $150,000 toward site development of the Beaconwood Road site for low-income family housing.

A recent letter from the Department of Community Affairs made it clear to the city that DCA would not approve funding for the 20-unit project planned by the Housing Authority unless the city defrayed some of the cost connected with the development.

Low bids received by the Housing Authority would result in an average cost per unit of housing of $56,000, including a land cost of $88,000, and site development.

The DCA has told the Housing Authority to reject the bids if the city does not contribute the cost of site development, and, if so instructed by the DCA, to sell the land acquired.

Contribution by a city is not unheard of, Mann's letter of request to the Board of Aldermen pointed out. In Newton, Oak Hill Park, originally built for veteran's housing, received assistance in the form of long-term bonds amounting to $1.4 million, which financed utilities, sidewalks and streets in the development, according to the mayor.

The mayor's request for an appropriation was based on a state law providing that a city or town may raise and appropriate funds to "defray all or part of the costs of certain types of projects, including low-income housing," according to his letter.

The Housing Authority at the moment is trying to get bid extensions to June 21 from the contractor on the Beaconwood project, in accordance with DCA instructions, before proceeding with land-taking.

The request for appropriation has been referred to the aldermanic Finance Committee, which could dispose of it at tonight's (Thursday's) meeting, and the Board of Aldermen could vote on the item at its June 3 meeting.

Tennis troubles aired at meeting

Tennis mania, rampant all over the country, is no less prevelent in Newton, the Recreation Commission learned Monday night.

At its regular meeting, the commission heard from a group of Oak Hill people who are considering building an indoor-outdoor facility, and from a handful of residents concerned with Newton's rules for playing on its good courts.

Marshall Paisner of the Oak Hill Improvement Association informed the commission that his group wants to form a committee to investigate developing an indoor-outdoor public facility on the south side of the city on city land.

The public, he said, would underwrite the facility which would be "self-liquidating." It was suggested the city might donate the land.

The association, Paisner said, wanted a "vote of confidence" from the Recreation Commission.

George Buffington, president of the Oak Hill group, described the plan as "a very progressive idea warranted in a progressive community like Newton."

The facility would be operated by the Recreation Department and open to the public. It would not be a private club.

The group left with the vote of confidence it sought.

Other residents present criticized current tennis regulations and alluded to trouble on the local public courts over court time.

It was also indicated that some confusion exists over what a permit holder's rights are on courts.

Newton people pay $100 for a permit per adult or $20 for a family permit.

The confusion is over whether their permits entitle them to play on the courts, reserve the courts, or to play exclusively on specific courts.

Arguments and fights among tennis players in Newton were brought up at the meting and the city's policy of having court time start on the hour came up for a moment.

The lack of attendants on courts where there are supposed to be attendants was also mentioned.

The commission did not deliberate the matter in the open meeting.

Recreation commissioners also heard from a resident interested in providing playground facilities for young people at Newton North High School and got a progress report on the proposed playground improvements in the Burr School area.

There are 140 kids, the commissioners were told, in the Walnut, Austin, Lowell and Commonwealth streets area that do not have a playground.

The closest one is Cabot Park and the small one at Chapin offers no programs.

The commission voted to reinstitute a playground summer program for kids in this area using the North High facilities.

The commission also approved the site location for the proposed "parcour" at Burr school. It will be located adjacent to the school. Equipment will be similar to that already at the Angier and Underwood schools and it will include the "exercise trial," envisioned to have 20 stations through 1.3 miles of woods with signs at each station to indicate the pace and quantity of activity and with equipment for exercise at stations 8-16.

The site location was approved and commissioners voted to ask the Board of Aldermen for a transfer of funds of $1,600 to proceed.

Senate condemns Arab terrorism

The following resolution, filed by Sen. Jack Backman of Brookline, was adopted unanimously by the Massachusetts Senate.

"Whereas, Time and time again the United Nations and the individual nations of the world have ignored the "unofficial" violent attacks against Israeli women and children; and

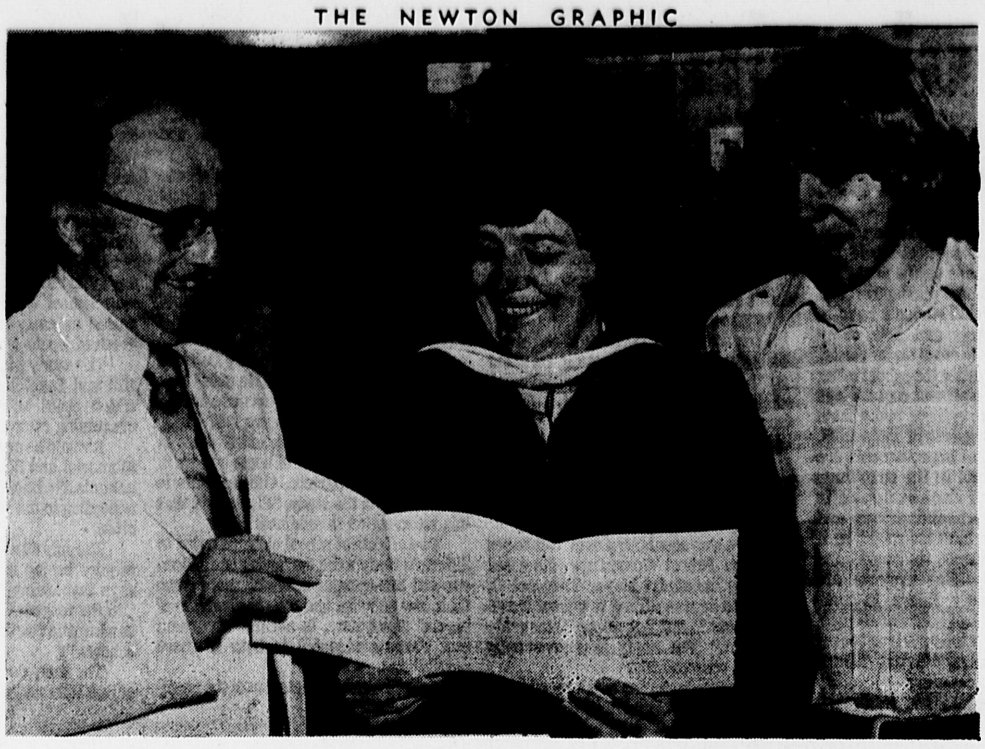

"Whereas, The guerrilla attacks originating from Arab countries, protected by Arab governments and openly encouraged by Arab leaders are just as deadly as any declared war; and

"Whereas, There can be no peace in the Mideast until the Mideast governments take action to stop this bloodshed and violence; and

"Whereas, The success of negotiations for a final settlement of Mideast problems depends on the sincere efforts of leadership in all nations to condemn violence and to take positive action to stop future such violence, in every form; now therefore be it

"Resolved, That the Massachusetts Senate hereby strongly urges the United States and the United Nations to call for an end to the aggressions which have provoked so much useless fighting and needless death in the Mideast; and condemns terrorism and killing by Arab guerrillas as well as the nations which support such acts, and be it further

"Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be transmitted forthwith by the clerk of the senate to the President of the United States and to the United Nations."

Graduate

Mrs. Marilyn Turley of Newton is the first of four members of her family to graduate this spring. She got her bachelor's degree from Curry College in Milton last Sunday. With her are her husband, Calvin, and her son, Matthew, scheduled to graduate from North High School in June. Two daughters, Cynthia and Susan, will graduate in a few weeks from Urbana College.

Crystal Lake vandalism begins again

The Crystal Lake bathhouse and docks were vandalized again last weekend in what one nearby resident has labeled "another yearly occurrence" of damage.

A resident of a house near the bathhouse called police three times Sunday afternoon to report that several young people were causing damage.

Police responded the first time to the park instead of the bathhouse. On one of the other calls the resident told police that he could could identify some of the boys leaving the area, and was told by police that unless police had witnessed the vandalism they could do nothing.

The man who reported the incident suggested that police might speak to the boys' parents, but police said the parents would not be interested.

Crews coming to work Monday morning to continue preparation of the swimming area for the June 8 opening found docks pushed out to the center of the lake, the boom marking the swimming limits broken and scattered along the shore, and the squalator float torn from its moorings. (The aqualator is a machine that produces currents in the water, keeping it from becoming polluted.)

Shingles with nails in them had been torn from the roof of the bathhouse and thrown into the lake.

Recreation Commissioner John Penney said this week that it may be necessary to post a lifeguard at Crystal Lake on weekends until the season is underway.

Penny requested money in his fiscal-year 1975 budget for police details at Crystal Lake, but the Finance Committee argued that patroling the lake is a normal, expected function of the Police Department.

Funds sought for streetworkers

Mayor Theodore D. Mann has requested that $6,784.80 be appropriated by the Board of Aldermen toward the $15,152 necessary to fund a Youth Street Worker Program from July 1, 1974, to June 30, 1975. The remaining money exists in the Human Resources Department budget.

Under the street worker program, Action, an agency of the federal government, will supply 3 cooperative volunteers to the city of Newton at $4,384 per volunteer and one VISTA volunteer at no cost tohthe city. Miscellaneous program costs (transportation, field trips, film rentals, equipment) of $2,000 will bring the total to $15,152.

The job of the street workers will be to communicate with the youth of our city in areas where they congregate, in order to alleviate the antisocial behavior of groups of young people.

The street workers will also counsel the individual youth with alcohol, drugs and emotional problems.

Mann said, "The implementation of the street worker program will demonstrate the city's commitment to a wide-ranging youth outreach program designed to more completely utilize the existing youth agencies in Newton. By putting four full-time workers for a year on the streets of Newton, under the guidance of the Youth Commission and the supervision of the Human Resources Department, I expect that a spirit of cooperation will be fostered among Newton's youth agencies that will result in a more efficient use of resources existing to help youth.

One of the areas being seriously considered for a street worker is Cabot Park. Neighbors of Cabot Park recently presented many grievances to city vofficials at City Hall, and since have held meetings with aldermen and the chairman of the Youth Commission about the vandalism and behavior of some young people in the park.

Elderly shoppers' bus route, service increased

Additional service on the Star Market weekly bus route has been announced by the Newton Council for the Aging, which has jointly sponsored the senior citizens bus for the past gwo years.

The shoppers' bus will continue to operate every Thursday with an expanded route and number of stops. The new schedule will call for three separate routes, one to each of the Star Markets in Newton.

The morning route will be to the Chestnut Hill Star Market and will begin at: 8:45—Langley Pharmacy Boylston and Langley Rds., 8:48—Glen Ave. and Langley Rd., 8:51—Newton Centre Methodist Church, 8:57—Parker House Apts. (Parker St.), 9:00—Parker St. and Athelstane Rd., 9:03—Centre and Clark Sts., 9:09—Centre and Walnut Sts., 9:12—Lincoln and Woodward Sts., 9:18—Cottage and Elliot Sts., 9:21—High and Elliot Sts., 9:24—Elliot St. and Circuit Ave., 9:27—230 Boylston St.–Chestnut Hill Towers, 9:30—To Chestnut Hill Star Market. The bus will return to the Chestnut Hill Star Market to take senior citizens home.

The second trip will be to the Newtonville Star Market:

9:45—Washington St.-7 Brookside Ave., 9:48—Horace Mann Apts. (Newtonville), 9:51—Albemarle Rd. and Crafts St., 9:54—Crafts and California Sts., 9:57—California and Adams Sts., 10:00—California and Faxon Sts., 10:03—Jackson Gardens Apartments, 10:06—Pearl and Thornton Sts., 10:09—Paramount Theatre, 10:12—Church and Centre Sts., 10:15—Pomroy House (Church and Eldridge Sts.), 10:18—Centre St. and Newtonville Ave., 10:21—Newtonville Ave. and Lewis Terrace, 10:24—Newtonville Ave. and Harvard St., 10:27—Harvard and Cabot Sts., 10:30—To Star Market–Newtonville. The bus will return to Star Market at 12 noon to take people home along the same route.

The third route will be in the afternoon to the Aururndale Star Market: 1:00—Auburndale Ave. and Lexington St., 1:03—Lexington and River Sts., 1:06—Derby St. and Parmenter Rd., 1:09—Derby and Cherry Sts., 1:14—Cherry and River Sts., 1:19—Community Service Center-429 Cherry St., 1:24—Washington and Auburn Sts., 1:27—Washington St. and Commonwealth Ave., 1:30—Commonwealth Ave. and Chestnut St., 1:33—Chestnut and Beacon Sts., 1:36—Waban Square (at Beacon St.), 1:41—Beacon and Washington Sts. (Heritage Hill Nursing Home), 1:44—Grove St. and Lower Falls Library, 1:47—Grove and Pierrepont Sts., 1:50—Grove St. and Woodland Rd., 1:53—Norumbega Apartments (Ash St.), 1:56—To Star Market–Auburndale. The bus will return to the Star Market at 3:15 to pick people up.

Both the Star Market Corp. and the Newton Council for the Aging hope that this revised schedule will be more convenient for the senior citizens of Newton. If there are any questions about the new bus route, senior citizens should call the Department of Human Resources at Newton City Hall, 244-4700, ext. 266.

Bello dies in crash

Morton Bello, 383 Langley Rd., Newton Centre, was one of three men killed in a plane collision Monday in Tewksbury.

Bello was reportedly piloting a Piper Arrow when it collided with a single-engine plane taking off from Tew-Mac Airport.

Bello's passenger, Werner G. Halter of Quincy, and the pilot of the other plane, John Doherr of Hudson, were also killed as a result of the collision.

Bello and Halter were reportedly found still strapped to their seats in woods where their plane crashed.

Doehrr was reportedly thrown free of his plane and his body was found in woods.

Concord man pleads innocent to murder charge

A 22-year-old Concord man was charged last week with the murder of Joan Marie LoPorto, 356 Newtonville Ave., Newton.

Miss LoPorto was recently found dead in her parents' home Friday afternoon. Newton Police William Quinn said this week that there were "no gun shot wounds," but there was "no question about the fact that she was beaten up."

michael Bordine, 36 Wright Rd., Concord, was arrested by Lt. Richard Duffy and charged with murder. He was arraigned in Newton District Court on Saturday and a plea of innocent was entered.

It was reported Monday that Bordine had been ordered to Bridgewater State Hospital for 20 days of observation.

Miss LoPorto was a 1973 graduate of Newton High School. She is survived by her parents, two brothers, her maternal grandparents, and a paternal grandmother.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo S. LoPorto.

There were several breaking and enterings reported early this week.

On Sunday, State Police observedd a man in the ARCO station on Route 128 around 5:10 alm., and arrested Christopher J. Martin, 43 Bowdoin St., Newton Highlannds. Martin, 25, was charged with breaking and entering.

Two bat $750, were reporte missing from 74 Elinor Rd., Newton Centre, on Monday. A back door was reportedly found open at the home.

Another break was reported Monday at 24 Beech St., Newton. Entrance was reportedly gained through an unlocked cellar door and by smashing an inner door. Ninety dollars in silver, jewelry, stereo equipment, tapes and records were reported missing.

Ward 5 Republicans plan candidate debate

What may be the earliest bipartisan debate of the 1974 election is the one scheduled among the candidates for secretary of state by the Ward 5 Republican Committee for the June 11 meeting.

At this meeting it is also planned to discuss future programs for the meetings that are scheduled monthly for the rest of the year and to elect a new vice chairman. The meeting will be held at the Church of the Good Shepherd, 1671 Beacon St., Waban, on Tuesday, June 11, t7:30 p.m., and will be open to the public.

The Ward 5 Republican Committee (Newton Highlands and Waban) met recently at the home of the chairman, Robert O. Smith, and resolved that it is their purpose to advance the cause of good government at all levels by finding and supporting candidates for public office who are responsible, honest, honorable, sensitive, and efficient.

The committee resolved that campaign fund-raising drives should be conducted exclusively by the party committees, not by candidates, and they appealed to the governor and to all other Republican officials to support this procedure.

Women give party for nursing home residents

Braeburn Nursing Home residents were recently entertained at a party given by the women of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Waban.

Dorothy Hunt served as chairman assisted by Ruth Morton, Alta Potts, Polly Malcom, Helen Ludlow, Ethel Rantz, Frances Ardeff, Elsie Moore, Elizabeth Uehlein, Catherine Marquardt, Doris Davis, and Betsy Riviere. Favors, in the form of scented sachets, were presented to residents.

The regular monthly art exhibit is under the direction of Mrs. Monica Cossaboon and features an exhibit of prize winning photographs by Mrs. Jack Malone of Needham.

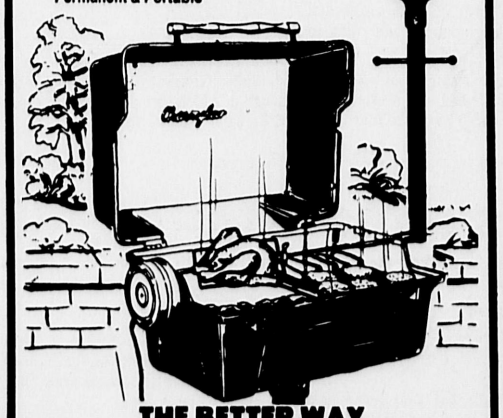

Many of the residents continue their community service by addressing mailing for Channel 2 and knitting afghan squares for distribution by the American Red Cross.

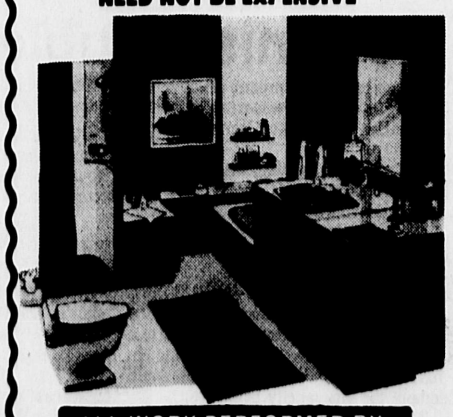

Harmonica and accordian music floated through the Waban Square home when the Rev. John W. Brush entertained with a variety of old time favorite tunes.

Miss Christian Ayars of Brookline presented a slide program entitled "The Indonesian Islands of Bali and Java".

Visiting pianists have included Miss Ruth Draper and Raymond Shannon. Both musicians featured familiar tunes of long ago.

City preparing for its Memorial Day parade

The following procedure has been announced for Newton's May 26 Memorial Day Parade:

The commanders of participating organizations, upon arrival at Washington and Crafts Streets, Newtonville, will report to Secretary Jayne C. Driscoll, or to an aide wearing a red badge. They will then be directed to their positions in the parade column.

Officers of the staff, aides and associate members of the Newton government will report to the chief marshal. Members of the military staff will wear service uniforms without sidearms.

The parade column will assemble at 12:15 p.m., and will step out at 1 p.m. It will proceed over the following route:

From the First National Stores' parking lot at Washington and Crafts Street it will proceed west on Washington Street to Walnut Street; it will go south on Walnut Street to Commonwealth Avenue and the War Memorial Flag Staff, where the column will halt for the placing of wreaths and a prayer; the column will then proceedd south on Walnut Street to the Newton Cemetery, the program at the GAR Monument, and the Veteran's Lot.

Following these ceremonies, the column will proceed out the main gate of the cemetery, north on Walnut Street, and west on Commonwealth Avenue to City Hall, where the parade will pass in review. The bands will perform for the chief of staff, the chief marshal, and the adjutant general and their staffs.

Commanders of the various units will keep their units in proper marching order and all bands will play while resting in review. All units will disband at Homer Street near Commonwealth Avenue.

The parade column will assemble as follows: Honorary Marshal RMOSARIO Guzzi, Chapter No. 23 D.A.V.: Newton Police deail—Chief of Police William F. Quinn, Capt. Highlands on its way to council

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

Newton Highlands is the first community in the city mto petition the Board of Aldermen for establishment of a neighborhood "area council" and "service area" as a legal entity of city government.

The 1971 city charter allows the Board to grant such a petition signed by 20 per cent of the voters of a specified geographical area.

The petition, submitted to the Board last week, has had the necessary number of signatures validated for a geographical area roughly equivalent to the Hyde School district.

"The main function of the council is to serve as a means of communication between all departments, agencies, boards and commissions of the City of Newton and the residents of the area so as to advise all departments, agencies, boards and commissions. . . about the current reactions and attitudes of the area voting members to impending neighborhood issues or actions," the petition reads.

"Other services of the council may include communicating the wants, needs, and desires of the area in regard to city-owned land, buildings, and services (i.e., Hyde School, Newton Highlands Branch Library, Cold Spring Park, and Crystal Lake) to the appropriate city agencies," the petition continues.

Other services may include the responsibility to inform the area of any potential changes in the shopping area, the establishment of guidelines for the physical development of Newton Highlands, and communicating the commercial needs of the area to present and prospective merchants.

The council also will make recommendations on transportation needs of Newton Highlands.

Newton Highlands lies in both Ward 5 and Ward 6, and according to terms of the charter, the ward aldermen from both these wards would be ex-officio members of the nine-member elected council that would represent the service area.

The two ward aldermen are Ernest Dietz from Ward 6 and Susan Schur of Ward 5.

The petition also includes other mechanisms for keeping citizens informed and for obtaining input from the residents of the area.

The impetus toward forming a service area in Newton Highlands began last year when the Woolworth's store announced that it was leaving the Lincoln Street shopping area. Fear of what might replace it and of how its leaving would affect the other businesses in the Square led to the formation of a group that tried to find desirable tenants for the building.

The realization that there is no group in Newton Highlands to respond to community needs led to the formation of the committee to establish the service area.

Some of the outstanding concerns of the area residents are the future of Hyde School (it has been one considered for closing due to citywide declining school enrollment), the quality of the public library, plans for Cold Spring Playground, enforcement of zoning regulations, and the adequacy of shopping in the Square.

Of special concern is the continuation of Hyde School. Many residents feel that the school is the keystone to the community, since it has an active community school program and is in the heart of the neighborhood.

Newton Highlands is a "walking town," where residents walk, or bike, to do much of their business. Hyde School's 450 pupils are a close-knit group, and its PTA is active. Parents and children are often together at the school, which is considered one of Newton's finer elementary schools, despite its age.

The closing of the school would spell the end of the cohesiveness of the Newton Highlands community, many people feel.

Newton Highlands is a middle-income neighborhood, more stable than most neighborhoods in Newton in terms of families staying and children growing up in the same place. Ethnically, the village is almost ideally mixed.

There have been no problems until recently that would require an "improvement association," although one did exist inactively until a few years ago.

All of a sudden, the Highlands has begun to change, and sources of worry have arisen in the community.

One problem is that while most of old Newton Highlands lies within Ward 5 (and all of it did until recent realignment of ward and precinct lines), all of Ward 5's aldermen live in Waban. Neither the Highlands nor Upper Falls has its own representative in the Board of Aldermen.

Not only has the Highlands had less than adequate representation on the Board now and when there was an alderman from the Highlands, but also now there is no strictly Highlands alderman to help shepherd the petition through the Board.

Ald. Joan Saklad, alderman-at-large from Ward 6 who lives within the geographical area of the petition, has indicated her support, as has Ald. Susan Schur, Ward 5 alderman.

A public hearing, required by the charter, has been set for June 12.

The Board of Aldermen has 30 days after the conclusion of the public hearing in which to approve or disapprove the establishment of the neighborhood service area.

Compost keeps weeds away

Over 1000 people must be doing something right. They have gone to the Beacon Street snow dump to pick up free leaf compost.

If you have already planted your garden, go to the compost site and pick up a trunkfull to use as a mulch. Not only will the compost keep weeds out, but it can then be mixed into the soil in the fall to enrich it.

Remember—compost is available free every Saturday from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Beacon Street site west of Four Corners.

Nonantum ready for Sunday parade

As in past years, Nonantum will have its own parade in honor of the war dead. This year the parade will be on Sunday, May 26.

The parade will leave Cabot Park at 9:45 a.m. The route will be along East Side Parkway, Jackson Road, Green Stree, Cook Street, Watertown Street, West Street, and Adams Street to Magni-Coletti Park. After a brief ceremony, the parade will proceed down Faxon Street to the Forte Memorial at Allison Park for another ceremony.

The parade will disperse at Allison Park.

Participating sponsors of the parade are American Legion Post 440, Italian-American War Veterans Post 50, Franco-American War Veterans Post 24, Sons of Italy Umberto Primo Lodge 1069, Saint Mary of Carmen Society, and the Christopher Columbus Society.

Among those participating in the parade will be Mayor Thedore Mann, Police Chief William Quinn, Fire Chief Frederick Perkins, Jr., Veterans' Agent Carleton Merrill, aldermen and members of the School Committee.

Antique cars will be driven by Edward English and George Anderson.

Special marching units participating include the Hayden Twirlers, the Junior and Senior Annunciators Marching Bands of Cambridge, St. John's Drill Team of Cambridge, the Blessed Sacrament Marching Unit of Cambridge, the Shutt Marine Detachment from Watertown, and the Young Marines from Watertown.

Also marching will be the Daughters of Italy Newton Lodge 1640, Venerable Lee Parella; Newton police women, Mary Williams; Pop Warner cheerleaders, Angie Panzera; Newton Elks, William Murray; Brownie Troop 881, Alice Webber; Brownie Troop 529, Carol Clemente; Girl Scout Troop 501, Carol Mulcahy; Newton Boys' Club Keystones, James Pelligrini; Veteran Louis Cominsky; and Gold Star parents.

Also Brownie Troop 502, Ellie Gentile, Betty Connerny; Cub Scout Troop 502, Frank Wrye; Newton Little League, Frank Fitzpatrick; Pop Warner League, Fred Dalicandro; Our Lady's Church softball team; and the American Red Cross, Robert Keough.

Junior college summer session starts June 6

Fourteen courses will be offered in the Newton Junior College summer session which starts June 6.

The courses, drawn from the areas of the humanities, social sciences, and behavioral and natural sciences, will be conducted by members of the regular college faculty. Courses in business administration will also be offered.

The courses are: Princi,les of Management, English (reading, writing and study skills), English Composition I, English Composition II, College Mathematics I, College Mathematics II, Social Psychology, Marine Biology, Managerial Accounting, American Literature, Basic Mathematics, Psychology of Abnormal Behavior, Biological Oceanography, and Principles of Sociology. All courses carry three credit hours.

The summer session is planned for high school graduates who wish to explore college level courses, reduce their first semester's load, pr prepare for college; for college students who desire to accelerate their degree programs or to remedy any academic conditions; and for residents of the community who desire to study specific subjects at the college.

Classes will meet Monday through Friday, June 6 to July 18. First period classes will meet from 8:30 - 10 a.m., and second period classes will meet from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

Registration will take place Wednesday, June 5, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in College Hall, Washington Park, Newtonville.

Move it

One look at the agenda of Monday night's Recreation Commission meeting was all that was necessary to make it apparent this meeting would have been of interest to many citizens.

Meeting topics ranged from a tennis facility proposed by Oak Hill residents to the problems at Cabot Park to a proposal for a playground to serve Newtonville children living near North High School.

Yet the commission meets in a room barely large enough to accommodate its own members, let alone a substantial group of interested taxpayers. And to make matters worse, it also meets the same night the Board of Aldermen meets.

Recreation in Newton, at this point, appears to be a matter of a great deal of citizen confusion and ignorance. For the most part, action of the commissioners has received little publicity and has therefore generated little citizen participation and input. Circumstances such as these lead to a commission unaware of community needs and desires.

Last year, aldermen suggested the commission visit each of the city's eight wards and hold a hearing for residents to state their concerns. To date, this has never been done in any ward. Improved recreation programs in Newton, if that is what the taxpayers want, would be aided by substantially increased communication with the commissioners.

We urge Mayor Theodore D. Mann to seriously consider having the Recreation Commission meet in City Hall and meet on a night other than a Board of Aldermen night.

The commission needs a larger meeting room and would benefit too by being located in City Hall where residents are used to coming to meetings, instead of off on a side street in Auburndale.

And if Newton residents cannot state their own cases, changing the meeting day would at least free our aldermen to attend Recreation Commission meetings.

Parking ordinance

At least 150 people were there when the aldermanic Land Use Committee last week discussed an off-street parking ordinance proposed by former alderman Peter F. Harrington.

Harrington's ordinance would eliminate existing exemptions from off-street parking requirements based on floor area of the store and would substitute a requirement that off-street parking be provided in conjunction with any new construction or change in use of the premises.

What was unfortunate was that most of the people appearing to support Harrington's ordinance were there solely because they are trying to stop one particular restaurant in Newtonville Square.

We happen to agree that Newtonville Square does not need this fast-food restaurant and that the residents and merchants there have a legitimate gripe and valid concern. We hope the restaurant will not be built.

However, passage of this ordinance is not the solution to their problem. To solve one problem and create a host of others really does not solve anything. This ordinance would alleviate the Newtonville problem, yes. But it would create so many others its net effect would be a negative one on the community.

Parking in the various village squares is a problem. That is a statement that could not possibly surprise anyone. Effective means of overseeing further development in all of the village squares in terms of parking are needed in Newton.

But this ordinance is not the answer.

This particular ordinance was heard in June, 1973, and submerged. It was only resurrected to meet the Newtonville problem, and that makes it intrinsically unfair.

We recommend this ordinance be defeated and another more workable one be written in its place.

No one wants to cripple existing businesses or new, low parking, businesses from operating in Newton. If we must keep closer watch on business development in Newton, we will have to do it with a better plan than Harrington's.

In case anyone's still interested . . .

By CYNTHIA BLACK

Everybody thinks the "energy crisis" is over and I'll wager we'll live to rue the day we all started thinking it is.

There are no more lines at the gas station, speeds on the highways are increasing, and everyone forgot in short order that just a couple of months ago we were all really concerned about whether we had "enough."

Of course, for a long period of time now, we've never had to deal with not having "enough" of everything. It's quite apparent one little scare was not sufficient. I imagine that one day we will seriously run out of a lot of things. That's called learning the hard way and that's really the only way to learn.

Since we don't revere our land, our water, the tidiness of our city or anything that doesn't provide us with the ultimate in convenience now, I hope we're not surprised when we start to live without things in the future because they no longer exist.

I'm not even so positive that's going to be a really bad state for all of us. Perhaps love of land and nature only exists when it takes toil to make objects and products we need.

Completely Black

Not to get too futuristic, all of this is an introduction to the energy saving tips that have come from City Hall courtesy of the Consumer Affairs Commission.

To anyone that is still interested, and incidentally, I am because I'd like to save enough energy in other ways to be able to operate my air conditioning at a nice, frigid level this summer, here are the tips:

—Run washing machines, dryers and dishwashers only when full.

—Reduce wattage in light fixtures and turn off lights and appliances when not in use.

—Repair leaking water faucets.

—Minimize use of home and auto air conditioners and don't use the coldest setting.

—Consider electrical usage before buying small electrical appliances.

Reduce the temperature of your water heater.

—Buy products in returnable bottles and containers.

—Recycle glass and aluminum containers.

Quinn leads Dukakis; Sarge ahead of both

Polls in a variety of barometric areas indicate Attorney General Robert Quinn is leading former State Representative Michael Dukakis in the race for the Democratic nomination for Governor and that Republican Governor Francis W. Sargent is running ahead of both Quinn and Dukakis.

At this point in the campaigning the straw vote probably is not as important as the top aides of the front-running candidates claim it to be. Both the September primary and the November election are months away in the future. A lot of things can happen in the intervening period.

Nevertheless, the poll returns are significant. They show clearly that Governor Sargent has been untouched by the Watergate mess, that the people do not in any way relate either him or Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight to the sleazy scandals of the Nixon administration.

Whether this also means Watergate will not be as major an issue in the Massachusetts Congressional elections, as has been assumed, remains to be seen.

Supporters of Attorney General Quinn point out that Quinn was leading ex-Representative Dukakis on professional polls before Quinn had even announced his candidacy for Governor. They predict Quinn will make a spurt and open an even larger lead after he officially becomes a candidate for Governor.

Dukakis adherents, on the other hand, believe their man will close the gap after Quinn officially becomes a candidate. They point out that the publicity Quinn receives as Attorney General will be reduced after he formally declares himself a candidate and that Dukakis will be able to demand equal time, especially on television. (That presumably is why Quinn has delayed making his announcement.)

The poll showed clearly that Boston City Council President Gerald F. O'Leary would have cut into the vote of Attorney General Quinn if he had remained in the contest for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

O'Leary ran second to Quinn and ahead of Dukakis in some predominantly Catholic areas, where Dukakis appears to be doing poorly, presumably because he filed several bills for abortion advocate William Baird.

There is little doubt that O'Leary's presence in the race would have improved Dukakis' chances of defeating Quinn who shapes up as the favorite in a head-to-head fight with Dukakis.

Ordinarily, public sentiment in major election contests such as will be waged for the Democratic nominations for Governor and Attorney General and the Republican nomination for Attorney General does not change much during the summer months when the candidates have difficulty getting their messages across to the voters whose interest and attention are centered on other things than politics.

That helps candidates such as Governor Sargent and Attorney General Quinn because of the exposure they get through the offices they hold.

Incidentally, the fight between Governor Sargent and former State Commerce Commissioner Carroll Sheehan—if that term can be accurately used to describe their respective efforts to win the Republican nomination for Governor—is strictly no-contest.

Sarge appears to be leading Sheehan by about a 5-1 margin and headed for runaway victories at both the June 1 unofficial Republican State Convention and in the Sept. 10 GOP primary.

A few months ago, when the gasoline shortage was most critical, Sarge was in deep political trouble because of public resentment even though it was a problem for which he was not responsible.

Since the gas shortage eased, public sentiment has shifted, and Governor Sargent now seems to be in good shape both for the primary and the final election. New problems or shortages, of course, could change that picture.

Quinlan seen making strong election bid

Some students of politics doubt that any Republican can win election as Secretary of State in Massachusetts. If any GOP candidate can do so, it probably is State Senator John M. Quinlan of Norwood.

Quinlan has all the qualities and attributes necessary to be an excellent candidate. He has a thorough understanding of the state government, is a hard worker, a fine campaigner and a good speaker.

He is an overwhelming favorite to win the Republican nomination for Secretary of State. Quinlan will be opposed at the June 1 unofficial GOP State Convention by Ron Burton of Framingham, former star running back with the New England Patriots.

Burton, a Black, is a fine young man who would be a credit to the Republican State Ticket, but politically he does not appear to be a match for the hard-driving Quinlan. It's too bad Governor Sargent can't persuade Burton to accept one of the two other slots he must fill on the GOP ticket and take the nomination for either State Treasurer or State Auditor.

Quinlan made an unsuccessful bid for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor four years ago. But Governor Sargent had other ideas on his choice of a running mate and lined up the necessary convention votes for Donald Dwight.

Sargent and Quinlan both resided in Dover until Quinlan moved to Norwood a few years ago. Sarge is maintaining a hand-off attitude toward the Quinlan-Burton battle, and that seemingly is all Quinlan needs.

Burton has not yet disclosed whether he will challenge Quinlan in the September primary if Quinlan defeats him at the unofficial GOP State Convention. Burton sought the same nomination four years ago but was bested at the convention by former State Representative Mary Newman who was subsequently defeated by Secretary of State John F. X. Davoren.

The former Patriots star abided by the action of the GOP convention and did not carry his fight on into the primary.

Incidentally, Senator Edward W. Brooke indicated at the time that his sympathies were with Mrs. Newman against Burton, a fellow Black.

It has been a long time since any Republican has won election to any State Constitutional below the status of Attorney General.

Laurence Curtis did it back in 1946—28 years ago—when he was elected State Treasurer. A Republican tide was rolling that year, and GOP candidates will have no such help next November.

Quinlan's bid for election as Secretary of State probably will cost the GOP a seat in the State Senate where the Republican strength already is very thin.

Norwood has been placed in a new senatorial district which would be Democratic under any normal conditions. Quinlan might be able to achieve election in it, but it's highly unlikely any other Republican could, and it would be an uphill struggle even for Quinlan.

The contest between Quinlan and Burton will highlight the unofficial Republican State Convention on June 1.

Governor Sargent and Lieutenant Governor Dwight are expected to win renomination easily.

Sarge will have to draft two unsuspecting Republicans for the last two spots on the GOP State ticket and to run for State Treasurer and State Auditor.

He would like to come up with a woman candidate for one of the two offices and a person of Italian descent for the other.

Commentary

The real Murray Road

The Murray Road School has been called a lot of different things in the last seven years.

To the dismay of its occupants, it has been misunderstood at various points as a school for behavior problems, anarchists, and druggies.

While these misconceptions have abated, the school continues to have a public relations problem.

With the advent of the new high school and its policy of open campus, Murray Road has appeared less attractive to prospective students than it used to be.

Many of the parts of Murray Road which have been glamorized in past years, such as no dress code and students leaving school grounds during the day, are now accepted at Newton North.

These physical freedoms, which may no longer be exclusive, have obscured the parts of Murray Road which continue to make it a unique asset of Newton's school system.

Murray Road's first class, in 1967, enrolled primarily because of disenchantment with Newton High School. These students and teachers, and subsequent classes, proceeded to build a positive structure which has made the school more than just a retreat from the high school.

Ron Barndt, one of two original teachers still at the school, said at a meeting with parents last week that Murray Road's advantages and disadvantages grow out of its smallness.

Murray Road, a former elementary school, presently houses about 100 students. This is 15 less than the enrollment desired by faculty.

The obvious advantage of Murray Road's small size is that people get to know each other. Barndt pointed out that "people learn to get along with people they didn't think they could get along with."

Murray Road does not have the vast material resources of Newton North. Somthing Murray Road has been very successful at is finding people resources. Parents, teachers at other schools, and even students have volunteered to lead classes. Classes frequently evolve from the expressed interests of students.

The size of the school allows these interests to be heard. The staff has encouraged students to make decisions about what they want to learn. A desired consequence of these decisions is that students will feel responsible for their learning.

A student told parents recently that if something goes wrong, "there's no one to blame but myself."

Murray Road places a strong emphasis on people working together. English teacher ALLISON Hall teaches a writing class which asks that students share their papers with each other. "People count on each other for responses," Mrs. Hall told parents.

Murray Road presently needs more students for next year. There will be 50 returning students, and 30 new students had enrolled for next year as of last week.

Both sophomores and juniors are being accepted for next year. The staff would like 20 new juniors, but only two had applied as of last week.

It is possible that students from the south side of Newton will be accepted at Murray Road for the first time next year.

It is notlikely that Murray Road will be closed after this year, but the faculty would like 115 students. At a school which stresses decision making by students, the students are considered one of its greatest resources.

Edison explains increase

To the Editor:

Boston Edison's operations affect nearly everyone. Edison wants its customers to know why their electric bills may have increased by as much as 60 per cent in recent months.

We have developed a brief, factual and up-to-date presentation using charts or slides, depending on audience size, dealing with the vital issues . . . the fuel adjustment clause, electric rates, oil costs and the impact of these on our customers. This will be floowed by the opportunity for a frank and open exchange with an Edison executive on any of these topics.

A call to Boston Edison at 424-2460 or 424-2163 will bring this timely presentation to your neighborhood, community or club meeting.

Boston Edison believes it is most important to know about the cost of electricity and why.

Maalot

To the Editor:

With indignation and anger, we respond to the senseless killings at Maalot, Israel.

The members of the Newton Clergy Association demand that the United Nations take action to insure that just and secure borders be guaranteed for Israel and that any acts of terrorism be treated with the most severe means at its disposal.

We call upon all people of good will to come forward and to condemn these inhumane atrocities and to build bridges of conciliation that will eliminate such acts of terrorism and the need for retaliation.

Correction

Dear Editor:

Pursuant to a conversation I had with a member of your staff, I should like to call your attention to a "letter to the editor" signed by a Mr. Hagopian which appeared in the May 16 edition of your paper.

The letter which is captioned "Rabbi Shubow . . . " speaks of a Hanukah party at the Veterans Hospital in December at which time the cantor from Temple K.I. spoke of his friendship with the late Rabbi Shubow and depicted his own harrowing experiences as a former inmate of a concentration camp and victim of Nazi atrocities.

Please note: It was not the cantor of Temple Kehillath Israel who participated in this program and spoke of his experiences, but Cantor Gregor Shelkan of Temple Mishkan Tefila, Chestnut Hill.

Thanks come to Veterans Services

(Editor's note: Newton Veterans Agent Carleton P. Merrill got the following letter from the Veterans Administration in Boston):

Dear Mr. Merrill and Staff:

It has been a little over one year since we opened the VA Center for Problem Drinking at Court Street.

In reviewing our survival, our growth and our progress during this year, one thing is clear; that is, how good you have been to us and how much your help and cooperation have contributed to some of the good things we think we are doing.

We are writing primarily to thank you for your help, both in referring clients to us and in accepting our clients for services that we cannot provide here.

Without the personal attention, the competence and the concern of your counselors and staff to the veterans affiliated with this clinic, we know our services to these men would be severely limited.

Please accept our thanks and know that we look forward to another year of working with you in such a cooperative way.

Great concert

To the Editor:

The original compositions concert, presented by the Newton North High School music department last Thursday night, was a delight.

It ended leaving the audience wishing for still more. The genius of Henry Lasker was apparent in the talent he had perseveringly drawn forth from the composers; the varied music was well performed by many fine players under Gary Good's able direction.

What was especially fine was the spirit of the players in their serious and emphatic appraoch to the compositions of their fellow students.

It was a marvelous performance.

South students go on 'Housafari'

When seniors at Newton South High School go out into the world this summer, their housing search should be eased somewhat by the knowledge gained from representatives of Boston Gas Company's Housafari program.

With the cooperation of South Principal Van Seasholes and teacher Mrs. Diana Barron, students at the Brandeis Road facility began their Housafari with a pair of slide presentations early this month.

Housafari was developed in 1970 as a program covering the full spectrum of housing, aimed at furnishing high school seniors with information they will need as future homeowners and apartment dwellers. The project has become a popular feature of the utility's consumer information presentations.

Pupils are given a choice of subject matter for the slide sessions. Slide topics selected by the Newton South students were "Adding Personality to your Home," and "My Home - What Will it Be? - Apartment Hunting."

On the third day, the same seniors embarked upon the Housafari highlight: a bus journey to local housing developments. Newton seniors visited the site of the future Chestnut Hill Towers, condominiums, in Chestnut Hill; Windsor Village Apartments in Waltham; "Briar Hill Estates" in Waltham; "The Village" Condominiums in Watertown; and "Newton at Gateway" Condominiums in Watertown.

Making this Housafari possible were: Jason Sacks, manager of the Chestnut Hill Towers; Doris Morgan, rental manager of Windsor Village; Colonial Builders, Inc., builders of Briar Hill Estates; Leo La Brache, manager of The Village; and Rita Cranitch of H.R. McBride Realtor, the rental manager of "Newtown at Gateway."

Law partners

Two former aldermen (one of them a former city solicitor), a former assistant city solicitor, and a former mayor are now sharing an Auburndale law office.

Monte Basbas, now a special justice in Newton District Court and mayor of Newton from 1966 through 1971, is one of the lawyers sharing an office at 335 Auburn St.

Melvin Dangel, alderman at large from Ward 3 from 1958 through 1969 and city solicitor 1970-73, is another member of the group, which is not a partnership but an office-sharing arrangement, according to W. Fred Uehlein.

Uehlein, a lawyer, is the son of former Ward 5 alderman Ed Uehlein, another member of the group along with Robert Freeto, a former assistant city solicitor who frequently appears for clients before the aldermanic Land Use Committee.

Fred Uehlein and another young lawyer, Bradford Atwood, are part of the shared services, working for the group of older attorneys, Uehlein said.

Drinan urges increased federal assistance to mentally retarded

Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D-Mass) recently urged swift Congressional action to increase federal assistance to six million mentally retarded Americans.

Speaking before the annual convention of the Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens in Lenox, Massachusetts, Drinan criticized the Nixon Administration for failing to provide adequate funds to care for the mentally retarded.

"The President has called for the return of 70,000 institutionalized retarded to their communities and for a reduction in the incidence of mental retardation by one-half in this century," he observed, "but the President's rhetoric has not been backed up by the funding necessary to achieve these laudable objectives."

The congressman called for a substantial increase in federal assistance to state and local special education programs for retarded children. "Providing every American child with an adequate education is one of our fundamental national principles," he noted, "yet fewer than half of more than two million retarded children are receiving educational services suited to their special needs. "How can we hope to normalize the lives of the handiapped," he asked, "if we deny them the needed tools?"

Drinan stressed the need for increased Federal aid to Massachusetts before Chapter 766 takes effect this fall. The new law requires localities to establish appropriate educational programs for all children with special needs, including the retarded. The state would reimburse cities and towns for the cost of such programs in excess of average per-pupil expenditure.

"This policy of state reimbursement would cost Massachusetts an estimated $65 million next year," said Drinan. "The state currently receives less than $6 million annually in federal aid for special education (about $65 per handicapped child). The federal government must contribute far more than this token amount, or Chapter 766 may be jeapardized in the future by state taxpayers reluctant to bear the entire cost of special education."

The congressman also called for federal standards to ensure that institutions for the mentally are provided adequate care administered by qualified personnel. "The government must act," he declared, "to protect the residents of these facilities from the outrageous abuses which led to recent class action lawsuits in Massachusetts and elsewhere.

Drinan commended the Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens for its splendid efforts on behalf of the menatally retarded.

"Thanks larely to your perseverance and determination," he told the convention, "the state school at Belchertown has been dramatically upgraded, and Massachusetts has become one of the first states in the nation with a legislative mandate to provide special education services to all children who need them."

YMCA camp announces staff

Camp Frank A. Day, the Newton YMCA resident camp in E. Brookfiled, Mass., has announced the hiring of an experienced staff for the 1974 season.

Directing the 50-acre boys' camp is R. John Haston, the "Y" youth and camping director who has many years of experience in camping. The assistant director is Douglas Dennison, a senior at Springfield College.

Unit directors are Mark Cohen, a junior at Brandeis University with four years of experience at Camp Day; Brendan Duffy, a teacher at Malden High School who has been camping for seven years; and Mark McConkey, a junior at Springfield College.

Program specialists include Roni Rechnitz, the athletic director, who is a junior at the University of Mass.; archery and riflery director Peter Dobbs, a senior at Fairleigh-Dickinson University; nature director Frederick Marcil, a senior at Springfield College; nurse Barbara Krukonis, who has over 20 years' nursing experience; and maintenance superintendent Paul Los.

Heading the waterfront staff is Holy Cross College graduate Robert Daly. He will be assisted by Torsten Tullberg, from the University of Stockholm; Paul Timmins, a Suffolk University sophomore; and Tom Daly, a junior at Notre Dame University.

The counselor staff includes Robert Bertolino, a graduate of Newton North High; Jonathan Hooker, a senior at Newton South High; Kurt Zelman, a senior at Brookline High; David Kantor, a graduate of Belmont High; John Shagoucy, a senior at Medfield High; Thomas Meo, a junior at Suffolk University; John Cobb, a sophomore at Albany State; and Steve Bunn, a senior at Medfield High.

An open house will be held at Camp Day on June 9 for persons interested in seeing the facility. For information about the camp, people may call the Newton "Y" at 244-6050.

Newton College graduates 202

Baccalaureate degrees were awarded to 202 graduates of Newton College at commencement ceremonies Sunday, May 19.

President James J. Whalen presided at the exercises which were held on the Centre street campus. The graduating class represented 17 states and four foreign countries.

Dorothy Day, inveterate crusader for social justice and Catholic journalist, was the commencement speaker. She was born in Brooklyn Heights in 1897. Before her conversion to Catholicism, she was a writer for Communist and Socialist publications. A catalyst in the 1930's of what has since become the Catholic labor movement, she has continued her advocacy of non-violent social change. In January, she was the recipient of the first annual Isaac Hecker award presented by the Boston Paulist Center.

Dorothy Day was co-founder and serves as editor and publisher of the Catholic worker, an eight-page monthly tabloid paper which approaches social problems from the ground up.

She has divided her time and her unceasing efforts between St. Joseph's House of Hospitality near the Bowery in New York City and a farm that the Catholic Workers run in New York State. Currently, she is concentrating her energy on a newly opened house in New York City for needy, homeless women.

Two students received major awards at the commencement. The Gabrielle Husson Fellowship was presented to Patricia Clossey of Rosemont, Pa. The fellowship is named in honor of Sister Gabrielle Husson, the second president of Newton College. The award is made to a graduating senior who has helped to launch or sustain a project fulfilling some contemporary human need.

Ms. Clossey has been working at the Maryknoll Sisters Center with members of the Chinese community in Boston. She has been teaching religion and English. The Fellowship will enable her to continue her work full-time this summer.

The Mahoney History Prize was awarded to Mary Elizabeth Docktor of Milwaukee, Wisc. The prize is given by Dr. Thomas H.D. Mahoney, a member of the Newton College board of trustees, in honor of his parents.

The ceremonies on Sunday climaxed traditional commencement activities that included a number of Senior Week social events, and a Baccalaureate Mass and reception for parents and graduates on Saturday. A buffet luncheon followed the commencement exercises on Sunday.

Foot clinic

Children to visit hospital

The Newton-Wellesley Hospital's School of Nursing will sponsor its second annual friendly hospital program for more than 150 pre-school children from seven local nursery schools Tuesday, May 28 at 10:30 a.m.

Accompanied by 75 freshman ursing students, the children will be given an opportunity to enter oxygen tents, ride in wheelchairs, look through a microscope and try on operating gowns, masks and even plaster casts.

The children involved attend the Red Barn Nursery School, Weston; Wellesley Nursery School in the Hills; Auburndale Community Nursery School, Newton; Carter Memorial Nursery School, Needham; Carousel Day Nursery School, Waltham; ABC Nursery School, Newton and Brook Garden Nursery School, Wellesley.

Directed by Miss Lorelle Pelletier, R.N., nursing of childing instructor, the program is part of the School of Nursing's child growth and development course.

The pre-schoolers also will be given a tour of the hospital and served refreshments by the nursing students.

Ald. Mark White, in a long prepared statement, chided the Board for its previous rejection of amendments requiring trees, the location of all trucks at the rear of the property, and others designed to improve the appearance of the station.

White was made to feel guilty, he said, at the last meeting, when some aldermen accused those who were trying to impose more restrictions of "putting the man out of business."

"When I left that meeting," White said, "I was not only disappointed at the outcome, but more important I was disappointed in myself. Most of you disagree with most of my votes, but none of you can deny that I have been consistent in my efforts to uphold the law. I don't believe in making special rules for those who violate the law, regardless of how much business they do with the city."

Ald. Susan Schur complained that the Board had received no "economic data" on the station to show what effect restrictions would have on McMullin's business.

McMullin had been operating the station for many years without the necessary permissive use for the rental business and has been in violation of other ordinances.

Ald. David Jackson also opposed granting the petition, saying, "We had trouble six or eight years ago with this same station. This operator is not in good faith. I don't think you'll ever get him to abide by the conditions. His whole purpose has been to cheat on conditions."

The vote to lay the item on the table was 13 in favor, 10 against.

A cease-and-desist order issued against the station has been held in abeyance since McMullin's petition has been before the Board. Since it is technically still before the Board, Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson said Wednesday, he does not plan to issue another order to McMullin. The station therefore can continue operation.

The Board also took the following actions:

—Passed a resolution of the League of Women Voters setting procedures for the advertising and regulation of the sale of city-owned land.

—Passed a resolution offered by Ald. D. B. Cohen asking the state legislature for special legislation allowing Newton's Board of Aldermen to require permission and conditions for conversion of rental apartments to condominiums.

—Sent back to several committees an amendment to the ordinances recommending increased rates for use of the Newton incinerator by private contractors.

—Approved the appointment of Willard Pratt, water commissioner, to fill the vacancy on the Newton-Waltham Regional Refuse Disposal District committee created by the resignation of former Public Works Director Richard Dudman.

—Referred to the Consumer Affairs & Licenses Committee a resubmission of a petition from the Newton Taxi Association to establish a maximum of one taxi license per 1000 inhabitants.

Arts festival tonight at Meadowbrook

Meadowbrook Junior High School's Creative Arts Festival will take place tonight (May 23) from 7 to 10 p.m. at the school.

The program includes an art exhibit and an industrial arts exhibit in the lobby at 7 p.m. and a rehearsal of "As You Like It" in the auditorium at 7:30 preceeding the PTA meeting at 8 p.m.

At 8:20 students will exhibit their gymnastic skills. Also at 8:20 in the library there will be coffee house poetry; in Room 102 students will give readings from "Macbeth" and "Julius Caesar" and in Room 104 "Subways Are for . . . History."

There will be a continuous film festival in the lecture hall from 8 to 10 p.m., while the band will play in the auditorium from 9 to 9:30.

The evening will conclude with readings in the library and Room 102.

Increased membership

"W. J. Farrell Chapter No. 23 of Newton has passed its membership of last year," Massachusetts Department Commander of the sdisabled American Veterans Frank A. Cain reported recently.

missible student-teacher ratio in recipients schools is 25-1 or 20-1; Emerson, 1976; Hamilton, 1977, and Hyde, 1975. The closing of one of these schools could preclude the closing of other schools.

Edward Shapiro, co-president of the Oak Hill PTA, asked that an investigation be made of the 11 school study and alternatives to closing a school. "We would like representatives of communities at large with voting and voice power on a committee."

School Committee member Dorothy Reichard moved that the school administration be asked to establish a citizens advisory committee which would gather information about and suggest alternatives to closing a school.

The School Committee passed the motion, and the superintendent will bring in a recommendation about the committee's size and composition.

School Committee Chairman Emeritus Manuel Beckwith summarized the position the School Committee finds itself in near the end of the meeting.

"This School Committee would love to have a 15-1 or 14-1 student-teacher ratio and keep schools open, but we face many responsibilities," Beckwith commented.

"We face a serious decline in school enrollment. Can we sit back and wait four years to see if we are going to have an upward trend?" Beckwith added.

"I'm not saying I'm voting for the closing of a school, but we face an awesome problem."

Question: I was wondering if it would be possible for you to send me the recipe for Yummy Sticky Buns. The recipe I have is wearing out from use. Thank you.

Sister M.M., Norwood

Answer: A wonderful recipe that yields twenty-four light as a feather lemony sticky buns. It's a pleasure to reprint the recipe for you!

YUMMY STICKY BUNS

½ cup milk
½ cup water
¼ cup (½ stick) margarine
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
5 to 5½ cups all purpose flour

Combine milk, water and margarine in a saucepan. Heat until liquids are warm. (Margarine does not have to melt completely.) Pour warmed ingredients into large bowl of electric mixer. Mix together 1½ cups flour, sugar, salt and undissolved yeast. Gradually add to mixing bowl liquids, beating at medium speed. Beat for 2 minutes. Stir in by hand enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead for 5 minutes until smooth and satiny. Place dough in oiled bowl, turning once to oil top. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in size, about 1 hour.

TOPPING

Combine in saucepan:
½ cup margarine
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup pancake syrup
½ cup walnut or pecan halves

FILLING

Combine ½ cup sugar and 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Heat "Topping" ingredients and bring to a boil. Pour half of mixture into each of two 9" round cake pans. Sprinkle each with ¼ cup walnut or pecan halves. Allow to cool while dough is rising. Punch down dough. Divide in half. Roll one-half to form a 9x12-inch rectangle. Brush with melted margarine, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon mixture and starting with long side, roll up as for jelly roll. Cut into 12-1" slices, repeat with other half of dough. Place 12 buns in each pan, cut side down. Brush with melted margarine. Cover and let rise in warm place until nearly double in size. About 45 minutes. Bake in preheated over, 350 degrees, about 30-35 minutes, or until a deep golden brown. Invert carefully on wire rack immediately, to cool. Yield: 24 buns.

The trick of serving liver—chicken livers—has been solved by Mrs. J. D., Norwood and she shares her recipes with us. (Thank you!)

CHICKEN LIVERS SIMMERED IN WINE

6 slices bacon
1 pound chicken livers
½ cup white cooking wine
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ cup all purpose flour
Finely chopped fresh parsley

Fry bacon crisp; drain on paper towel. Measure drippings, returning ¼ cup to skillet. Dredge livers in mixture of pepper, flour; brown lightly in hot bacon fat. Turn heat low and add wine. Cover and steam until livers are cooked (about 5 minutes). Crumble bacon and sprinkle with parsley over livers. Serve on crisp toast, hot rice, or noodles. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

CHICKEN LIVER STUFFING FOR EGGS

2 chicken livers
½ teaspoon onion juice
2 tablespoons fat
4 eggs, hard-cooked
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
Salt and pepper
Worchestershire sauce to taste
¼ cup grated cheese

Clean livers and chop fine; sprinkle with onion juice. Fry in hot fat. Cut eggs in halves. Remove yolks and rub through sieve. Add parsley, salt, pepper, and Worcestershire sauce to taste. Then mix with chicken livers. Refill egg whites with mixture, sprinkle with grated cheese and bake in hot oven, 400 degrees until cheese melts. Serve with toast and tomato sauce. Makes 4 servings.

Question: Would you please publish a recipe for pickled cocktail mushrooms; do you have one that does not use fresh mushrooms, but instead the canned or bottled ones?

P.T., Dedham

Answer: These pickled mushrooms are best when allowed to marinate for 1 to 2 weeks before serving. Serve whole on picks—as an appetizer.

PICKLED MUSHROOMS

2 cans (4 oz. ea.) button mushrooms
1 cup white wine or cider vinegar
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 shredded bay leaf
3 cloves
3 whole black peppers
2 cloves garlic, sliced
1 slice lemon

Combine vinegar, seasonings and mushroom liquid. Boil 3 to 4 minutes. Add mushrooms. Turn into a jar and let stand overnight. (Best when allowed to stand 1 to 2 weeks).

Question: Do you suppose you could find a recipe for an old fashioned sweet potato pudding—all I know is, the potatoes are grated. Thank you.

Mrs. F.S., W. Roxbury

Answer: A quick and easy recipe the family is sure to enjoy:

SWEET POTATO PUDDING

2 eggs, lightly beaten
1½ cups light brown sugar
3 cups grated raw sweet potatoes
½ cup margarine
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 cups milk

Combine the ingredients, stirring in the milk last. Bake in a greased hot baking dish in a 325 degree oven for 1 hour. Serves 6-8.

Across the Kitchen Counter

Memorial Day weekend is coming up (a bit early) and the holiday signals a time for easy living.

Some families will pack lunches and children into the car and head towards the country or seashore. For others it's time to alert the gang to tasks around the house—getting out the screens, mowing the lawn or readying the lawn furniture. The reward for their labors, a delicious backyard barbecue.

The magic word in barbecuing is "Marinate." The experienced outdoor chef knows that marinating a budget priced chuck steak will bring the delight of melt-in-the mouth goodness the next day.

There's an easy way of marinating that eliminates the constant sloshing around of the meat in a pan . . . place meat in a large leakproof plastic food bag and put bag into a pot or bowl. Pour in marinade. Close the bag tightly with a tie strip and turn bag once or twice. Refrigerate overnight. (Some cooks prefer marinating meat in this manner and freezing until needed.) The trick is not to get hung up on just one marinade—experiment with a variety and use for lamb, chicken, steak, etc.

Perhaps the most popular barbecue fare is the hot dog and hamburger—serve yours with a variety of toppings. Include a great salad or two-one fresh and the other marinated—and for dessert something as simple as ice cream and cookies or a bowl of fresh fruit.

And then there's the family that prefers food prepared indoors and served outdoors with as little fuss as possible. The Potato Salad with Cold Cuts dish along with crusty buttered hot bread and a beverage, and it's a happy Memorial Day for all!

OVERNIGHT BEAN SALAD

1 can (1 lb.) red kidney beans, drained
1 can (8 oz.) cut green beans, drained
1 can (1 lb.) garbanzo beans, drained
1 can (1 lb.) black-eyed beans, drained
2½ cups chopped celery
1 bunch green onions, chopped
1 small jar (3 oz.) green olives, halved
½ cup salad oil or olive oil
4 cup red wine vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 cloves garlic, mashed

Combine beans; rinse with water. Drain and mix in a bowl with celery, green onions, olives. Combine salad oil, vinegar, salt, pepper, brown sugar and garlic. Pour over bean mixture. Mix lightly, cover and refrigerate overnight. When ready to serve, toss mixture and place in bowl lined with crisp lettuce leaves. Serve 6-8.

CHUCK STEAK OR CHUCK ROAST MARINADE

1 BONED CHUCK ROAST (or chuck steak) (2½ to 3 inches thick)
½ cup soy sauce
1 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons sugar
2 cloves garlic, minced
½ teaspoon ground ginger

Sprinkle roast or steak with salt and pepper and place in plastic food bag. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over meat. Marinate at least 12 hours turning two or three times during this period. When barbecuing, remove meat from marinade and grill 4 to 5 inches from hot coals approximately 20 minutes on each side. To serve, cut in thin slices across the grain.

VEGETABLE KEBABS

1 cup cherry tomatoes
2 medium sized zucchini squash cut into 1-inch pieces
6 mushroom caps
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
½ cup margarine, melted
¾ teaspoon instant onion powder
½ teaspoon instant garlic powder
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper

Arrange cherry tomatoes, zucchini and mushrooms on skewers. Combine margarine, parsley flakes, onion and garlic powders and black pepper in a small bowl. Brush over vegetables. Place over hot coals and grill about 10 minutes or until done, turning and brushing with margarine mixture occasionally. Yields 6 portions, ½ cup sauce.

POTATO SALAD WITH COLD CUTS

4 cups chilled cooked potatoes
1 cup thinly sliced onion
¼ cup vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup thinly sliced celery
1 cup coarsley chopped peeled cucumber
1 cup diced hard salami or bologna
3 hard cooked eggs, chopped
2 tablespoons diced pimiento
½ cup salad dressing or mayonnaise
½ cup dairy sour cream
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
Salad greens
8 servings assorted cold cuts, cheese and relish

Combine potatoes, onion, vinegar, salt and pepper; mix carefully. Cover; refrigerate for 1 hour. Add celery, cucumber, diced salami or bologna, eggs and pimiento; mix. Blend salad dressing or mayonnaise, sour cream and mustard. Pour over potato mixture and mix carefully. Cover; refrigerate until serving time. Arrange salad greens on serving tray; spoon salad into center and surround with an attractive arrangement of cold cuts, cheese and relish. Makes 8 servings.

SANGRIA PUNCH

Peel from 1 large orange
½ cup freshly squeezed orange juice
1 lemon, unpeeled, sliced into thin cartwheels
½ cup freshly squeezed lemon juice
1 bottle (4-5 quart) rose or burgundy wine
3 tablespoons brandy
¾ cup sugar
1 cup canned sliced peaches
½ cup sliced strawberries
1 bottle (7 oz.) sparkling water, chilled

Thinly cut outer peel from orange in one long spiral strip; place in large pitcher with orange juice, lemon cartwheels and juice, wine and brandy.

Refrigerate at least 4 hours for flavors to mellow, before adding sugar and other fruit. About 1 hour before serving, stir in sugar until dissolved; add sliced peaches and strawberries. Continue chilling. To serve, add sparkling water and pour into chilled large wine glasses. Garnish with additional lemon slices and strawberries, if desired.

Makes 6 servings of 1 cup each.

Potato salad with cold cuts

Enchanted summer evenings

By RUTH LENSON

This summer's evening clothes are meant to make a woman feel very feminine. Long dresses are draped . . . length is not an issue . . . hemlines range from just below the knee all the way to the floor.

The singly bared shoulder has become a sexy classic especially when shown in matte jerseys in sherbety colors. Some easy bare top dresses have their own cover-ups of fringe bordered shawls.

Marie McCarthy for Aldrich, Inc., has created filmy fantasies with her long printed silk chiffons and eyelet embroidered silk organzas, introducing the new midcalf and ankle lengths, elasticized necks and push-up sleeves.

The epitome of romance, fields of delicately sprinkled flowers are accented by a blue satin sash. Double layered silk chiffons, displaying bare top bodices with accompanying ponchos and chiffons bordered in sumptuous maribou spell out the fun and romance for spring and summer.

Designer Leo Narducci is a master of evening fashions. He pairs crocheted separates like an evening-length cardigan sweater with a tenty long and a bare slip-of-a-dress with a knit shawl.

Leo believes in color for night . . . bold and shimmering. Completely feminine, totally dramatic such as pairing double layers of violet, electric blue, orange and kelly green chiffon in ethereal strapless gowns. Each float is a flutter of chiffon petals which has a cover-up of long scarf or tenty coat.

Separates are done in the Narducci manner when he has evening shirts over draped or bias cut white matte skirts or trousers. Star-sprinkled sequined chiffon gowns are unmatched for their fine workmanship . . . as one customer sighed: "I should have known better than to tempt myself by trying the gown on. I can't say no."

Lingerie fabrics in boudoir colors in go-to-bed pajamas are leaving the home these evenings to go partying.

The pant-pajama or pant-jamas or pyjamas have become a whole new way of life. This design demands infinite tact—while creating the feminine, seductive look one must in no way look "beddy-bye."

Pat Sandler's soft pyjamas are in a range of beautiful crepes and chiffons, plain and splashed with colorful prints. Many of these have matching bras to complete their coordination. There are enchanting ensembles in crepe, some flirting their feathers.

The bare look means delicately-printed, see-through jackets with cut out slip dresses. Only the slender figure can carry off this style with any finesse.

The Bill Blass summer evening statement is frankly sophisticated . . . no fluttery ruffles or frou frou. A ruffle here and there yes, but no frou frou. As in his pink bodice for a brown dirndl-type gown—controlled ruffles edge the portrait neckline and around the hemline more ruffles.

The Blass favorite is a dazzler . . . a strawberry pink chiffon gown which boasts a cardigan of zillions of deeper pink paillettes.

Bareness is handled with control by Blass. His front keyhole halter is strategically placed in the slink of a floor length matte jersey.

The classic shirt look continues its popularity. For evening the long, elegant, sensuous shirts are tubular and softened with drawstring waistlines. Often splashed with colorful prints, these gowns are particularly desirable when traveling.

The romantic theme appears also in dainty white voile with hand-blocked roses in a delightful provincial print. It's a young look that shows off a tiny waistline and trim ankles the latter because of the just above the ankle hemline.

Here are some of the fashions you'll be seeing this coming season:

Night blooming polka dots that light up a black shirt and side wrap shirt. A smashing pajama ensemble, sophisticated black cotton background for hothouse strawberries and green leaves. And underneath, a shocking pink jersey wrap halter.

For those waltzes, or your poolside party, a diaphanous polyester chiffon gown ablaze with tropical flowers.

A handkerchief-skirted dream dress of double-layered emerald green silk chiffon. The high neckline a perfect foil for a thread-like gold chain. Night blooming poppies on pajamas that boast their own matching little bandeau. There's a big make-believe poppy on the pajama jacket's lapel.

Summer nights are meant to be happy nights.

Newton visiting nurses add Wellesley

The Newton Visiting Nurse Association held its annual meeting on May 13 at the Union Church, Waban. As the fiscal year came to a conclusion on December 31, 1973, the association was in the turmoil of change. Effective on that day the name and geographic boundaries were changed. On January 1, 1974, the organization officially became the Newton-Wellesley Visiting Nurse Association, responcible for home care services to the residents of both communities.

Mrs. Worthing L. West, president, conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Delbert L. Jackson, Jr., vice-president, gave a brief description of proceedings leading to the merger. Mr. Henry Salustro, treasurer, presented the financial report. A secretarial report by Mrs. Stanley W. Mack, former recording secretary, was circulated reviewing the work of the committees up to the merger.

Florence M. Tankevich, executive director, presented a written report which outlined the work of the staff and also of the opening of the Silver Lake Family Health Center which is an extension of the services. Miss Charlotte M. Stearns, assistant nursing supervisor, summarized her activities and accomplishments of the visiting nurse association.

The slate of officers are those elected at the time of the merger. They are as follows: Mrs. Worthing L. West, president, Mrs. Delbert L. Jackson, Jr., 1st vice-president; Mrs. Robert G. Fisher, 2nd vice-president; Mrs. Paul A. Levi, 3rd vice-president; Mrs. John Wills, Jr., secretary; Mrs. Stanley W. Mack, assistant secretary; William P. Ripley, treasurer; Henry Salustro, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Charles J. Macdonald, assistant treasurer.

Directors to serve until May, 1977: Mrs. Nathan D. Bugbee, Mrs. William Congleton, Mrs. Alfred P. Ginsburg, Mrs. E. Lake Jones, Charles H. Kimball, Mrs. Robert Lyman, and Mrs. Arthur A. Vernon.

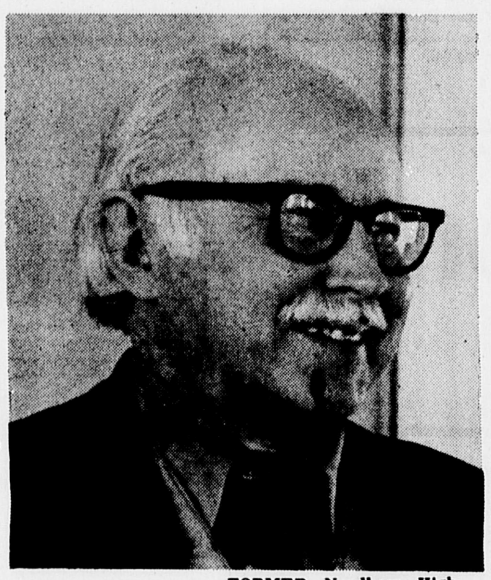

Directors to serve until May, 1976: Mrs. John W. Blakeney, III, Mrs. Ernest Henderson, III, Mrs. Robert S. Jones, Mrs. C. John Madden, Mrs. Robert McDonald, Mrs. Donald Pierce, Mrs. John Williamson and Mrs. John W. Webber.

Directors to servie until May, 1975: Mrs. S. Page Cotton, Mrs. Lawrence B. Damon, Miss Deborah Dewire, Mrs. Joseph Mattison, Jr., Mrs. Avard M. Mitchell and Mrs. William J. Taggart.

Attending the meeting were two past presidents, Mrs. Hortio B. Rogers, North Andover and Mrs. Matt B. Jones, Waban, and former treasurer, Walter Tebbettts, Waban.

Concluding the business meeting, Mrs. West introduced the guest speaker, William S. Brines, administrative vice-president of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital. A graduate of Brown University, president of New England Hospital Assembly, and a leader in local, state and national hospital associations, Mr. Brines has been director of Newton-Wellesley Hospital since 1954 and is serving as administrative vice-president. His subject was "A View of Changing Times in PATIENT Care." His interesting subject told of the new all encompassing total health care. Medicare has brought about great changes and he looks for more legislation in the future that will assure everyone of the "right to health."

Tea was served by a committee composed of Mrs. Robert McDonald, Mrs. Robert S. Jones, Mrs. C. John Madden and Mrs. John W. Blakeney, III.

Plaque

FORMER Needham High School Principal Harry L. Whalen of Waban was given a plaque recently in recognition of his many years of service to the Mass. Secondary School Principals' Association.

Hadassah presents Myrtle Wreath award

The Boston Chapter of Hadassah will pay tribute to two distinguished and highly-esteemed members of the Greater Boston community by presenting their 1974 Myrtle Wreath Award to Mildred Levine Goldberg, Brookline, and posthumously to her husband, Judge Lewis Goldberg, the late retired Justice of the Superior Court of Massachusetts.

Mrs. Hyman Burstein, president of The Boston Chapter, will make the Awards presentation at the 10th annual Myrtle Wreath Awards Luncheon at the Sidney Hill Country Club, on Wednesday, May 29.

The award is a signal recognition of their humanitarian work, their extraordinary record of community service and their strong identification with Zionism and the development of The Jewish State. Their son, Avram J. Goldberg, president of The Stop & Shop Companies, Inc., will accept the award on behalf of his father, who passed away last month.

Judge Goldberg's public service began shortly after his graduation from Harvard Law School, when he was appointed an Assistant U.S. Attorney by President Woodrow Wilson and served in that capacity for six years. From 1921-1926, he served as Assistant Attorney General for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and later became Commissioner of Public Utilities under Governor Alvin T. Fuller and again under Governor Frank G. Allen.

He was appointed to the bench in 1932 by Governor Joseph B. Ely and served with great distinction on the Superior Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts until his retirement in 1973.

Particularly concerned with the education and problems of youth, Judge Godberg held the office of the Presidency of the Bureau of Jewish Education for over 25 years, was a founder and life trustee of Hebrew College, a founder and first president of the Jewish Big Brother Association, Past President of The Jewish Welfare Board, Past President of Temple Kehillath Israel and Chairman of its School Board for 35 years, a member of the Board of Governors of the American Association for Jewish Education, a life trustee of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies, a member of the National Big Brother Association, an active member of The Massachusetts Bar Association and an involved member in scores of other noteworthy community, civic and charitable causes.

No lesser distinction marks the vigorous career of Mildred Levine Goldberg. For over one half a century, she has been a devoted member and indefatigable worker in Hadassah, the largest women's volunteer organization in the United States and the largest Zionist organization in the world.

A member of The Boston Chapter, she has held every major portfolio within the organization and was the first woman in the country to be appointed to the permanent status of National Hadassah Associate, a post reserved for women who have served for 15 years or more in a national capacity. She has been a past president of The New England Region of Hadassah and elected twice to serve a total of six terms as president of The Boston Chapter.

Mrs. Goldberg's membership in other worthy causes and organizations are seemingly endless. She is a life member of the following: Women's Auxiliary, Beth Israel Hospital, charter member, Women's Assoc., Hebrew College; Hebrew Rehabilitation Center, Boston aid to the Boind; HIAS; Temple Kehillath Israel Sisterhood and Jewish Women's Recuperative Center.

Mrs. Goldberg was an organizer of the Women's Division, American Jewish Congress, shortly before the beginning of World War II, as well as the Women's Committee of Brandeis University. She is also a member of the Jewish Family and Children's Services; Women's Division, American Society for Technion, United Nations Association and the Executive Board of the American Friends of Hebrew University.

She was a national vice-chairman of the Women's Division of Israel Bonds and was the first woman in the United States to be awarded the distinction of "Woman of Valor" within that organization for achieving a unique record of sales of Israel Bonds. She was invited to Washington in 1955 by the Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban for due honors and later journeyed to Israel where she was specially cited by Prime Minister Golda Meir.

The names of these two remarkable people head the roster of distinguished Americans who were the standard-bearers in laying the foundation for the invincible Jewish community that has emerged in the United States and their efforts on behalf of the Jewish people and their State will remain as a legend for those who follow in their footsteps.

Special invitations have been extended by the Boston Chapter to over 3000 life members to attend the Awards Luncheon, where Hadassah will also pay tribute to all new life members, their sponsors, and new 3rd, 4th, and 5th generation life-member families. Mrs. Joseph Soltz, Newton Center is the chapter life membership chairman.

Among the former recipients of the prestigious Myrtle Wreath Award symbolizing the scope and universality of Hadassah's work are Dr. Albert E. Sloane, Reverend Victor F. Scalise, Dr. Paul Dudley White, Mrs. Malcolm Peabody.

Following the award ceremonies, selections of music and song will be presented by the versatile soprano, Debbie O'Brien Sasson, a former Miss Massachusetts who has appeared with various opera companies in the New England area and whose husband, Michel Sasson is a violinist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Mr. Gloss talks to members of Newton book club

The Book Club of St. John the Evangelist Parish, serving the people of Wellesley and Newton Lower Falls, will have as their speaker, on Tuesday, May 28, George Gloss, proprietor of the Brattle Book Shop in Boston. The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the school hall. Mrs. John E. Thompson, Jr. of Newton is the program chairman of the Book Club.

Mr. Gloss is the curator of America's oldest continuous antiquarian bookshop. It opened in 1825, and contains 350,000 books. He has been the proprietor for 30 years. Mayor Theodore D. Mann of Newton has given him a citation proclaiming him an Honorary Official Appraiser of Rare Books for the City of Newton.

Hospitality hostess for the evening will be Mrs. Stephen Randall, assisted by Mrs. Charles F. McCann, Mrs. Philip D. McCourt, Mrs. Joseph Sincuk, Mrs. William M. Heffernan, Mrs. Joseph Hickey, Mrs. John Schoenfeld and Mrs. Harry J. Nugent.

Mrs. Richard J. Gleason, president, extends an invitation to all book club members, friends and husbands for an evening of entertainment and enrichment.

Shirley Laffin recently installed as Club Institute Chairman

Mrs. Charles W. Laffin was installed as Club Institute Chairman, Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs on May 9, 1974 at the annual meeting at the Seacrest Hotel in North Falmouth. In this position, Mrs. Laffin will preside at six Institutes, October through April, excluding February, at the American Legion Hall in Newton.

On Thursday, May 16, she will be elected president of the Past Chairman's Club, Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs at the Town Lyne House in Lynnfield. The newly elected president of the Federation, Mrs. Eugene G. Faucher, Newton, will be the guest of honor.

A resident of West Newton, Mrs. Laffin is a former president of The Newtonville Woman's Club, The Newton Federation of Women's Clubs, State Publicity Chairman, advertising manager of the State Magazine Federation Topics, Twelfth District Director and has served eight years on the State Executive Board.

Registration

Students who are planning to attend Newton North High School in September, and who are presently enrolled in another system or in private or parochial schools, should contact the Guidance Department at Newton North on or before June 3.

Appointments will be scheduled during the first week of June. Registrations at this time will help to avoid disappointment in course selection and delays frequently associated with registration during the opening days of school in September.

Students who plan to attend Newton North and who will be away for the summer months should take advantage of this spring opportunity for counseling and registration. The number to call for further information is 969-9810, Extension 246.

New hair fashions return to natural

"A woman is beautiful when she feels she is beautiful. I try to make her feel comfortable with her hairstyle. If she does not feel comfortable she will not project well."

Michel Kazan

By FRANCES SHUPING

Some women shy away from most beauty salons because they dislike the assembly line type of teasing, backcombing and spraying that results in clients with heads resembling oversized birds' nests.

It does not have to be that way, we learned, after visiting Michel Kazan's newest salon at Filene's in Chestnut Hill. Most impressive was the close attention stylists paid to their work, far different from those who have been known to chat with...and look at a co-worker while snipping customer's hair. At the new salon, most of the clients had their hair blown dry or softly curled. There was no teasing or backcombing.

Stylists are trained by Michel Kazan before they begin work in his salons. He was visiting his newest salon to introduce his spring collection of hairstyles.

A charming Frenchman, Kazan recalled he had wanted to be a plastic surgeon. He was studying toward that goal in college when plagued by the universal student problem of needing money. He began to sketch hairstyles which he sold to stylists in the French Theatre.

"I always believed very strongly that hair is the most important ornament to a woman's face," he said. I decided that if I could sketch hair styles, why not design them?" That he did, and how!

At the age of 21 Michel Kazan opened his first salon in Paris. Then there was World War II and service in the French Army. After the War he came to the United States where he was first associated with Helena Rubenstein.

Kazan works with fashion designers and bases his styles on the latest dress designs. He presently is working with James Galanos. Twice yearly he introduces new styles personally in each of his salons. Some of his most famous have been the cap cut, poodle, Grecian and the bouffant.

The latest Kazan "Headliner" styles feature the same basic bias cut. The hair is blunt cut, but on the bias rather than in a parallel line.

"With a bias cut, each strand locks back into place with the other," he explained. "The basis for a suit or dress is the cut. It is the same with hair. The basis for a suit or dress is the cut. It is the same with hair. The basis of any good hairdo is the proper haircut."

He stressed that a woman should not fight the natural instincts of her hair. She should take the best advantage of her hair type, curly or straight.

"A woman is beautiful when she feels she is beautiful," he pointed out. "I try to make her feel comfortable with her hairstyle. If she does not feel comfortable, she will not project well."

"When a woman comes in for consultation, I consider her height, facial structure and the proportions of her body. I find out about her lifestyle. I talk to her like a doctor talks to a patient. Then I drape her hair like a dressmaker drapes clothes, until we agree on the style that is best for her."

"Beauty is an illusion," he feels. "With advances in plastic surgery, cosmetics and proper hair care, there is no woman who cannot be beautiful."

Does he recommend plastic surgery or face lifting for some clients? "If it improves their appearance and makes them more self confident, of course. I may have it myself some day. You know, men today are as coquettish as women."

A unique feature of the Chestnut Hill salon is the men's styling salon within. There are separate rooms for facials and haircoloring. Dennis Miller is the new manager. He comes from Detroit, Mich. where Charlotte Ford and Mrs. Harvey Firestone were among his customers.

Michel Kazan believes the biggest fashion trend in haircoloring this year is red. "Coloring must be applied properly," he wanred. "One must be careful because some shades of red may make the complexion appear yellow."

We talked with Miss Irene, colorist at the new salon about some of the more recent techniques in hair color. She has been in the business for some 25 years, working previusly with L'Oreal of Paris and Wella of Germany.

Miss Irene explained that the newest innovations include the new shading processes for the brunette, the front of the head being slightly lifted in color, giving golden tones to any grey strands. The hair at the back of the head is colored in darker tones, giving the effect of natural shading.

"Barbara Walters of the 'Today' show has this type of coloring," she noted.

"Frosting is more of less on its way out. In its place are more natural looking processes, such as sunbursting, a highlighting process or tortoise shell, a more natural shading process."

She recommends a single process for blonding where the hair is lightened and colored in one step.

"We want to keep the hair healthy and achieve a more natural look," she said.

She also colors men's hair. "It is stylish now to add a touch of grey at the temple."

Would she refuse to color some hair? Yes, hair that is totally silvery white. "I wouldn't touch that hair for anything. There is nothing more beautiful."

Fashion futures

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

LOOK FOR summer fashions that flatter the figure...

...evening swirls of summer satin, thin and flowing, in mint or ice blue, to soften a tall, lanky figure, throw light on the complexion.

...the halter dress for a beautiful bosom, in fluid jersey gathered in the skirt to balance the top, the beige color flattering a tanned back.

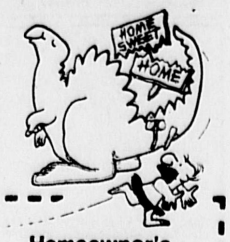

...the midriff look for a flat, taut waistline, in patio skirts with waistline-baring halter tops, in pajamas with tied midriff tops.

...the soft day dress, gently accenting a small waistline with a sash, graceful arms with full, cuffed sleeves, legs with a fluttering skirt.

Award for Holtzman

Chuck Holtzman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Holtzman of Newton, will be awarded a traveling fellowship by the Museum of Fine Arts' board of trustees.

Holtzman is a 1973 graduate of the School of the Museum of Fine Arts. He returned for a fifth year to compete for a traveling fellowship award.

Works like millions of tiny hoes to make your "inflation garden" a growing success.

"GRAND PRIZE® Gypsum improves drainage, too," reminds Jerry Baker, America's master gardener and author of "Plants Are Like People."

Now there's no need for heavy hoeing and digging to break up compacted soil. Just spread this natural mineral on your garden this Spring. Then water it in and let nature do the hard work, naturally. GRAND PRIZE Gypsum aerates hard-pan soil so it can breathe. Helps flower and vegetable seeds germinate faster and roots grow deeper. Allows costly fertilizers to do a better job, too. In fact, GRAND PRIZE adds its own sulfate sulfur and soluble calcium to soil; two nutrients essential to healthy plant growth. In the words of Jerry Baker: "Gypsum should be applied to all gardens, lawns, trees, shrubs and beds if the soil is the least bit hard or compacted." Get GRAND PRIZE at your garden center or hardware store. It's the easiest way to get hoeing!

Information from VA

EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q—As an eligible veteran, would I have to make a downpayment on a Veterans Administration GI home loan?

A—The Veterans Administration does not require a downpayment, but the lender may require one.

Q—I'm a disabled veteran who received a $2,800 auto grant from the Veterans Administration. Will VA help out on engine repair?

A—VA pays for repair, maintenance, or replacement of special adaptive equipment necessary to operate the car. The agency is not authorized to bear these expenses on the vehicle, itself.

Q—I was honorably discharged last week after two years in the military service. If I go to school, will the Veterans Administration pay for my books and tuition?

A—Books and tuition are provided under VA's vocational rehabilitation program for veterans with a 30 percent service-connected disability; or less, if the disability is a pronounced employment handicap. Veterans without a disability who enroll in school under the GI Bill receive monthly education assistance allowances to offset school expenses.

N.E. Telephone Company is cracking down on call cheaters

New England Telephone announced today a crackdown on call cheaters.

It pointed out that fraudulent billing of calls is not a prank, but is punishable by both fines and imprisonment.

A recent law enacted in Massachusetts imposes a fine of $2,000 or imprisonment for not more than 12 months, or both, if an individual or individuals are convicted of publishing the number or code of an existing, canceled, revoked, expired or non-esistent credit card or the numbering or coding system which is employed in the issuance of such credit cards.

"It is also a crime to use an unauthorized credit card number or charge a call to an unknowing third party," Mr. DePasqua local business office manager said.

"It amounts to stealing and violates both state and federal laws. In Massachusetts, conviction can carry imprisonment for up to 30 days or a fine up to $100 - or both."

In 1973, criminal charges were brought against almost 1,000 persons who were billing fraudulent credit card and third number calls. Of these, 88 per cent were convicted.

Today, there are several ways to detect illegal usage of telephone lines - including operators trained to recognize the validity of a credit card number and new electronic detecting equipment which does not involve wiretapping or conversation monitoring.

A unified program of security investigation and centralized ticket investigation of fraudulent calls was implemented by the Bell System and the nation's independent telephone companies in 1971. As a result, losses have declined from $28 million in credit card and third number fraud in 1971 to $7 million in the past year.

"We don't want to prosecute anyone," Mr. DePasqua said, "and we don't think anyone wants to risk a career over a phone call. However, if we closed our eyes and did nothing, all telephone users would end up sharing the cost of the calls made dishonestly.

"The great majority of these fraudulent calls are made from coin telephones," Mr. DePasqua said. "In some locations we have been forced to remove all coin telephones because of heavy revenue losses.

"New England Telephone will vigorously prosecute cheaters. It's unfair to expect the majority of our customers to bear the additional costs caused by a few devious individuals."

Erie Society plans Irish Night at Pops

A special treat awaits the audience of "Irish Night at Pops," which will be held on Friday, May 31, under the baton of Arthur Fiedler.

Renowned Irish Violinist Geraldine O'Grady and her sister, Elly, harpist, will be guest performers during the evening. The O'Grady sisters are trained in classical and Irish traditional music and conduct a regular program on Irish television. Geraldine O'Grady herself has served as conductor of the Radio Telefis Eireann Symphony Orchestra.

Under the traditional sponsorship of The Erie Society of Boston, "Irish Night at Pops" is an established highlight in the Pops season. Now in its 37th year, the Erie Society continues to function for the purpose of spreading awareness of the cultural achievements of the Irish. The Eire Society commissioned Leroy Anderson to arrange "The Irish Suite," which is frequently a feature of the "Irish Night" program.

Among the sponsors and guests who will be at "Irish Night" are: Consul General and Mrs. Cornelius Howard, Joseph Gannon, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Flatley, Rt. Rev. George W. Casey, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Galvin, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lyons, Dr. John C. Going, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hager, Mr. and Mrs. Bradley E. Copeland, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Kehoe, and Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. Donlan.

Tickets for the May 31 performance may be obtained from the cchairrman of the event, Liam M. Kelly, 20 Dean road, Wellesley (Tel. 235-9379).

Sir Michael Redgrave at Loeb Drama Center

The distinguished British actor Sir Michael Redgrave will appear at the Loeb Drama Center in the Royal Shakespeare Company productions of "The Hollow Crown" and "Pleasure and Repentance" in repertory for one week beginning May 13 through May 18 as a highlight of the 1974 Special Series Presentations.

Other members of the Royal Shakespeare Company appearing in the two productions in the Cambridge engagement are Sara Kestelman, James Grout and Paul Hardwick.

One of England's most renowned actors, Sir Michael Redgrave's notable career has included performances of the great Shakespearean and classical roles which he has played at the Old Vic, in three seasons with The Royal Shakespeare Company at Stratford-upon-Avon, and in the opening season of The National Theatre. He appeared as Laertes in Olivier's first "Hamlet," and as Orlando to Edith Evans' Rosalind at the Old Vic. His performance as "Uncle Vanya" at the first Chichester Festival was unanimously praised.

He has made many films and received numerous film honors, and was the first British actor to receive the Cannes Film Festival Award. He has appeared in productions in the U.S. and Canada as well as in Australia, Belgium, Holland, France, Denmark and Russia.

An author of several plays (notably "The Aspern Papers"), one of his books on acting, "The Actor's Ways and Means" has been translated into several languages, including Russian. A new theatre at Farnham in Surrey (England) to be completed this year, will bear his name.

"The Hollow Crown," an entertainment by and about the Kings and Queens of England, devised and directed by John Barton, has been acclaimed here and abroad. Delightfully spiced with humor, this varied presentation includes msuic, poetry, speeches, letters, and other writings from the chronicles in the monarch's own words. Richard Coe of the Washington Post called "The Hollow Crown" a "treasury of Royal British wit" when it recently played the Kennedy Center.

"Pleawure and Repentance," devised and directed by Terry Hands as a "lighthearted look at love," won the instantaneous praise of critics and was enthusiastically received in productions at Stratford, Edinburgh, and Dublin. An international hit, acclaimed by the European press as "hilarious entertainment," "A delight," "an essay in professional perfectionism that gladdens the heart" and "extraordinarily well done," this unique program takes the players from Sir Walter Raleigh to the Rolling Stones, and from Mickey Spillaine to the Book of Genesis.

The Royal Shakespeare Company engagement marks another leading international attraction which the Loeb Drama Center has brought to the Greater Boston area in its Special Series Presentations since the program began eight years ago.

Mail orders for the Royal Shakespeare productions are being accepted now. Group rates are also available. A detailed schedule may be obtained by calling or writing The Loeb Drama Center, 64 Brattle St., Cambridge 02138, 864-2630.

Very young lungs

Some premature babies have underdeveloped lungs. Now there is a way to find this out before birth.

A report by the local Christmas Seal organization, the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association, tells us that a rapid, simple, and accurate test to assess the lungs of the fetus has been developed by a team of researchers at the University of Tennessee. The test predicts how much trouble the lungs will have after birth and whether or not hyaline membrane disease, which is very rare among full-term babies, will develop.

Over half the babies who weigh less than two-and-a-half pounds at birth have the disease. The air sacs of the lungs are not properly developed and cannot transfer oxygen from the lungs into the blood. As the lungs expand with air, a suffocating tissue can form around the air sacs; and the lungs can collapse.

Breathing problems are obvious shortly after birth, sometimes within a few minutes. The disease rapidly worsens over the next few days. Oxygen treatment is almost always necessary.

The advantages of the new test – which measures substances in the amniotic fluid that reflect the level of maturity of fetal lungs – allow the doctor to anticipate trouble before birth. And results are available in three hours. Rapid results can be especially important when unexpected early labor begins.

Preemies who have hyaline membrane disease can be put immediately in incubators, and be fed intravenously. Their chances of surviving the disease are increasing as a result of new techniques such as the fetal lung test.

A great deal of research shows that pregnant women who smoke increase their chances of giving birth prematurely. The mother smoking blocks off the oxygen supply to the fetus.

To find out moae about pregnancy and smoking, contact the lung association at 326-4081. It's a matter of life and breath.

Air pollution booklet

Need some expertise in air pollution control technology? "Controlling Air Pollution: A Primer on Stationarey Source Control Techniques," a new 52-page publication available from the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association, may be helpful.

This volume describes the air pollution control methods that industries might use to meet emission standards, the different kinds of equipment available to do the job, how each kind works, and what its advantages and drawbacks are.

Limited copies of this booklet are available on a first-come-first-serve basis. Contact the Lung Association at 326-4081 or write to the Association at Box 306, 745 High street, Westwood, Ma. 02090.

Business Briefs

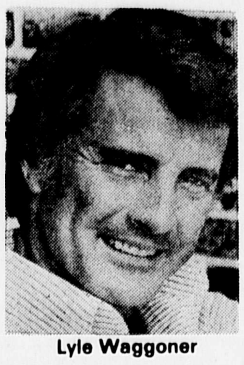

European Health Spa grand opening May 29

The West Newton location of the European Health Spa, located at 1359 Washington St., will celebrate its Grand Opening from May 29 through June 2.

On May 29, the spa will open its doors to area doctors so that they may become familiar with the facilities. A press review and VIP Reception is planned for Thursday May 30. This event will be attended by local civic, community and business leaders, as well as a number of officials of the parent company, Health Industries Inc. of Newport Beach, Calif. Also attending the function will be Lyle Waggoner of "The Carol Burnett Show."

A grand inauguration celebration and champagne party for members and their guests will be held May 31. The first public open house will be held June 1 when the Spa will open its doors to visitors who wish to tour the premises. On Sunday, June 2, the second Open House will be held. Regularly scheduled alternating days for women and men will begin Monday, June 3, for the women and Tuesday, June 4, for the men.

"We certainly hope that all of the people in the West Newton area will stop in and tour the Spa during our first grand opening open house," stated Ron Hackett, group vice-president. "We are tremendously proud of our beautiful new West Newton location and want as many people as possible to see these exciting new facilities."

Lyle Waggoner

The $750,000 European Health Spa will bring the worlds' most elegant health facilities to West Newton. The huge room of pools, conditioning area, dressing rooms, and reception area have been lavished with luxury finishing touches which include 750 square feet of embossed wallpapers, a number of marble statues, Grecian columns, brilliantly colored Italian tiles and, of course, the huge ice making machine which sends slivers of ice into the Danish Cold Plunge to maintain the temperature at 49 degrees.

The new West Newton Spa is the 150th location in the nation, owned and operated by the parent company.

City Manager Bob Breeze and Spa Manager Dale Nosworthy have expanded their staff to 40 people to man the new facility. They are both looking forward to showing off the new Spa to all the West Newton area people during their grand opening.

Agent guest of Star Realty

Mayor Theodore Mann joined officials of First Star Realty International Company recently in welcoming to the United States an estate agent from Accra, Ghana.

J. T. Annan spent two weeks as the guest of Star Realty studying the firm's real estate investment brokerage methods.

Annan originally wrote to Abramson, who is a member of the International Real Estate Federation, requesting an opportunity to visit the United States to study real estate investment brokerage policies and methods with a firm here.

Abramson said his firm was delighted to arrange the study visit for an overseas broker and to have this opportunity to compare notes with him on their respective methods in the real estate investment field.

One of the nation's oldest and largest real estate investment firms, First Star Realty Corporation now has three major divisions, all headquartered at 200 Boylston St., across from the Chestnut Hill Mall in Newton.

Newest Dodge dealer

Don Glaser returns to 441

NORWOOD — It was just about 25 years ago that Don Glaser of Norwood held a temporary job dishing out ice cream just off Providence Highway (Route 1) in his home town.

Little did he think that a quarter of a century later he would end up at the same location which backs up to 441 Neponset St.

But that's where he will be, beginning next week.

Of course, there's a tremendous difference. Glaser worked in the summer of 1950 at the Neponset Valley Farms ice cream dairy bar, a long-time landmark. But that's gone, torn down within the past year.

In its place stands a nearly completed, modern automobile and truck dealership and service center that will be home for the all new Norwood Dodge, Inc. And the president of the newest Dodge agency in the nation will be the same Don Glaser.

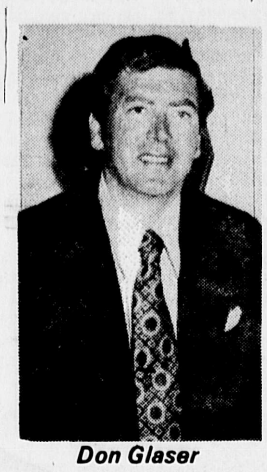

Glaser's travels will complete full circle to the 441 address next week when he and his Dodge boys begin operations in a temporary office at the site of the Route 1 agency. It took Glaser 25 years to return as president. Not bad, considering he's only 40-years-old now.

Just behind the temporary office work continues on the new building which Glaser says will be the "largest, most modern Dodge dealership in all New England." The facility will house 14 offices and 24 work bays.

"The building will be 100 per cent completed by early August," according to the top officer. There is a 600 foot frontage and an entrance from Neponset Street.

But Norwood Dodge sees no need to wait until the formal ribbon cutting for business to begin. Its operations get underway next week with a staff of 40 men and women.

Every model of Dodge company vehicle will be available through the new agency. And at last count Glaser estimated that their parts department alone would stock 12,500 items. The service area, in addition to the two dozen work bays will include 12 lifts, including two that are specially

Don Glaser

Herb Anderson Volkswagon a few miles up Route 1 but also the new Dodge team he has assembled to man the business. designed for trucks and recreational vehicles.

When Glaser talks about the business that brings Dodge back to this area after about five years his face takes on the same look as when he breaks par on the golf course. "We're going to do everything possible to offer the public the best service possible. We want satisfied customers . . . people who will come back . . . and we know how to do that."

Glaser's "we" not only includes his own experience as general manager of They include Sumner Pierce, of Norwood, general sales manager; William Spruce of Walpole, truck and used car manager; Joe Buccilli who is moving here from Norton; Ed Campbell. a Norwood native who will be office manager and Robert Lowe, another Norwoodite, who will be manager of the body shop.

Glaser's first business love is automotive. His second: golf (handicap 9, "But it's sure to go up with the busy days ahead.") and his third: Norwood hockey.

If there's one man who would pass up Bruins' playoff hockey for a local high school game, he's the one. He played for Norwood High and was team captain. And still turns out as spectator for most of Norwood's games.

Don and his wife Barbara are fans of their own family too. One son, 15–year-old David was captain of the team from Norwood Junior High North and daughter Donna was cheerleading at the high school this year. Arlene, 12 and Donald, 8, also have loyal rooters in their mother and father.

Glaser and his associates' decision to join with Dodge in the new agency came with a bit of reverse spin. Usually those who are part of such a large undertaking have to convince the giant automakers that they can do the job. "In our case," Glaser said, "they liked our past record and they came to us about a totally new agency here."

So if you pull off the southbound lane of Route 1 and think the fellow there looks a bit familiar you will probably be right. It's the same Don Glaser back on location. But everything else is new.

Halliday will guide the Christmas Seal Agency's effeets in its goal of the prevention and control of lung diseases.

Babington accepts appointment at Carroll Rehabilitation Center

Jeffrey Babington of Weymouth has accepted an appointment at the Carroll Rehabilitation Center for the Visually Impaired in Newton as coordinator of rehabilitation services and acting director of St. Raphael's Geriatric Adjustment Center.

The St. Raphael's division of the center specializes in rehabilitation for the elderly blind person.

Babington comes to the Carrol Center from Massachusetts Commission for the Blind, where he was supervisor of rehabilitation.

A native of Fall River, he is a graduate of Coolidge College in Boston. Following undergraduate work there, he received a master of education degree in clinical psychology from Springfiled College. He is a member of the board of directors of the American Association of Workers for the Blind, and a member of the National Rehabilitation Association and the National Rhabilitation Counseling Association.

The Carroll Center specializes in the rehabilitation of blinded adults through adjustment counseling and a program of courses in communication, mobility and techniques of daily living. In addition to these residential and commuter programs, the agency maintains programs in community mobility which serve over 100 towns in Massachusetts and Rhode Isalnd and supervises reader services to college students and other blind people.

The agency was recently designated regional training center for Optacon, an electronic device which translates inkprint into tactile impression. After Optacon training, a blind user will be able to read many materials heretofore unavailable to him — for instance, calculator displays, labels and telephone directories.

The Carroll Rehabilitation Center, formerly the Catholic Guild for All the Blind, is located at 770 Centre Street, Newton. It was renamed recently in memory of the Reverend Thomas J. Carroll, who died in April, 1971. Father Carroll headed the non-sectarian agency for 25 years and was an internationally known pioneer in the field of rehabilitation for blind people.

Sally Brawn to be director of Bowen Nursery School

Ms. Sally Kear Braun of Newton Centre has been appointed director and teacher at the Bowen Nursery School, Inc. of Newton Centre.

The appointment, effective this fall, was announced by Ms. Barbara Tellalian, chairman of the board of directors of the school.

Housed in the Bowen Elementary School on Cypress St., Newton Centre, Bowen Nursery School is a non-profit, tax exempt corporation administered and financed by the parents of the children who attend.

"We are delighted," Ms. Tellalian said, "to have secured someone of Sally Braun's experience and vision to head up Bowen Nursery School as it begins its twentieth year this fall. Her enthusiasm, initiative and dedication should help make Bowen one of the finest cooperative nursery schools in the nation."

For the past four years, Ms. Braun has been director and teacher at The Barn Cooperative Nursery School, which she helped found, in Concord, Mass. Shel also is a part-time instructor at Wheelock College, serving as supervisor of student teachers and instructor of "Curriculum in the Nursery School and Kindergarten."

A graduate of Skidmore College, with a major in English, she became interested in pre-school education when her child eas attending Bowen Nursery School. She enrolled in the Eliot Pearson Department of Child Study at Tufts University, from which she received her master of education degree in 1971.

A resident of 11 Glenwood Ave., Newton Centre, she is married and the mother of two children.

Bowen Nursery School was founded in 1954 along with several similar cooperative nursery schools housed in various Newton elementary schools. Bowen is the only one of those nursery schools still in existence.

Zuider Zee yields clues

THE HAGUE (UPI) — On Jan. 11, 1944 a B17 Flying Fortress was returning from a bombing mission over Nazi Germany, two of its four engines dead. A third engine burst into flames and the order was given to bail out.

Gunner John Lantz, 19, parachuted into what was once known as the Zuider Zee and was rescued by fishermen. The bodies of five of his crewmates were found and four were reported missing, as was the crashed plane.

Now, 30 years later, a Dutch crew of 12 devoted men led by Lt. Col. Arie P. de Jong, 45, has recovered the tail section of that B17. De Jong estimates that some 2,000 Allied airmen and about 200 Germans lost their lives in the Zuider Zee. So far he has recovered all or parts of 95 wrecks in the Zuider Zee, and the Dutch navy another 130.

"Each recovery is a story and a drama of its own," De Jong said in an interview

The Dutch had built a dike enclosing the Zuider Zee in 1932, renaming it Ijssel Lake. After the war they started pumping out the water as part of a land reclamation program and some of the wrecked planes emerged, embedded ir the mud.

Gratitude and Comfort

The recovery program was begun in order to clear wrecks which interfered with shipping and fishing. In 16 of the wrecks the recovery teams found bodies.

"When the next of kin was informed, we received reactions of enormous gratitude and comfort," De Jong said. "This turned us into virtual detectives, and we hope to identify many more wrecks and missing airmen in the next 20 years or so."

The Lantz episode was one of the happier of De Jong's stories. When he bailed out that cold day in 1944, two Dutch brothers fishing nearby saw Lantz' plane crash. They cut their nets, headed for the scene – and found Lantz

De Jong quoted one of the brothers, Hannes de Graaf, now 71, as saying:

Close to Death

"He looked close to death from exhaustion in the icy water so we put him in front of the stove in the forecabin and massaged him. He soon regained consciousness and indicated with his fingers he had been with nine other men. For about an hour we made a vain search for them.

"My brother Albert and I had hoped to hide our man, but too much time was lost by searching for his mates. From the coast, the Germans also had seen the crash and their speedboats arrived from two sides. We had to surrender our man and they took him to a prison camp in Germany."

Last year the former gunner, who lives in Tulsa, Okla., read an article about the recovery of the tail section of his B17 of 533 Squadron 281 Bomber Group. Lantz, now 49, and his wife traveled to the Dutch fishing village of Spakenburg, where they presented De Graaf with a deed of honorary Tulsa citizenship. Brother Albert had died after the war from tuberculosis contracted in a German concentration camp.

De Jong said Lantz apparently was the only survivor of his B17 crew. He added that the plane's fuselage might be found in the next decade and "my theory is that those four men did not manage to bail out, so their remains might still be in the fuselage."

Although some of the wrecked planes recovered by De Jong and his crew were still in remarkably good condition— the tail of a German fighter which went down on Sept. 29, 1943 still shows 53 Swastikas indicating as many kills—others were identified by coincidence.

Relics from Wrecks

"Once we were unable to complete identification of wreck parts and remains of a gunner of a Wellington bomber," De Jong said. "Just when we admitted failure, a leter arrived from a Dubliner, Bill Garioch, asking if we had ever located his gunner, Sgt. Rearden, the only crewman who did not survive a crash at exactly the spot where we had found the unidentified wreckage.

New B'nai B'rith unit to be instituted June 2

The new Antique Dealers B'nai B'rith Unit will be instituted and their officers installed at a dinner-dance on Sunday night, June 2 at the Sidney Hill Country Club, Chestnut Hill, at 6:30 p.m.

According to Philip L. Buxbaum, B'nai B'rith new lodge consultant, this is the first time this type of B'nai B'rith group is being chartered with both men and women members. There are over 100 people in this new B'nai B'rith unit.

Mrs. Sonia Paine, chairperson of the installation ceremony, has announced that the charter list will remain open until June 2, so any antique dealers, be they men or women, can become charter members up to that date.

The following officers will be installed: President, Sidney J. Paine; executive vice-president, Henry Postar; vice-presidents, Neil B. Gray, Simon Nager, Sonia Paine, Erich Rosengarten and IMSRAEL H. Sones.

Also being installed will be Stephen B. Kadish, Malvina Rosengarten, Bert Rosengarten, Mary C. Snyder, Sherman Altshuler, John Lewis, Ben Gerber, Richard Gray, Sanka Grossman, Betty Hershfield, George Hite, Eugene L. Notkin, Leslie F. Slavid, Elihu Stone, Silvia Brodie, Renee Altshuler, Nathan A. Nager, Emanuel Goldman and Harold Asnes.

Jewish Philanthropies women to honor Mrs. Frances Stearns

Mrs. Frances Stearns of Newton will be honored at the annual meeting of the Women's Division of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston.

The meeting will be held Thursday, May 23, at 10 a.m. at Ulin-Levental House in Brighton.

Mrs. Stearns, an honorary director and past president of the Women's Division, will be honored for her efforts to help Jews throughout the world.

In addition to her participation in CJP activities, Mrs. Stearns has been active in Hadassah, Brandeis Women's Committee, and Beth Israel Hospital, and is on the Committee of Sponsors for this weekend's Art and Antique Auction.

"Frances has been an invaluable asset to the Women's Division," stated Mrs. Magie Paley, Women's Division president. "We always benefit from her ideas, especially at planning meetings. But she also follows through magnificently. No job is too great, or too small, for her to handle."

Guest speaker at the Women's Division Annual Meeting will be Mrs. Faye Schenk, chairman of the executive committee of the American Zionist Federation and immediate past president of Hadassah. Mrs. Schenk, who is also on the Executive Board of the Jewish Agency, will discuss the current needs in Israel.

Another part of the meeting will be the presentation of annual reports. This year's reports will emphasize outreach efforts of the Women's Division during the past year, especially the formation of the South Shore Regional Council and the recent Mid-East seminar in Lexington.

Special recognition will be given to the South Shore Regional Council, which was instituted to involve South Shore women more closely in the Jewish community through discussions of various issuees of concern. Th Lexington seminar attracted more that 250 people to a panel discussion on the Middle East situation.

The election of officers and directors will also take place at the May 23 meeting.

Students raise funds to aid people in Niger

Students at Newton Country Day School of the Sacred Heart recently completed a fund-raising drive for OXfam. The money is to be used to aid famine stricken people in Niger, Africa, by financing construction of a riverbed dam. The cost of such a project was estimated at $800, but the amount raised totaled over $1,300.

Students became interested when they joined more than 350 colleges and high schools throughout the country as well as congregations and individuals in Newton in a "Fast to Save a People Day," early in May. The fast was sponsored by Oxfam-America, a branch of an international organization which began in Oxford, England during World War II.

Through Oxfam headquarters at 474 Centre Street (965-3917) the girls learned of one particular need in Tchirozerine, North Niger, where grazing lands now resemble "a lunar" land scape—hard cracked red clay and shifting sand dunes." They pledged help to Pere Antoine, director of a rural Catholic mission who had sought the aid of Oxfam for a water conservation project.

Besides getting sponsors for fasting, at which one girl, alone, raised $45; various classes used different methods. There was a carnival on campus; a bake sale; donation of services such as car-wash, library work and typing; raffles and collections from family and friends.

The results were announced at a special Liturgy for drought-stricken people of West Africa held outdoors in the sunken garden at the school. Mrs. Elizabeth Wyon, a member of the Board of Oxfam, was happy to announce 100 per cent participation by students and faculty at Newton Country Day School.

Bell to be ordained

Maynard W. Bell, son of Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Bell of 282 Mill Street, Newton, Mass., will be ordained a rabbi on May 31 at graduation exercises of the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion. He will be ordained by Alfred Gootschalk, president of the college-institute.

Bell received a B.A. degree in political science with honors from the University of Cincinnati in 1970. While preparing for ordination, he served as student rabbi of congreagations in Greenwood, Miss., Jackson, Tenn, and held a student internship at Congregation B'bai Israel in Parkersburg, W. Va.

Upon completion of his studies Bell will be awarded the degree pf master of arts in Hebrew letters.

Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion has campuses in Cincinnati, New York, Los Angeles and Jerusalem, Israel.

Students get art awards

Joan Coffey, a fifth grade student at Newton Catholic Elementary School, was the recipient of the Fra Angelico Award, highest award given, in the 22nd Archdiocesan Art Fair.

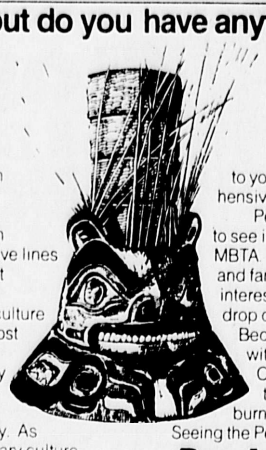

Other winners from the school included:

Robert Boschetti, Monique Rousseau and Maura Walsh, first prizes.

Maura Daly, Karen Craig, Mary Murtagh, Claire Nolan, Tracy Rufo, Jeanne Walsh, Mary McIntyre, George Waters, Martin Daley, Deborah Sheehan, Daniel Hoar, Frances Catena, Robert Ober, second prize.

Kathleen Smith, Thomas Kelly, Joseph Biotti, George Paglia, Barbara Ellis, Laurane Abrussi, Diane Mason, Michael Walsh, Dana Foley, Robert Sampson, Pamela Fraiola, Deborah Ober, Kathy Springham, Nancy Conboy, and Norman Farrar, honorable mention.

"I like the style, but do you have anything in a size 7?"

The Tlingit Indians design things with a flair.

They were builders of the largest forest houses in North America. Creators of extensive lines of trade throughout southeast Alaska.

The Tlingit's remarkable culture has survived as one of the most complex in North America.

Now at Harvard's Peabody Museum is an extraordinary exhibit which portrays the Tlingit's life style as it is today. As a living, evolving, contemporary culture.

The Peabody Museum also holds other treasures from around the world. It's open to you as one of the most comprehensive museums in America.

People come from long distances to see it. You have only to get on the MBTA. So that while you, your friends and family are seeing something truly interesting, you don't have to burn a drop of gas doing it.

Because the energy shortage is still with us, the Prudential Insurance Company thinks there are better things to do this weekend than burning a tankful of gasoline.

Seeing the Peabody Museum is one of them.

North tourney hopes still alive

By RICK GORDON

A late season spurt of six consecutive victories instilled new hopes that Newton North may qualify for the post season baseball tournament.

After starting May by dropping four out of five contests the Tigers were on the verge of elimination. Their recent streak has raised their season's mark to 13-5 (excluding a win and a loss out of state). They must win their final game to qualify for the tournament.

A hard fought one run triumph over league champion Brockton and a high tension, brawl-marred victory at Arlington highlighted the Newton march.

Kevin Moore who had helpedd shutout Exeter Academy in the team's previous outing hurled again at Brockton.

Dana Foley doubled with one out in the first and Bob Vona later singled him home.

In the last half of the inning Dan Colmbo doubled in Art Sullivan to mnot the score at one.

Jack Ryan doubled home the second Newton run, scoring Bob Cunningham, who had reached on a fielder's choice.

Pete Colombo singled to open the Brockton sixth and later came home as the opposition again tied the score.

Foley, the day's offensive star, went to work again, blooping a hit to right to drive in Keith Glasser with the winning run in the seventh.

Steve DiBenedetto relieved Moore with two on and two out in the bottom of the seventh and earned a save for Newton.

For 6½ innings it appeared Newton would lose to Arlington but a late awakening preserved the Tigers' tournament hopes.

A bench-emptying brawl dimmed the victory as Newton infielder Bob Vona received a spike just over his eye. An Arlington player was ejected from the game as a result of the incident.

On the subject of baseball, Arlington toook a 1-0 lead on Jim Zavaglia's double off of Ed Aucoin in the second.

The opposition stretched the lead to three on a walk and two hits in the fourth, the big hit a triple by Chris Whitney.

Newton countered with one in the sixth, a Glasser grounder scoring John Connolly.

In the seventh, Vona singled home one run with the bases loaded and Cunningham perfectly squeezed home the third Newton run to send the game into extra innings.

The eighth inning was scoreless but certainly not lifeless as high feelings exploded into all out battle, prompting a threat from the umpire to call the game upon any additional flare-ups.

Vona attempted to take his position in the last of the eighth but was replaced by Jerry Sullivan when he complained of troubled sight.

Five errors including three by a substitute first baseman opened the path for four unearned runs in the Newton ninth. Cunningham and Glasser had the only hits of the inning as Newton built a 7-3 lead.

Arlington did fifht back (figuratively) in the bottom of the ninth, but managed only two runs. DiBenedetto, who became the Newton pitcher in the fifth, gained the win while Arlington's Kevin O'Quinn went the distance, throwing 199 pitches in absorbing the defeat.

The Cambridge Latin game was a bit easier as Newton scoredd two early runs on singles by Connolly and Foley along with two errors.

Moore shutout Latin for four and one-third innings until he left in favor of DiBenedetto who saved the whitewash.

The Tigers iced the victory in the sixth with five runs on hits by Vona (who showed no effects from the previous day's incident) Cunningham, Bill Bertrand, and Jack Ryan. Two Cambridge miscues aided the rally.

Boston Latin succumbedd to Newton in the Tiger's final home game of the year.

A triple by Glasser and a single by DiBenedetto helped Newton ovecome a one run third inning deficit.

Boston Latin tied the score with Joe Helligan's double and Bob Murphy's single in the fifth, bringing DiBenedetto to the mound.

Newton erupted for five hits in their fifth to build a 6-2 lead. Foley, Bob Kinsella, vona and Cunningham singled and DiBenedetto had a double... Latin made it close with two unearned runs on no hits for a 6-4 final.

The victory ended a stretch for Newton of four victories in four days.

Three hits and three runs batted in by Ryan propelled the Tigers in their next crucial outing, at Brookline.

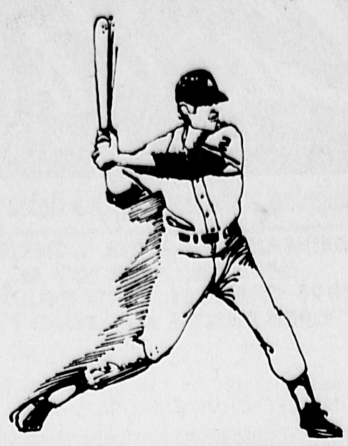

Singles by Ryan, DiBenedetto, and Kinsella, and a double by Connolly led to two first inning runs. The teams then exchanged single runs to make the score 3-1 after five innings.

Moore, Rya and Foley opened the sixth with consecutive safeties, and sacrifice bunts by DiBenedetto and Kinsella produced three additional runs.

Ryan anchored another rally in the final inning, sacrificing home Cunningham and Glasser for an 8-1 Newton final.

Moore pitched a six-hitter, earning a complete game victory. His record is now 5-0.

Newton's final regular season game will be at Weymouth South today. The Wildcats defeated North, 18-3, in their last meeting. Newton must win this time to qualify for the state tournament.

North netmen up record to 15-3

By BOB LOW

Rebounding from a disappointing and controversial loss to rival Newton South, Newton North's boys tennis team recently triumphed over three league opponents and a private school to up its overall record to 15-3.

On Tuesday, May 14, the Tigers traveled across town to battle Newton South. Using a vastly shifted line-up, South came up with a narrow 3-2 victory.

North picked up a single point in both the singles and the doubles. Stu Brightman bested Roger Gordon at third singles, 6-3, 6-4. At second doubles, Dave Bikofsky and Chip Lang upset Doug Fisher and Jeff Levin, South's regular first doubles team, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2.

South took the first two singles, however, as Humberto Fagundes beat Neal Kravitz, 6-3, 6-1, and Dan Braveman topped Bob Low 6-3, 6-4. The deciding point came when Bill Karol, normally the first singles player, dropped down to first doubles, and teamed with his brother, Tom, to edge Baird Haney and Lincoln Frank, 1-6, 6-2, 7-6.

After the match, it was pointed out that Newton South had shifted six of their seven players from the day before when they had played Acton-Boxboro. It was also indicated that the rules state that a team's best two players must play first and second singles.

The following day, the Tigers opened the league playoffs by defeating Weymouth South, 5-0. Kravitz defeated Wayne Anderson 6-4, 6-0, while Haney moved into the number two position and had convincing 6-0, 6-2 win over Rich Crawford. John Kosa took third singles from Jarred Wells, 6-3, 6-2.

In the doubles, Newton tried two new pairings and both came through. Low and Brightman routed Mike Harris and Ed Gaudino, 6-1, 6-0, and Frank and Bikofsky trimmed Mike Cheney and Joe Walsh, 6-1, 6-4.

On Thursday, Arlington came to Newton and was beaten 4-1. Gary Chin averaged an earlier loss to Kravitz at first singles, winning 7-5, 6-0. However, Newton toook the other four matches. Haney whipped Karl Ebner 6-0, 6-1 and Frank beat John Couray 6-4, 7-6.

Once again, Newton changed its doubles line-up and was successful. Bikofsky and Brightman overwhelmed John Cardin and Jim Cataldo 6-0, 6-1, and Low and Kosa bested John Cornell and Steve Talmuash, 6-3, 6-0.

The next afternoon, the Tigers traveled too Brookline and won their third straight playoff match to clinch at least a tie for the Suburban League title. Neal Kravitz overcame deficits of 2-0 and 3-0 in his second and third sets too defeat Mark Sadowsky, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4. Haney prevailed over Tom Doyle 6-4, 6-1, and Kosa whipped Sorin, 6-2, 6-2.

Brightman and Frank edged Maimonis and Dubin at first doubles, 7-5, 6-3, and Bikofsky and LANG DEFEATED Becker and Gordon, 6-4, 6-2.

On Monday, May 20, Newton went too Middlesex and pinned a loss on a former nemisis. Over the past two seasons, when the Tigers lost just three matches and tied one, Middlesex was responsible for the tie and one of the losses.

The netmen took an 8-4 lead after the singles as Kravitz, Haney, Brightman, and Kosa all swept two sets while Low and Frank lost. Newton continued at the same pace in the doubles, as Kravitz and Haney took their sets while Bikofsky and Lang, and Low and Brightman split. After the 12-6 victory, Coach George Jessup said "It's nice to beat the preppies; this is the first time since 1966!"

In the Eastern Mass. singles tournament, Newton's sole remaining entree, Bob Low was eliminated in the Region IV quarterfinals by Kevin Nawn, 6-1, 6-2. Nawn advanced, along with Ken Swain, Scott Stettner, and Bill Brady to the final round of 16 players. Of these four, only Swain survived the week-end's play too advance to the semi-finals, where he will battle Scott Parsons of Needham and Humberto Fagundes and bill Karol for the championship. The final matches will be held at Brockton this Saturday.

The Tigers, who need only a win over Brookline to win their fifth straight league title, will now enter the Eastern Mass. team tournament. In their first match, the netmen will meet the fourth place team from the Bay State League, expected to be Framingham South. If they survive that, they will battle fourth seed Wayland in the quarterfinals.

South rebounds from two losses wth 12-0 victory

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

After losing one run games to Acton Boxboro and Wayland, Newton South's baseball team came back to crush Lincoln-Sudbury, 12-0, in recent action.

The Lions are still in first place in the Dual County League with an 11-5 record.

On Wednesday, May 15, South lost to Acton Boxboro, 1-0, in a game that was distinguished by the great pitching of Acton's Ed Bender and Chandler Bosworth of Newton South.

Acton scored the only run of the game in the fourth inning. Leftfielder Mark Lucas and centerfielder Alden Sironen led off the inning with singles. Third baseman Bill Pennimen then hit a ground ball to South third baseman Rob Shahon, who had to hold on to the ball because no one covered first base.

With the bases loaded and nobody out, Joe Delaney hit a sacrifice fly to rightfielder Steve Rittenberg which scored Lucas from third base.

Bender allowed only one South hit in the game. The lone hit was a single by Shahon in the first inning.

Bosworth was a tough luck loser as he gave up five hits in seven innings.

On Friday, May 17, the Lions lost to Wayland, 5-4.

Wayland opened the scoring in the top of the second when catcher Jim O'Reilly doubled off South's Tom Irvine to score third baseman Jerry Manly from second base.

South tied the score on alert base running by Co-Capt. Tony Lombardo. Lombardo walked and went to second base when Wayland pitcher Bill Robinson delivered a wild pitch.

After first baseman Phil Small walked with one out to put runners at first and second, South attempted a double steal. O'Reilly fired the ball into center field and Lombardo was able to score.

South gained a 3-1 lead in the third inning via the unusual home run route. Rittenberg blasted a pitch way over the left fielder's head that went so far that by the time he had picked the ball up, Rittenberg had scored. It was the first home run by any South player this year.

The Lions increased their lead to 4-1 in the fourth inning on a Hal Bennett single which scored Mike Malkasian from second base.

Disaster struck for South in the sixth inning as Wayland scored four runs to take a 5-4 lead.

South Coach Neil McPhee took starter Irvine out in the sixth inning after he gave up a single to Joe Rossi and a walk to Bill Rogers.

Irvine had an excellent day as he struck out nine batters and gave up only one run in the first five innings.

McPhee called on his ace pitcher, Ken Bianco, to stop Wayland's rally, but for the first time this year, Bianco was ineffective.

After Bianco struck out the first man he faced, the Wildcats erupted for four runs. Rick Rodman singled to load the bases, and Bianco walked Jim Bishop to force in a run.

Shortstop Lombardo then made an error on a ground ball to allow another run to score. Bianco walked in the tying run, and the winning run scored when second baseman Scott Behmer hit a sacrifice fly to rightfield.

The Lions had a last ditch rally in the seventh inning which almost caught Wayland. Steve Tresca led off with a walk and stole second base. Rittenberg bunted him to third base.

South's favorite play, the suicide squeeze, then backfired and Tresca was caught in a run down. On the second pitch to Malkasian, Tresca broke for the plate, but Malkasian missed the bunt, Tresca was tagged out in a run down. Malkasian struck out two pitcher later.

On Monday, May 20, Newton South soundly defeated Lincoln-Sudbury 12-0. Bianco pitched five superb innings, and Ara Shishmanian finished up.

South had a 3-0 lead going into the fifth inning when they put the game away with four more runs. Shahon started the inning with a walk and Tresca followed with a single. After Rittenberg walked to load the bases, Malkasian singled to right field to score two runs.

With men on first and third, Pete Castellanos hit a ground ball to shortstop Ted Chase, who tried to get Rittenberg at home. His attempt was unsuccessful, and South led 6-0. Bennett knocked in the inning's final run with a single.

The Lions added five more runs in the sixth inning on hits by Shahon, Tresca, and Rittenberg and walks to Malkasian, Castellanos and Bennett.

South had a balanced attack as four players had two or more hits. Tresca had three hits, while Rittenberg had two doubles and scored four runs. Malkasian had two hits and batted in three runs, and Bennett had two hits.

McPhee commented after the game, "I was glad to see us come out of the slump; we haven't hit like that in a while.

"The whole year, our big offensive player, Steve Rittenberg, has delivered timely hits, and lately he has really come through," McPhee added.

Newton South lacrosse team wins two matches

By SCOTT GROPER

The Newton South lacrosse team was sporting a 2-8 record after 10 matches.

The Lions' only wins came against Lasalle Academy (6-2) and Weymouth North (a 4-3 sudden death overtime victory).

South had an hour bus ride down to Lasalle Academy in Providence, but the ride ended up being worthwhile.

After a little more than one minute of play, South Capt. Art Murphy opened up the scoring with an unassisted goal.

Bob Lent struck next on a good feed from urphy. Chris Reynes scored South's third goal 27 seconds into the second quarter. Reynes beat his man and scoredd off Lasalle goalie Bill Camroy.

Greg McKinney scored South's next two goals to give the Lions a 5-0 lead.

Lasalle finally scored with about two minutes left in the half, and South led 5-1 at halftime.

South goalie Ray McKinney was sharp in the second half, making 10 saves and allowing only one goal. McKinney had 18 saves in the game.

Murphy scored South's final goal in the second half.

Against Weymouth North, the Lions had a tougher time than they had against Lasalle.

South scored first as Murphy had a goal at four minutes of the first quarter.

Weymouth North hit next as Jim Murray beat Ray McKinney on a great feed from Steve Downey.

Weymouth North gained a 2-1 lead with three minutes remaining in the half as Joe Sullivan scored.

Only 12 seconds into the second half, Weymouth North scored again. Five minutes later, Greg McKinney scored on a good bounce shot which just eluded Weymouth goalie Greg Mohler. This made the score 3-2.

Greg McKinney tied the score 40 seconds later on a feed from Lent.

The fourth quarter was scoreless so the game went into overtime.

Two five minute overtimes were also scoreless and the game went into sudden overtime.

At 1:40 of the five minute sudden death, Paul Tormey smashed Mohler's stick while he had the ball, and the ball went flying into the net, giving South a 4-3 victory.

The Lions have had two recent losses to Framingham North and Medford by scores of 9-2 and 6-2, respectively.

South's goals in the Framingham North game were scored by Reynes and Tormey. Tormey scored both of South's goals in the Medford game.

French tennis officials rebel

NEW YORK (UPI) — French tennis officials, adamant over the acceptance of World Team Tennis by the International Lawn Tennis Federation, have refused to accept Evonne Goolagong or Jimmy Connors for their tournament, which begins June 3, it was revealed Tuesday.

Thus if the French have their way, neither Miss Goolagong nor Connors has a chance of scoring tennis' grassy u,o27omplishment — the grnd slam sweep of the Australian, French, Wimbledon and U.S. titles.

In addition, the Australian girl will miss out of a chance of winning $125,000 and Connors, of the U.S., will lose out on winning $100,000.

Both were champions of the Australian national in January.

Vic Edwards, Miss Goolagon's coach and manager, said in Pittsburgh that the French announcement makes "no difference to me. Evonne and I are going to Paris. They say that her entry was filed after the May 2 deadline. I am sure it was filed much earlier than that. At this time I don't want to comment on the WTT aspect of the case or what action I may take in her behalf."

In Paris, a spokesman for the French Federation said: "We are sorry but that's how it is.

Karol and Braverman win EMass doubles title

By MARK SHUSTER

The Newton South boys' tennis team has made a superb showing in the Eastern Mass. Tennis Tournament.

South's second doubles team of Tom Karol and Dan Braverman won first place in the EMass doubles championship.

Karol and Braverman defeated two Weston High teams enroute to the title. In the final, they beat Weston's first doubles teams, the number one seed, 6-2, 6-7, 7-6. In the semi-final round, they defeated Weston's second doubles team, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4.

South's first doubles team was eliminated in the semi-final round, 6-1, 6-0.

Two South singles players have advanced to the semi-final round of the singles tournament. The tournament will be concluded this Saturday in Brockton.

Humberto Fagundes advanced to the semi-finals with a 7-5, 7-5 victory over a player from Xaverian. Bill Karol defeated a Barnstable player, 0-6, 6-3, 7-6.

Karol, the number two seed, will play Needham's number one player while Fagundes will meet Ken Swain of Weston, the top seed in the tournament.

Last week, the Lions won three of four matches. They defeated Newton North, Acton and Lincoln-Sudbury, and lost to Wayland.

South defeated Newton North 3-2. Fagundes won in first singles, 6-3, 6-1, and Braverman won in second singles, 6-3, 6-4. Roger Gordon lost in third singles, 6-3, 6-4. The Karol brothers were victorious in first doubles, 6-1, 2-6, 7-6, and Doug Fisher and Jeff Levin lost in second doubles, 6-2, 3-6, 2-6.

The Lions defeated Acton 5-0. Fagundes, Braverman and Fisher all won decisively in the singles matches. Levin and Geoff Small won in first doubles, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, while South's second doubles team of Mike Sklar and Tom Karol was victorious 6-3, 7-5.

South was beaten by Wayland 3-2. Fagundes won in second singles, and Braverman and Tom Karol won in second doubles for South's two points. Bill Karol lost in first singles, 6-2, 2-6, 4-6, and Gordon was beaten in third singles, 6-1, 6-0. Levin and Fisher were edged in first doubles, 3-6, 6-3, 10-12.

South scored a 5-0 shutout against Lincoln-Sudbury. Bill Karol won 6-2, 2-6, 6-4, Fagundes was victorious 7-5, 6-1, and Gordon bounced back to win 7-5, 6-2. Braverman and Tom Karol won in first doubles, 6-4, 7-5, and Levin and Fisher won in second doubles, 6-1, 6-4.

This win gave the Lions a 7-3 record in the Dual County League. A big test will come Friday when South meets league leading Weston.

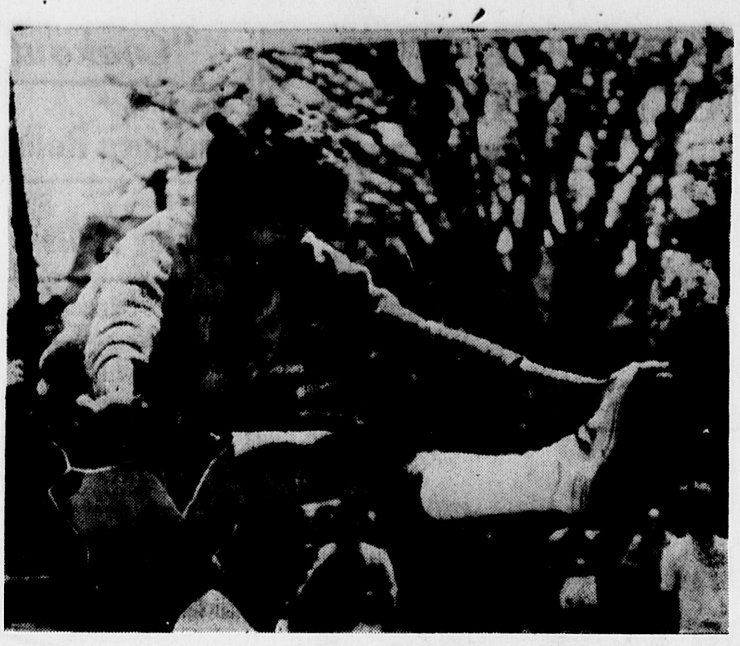

Tennis victory

Senior Grady Rowbothom of Waban teamed with classmate Ken Lindner of Brooklyn, New York to capture the Class A Doubles Championship at the New England Intercollegiate Tennis Championships May 10-12 at Dartmouth College.

Rowbothom and Lindner breezed through their preliminary rounds and decisioned Rick Woolworth and Andy Oldenburg of Dartmouth in the championship match by the score of 6-4, 5-7, 6-4.

Harvard captured the team trophy at the New Englands for the sixth consecutive season. Over 40 schools participated in the tournament.

Rowbothom is a psychology major at Harvard. He is the son of Mr. Harrison F. Rowbothom of 74 Winnetaska Road, Waban.

Gymnasts successful

Cindy Arafe of Meadowbrook Junior High and Lee Pistone and Marcie Ravech of Bigelow Junior High recently continued their competitive schedule which began many long months ago.

On Friday evening, April 26 at the Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School, the girls joined a group of top female gymnasts from the North Shore and met a team from England who have been touring the United States.

The Fox Gym Club of England is agroup of fine competitors between the ages of 12-15 years old.

The Massachusetts girls, called the New-Shore Gym Club for purposes of this competition, won both the junior and senior divisions of the meet.

In the advanced group, Ms. Ravech placed second in Floor Exercise, second on balance beam, fourth on uneven bars and third in the all-around. Ms. Arafe, also competing in the senior group, placed second on the uneven bars.

In the junior group Ms. Pistone placed first in floor exercise and balance beam, second in vuulting and took first place in the all-around.

On Saturday, May 4 the girls competed in the New England A.A.U. Gymnastic Championships held onthe campus of Southeastern Mass. Univ. in Dartmouth, Mass. They were joined in this meet by their teammate and assistant coach-competitor Liz Attardo of Brandeis University.

The meet was selective — open only to all-around gymnasts who had achieved a qualifying score during a district meet. The Newton group had a good day each winning a place in the all around in their age division. In the 10-12 division Ms. Pistone placed third, in the all-around; in the 13-14 group, Ms. Ravech placed third in the all-around and won the New England floor exercise and balance beam titles. Ms. Arafe placed fifth (13-14) in the all-around; and in the 15 years and older group, Ms. Attardo placed fourth in the all-around, and second on uneven bars and third in floor exercise.

Ms. Ravech and Ms. Pistone begin A.A.U. Junior Olympic competition (Sponsored by Chevrolet) at a district qualifying championship in late May.

All of the girls are under the direction of Dr. Joseph L. Massimo of Newton.

We Are Outspent 30-1!

That's right, Nationally, the quote "direct writer" companies (those who sell through their own employees rather than professional independent agents) spend 30 times more money on advertising than do all Independent Agents for your insurance dollar. However, the Independent Agents in Massachusetts still write 72% of the insurance in the state . . .

It's nice to know that personal service still counts.

Art exhibit on June 1

The art department of Baldwin-Wallace College in Brea, Ohio, selected the work of the art program of Newton as part of the first series of exhibits in its new art gallery.

All the other shows were by professional artists; Newton's exhibit was the only one by non-professionals to be shown. Some 35 works from elementary, junior high and senior high students here were sent, along with slides and animated films made in the Newton Creative Arts summer sessions.

The exhibit was mounted in City Hall beginning May 17 as part of the city's Spring Arts Festival.

Today in Education

Extending teacher rights

Many teachers today are caught on the horns of a dilemma. Personally, they may subscribe strongly to the often-voiced need for innovative curriculum, for using materials and methods more relevant to students' lives, for encouraging student involvement - even for letting a class draft a letter in protest; and also for exerting pressure on behalf of their own personal freedoms - those rights and privileges which are enjoyed by other professionals but long denied to teachers.

But courageous educators who break with community tradition or succeed in alienating a superior for the mere exercise of free speech often "rock the boat," and may be called on the carpet or even be repaid with stiff penalties, including the loss of their jobs.

Fortunately this frequently is not the end of the matter. Teachers, backed by their education associations, have won many court cases which contended that their rights under the First and Fourteenth Amendments had been violated. Furthermore, the boundaries of teachers rights are being pushed further and further back as new legislation is enacted and new regulations are issued by government agencies.

The Supreme Court has said that "teachers do not shed their constitutional rights to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate," although such benign protection was not always the rule, nor is this principle always recognized by those in authority today.

A Massachusetts Teachers Association (MTA) case now being litigated involves a teacher who exercised his free speech rights while organizing his local teacher association. On a number of occasions he criticized the School Administration in speeches and newsletters to his colleagues. He has not been rehired after four years of teaching and an excellent performance record.

His case is still pending, but other recent cases where teachers' rights have been upheld include a Massachusetts appeals court judgment several years ago which recognized that prohibiting assignment in a senior high school class on a non-pornographic scholarly article which contained a "dirty" word is incongruent with academic freedom. The same court also refused to uphold the dismissal of a teacher who wrote a profane word on the blackboard while discussing societal taboos.

It's hard to believe today but only five years ago a teacher in a tiny Western Massachusetts town was fired because he insisted on wearing a beard.

When he was dismissed he was told that "hippies, revolutionaries, and otherwise lower classes of people had beards - and that he was projecting this image in the classroom.'

Eight months of intensive work by the MTA and National Education Association (NEA) were required to prove that this teacher had the right, as a citizen of the United States, to wear a beard if he so desired

Another current case involves a teacher who has charged that she has been dismissed in retaliation for exercising her right to be reinstated after having taken maternity leave. Current law clearly specifies that a teacher cannot be fired for pregnancy but this law is not always obeyed, resulting therefore in costly and unfortunate litigation.

Maternity leave legislation has been liberalized substantially in recent years, and there are numerous cases before the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination (MCAD) seeking sick pay for those days when a teacher was disabled as a result of a pregnancy-related ailment. In addition to working through the MCAD, legislation has also been filed by the MTA hto correct this problem. However, the Massachusetts Supreme Court decision of April 29 may make these cases moot because the court found that a teacher may be granted sick leave if pregnant.

Not so long ago a teacher could be dismissed at the whim of school authorities if she became pregnant, and she could also be denied her job if she chose to return after the birth of the baby unless specifically protected by her own collective bargaining contract

It was only in 1962 that legislation was enacted in Massachusetts which mandated equal pay for men and women teachers, and until 1953 no law protected married teachers from being dismissed.

A few years ago, a teacher in Berkshire County had to seek MTA legal assistance because he had allowed open discussion in his classroom of the Vietnam War and the local school committee tried to fire him.

The educators involved in all these cases have sought to be creative in their selection of classroom material and methods or have fought to protect their rights as citizens. The Courts in general have upheld these rights. For the innovative teacher, the concept of academic and personal freedom is more than academic - it is essential.

Special scuba program at Aquarium this weekend

For anyone who has dreamed of being another Jacques Cousteau but doesn't know how, the New England Aquarium is presenting special programs on SCUBA diving over the Memorial Day Weekend, May 25, 26 & 27

Scuba diving is rapidly becoming one of America's most popular sports. During the Holiday Weekend, diving equipment of every vintage will be on exhibit, from a 700 pound copper hat used by the Navy to the most modern equipment currently being used by Jacques Cousteau aboard the Calypso.

Aquarium divers will demonstrate the underwater equipment they use; and, they will answer questions about diving as a sport or a career.

After the live demonstration of SCUBA equipment, a film will be shown. This 30 minute movie takes the visitor on an underwater tour of some of the most beautiful scenery in the world.

After the film, Aquarium divers will go into the 200,000 gallon giant ocean tank for practical demonstrations of their equipment. Included is a "ditch and don" exercise, whereby divers take off their equipment underwater in cases of emergency and return safety to the surface.

The New England Aquarium will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. May 25, 26 and 27. Diving programs are scheduled for 10:30 a.m., 2 p.m., and 3:45 p.m

Ninth annual Channel 2 auction May 31 - June 8

The ninth annual Channel 2 Auction will be on the air May 31- June 8.

Each year, this community-wide event increases in scope, viewership and support. In 1973, over 1¼ million viewers watched some portion of the Auction. A total of 9263 items by over 6,000 donors and realized $566,000 of gross revenue. This money goes towards the daily running expenses of the station.

The WGBH Educational Foundation operates one F.M. Radio Station, TV Channels 2 and 44 and also Channel 57 in Springfield. WGBH is a member of the Public Boradcast Service and there are over 200 stations nationwide in this group. Each station is responsible for its own fund raising, operations and program scheduling. PBS makes available to local stations through a Nation-wide inter-connect programs which they could not afford for themselves A few such are Masterpiece Theatre, Sesame Street, The Advocates, Bill Moyer's Journal, NPACT (which aired the Watergate and other hearings) and many others.

WGBH produces and originates more programs for distribution through PBS than any other station. During the past year, some examples of these are The French Chef, Evening at Pops, The Advocates and ZOOM.

The Station also produces many programs for local audiences; examples are The Eliot Norton (Theatrical) Reviews, Say Brother, Louis Lyon's News and Comments and Catch 44 which offers prime time to almost any group with something it wants to say on television.

Donations to the Channel 2 Auction are tax deductible. When the items are sold on the air, the donor's own description an name are read at least twice. Of course, the higher value items must be exposed several times in order to achieve the maximum bids. Obviously, donors and their items enjoy immense promotive benefits.

The Auctions are acrried on Channels 2 and 44, which cover an area of over 12,000 square miles, with a population of over 7,000,000 people, each of whom is a potential viewer and bidder

Pet Care Corner

By RICHARD H. BRYANT, Director of Education Animal Rescue League of Boston

Each year, countless thousands of pet owners will suffer the anguish of uncertainty when they discover that a pet has been lost or stolen. Frantically, they will search humane animal shelters, police departments and other agencies. They will place ads in newspapers offering rewards to anyone who might help reunite them with their pets, and ask Pet Patrol radio stations to broadcast descriptions of the missing animals.

The lucky ones will meet with success in their efforts while others will fail to recover their lost pets. In many instances, however, an owner can spare himself the distressing ordeal of losing a loved pet by taking some very simple and necessary precautions.

The Animal Rescue League of Boston recommends that animals be kept safe at home or under close control at all times as a precaution against "petnappers." Even left for just moments in a parked car, a pet may be turned loose by a prankster and then meet with other hazards in traffic.

Having a problem with your pet? Write to Pet Care Corner, Animal Rescue League of Boston, P.O. Box 265, Boston, Mass. 02117. Space permitting, we will try to answer your inquiries in this column.

Guided tours of the zoo

The Boston Zoological Society Tour Guides think you'd be interested in meeting the very unusual range animals that inhabit the Franklin Park Zoo. There are llamas, camels, deer, antelope, and the tarpan, a once extinct species of wild horse that has been reconstructed.

Where else can you see animals from all over the world in less than one-half mile of walkways?

All organized school camp and club groups are encouraged to take advantage of these free one-hour tours every Monday, Tuesday and Thursday mornings at 9:30 and 11:00.

Reservations may be made by calling the Society at 442-2002.

Diabetes bike-a-thon June 2

The New England Diabetes Association hundreds of cyclists of all ages will be riding an 11-mile route in the Newton-Waltham-Watertown--Belmont areas on Sunday, June 2, in an effort to raise funds for research into the causes and cure of diabetes — or at least the New England Diabetes Association hopes that the turnout will fit that description.

It is known that three every 100 New Englanders are affected by diabetes - although many of them do not realize it; that diabetes kills 200,000 more people each year than cancer; that the number of known diabetics is increasing at a rate of 10 percent per year; and that the life span of a diabetic averages 18 years after the onset of the disease.

Research indicates that the cure for diabetes may be within a generation's reach, but the disease remains mysterious and little-understood by the general public.

The New England Diabetes Association hopes to correct that situation by helping to raise the sorely-needed dollars for essential research.

Bike-a-thon riders will be sponsored by individuals, organizations, businesses — anyone who will agree to contribute a given amount per mile ridden. All participants will be treated to free soft drinks along the bike-a-thon route and riders who complete the circuit will receive a free meal, courtesy of McDonald's of Newton and Waltham.

Prizes, including bicycles donated by the Bicycle Exchange of Cambridge and U.S. Savings Bonds, will be awarded to those riders who raise the most funds.

Sponsored by the New England Diabetes Association, the project is supported by the Waltham Lions Club and the Newton and Waltham McDonald's restaurants. Senator William L. Saltonstall, Don Nelson of the Boston Celtics, and Mrs. Paul Dudley White are honorary chairpeople of the event.

Registration and sponsor forms are available at area McDonald's restaurants, or by calling 232-3387.

Language students honored

The foreign language department at Newton South High School held its awards program on Tuesday, May 14.

The Department annually presents a certificate of honor to those students who have "through unusual effort and interest, maintained high honor grades."

Students eligible are those who are studying a foreign language on the third level or beyond, and those who are in at least the second year of a second foreign language.

The program, headed by Rocco R. Petrillo, chairman of the foreign language department at South, included entertainment by students in Spanish, French, and Russian classes. Awards were presented to 131 students.

John Simmons speaks at Jackson Homestead

Bicycle pathways will be open in Newton by the end of this month, according to John Simmons, principal planner of the city.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Friends of the Jackson Homestead, Inc., held recently at the Homestead, Simmons showed slides of some of these pathways, and maps tracing their routes. He then answered questions from the audience.

His lecture followed the presentation of annual reports of the organization's activities and achievements during the past year, and the election of officers, committee chiarmen, and trustees.

Newly elected are President Harry L. Walen, First Vice President Mrs. Charles J Macdonald; Second Vice President Mrs. Hugh E. Tomb, Secretary Arnold Garrison, Corresponding Secretary Mrs. William Newman, Treasurer Miss Beatrice Holland, and Assistant Treasurer Mrs. Dwight Colburn.

Directors-at-large for 1973-1975 are Mrs. Kenneth M. Greene, Mrs. L. Bradford King, Jr., and Mrs. Keith G. Willoughby. For 1974-1976 they are Kenneth Newcomb, Miss Eleanor Bartlett, and Miss Margaret Murphy.

Promotions

John W. Nunley of 28 St. James St., Newton and Andrew Wilson of 76 Harvard St., Newtonville have been promoted to senior real estate analyst in State Mutual's real estate organization, President W. Douglas Bell announced recently.

Nunley, a 1967 graduate of Dartmouth College, received a master's degree in business administration from Harvard University Graduate Business School in 1972. He joined State Mutual that same year as a real estate analyst in State Mutual's real estate organization.

Wilson, a 1965 graduate of Princeton University, received a master's degree in business administration from Harvard University Graduate Business School in 1972. He joined State Mutual that same year as a real estate analyst in State Mutual's real estate organization.

Murray Road plans conservation projects

For two weeks the entire student body of the Murry Road Annex of Newton North High School will be involved in a community environmental project.

Between May 28 and June 7 students will take time from their regular studies to promote conservation within Newton.

Many of the students will be out on the land working directly to improve the environment in various parts of the community. One group plans to remove the trash and debris from the Webster conservation land and to establish and mark trails there. Another team will work to restore the area around Dolan's pond in West Newton to a natural state.

Other students will be involved in planning and writing related to environmental concerns. A group of students plan to work with the Charles River Watershed Association to compile a history of the Charles and to pinpoint and catalogue present sources of pollution. Another group will work with city planners to establish the route for a series of bicycle paths throughout Newton.

Each morning the students will work at their various taks around the city. At noon each day the students and staff will all convene at the Murray Road building for a school community meal, where the various groups will report to one another on their activities.

After lunch an invited speaker will deal with some aspect of conservation or environmental problems. These meetings will be open to the public, and a schedule will be announced next week. Child care will be provided to make it easier for members of the Newton community to attend.

Mass. legislature first to urge impeachment

The Massachusetts Senate has adopted Sen. Irving Fishman's (D-Newton) resolution calling on the Massachusetts Congressional delegation to support the presidential impreachment resolution now being considered by the U.S. House of Representative's Judiciary Committee

The resolutio, H.R. 513, resolves "that Richard M. Nixon, President of the United States, be impeached of high crimes and misdemeanors."

"Massachusetts is the first state in the nation to go on record urging its congressional delegation to support the impeachment of the President," Fishman said. "I hope that other state legislatures will follow our lead. We all must make our voices heard."

Fishman, who was the first Massachusetts legislator to publicly oppose the Viet Nam war, introduced the impeachment resolution in January. It was adopted by the Senate May 16 on a voice vote.

"During the past year it has become increasingly apparent that Richard Nixon's conduct as President has been such to warrant a full and immediate public inquiry to determine whether or not he should remain in office," Fishman said.

"The subsantial public evidence of corruption inthe Nixon administration and the President's participationin the pervesion of government and violations of civil liberties are so serious as to undermine public confidence in the presidency and government itself," Fishman continued. "Surely sufficient evidence of impeachable offenses, however defined, now exists to warrant a trial by the Senate of the United States."

"Impeachment," according to Fishman, "is the only remaining means of providing the American people with the full truth behind Mr. Nixon's incursions against our very system of government. It will bring the President out from behind the cloaks of executive privilege and national security and place him before the Senate to answer the hard questions which the American people and their representatives have been asking."

"Without impeachment, the President will be tried in the court of public opinion, without counsel, without the right of cross-examination or any other procedural safeguards," Fishman explained. "Both the President and the people of the United States are entitled to see the myriad of accusations against Mr. Nixon subjected to fair trail under established procedures."

"Impeachment will provide a constitutional forum for the President to level with the American people," Senator Fishman said.

Whalen reelected Homestead president

Harry L. Walen, well known educator and former Newton alderman has been reelected president of the Friends of the Jackson Homestead.

Longtime principal of the Needham High School where he continues as graduate placement advisor, Walen is active in educational, historical, and civic societies. His objective as head of the Homestead group has been to broaden the base of community support and interest in the city-owned museum.

Others elected as officers of the Friends of the Jackson Homestead are: Mrs. Charles J. MacDonald, first vice-president; Mrs. Hugh M. Tomb, second vice-president; Arnold Garison, secretary; Mrs. William Newman, corresponding secretary; Miss Beatrice Holland, treasurer; Mrs. Dwight Coburn, assistant treasurer.

Elected directors at large are Eleanor Bartlett; Mrs. Kenneth M. Greene; Mrs. L. Bradford King, Jr.; Mrs. Kenneth Newcomb; Mrs. Keith G. Willoughby, Margaret Murphy.

Chairmen elected to the board of directors are: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Asnes, antiques; Mrs. Charles S. Butler, Mrs. Orin E. Skinner, Costumes.

Mrs. John D. Fox, Mrs. Donald M. Budge, exhibits; Mrs. Franklin Flaschner, Mrs. Donald L. Daniels, flowers; Mrs. Richard A. Winslow, Mrs. Ralph E. Keyes, grounds; Mrs. E. Graham Bates, Mrs. Joseph Kiebala, historical.

Mrs. William D. Wellock, Clara Ashley, hospitality; Mrs. Everett H. Potter, Mrs. Robert P. T. Coffin, hostesses; George H. Larsen, house;

Betsy Allen, the Jackson Journal; Jean F. Howard, membership; Mrs. David Hamblen, 3rd, publicity; Mrs. Richard W. Husher, Mrs. Peter A. Scott, speakers bureau; Mrs. Malcolm Jackson, community.

Elected to the 1975 Noninating Committee are: Mrs. Alan S. Barkin, Mrs. Donald M. Budge, Mrs. John B. G. Palen, Mrs. Everett H. Potter, and Mrs. Peter A. Scott.

Mrs. Keith G. Willoughby and Daniel Rothenberg were elected trustees of the Trust Fund. Mrs. John B. G. Palen was elected auditor.

The Jackson Homestead whose activities are conducted by the Friends of the Jackson Homestead was recently designated a National Landmark is open to the public without charge.

Wolpe named director of graduate programs

Frank Wolpe, 52 Hagen Rd., Newton Centre, has been named director of graduate programs in taxation at Bentley College in Waltham, according to Bentley President Gregory H. Adamian.

Wolpe, formerly program chairman for continuing tax education and a manager on the staff of Internal Revenue Service with District Director William E. Williams, will administer and teach in the only master of science in taxation degree granting program of its kind in New England. The program will begin in September, 1974 with courses designed for practicing professionals.

"The graduate tax program is designed primarily to reach accountants, lawyers, and other business persons who have clearly established their goals for leadership in the tax profession. Until now such approgram has not been available for so broad a segment of the business community," Wolpe said.

A native of Boston, Wolpe is a graduate of Boston University, a C.P.A., and a tax attorney. He holds a Juris Doctor degree from Suffolk University and a master of laws in Taxation degree from Boston University.

Wolpe is a member of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Association of Public Accountants, vice president of the Boston chapter of the Federal Bar Association, and an active participant in the tax sections of the Massachusetts Society of C.P.A.'s as well as the American, Massachusetts, and Boston Bar Associations.

Art exhibit

The annual outdoor exhibit by the students of the Golub-Lockwood Art Studio will take place on Saturday, June 1 from 2-5 p.m. at 28 Bullough Park, Newtonville.

Various techniques will be represented including oils, pastels and mixed media. At this time, students may sign for summer classes which start on June 3. The public is invited.

Ruth Golub and Charlotte Lockwood have operated their studio for the past fifteen years. Theses artists have exhibited extensively throughout the New England area.

Job Bank thriving

The Newton Job Bank, established in response to requests from Newton's high school population, continues to receive raves by both youth seeking employment and adults and businesses offering jobs, according to Anthony J. Bibbo, executive director of the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc, administering agency.

In commenting on the program, Bibbo stated that the success of the Newton program has become widespread throughout other communities and it is serving as a model for many cities and towns. The program is funded by the city of Newton through the Newton Youth Commission, headed by Rev. Charles Coyle, chairman, and fiscally through the Office of Human Resources, directed by Mrs. Jane Pitt.

The process for the free service, according to Senior Counselor Martin Cohne, includes the following steps:

1. Youth seeking employment fill out an application at the Job Bank office at 429 Cherry Street in West Newton.
2. Employer seeking youth lists opening via phone or in person. The Job Bank staff requests that people give at least three days notice.
3. The staff then matches the appropriate youth with the appropriate job.

Both short and long term jobs are sought. Tasks may vary from house-cleaning, babysitting, window washing, stock boys, pet care, delivery service, store clerks, as well as numerous others.

To list a job, or for additional information on the Newton Job Bank, people may phone 969-5908, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Books for children

A shelf of books for young children to read is featured just inside the front door at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre street, Newton Corner, to help keep youngsters busy and happy when they visit the Library with adults.

Books on the children's shelf are for use at the Main Library and will not circulate.

The Boys' and Girls' Library, around the corner from the Main Library, at 126 Vernon Street, and the children's rooms at each of the ten branch libraries continue to serve Newton children, and offer a growing collection for circulation.

A selection from the Boys' and Girls' Library at 126 Vernon street for the special in-Main-Library-use shelf includes: "Georgie and the Robbers" (Bright), "Moptop" (Freeman), "A Walk in the City" (Dawson), "The Little House" (Burton), and "Many Moons" (Thurber).

Main Library hours are Monday-Friday 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Saturdays 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m., and Sunday 1-4 p.m.

Elephants can walk on the bottom of a river by lifting their trunks above the surface of water to breathe.

Medical degree for Dr. Gianelly

Dr. Anthony Gianelly, chairman of the department of Orthodontics at Boston University's dental school, recently received a medical degree from B.U.'s School of Medicine.

Gianelly, Palmer Road, Waban, previously had earned a B.A. and ental degrees from Harvard and a Ph. D. from Boston University.

Outgrown Shop rummage sale

The Hyde School Outgrown Shop will hold its end-of-season rummage sale on May 28 and 29 at the school, 68 Lincoln St., Newton Highlands.

The sale will go on from 9 a.m. to 12 noon both days.

Proceeds from the Outgrown Shop finance PTA purchases for the school and special cultural events.

To Clarence D. Burns of Newton in the County of Middlesex and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Annette M. Griggs of Lincoln in the County of Middlesex representing that she hold as tenant in common one undivided half part or share of certain land lying in Newton in said County and briefly described as follows:

A certain parcel of land with buildings thereon situated in that part of Newton called Newton Upper Falls, abd being Lot 19 and the northerly half of Lot 20, as shown on a "Plan of Lots at Newton Upper Falls belonging to Louis F. Abbot", Aspinwall & Lincoln, C.E.'s dated November 1, 1899, duly recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Plan Book 121 Plan 30, more particularly bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the easterly side of Oak Street, at the corner of land now or late of George Pettee; thence running

SOUTHERLY on said Oak Street, forty five (45) feet to land now or late of Ida M. Chadwick, thence turning and running

EASTERLY on said Chadwick's land, one hundred ten (110) feet to Lot 17 as shown on said plan; thence turning and running

NORTHERLY on Lot 17 and Lot 18, forty seven and 87-100 (47.87) feet to said land of Pettee; and thence turning and funning

WESTERLY on said Pettee's land, one hundred ten and 4-100 (110.04) feet to said Oak Street.

Containing according to said plan five thousand one hundred and eight (5,108) square feet of land more or less.

Setting forth that he desires that all of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than Thirty-five thousand dollars, and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Cambridge before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the seventh day of June 1974, the return day of this citation.

Public buildings require hearings

An amendment to the ordinance governing the design process of public buildings to require approval of the site plan and a public hearing by the Board of Aldermen was passed by the Board this week.

The amendment, written and submitted by Ald. Lewis Egelson, was proposed in order to bring the city somewhat in line with zoning ordinances for private construction.

The city is not bound by its own zoning ordinances in the design of public buildings.

Under the amendment, whenever a new building is planned or major modifications of an existing building are undertaken that could involve a change in vehicular access, grading, drainage, parking requirements, and the like, the Design Review Committee will require to file its approved site plan with the Clerk of the Board of Aldermen.

A public hearing will be held to get input from the community.

Another benefit of the amendment, according to Egelson, is the prevention of mistakes in design that result in costly changes late in the design or after the building is completed.

The School Committee, represented by Chairman Eleanor Rosenblum last week at a meeting of the Legislation & Rules Committee where the resolution was worked out, opposed portions of the amendment as being unnecessary as adding to the considerable design review process.

Another amendment to the Design Review ordinance, proposed by Ald. Edward Richmond, would make the School Committee and Board of Aldermen members of the Design Review Committee nonvoting members and would change the composition of the committee to include members of specific professional and trade representatives.

Public Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson has already submitted a similar request to Mayor Theodore Mann, asking that an electrical engineer and a mechanical engineer, among others, be added to the membership.

Ms. Rosenblum, who had been involved in the creation of the Design Review Committee, objected that the changes would alter the concept of the committee, and asked the Legislation & Rules Committee to talk to members of the present committee before voting the proposed amendment. The item was held in committee.

Mountain dulcimers on display at Main Library

Mountain dulcimers, handcrafted by George Brewer of Newton, are on view in the glass cases at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner, now through the end of May.

According to Brewer, who has been building dulcimers for 15 years, the mountain dulcimer was not invented, it just "sort of growed, its beginnings lost in the blue mists of the Southern Appalachians" where generations of mountain people have used it to accompany their ballads.

Mountain dulcimers, which are played in the lap or on a table, range in shape from rectangular to triangular and from pear shaped to hourglass. They have either mechanical or hand carved pegs, which though harder to tune, are more traditional.

In spite of their varied shapes they have many common features including a melody string and two or more drone strings, sound boards and backs made of thin wood, and fret boards attached directly to the sound board.

Different woods are used, depending on the area where the dulcimers are made, including mahogany, pine, walnut and spruce, a long graied wood often used for the sounding board because of its lightness and strength.

The mountain dulcimer, with its fretsarranged in a simple diatonic scale, is a relatively simple instrument Experts advise that the best way to learn to play it is to pick up the instrument and to start to play.

Brewer, who also restores old instruments, lives in Newton with his wife, Jo, a noted lepidopterist. Enthusiastic supporters and Friends of the Newton Free Library, Mrs. Brewer is a member of the Library Board of Trustees, and Brewer holds the office of treasurer of the Friends of the Newton Free Library.

Mural As part of a Bicentennial project, Howard Levin of Longwood Realty commissioned Newton artist Cynthia Garrett to design a mural for one wall of the office. Ms. Garrett painted historical buidlings and styles of architecture of Newton. The buildings are superimposed on a map of the city. Through June, the public is invited to see an exhibition of the drawings that were studies for the mural at the Longwood office during business hours, corner of Commonwealth and Centre

Pulitzer Prize in Music for Martino

Donald Martino, chairman of the composition department at the New England Conservatory of Music, has been awarded the Pulitzer Prize in Music.

Martino, who has been at the New England Conservatory since 1969, won his Pulitzer for the chamber work "Notturno," commissioned by the Walter W. Naumburg Foundation in 1973.

Martino has also recently been commissioned by the Paderewski Fund of Boston in 1974 ("The Paradiso Choruses"), the New York State Arts Council in 1973 and the National Endowment for the Arts in 1973.

In the past, Martino was commissioned by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in 1966 ("Mosaic"), the New Haven Symphony Orchestra in 1965 ("Piano Concerto") and the Fromm Foundation in 1964 ("Concerto for Wind Quintet").

The recipient of a Guggenheim Grant in 1973, Martino is presently on a year's leave of absence from the New England Conservatory. He received a previous grant from the Guggenheim Foundation in 1967.

Prior to joining the New England Conservatory faculty, Martino was an associate professor of music theory at Yale University. He resides on Pembroke Street in Newton with his wife Laura and their daughter.

Finalist

Bill McCallum of Chestnut Hill was selected a finalist in the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's elementary education ecology poem and poster program.

250 students from New England were selected as finalists in the program, which was carried on throughout the six state region. The program was designed to bring about a greater awareness and concern for environmental matters.

Events scheduled in honor of music school director's retirement

The retirement of Anne T. Gombosi in June as director of the All Newton Music School is being marked by several events which will give the people of Newton a chance to see what this dedicated and talented musician has accomplished during her 15 years at the school.

In addition to the student and family recitals is an Open House on Sunday afternoon, June 2, which will feature chamber music in the studies. People will be able to sample a wide variety of musical events throughout the building and gather informally in the Fyffe Hall to meet the director and trustees and enjoy refreshments. The emphasis on ensemble work for young and old illustrates a basic tenet in Mrs. Gombosi's philosophy—"making music together is fun."

Anne T. Gombosi, violinist, was born and educated in WSwitzerland. Upon graduation from the Basel Conservatory, she joined the Basel Conservatory, she joined the Basel Symphony Orchestra under Felix von Weingartner. She did her graduate work in Berlin, and it was during this period she developed her interest in the performance of old music. She studied viola d'amore with Henry Casadesus of the Societe des Instruments Anciens in Paris and viola da gamba with August Wensinger in Kassel. After a period of intensive violin training and coaching with Professor Janos Hammerschlag in Budapest, she returned to Switzerland as a member of the concert group and the faculty of the Schola Cantorum Basiliensis.

She came to America for a visit in 1939, but the war intervened and she was not able too return to Switzerland. She and her husband, Otto Gombosi, a musicologist who had been invited to give a series of guest lectures, spent sevveral frustrating months in New York trying to secure visas to return to Switzerland through one of the war-stricken countries. After a year at Grinnell College in Iowa, Anne Gombosi became head of the violin department of Cornish School in Seattle, Wash., and her husband joined the faculty of the University of Washington. She also played in the Seattle Symphony under Thomas Beecham.

When her husband was called too Michigan University, she accepted a part time job at the same school teaching the music course in a correlated cultural program offered to all freshmen. Whle her children were young, she confined herself to part-time teaching in Chicago and Boston, but found time to organize the Camerata group at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. After her husband's death, she took her masters degree at Boston University and it was at this time that the directorship of the All Newton Music School was offered to her.

When Mrs. Gombosi first came to the school in 1959, it was housed in a quaint Victorian structure at the corner of Walnut and abot and had an enrollment of about 350 youngsters. In three short years, Mrs. Gombosi's infusion of new faculty and teaching programs swelled enrollment to 600 and the trustees saw that a larger building was clearly in order.

Since the move to 321 Chestnut St. in West Newton in 1965, the director has broadened the scope of the Music School to include ballet, creative and modern dance, eurythmics for the very young, and ensemble playing for everyone. Today there are 1,200 students who range in age from pre-schooler to senior citizens.

Mrs. Gombosi believes strongly in the concept of the community music school and has instituted two out reach programs—one at Lincoln-Eliot School and one at Emerson.

"The functions of the Community Music School," she explains, "have become increasingly complex during the past two decades. Beyond the limits of music instruction on all levels, it is their task to make the community-at-large aware of the place of music and of the musician as an integral part of our lives." Mrs. Gombosi added that she hopes the Newton Community will come to some or all of the events and see for themselves what the All Newton Music School is all about:

Sunday, June 2, 3-5 p.m. Open House, Music School Kaleidescope. Monday, June 17, 7:30 p.m. Senior Concert, Aquinas Junior College.

The somber ceremony

The day was somber, somehow more befitting a Memorial Day than a jubilant blue-and-white day. The flags hung limply, and the footsteps and the music were amplified by the dampness.

In Nonantum the parade waited a bit for the weather to decide what it would do, then made its way through the narrow Nonantum streets, stopping a few times to lay wreaths of remembrance at markers bearing the names of war dead.

This was a community event, where the closeknit people stood in clusters watching their marchers go by. There were few smiles and no applause where we stood, at the corner of Adams St. and Watertown St., and when taps was played in the park and repeated distantly and muted, the full impact of Memorial Day showed in saddened faces.

The "official" city-sponsored parade in the afternoon had a little more music and more marchers, but fo the first time in 50 years no Leverett Saltonstall.

In Newtonville a candidate had given out orange helium balloons with his name printed on them as if the parade were a political rally.

Amid the military marches and drumrools one band inexplicably swung into "Cabaret," and another played what sounded like its football song.

And just in case we were too thankful for having no American soldiers fighting in a war this Memorial Day, a large group paraded with placards reminding us of the MIAs — the soldiers still missing in action in Viet Nam. "Where is Joseph Dunn?"

American Legion Post 440 was represented in both parades Sunday.

Multi-Service Center wants to move

The Newton-Wellesley-Weston Multi--Service Center, Inc. presented its case Wednesday for purchasing a house on 866 Beacon St. to 15 neighbors assembled at the First Baptist Church, Newton Centre.

The presentation was made by Nancy Kaufman, administrative coordinator of the center.

Presently housed at 22 Washinogton Ter., the organization had outgrown the facility where it provides counsellig, emergency housing for runaways and medical clinic for youngsters 13-21.

Five neighbors, who are abutters voiced the strongest opposition to the project.

A major concern of the neighbors was the center would draw more youngsters to the area at Beacon and Centre St. where "in the summer we have 200-300 students congregating at Brighams and the church (First Baptist) and we all must take turns calling the police."

Miss Kaufman reassured neighbors that the students coming to the center "don't like to hang around, they don't even want to be seen."

One man expressed the sentiment that "we are long time residents and have the desire to see Brighams fold and let us go back to being a peaceful place."

Vandalism and littering from beer cans were other items mentioned by neighbors. However Rev. Gene Bartlett of First Baptist Church pointed out the "children were here before we invited them."

Bartlett mentioned the church helped raise funds, along with other churches and synagogues, for a counselor to be on the lawn with students 12 hours a day. He supported having the center on Beacon Street saying "I am convinced it will help."

Support also came from neighbor, Virginia Robinson who said "we have a teenage problem and wholeheartedly welcome the center . . we all stand to benefit."

Miss Kaufman stressed that the center could perhaps help with the Brighams problem by having streetworkers, volunteers and trained students working as peeer counselors help with the youngsters. A suggestion for a neighborhood forum was put forth by a center worker so neighbors and workers could meet and "air out " problems caused by the youngsters in Newton Centre.

Another concern neighbors raised was that the "very existence of the center would encourage youngsters to run away from home."

Laurel Goldstein, a volunteer worker with the organization, pointed out that the "initial three days we see the youngsters may be the three days that save their life — if they didn't have us they would be out on the street as prostitutes or drug addicts.

Mrs. Goldstein added, "we couldn't save them all, but many of them are reunited with their parents."

Another woman stood up and spoke about taking her daughter to the Center when she was depressed and "didn't want to talk with anyone at school."

"Frankly," she said, "sometimes I have difficulty dealing with adolescents and I am grateful this place is there."

Miss Kaufman told the group that the center averages 50 per cent of its clients from Newton. She noted another reason for selecting the house was its proximity to Riverside line.

She stated that the center raised $15,000

Beaconwood may not get housing

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

The Housing Authority's planned Beaconwood Road housing is in trouble again.

The impasse caused by rejection of construction bids on the 20-unit family-housing development by the state Department of Community Affairs, was recently broken by the DCA's indication that it will fund the project if the city contributes up to $150,000 toward streets and utility lines.

In Finance Committee deliberations last week on Mayor Mann's request for a $150,000 appropriation for this purpose, Ald. Louis Egelson proposed that the money be used instead toward the purchase of land on Staniford street in Auburndale.

The Staniford Street property was turned down by the Zoning Board of Appeals for housing and will shortly be the subject of an appeal to the state under Chapter 774, the "anti-snob zoning" law.

The Beaconwood Road land is also involved in litigation. Owners of the land, Ciccone Realty Trust, recently obtained a court ruling that the Newton Planning Board acted improperly in approving a subdivision plan submitted by the Housing Authority for the land, since the Housing Suthority plans to take the property by eminend domain and is not yet the owner of the land.

Ciccone Realty Trust has filed its own subdivision plan and hopes to build 28 units of housing.

Egelson would have the city acquire the Staniford Street property and give the "front" two acres to the Citizen advisors to study enrollment

People seemed to feel that there was a lot unsaid in an enrollment study accepted by the Newton School Committee last week.

The School Committee responded to this concern when it established a citizens advisory committee thes week which will gather additional information and offer alternatives suggested by decreased school enrollment.

The School Committee had a hard time deciding what the size and composition of this committee should be.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink initially recommended a 15-person committee, including three people chosen by the PTACouncil, one School Committee member, and two aldermen.

Both School Committee members and PTA spodesmen were opposed to the small allotment granted the PTA Council. A letter from Edward Shapiro of the Oak Hill PTA asked that all 11 communities which could lose an elementary school be represented on the committee. A letter from the Angier PTA asked that an Angier parent be on the committee.

Fink's initieal recommendation called for one PTA representative from each section of the city (north, central, south). It was nothed that the implications of the enrollment study affect all the schools in Newton.

School Committeeman Alvin Mandell suggested that the PTA allotment be increased to five, and those people be chosen by the 11 schools most in danger of being closed.

After School Committee member Dorothy Reichard proposed two PTA representatives from each section of Newton (for a total of six), Mayor Theodore D. Mann asked that the PTA Council get eight places, one from each ward.

There was also debate over whether or not elected officials should be on the committee since they ultimately will have to make decisions about the questions the committee considers.

The discussion went on and on. At one point, Mandell suggested that maybe the School Committee should not set up a committee. He proposed that people make up their own committees and let the School Committee know what they find out.

Fink eventually came forth with a new recommendation.

He recommended that the advisory committee be composed of a chairman (to be appointed by the School Committee chairwoman and subject to approval of the School Committee , eight PTA Council representatives (one from each ward), two people from the Newton Teachers' Association, one from Newton Citizens for Education, one from the League of Women Voters, one from Black Citizens of Newton, and one from the Newton Taxpayers' Association.

Members of the School Committee, the Board of Alderman and the mayor's office would serve as resource people.

School Committeeman Manuel Beckwith moved Find's recommendation. School Committeee member Joan Needleman suggested an amendment that a member of the Community School Commission or Council be on the committee. Her amendment was accepted.

Ex official hired for Plymouth post

By PHILIP KEOHANE

PLYMOUTH— Richard A. Dudman, former director of Newton Public Works and president of a management consultant firm is the new executive secretary for Plymouth, the largest area town in the state.

Dudman is the first executive secretary in the south shore community's history. He was chosen from over 100 candidates who were reviewed for the position since January.

The former Newton official will take over the newly created Plymouth position Monday when he will be introduced to town officials.

The town and Dudman signed an agreement Wednesday night.

Plymouth has a five member board of selectmen chaired by David Tarantino who said that Dudman was selected following an extensive talent search that covered over 100 candidates.

Dudman was brought into Newton's administration in the fall of 1972 by Mayor Theodore D. Mann to reorganize the city's public works department. In June of 1973 he was appointed director of the department and continued in that position until he resigned following the reelection of the mayor. Dudman's resignation came as no surprise since he was known to have strong differences with at least one person in the mayor's office.

An independent and talented person, Dudman had been a consultant for te Arthut D. Little Co. in Cambridge and had formed his own management consulting firm. He and Land swap for mall parking?

Chestnut Hill Mall developer Julian Cohen has reportedly approached the Metropolitan District Commission about "modification of his parking arrangements."

MDC Director of Planning Mrs. Julia O'Brien told the Conservation Commission last week that Cohen was interested in a land swap which could provide more customer parking at the Mall.

The proposed trade, presumably of land of equal value, would consist of the MDC giving the Mall part of Hammond Pond Parkway Reservations for an employees' parking area adjacent to Hammond Pond.

Mrs. O'Brien said that the trade would require legislation.

"From a preservation point of view, it would be marvelous to have that land," Mrs. O'Brien noted. She added that the MDC might be able to acquire the employees' lot through a friendly sale rather than through a trade.

In relation to Cohen's interest in acquiring more parking area, Mrs. O'Brien said, "Ithink he's on a tight site from his point of view."

In other Conservation Commission business, Planning Consultant William Giezentanner presented a slide tour of Newton's Charles River frontage. Giezentanner has been preparing recommendations for a Charles River frontage and pathway plan.

Giezentanner pointed out that people can already walk along most of the 11½ miles of river frontage in Newton with little interruption.

Newton man bitten by the bee bug

Al Delicata

By TOM GRAVES
Of The Graphic Staff

Bees have always suffered from poor public relations. When people see a bee, they often either run or try to kill it with a rolled-up newspaper.

Al Delicata, 46 Lowell Ave., Newton has thousands of bees in his backyard.

Delicata keeps the bees as a hobby. While he would admit that a bee might not be man's best friend, he explains that it is not really an enemy either.

"Bees are not vicious usually if they are left alone," Delicata reports. "People are afraid of bees because they don't understand them."

The misdeeds of wasps are sometimes blamed on the innocent bee.

Delicata, a machinist, has been collecting bees for 12 years. They appeal to him because they are "beneficial insects," because they interest him, and because of their by-products.

Delicata elaborated recently on how bees are beneficial. "We wouldn't have fruit or vegetables without bees to pollenate flowers." Vegetables such as cucumber and squash are dependant on bees for pollenization.

Delicata added that the process is done accidentally as the bees gather nectar and pollen. Logically, he also has a garden in his back yard.

Delicata has 15 hives of honey bees (three-banded Italians) in his yard, plus two more hives in New Hampshire. He collects both honey and wax from the hives.

The honey is strained through nylon to get rid of impurities, and some of it si sold. The wax is used to make candles.

Delicata also exhibits his honey at cuntry fairs, and has won blue ribbons for its quality. His wife and daughters have won awards for dishes they have cooked using honey.

A question quick to be asked is how Delicata's neighbors have responded to his unusual hobby. His wife reported that they have only one objection, from a neighbor with a swimming pool (bees are attracted to water). It was discovered, however, that his neighbor had a nest of wasps on his property.

When asked if bees recognize specific people, Delicata said that "some people like to say so, but Idon't think so." He noted that he knows how to handle bees "better than the average person."

Delicata's ability to handle bees has led him to other people's homes when they have had unwanted swarms of bees on their property. His name is at the police stations and fire stations of various communities as a person to call if there are bees to be removed. One community has provided him with a fire truck with a ladder to get at bees.

Delicata has several techniques for capturing bees. One thing he can do is capture the queen been and hope that the other bees will come to her.

Bees usually swarm onto a tree or a fence or a side of a house. If they are on a tree branch, Delicata may attempt to catch them when they are full of honey and off guard. He will then shake the branch, with a carton underneath. "You can get them all with one

100 favor Underwood addition

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

Exactly 100 people came to City Hall last week to a public hearing on the site plan for the Underwood School addition, and 100 people raised their hands to indicate approval.

The addition, which is expected to be completed by July, 1976, will cost a total of $1,350,000, including some renovations.

A request for appropriation of $70,000 for architects' fees to proceed to the bidding stage is now before the Board of Aldermen. The request was approved by both the Public Buildings and Finance Committes.

Before Public Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson invites bids on the construction phase, the Board will have the opportunity to give its final approval to the plans.

Under a recently passed ordinance written by Ald. Louis Egelson, in the future all public buildings will undergo a public hearing on the site plan. Underwood School would not have come within the new law, but the hearing was held as a courtesy to the neighborhood.

The proponents of the underwood addition who spoke included Rep. Peter Harrington, who reminded the aldermen of their "commitment" some time ago to improve the school, and former Ald. Harry Crosby, who commented on the "refining process" the plans had undergone and the "extraordinary community involvement."

Ivan Samuels, president of the Underwoog PTA, pointed out that while other schools' enrollment had been dropping, Underwood's has been clim-

Public drinking ban proposed

"Beer is behind it all," Police Chief William Quinn said this week of disturbances among the city's youth.

Appearing at a meeting of the aldermanic Legislation and Rules Committee, Quinn explained an ordinance proposed by him that he hopes will help control public drinking.

The ordinance, as modified by the committee, would prohibit the gift, sale, delivery, possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages on public streets, in parks, playgrounds, parking lots, and in other areas with public access without permission of the owner or person in authority.

The ordinance would provide for arrest, seizure of the beverage, and a fine of not more than $50.

Quinn assured committee members that the ordinance is not directed at the majority of peaceful citizens who might want to take a few cans of beer or a bottle of wine with a picnic supper to a park but against the sort of drinking that leads to rowdy behavior and vandalism.

"Newton South High parking lot is completely out of hand," Quinn said. "There's been vandalism and people taking their clothes off. There are no laws to take care of this. We have to see them."

(A reliable source at South High last week reported that beer was being drunk from a keg in the parking lot on the seniors' last day, and several students were drunk in school.)

The arrest provision troubled some of the committee members who would prefer a warning system. Quinn promised that the arrest provision would not be abused, but would be used as a last resort.

The committee voted to hold the proposed ordinance for redrafting by Board President Eliot Cohen to clear up several unclear points.

Rufo case dismissed

District Attorney Richard Steinberg last week recommended the charge of receiving stolen property against Louis Rufo be dismissed.

Rufo, the president of Local 800 of municipal employees, was charged in connection with the disappearance of a bus stop shelter in January.

Chief Justice Franklin Flaschner, hearing the case Friday, continued the case without a finding for 30 days, after which, Rufo's attorney Peter F. Harrington explained, the case would be dismissed.

Harrington said his client maintained he had permission to take the bus helter, which was not being used anymore.

He said that after the shelter was taken, Rufo was approached by Police Chief William F. Quinn while working and asked if he knew where the bus shelter was.

Harrington said Rufo toold the chief it was in his yard in Framingham and that he had gotten permission to take it.

Harrington said Rufo made the same statement to Mayor Theodore D. Mann.

Harrington also said in court that it was learned the bus shelter had not been declared surplus until April 18.

There was sufficient evidence to warrant a trial, Steinberg told the court.

"But I also found that Mr. Rufo has no prior record and he is in a sensitibe position in this city," Steinberg continued.

He explained that he was not implying Rufo should get special treatment because of his status, but "he should be treated as a first offender."

The district attorney noted that Rufo had indicated a defense in the mstter and then made his recommendation that the case be continued without a finding for 30 days and then dismissed.

"I think the assessment of the case by the district attorney is reasonable," Flaschner commented and ruled accordingly.

Diabetes Bike-a-thon Sunday

The New England Diabetes Association will sponsor a bike-a-thon in an effort to raise money to help support diabetes research, detection and education Sunday, June 2.

The 11-mile bike-a-thon route will go through Newton, Waltham, Watertown, and Belmont. The five check points will be manned by local Lions Clubs. Newton Chairwoman, Corrinne Van Alstine, will be assisted at the Newton checkpoint by members of the Newton Lion's Club under the direction of President Timothy Tyer.

Honorary co-chairmen are Don Nelson of the Boston Celtics, Mrs. Dudley White of Belmont and Senator William L. Saltonstall who was responsible last year for the passage of bicycle safety legislation.

Although Newton children have long had the benefit of bicycle safety clinics under the direction of Newton Officer Charles E. Feeley, who is in charge of securing permits for the Bike-a-thon, as each rider registers for the bike-a-thon, he or she will be given a list of bicycle safety rules to read before starting out. Junior Girl Scout Troup 614 of Burr School in Auburndale will put their bikes into good condition before setting out on the route with their leader Colleen Mahon.

Newton's Senior citizens are also being contacted and encouraged to participate in the bike-a-thon. Two of the checkpoints are MacDonald's restaurants where all participants will receive free soft drinks and those who complete the circuit will be given a free meal.

Prizes, including bicycles donated by the Bicycle Exchange of Cambridge and U.S. Savings Bonds will be awarded to those riders who raise the most funds.

Registration blanks which contain spaces for sponsors and a map of the route may be picked up at any MacDonald's Restaurant or by calling 232-3387.

Upper Falls may get 'historic' designation

About 100 houses in Newton Upper Falls have been tentatively designated a "historic district."

The meaning of the designation and the area to be encompassed by the district will be explained to Upper Falls residents and homeowners at a public meeting of the Historic District Study Committee, Tuesday, June 4, 7:45 p.m., at the Methodist Church parish hall on Summer Street.

The committee was formally appointed last fall by Mayor Theodore Mann to survey the city and select areas appropriate for preservation as a historic district.

Upper Falls began as a mill town in the late 1700s, and the earliest recorded date for a house still standing in 1790.

In addition to fine examples of Greek Revival architecture, there are imposing Victorian houses and interesting hybrid types of architecture in Upper Falls.

At the meeting, the study committee will explain the restrictions that would be imposed by the creation of a historic district, such as the requirement that permission be obtained to make any major alteration of the outward appearance of the building, and the benefits and disadvantages of the historic district.

Opinions will be solicited from residents as to proper boundaries for the district.

When the boundaries and other questions have been settled, a public hearing is required, afterwhich a two-thirds vote of the Board of Aldermen is needed for approval of the historic district.

Federal grant awarded for METCO program

Federal grants totaling $133,333 have been awarded to the Brookline and Newton school departments to help bolster existing METCO programs.

Newton will receive $81,333 and Brookline will receive $52,000 in Emergency School Aid Act funds. The money will be used to train teachers for minority group students.

The announcement was made jointly by Robert Fulton, Region One Director of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and Regional Education Commissioner, William Logan.

The funds will cover the period from June 30, 1974 to June 29, 1975.

Conflict of interest over Sidney Hill?

City Solicitor Howard Levine said Wednesday he is looking into the question of aldermanic "Conflict of interest" in connection with the Sidney Hill Country Club.

Sidney Hill is requesting expansion of tennis courts and other improvements. The aldermanic Land Use Committee voted Tuesday to keep the matter in committee while the owners go to the Zoning Board of Appeals for an easement.

Some members of the Board of Aldermen are paid or honorary members of the country club and the question of whether or not they should vote on the Sidney Hill package has been raised.

Levine said Board President Eliot K. Cohen asked him for a legal opinion. He has not yet finished his investigation.

Land Use Committee member Ald. Michael Lipof abstained from voting on holding Sidney Hill in committee Tuesday on the advice of the solicitor, he said.

Levine agreed that he had advised Lipof too abstain because he has not reached a conclusion on the question.

Someone jokingly commented at the meeting that if enough aldermen were members of the club and all were advised not to vote on the matter, there might not be a quorum of the Board of Aldermen, in which case no action could be taken.

"That's not such a joe," Levine said Wednesday. "At this point, I don't know exactly which aldermen are members of the club, but this actually is one of the points I have to consider in my decision."

PUBLIC TENNIS ANYONE??

ATTENTION!

NEWTON SOUTH SIDE RESIDENTS

The Oak Hill Improvement Association is interested in forming a working committee to develop a planned self-liquidating public indoor-outdoor tennis facility to be constructed somewhere within our district. Residents desirous of this new recreation facility to be planned and recommended by Newton South Side citizens to the Recreation Commission and the Board of Aldermen, are urged to send in the reply form below. We need interested people to form a group for committee work and research into this needed recreational facility.

$130,000 approved for asbestos coverup

By TOM GRAVES

The aldermanic Public Buildings Committee voted last week to transfer $130,000 to the Newton North High School bonded account so that asbestos in the new high school can be boxed in this summer.

Building Commissioner Gene Larson told the committee that it is thought that all the open columns and beams in the high school were sprayed with asbestos, a possible health hazard.

It is hoped that the decking in the school was treated with a non-asbestos material so it will not have to be closed off also. Larson reported that three random samples were taken from decking in the school, and testing showed no asbestos.

"We are 99 and 44-100ths per cent sure that we have asbestos on the beams and none on the desks," Larson said. He added that a sub-contractor has sent an affadavit saying that the beams and columns have asbestos.

Both Larson and Alderman David Jackson asked that more samples be taken to further check out this conclusion.

Melvin First of Harvard's School of Public Health has suggested that the beams and columns with asbestos be coated with plastic before being boxed in. The plastic would be added insurance against asbestos particles leaking into the open air.

Larson said that there is approximately 9,000 linear feet of beams left to be boxed in. According to Larson, $49,276 has already been spent on closing off asbestos areas in the school.

Larson had asked for $150,000 to box in asbestos areas, but this estimate included the anticipated cost of covering asbestos sprayed ceilings. The request was reduced to $105,000 after it became likely that the decking in the building was not sprayed with asbestos.

The $130,000 transfer approved by the Public Buildings Committee from existing bonded accounts represents the $105,000 Larson asked for plus a contingency fund of $25,000.

The boxing in done so far at the high school is in different stages. In the auto shop, asbestos areas have been boxed in, but not taped and spackled. The work will be completed this summer. In another area, the boxing in is complete, the beams having been boxed and the boxes having been taped and painted.

It is expected that in the future, the remaining exposed asbestos areas will be coated in plastic as well as boxed in.

There are some asbestos areas above false ceilings, and Larson said that the framing for ceiling will probably have to be taken down to get at the asbestos.

Alderman Matthew Jefferson asked why asbestos was used in the building originally. Jackson replied that for 25 years asbestos was a standard part of fire-proofing steel buildings.

Public Buildings Chairman Edward Richmond noted that there is now a state regulation which forbids spraying beams with asbestos.

The money Larson asked for included $5,000 for an architect's fee. He said that the architect's work can be done by June 10 and the city will advertise for bids on the asbestos boxing on June 6.

The work in the high school is slated for this summer. Larson said that "hopefully, it can be done before school opens up." A possible obstacle could be labor strikes

The Public Buildings Committee voted 6-0 to transfer $130,000 to the Newton North bonded account. It voted 6-0 also for an appropriation of $105,000 for the asbestos work. Jackson said that he "would like to hold the other $25,000 until we're sure we can get the health work done."

In a letter to the Board of Aldermen dated April 29, Mayor Theodore D. Mann asked that a $370,000 bond issue be approved for additional work at Newton North. Larson had asked $75,000 to improve the safety aspects of six stairwells. The Public Buildings Committee decided last week to hold action on this item until alternatives for improving safety were offered.

The committee did approve $40,000 for the installation of three standpipes, and, $100,000 for gutters on the physical education wing and "greenhouses." There may be future litigation relating to the gutters, and the committee went into executive session to discuss this item.

The committee took no action on modifying the sprinkler system, and a request for $100,000 for miscellaneous items. Before action is taken on the sprinkler system, Larson wants an agreement to have been worked out with the company which underwrites the fire insurance for Newton North his family now reside in Natick but are expected to move to Plymouth in the near future.

The position of executive secretary in Plymouth was established in March under a new town charter. It is a position that some officials in the town had wanted for a long time and the job will affect all levels of administration in the community. The fast growing population of Plymouth is now near 24,000 and that figure almost doubles in summer months.

It is the only town in the state where the tax rate has consistently declined in the past dozen or so years.

When Dudman left Newton he said he had "brought the public works department from the fifties too the seventies." Many agreed and some felt that Dudman was hamstrung from further improvements by political pressure

Green Line streetcars to be rerouted

Riverside streetcars (Green Line) will be routed over to the Beacon Street Line at Cleveland Circle and a new bus route will be established between Reservoir and Kenmore Stations, effective Saturday, June 8, the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority has announced.

These changes in service are necessary because the Riverside Line between Reservoir and Fenway Park Stations will be closed to give the MBTA's contractor exclusive use of the right-of-way for track reconstruction during the summer months when traveling is lightest, Joseph C. Kelly, general manager, said.

A connecting track is being installed at Cleveland Circle so that through passengers can continue their trip without making any change.

For the many passengers traveling to and from Brookline Village, a new bus route is being established between Reservoir and Kenmore Stations via Chestnut Hill Avenue, Boylston Street and Brookline Avenue. The buses ans streetcars are scheduled to make connections at Reservoir Station (Cleveland Circle)

Timetable for the streetcar service between Riverside and North Stations via the Beacon Street Line, and for the supplementary bus service between Reservoir and Kenmore Stations, will be available about June 3 and thereafter at Riverside, Reservoir, Kenmore, Park Street and North Stations as well as at the aMBTA Customer Service Center, 45 High Street, Boston 02114.

Two youths hit by train

The bodies of two Newton youths were found early Saturday morning on Penn Central Railroad tracks in Auburndale.

According to Newton police, Dennis O'Connor, 20 Clark Rd., West Newton, 14, and Walter Burke, 160 Adams Ave., West Newton, 16, "apparently had been hit by a train."

Newton Police received a call from the State Police at 5:55 a.m. Saturday morning reporting discovery of the bodies. State Police, Newton Police and railroad officials were still investigating the incident Wednesday.

Funeral services for the two youths were held on Wednesday. the service for Burke was held at St. Bernard's Church, West Newton, while services for O'Connor were held at the Newton Cemetery Chapel.

Burke and O'Connor were both students at Warren Junior High School. Burke, son of William B. and Rita T. (Cormier) Burke, leaves his parents, maternal grandparents, a sister, Denise M. Burke, and aunts and uncles

O'Connor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. O'Connor, leaves his parents, a brother, Daniel, and three sisters, Mrs Anna M. Parks of Clinton, Mrs Patricia Allegra of Whitinsville, and Mrs. Mary M Perkins of Marshfield

Compost good for tomatoes

May 30 is the traditional date for planting tomatoes. Don't forget to get your free leaf compost from the city compost site and work it into the soil when you do your planting. Get additional compost, too, to use as a mulch to keep weeds out and moisture in.

The "black gold" is a valuable soil additive which can either be incorporated into the soil at planting time or used as a mulch once the seedlings have sprouted.

The Beacon Street compost site is west of Four Corners and is open every Saturday from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Bring your own container for the compost

Chestnut St. residents oppose parking ban

Chestnut Street residents view cars parked on their street not as a nuisance but as a protection, and about 40 of them came to City Hall Wednesday night to protest a proposed parking ban.

The Traffic Commission has recommended at least a daytime ban on parking the length of Chestnut Street from Austin Street in West Newton to Ellis Street in Upper Falls, citing the narrowness and varying width of the street and the frequency of accidents.

There were no speakers in favor of the ban except Edwin Wiest, Traffic Commission chairman.

Opponents argued before the Street Traffic Committee of the Board af Aldermen that the presence of a car parked here and there cuts down on speeding, which was a complaint heard from nearly every speaker.

Committee Chairman David Cohen asked whether the answer might be efficient enforcement of speed regulations, but received somewhat cynical answers ranging from a report that the police had suggested the neighbors' setting up their own "vigilante" committee to another report that the police had parked in front of the house of a complainant for five days.

Richard Young, 880 Chestnut Street, asked the question on everybody's mind: "Why is it necessary not to restrict traffic on Chestnut Street?"

Wiest responded that the street is regarded as a north-south artery, taking cars from Needham to the Mass. Pike and from the pike to Route 9. If traffic were restricted, Wiest said, the state Department of Public Works would require the city to provide an alternate route, and what would that be?

Again and again the comment was made that the problem on Chestnut Street is not parking, but traffic and speeding.

Bruce Barrow, 543 Chestnut St., rejected the idea that the street is a traffic artery — "It is not. It was not intended to be such. A few cars parked is a strong deterrent to speeding. A parking ban will cause speeding, and then we will have to depend on law enforcement."

Barrows said he lives at the "famous S-shaped curve between Commonwealth Avenue and Beacon Street — the only thing that keeps Chestnut Street from becoming a freeway."

At the West Newton end of Chestnut Street, William Bowers, who operates an insurance agency at 76 Chestnut St., opposed the ban on the grounds that his customers would have no place to park. His wife told of many accidents that have happened at the bottom of the hill near their house and said she likes cars parked there to keep cars coming too fast down the hill from hitting the house, as has happened.

No action was taken on the parking-ban proposal Wednesday night.

Still to be heard from are store owners on Chestnut Street in Upper Falls. The Traffic Commission Tuesday voted a 60-day trial of a parking ban on the street between Route 9 and the Chestnut Street-Ellis Street intersection.

The absence of off-street parking in the Upper Falls area is expected to cause some hardship to the growing number of antique stores.

Also voted by the commission was a prohibition against a left turn from Chestnut Street into Ellis Street, going north. Other changes voted for trial were making hhe westbound off-ramp of Route 9 at Chestnut Street one-way west between Richardson Road and Route 9 and two-way between Richardson Road and Chestnut Street, and banning a left turn from Quinobequin Road onto the westbound ramp.

The eastbound ramps would be one-way, with no left turns from northbound Chestnut Street and High Street.

Sixty-day trials voted by the Traffic Commission are not subject to approval of the Board of Aldermen. Recommendations for permanent changes are referred first to the Street Traffic Committee of the Board and then to the full Board for approval.

Land use

Aldermen deadlocked on offstreet parking

A modified version of former alderman Peter F. Harrington's offstreet parking ordinance put the aldermanic Land Use Committee into a 3-3 deadlock this week.

The committee's report on the parking plan should come to the Board of Aldermen for a vote its meeting Monday

Harrington's proposal requires that when a business changes hands, off-street parking would have to be provided.

Ward 2 Ald. Terry Morris suggested a Tuesday's meeting the Harrington plan be modified so that off-street parking would not be required when a business moved in that was "equal to or less" in intensity of use that the one moving out.

He further suggested that when the business moving in did "increase intensity", the off-street parking required would be only the the number of spaces in excess of the parking repuired for the business vacating. If the business vacating needed four parking spaces and then one moving in needed six, the new venture would have to provide two off-street parking spaces, Morris explained.

Planning Direxter Charles Thomas also proposed giving aldermen the power to waive a percentage of the new parking that might be needed if they so voted.

"Before the Board could intelligently evaluage a waiver," Ald. Michael Antonellis replied, "it would have to consider all of the other businesses in the area."

"We might so economically limit a business, " he observed, "that we could kill off another building."

Ald. Alan Barkin objected to the Board in favor of a plan from Cramer Electronics for its requested increase in parking to accomodate expansion of warehouse of office space

The Planning Department and Conservation Commission took opposing views on the subject, Thomas recommending some of the parking be located in the floodplain of Cramer's Newton at 128 Office Pardk site, and the commission saying "no "

Thomas said the Cramer plan called for parking in the area that is now a wooded knoll and that he felt this natural feature should be retained.

Hefavored a plan with a reduction in the number of parking spaces Cramer wants, they exceed the required number in the plan, placing some in the knoll area and some in the floodplain.

Cramer, however, has its eye on another expansion in 1980 and is attempting to get its required parking now.

Conservation Commissioner Helen Heyn argued that the Federal government intends to acquire all the Charles River floodplain land and it should not be encroached upon.

Chairman McDonnell also read committeee members a letter form the Metropolitan District Commission stating its opposition to parking in the floodplain.

The committee decided to reject the planner's opinion and voted to recommend putting the parking on the knoll. They agreed to hold the matter until the developer comes in with an engineered plan of their choice.

having a waiver power, saying the Board would be making "arbitrary" decisions and would not be applying its laws equally.

Ald. Richard J. McGrath brought Picadilly Square up as an example of an entire business complex developed without any provision for additional parking and said it reflected the need for some control over businesses moving into Newton.

Barkin replied the Picadilly Square had revitalized Newton Center square and the development had replaced a "rundown" area.

Ald. Barkin, Antonellis and Michael Lipof voted against the proposal with its modifications. Ald. Morris McGrath and Joseph McDonnell favored it. Ald. Matthew Jefferson and David Cohen were absent.

The propsal received substantial support form Newtonville residents at a hearing earlier this month. The group of Newtonville square merchants and area people were interested in stopping McDonald's form opening a resuaurant in the square.

It was pointed out at the meeting by Richard Bram, owner of the building McDonald's wants to lease, that should the modified version pass, he would be able to provide the 35 parking spaces McDonald's would be required to have a s excess of existing spaces.

Bram was referring to tearing down a house on Washington Park and putting in a parking lot. He noted that he would need aldermanic permission to tear the house down.

The Land Use Committee also voted 4-2

Arlene L. Bernstein, 280 Ward St., Newton Centre, and Vincent Vitale, 115 Franklin St., Newton, have been appointed as notaries public, State Secretary John F. X. Davoren has announced.

The terms of the notaries public will expire in seven years.

Police report

Ayer man charged with 'intent to murder'

A 30-year old Ayer man was charged with intent to murder early this week as a result of an alleged shooting incident at the Columbus Cafe, 398 Watertown St., Newton.

Reginald Gallant, 33 Atherton St., Ayer, was arrested Sunday and charged with intent to murder, assault by means of a dangerous weapon, and committing a felony with a firearm defaced.

Gallant was arraigned in Newton District Court on Tuesday and his case was continued to June 13. Watertown police have reportedly scheduled him for a separate arraignment on other charges in Waltham District Court.

Three shots were reportedly fired through a window of the Columbus Cafe Saturday night.

A breaking and entering at 32 Dwhinda Rd., Waban, was reported to Newton police late Monday afternoon. Entrance was reportedly gained by forcing an aluminum storm window and breaking a pane of glass.

The entire house was reportedly ransacked and reported missing was luggage, assorted men's and women's jewelry, a ruby bracelet valued at $300, a pearl necklace valued at $200, and several gold bracelets.

The break reportedly took place between 7 p.m. on Friday and 5:30 p.m. on Monday.

The South Pacific restaurant, 1152 Beacon St., Newton Highlands, reported two streakers early Tuesday morning. Two males and a female reportedly streaked and left in a black Cadillac.

A 15-year bicyclist from Newton Lower Falls was injured Tuesday when he had an accident with an automobile.

Scott Macomber, 63 Pierrepont Rd., was treated at Newton-Wellesley Hospital for minor injuries to the pelvic area back, according to police.

Stronger rape law

A bill designed to strengthen the law dealing with rape appears to be on its way to enactment on Beacon Hill.

Police and judicial officials report that rape not only was the violent crime which increased the most in Massachusetts last year but also is one of the crimes for which it is most difficult to obtain a conviction.

Matters boiled to a head recently when Superior Court Chief Justice Walter H. McLaughlin angrily dismissed a jury which had returned a not-guilty verdict that freed a defendant accused of rape.

A proposal endorsed by the legislative judiciary committee would reword the to archaic language in the resent rape laws to make it easier to prove rape and obtain and sustain a conviction.

Under the application of the existing laws a rape victim must convince a judge or jury that she did not consent willingly to aggression. If she has no bruises and no one heard her scream, it often is assumed she consented, and the rapist is acquitted.

Legislators point out that polije advise women to offer no resistance if they are attacked in order to avoid serious injury or even death. But when a woman follows the police advice, it becomes difficult to get a conviction in court, they add.

The proposed new law would make convictions possible if evidence were presented that a rape victim had been threatened with bodily harm by the rapist.

Statistics show that of 642 rape cases reported in Boston during the past two years only 56 cases were taken to court and 21 convictions were obtained. FBI experts estimate that only one in every five to ten rape cases is reported. Governor Sargent and the Legislature intend to make rape more risky for the rapist.

"Mr. Clean"

A political writer for one newspaper recently declared that one of the candidates for Governor has a "Mr. Clean" image.

To be perfectly fair about it, all four major contenders for the Governorship-Governor Francis W. Sargent, Attorney General Robert H. Quinn, former State Representative Michael Dukakis and former State Commerce Commissioner Carroll Sheehan qualify for the "Mr. Clean" description.

Mr. Sargent has come under the fire for the stands he has taken on such matters as the death penalty and prison furloughs.

Some observers believe that Quinn, as Attorney General, has been on the wrong side in certain controversies.

Dukakis, an ultra-liberal of the McGovern stamp, has been accused of straddling on the issue of busing children to reduce racial imbalance.

Sheehan, a smore conservative Republican than Governor Sargent, seemingly has no chance of defeating Sarge for the GOP nomination for Governor.

People of different political views may find fault with the particular brand of politics practised by Sargent or Quinn or Dukakis or Sheehan.

But there is no ground for challenging the character or questioning the integrity of any one of the four. On the basis of all the evidence available, all four are honest men.

That is one point on which we can agree before the campaign charges start flying.

Memorial Day

By CYNTHIA BLACK

Now tat Memorial Day is one of our wandering holidays, it seems to be getting harder to capture its spirit or achieve a unity in celebration.

This year, and rightly so, officials who spoke on Memorial Day placed special emphasis on ietnam veterans. They seem to be victims of the general distate that developed in this country for the Vietnam War while they were gone, and that, of course, is really silly.

It was therefore highly appropriate that the Newton Kiwanis Club cose to build its commemoration of Memorial Day around deceased Vietnam veteran James Rice.

James Rice, son of Kiwanian John Rice, was a Marine and a poet. He devoted much time while overseas to poetically exploring the reasons for wars and the elusive qualities of peace. He died two days before he was scheduled to come home. He was 21.

His poems were read aloud by Kiwanians at last Wednesday's meeting after James Rice was re alled by his father and his father's friends. It is not unusual to hear a father speak fondly or proudly of his children.

John Rice, however, added another dimension to his recollections. It is unusual to hear a father speak of his child with unlimited respect for that person as a human being, to hear a father say in essence "my son was a fine man," with no hint of assiming the credit.

Listening to John Rice, you understand, you feel his son was a fine man.

This Kiwanis program was unquestionably difficult to sit through. Mr. Rice's family was there and people who knew his son were there and I would assume most of the Kiwanians are veterans themselves.

"We don't live a day at a time, we live an hour at a time," James Rice observed from the DMZ. But the James Rice who was philosophically moved to explore the question of war was the same James Rice who scaled a sheer cliff in the dark for many nights running and perched on his dangerous hill, listened to Red Sox games on the radio.

Thank you, Mr. Rice and Kiwanis Club, for inviting me to this special meeting.

Saturday's Convention Will Be Cut-and-Dried

Saturday's unofficial Republican State Convention, the first of its kind since 1952, will be pretty much cut and dried. Perhaps the greatest interest will center on how the delegates react to the requirement that they pay a $10 admission charge to get into the convention hall.

Some of the more thrifty delegates may turn around and go home. Nothing is likely to happen at the conclave which would be worth $10 to participate in or observe.

The convention actions will give those endorsed only a psychological advantage for the September primary.

For the past two decades a convention endorsement automatically placed a candidate's name on the ballot, above the names of his opponents, with the notation that he had been endorsed by the party's convention.

Now that the pre-primary convention law has been repealed, the convention endorsement actually means nothing beyond its publicity advantage. The Democrats are not holding an unofficial convention. They will settle their fights in the primary on Sept. 10.

However, one factor, which could carry some weight in the September primary, is that the Republican voters have become accustomed to supporting the candidates tapped by their conventions.

That is why some political observers were surprised when Josiah A. Spaulding of Manchester decided to let the convention's endorsement for Attorney General go to William I. Cowin of Newton by default.

Spaulding has been an on-again-off-again candidate. But he is a strong contender. During a period when it appeared other commitments would prevent Spaulding from running for Attorney General, Cowin, former Deputy Governor and Secretary of Administration and Finance in Governor Sargent's Cabinet, sewed up the convention endorsement.

Rather than make a losing challenge against Cowin at the convention, Spaulding will bypass the conclave and carry his fight directly into the Sept. 10 Republican primary.

So will Attorney Charles Cabot of Dover, chairman of the State Advertising Board.

Cabot is not as well known as Spaulding or Cowin, and he probably will take more votes from Spaulding than from Cowin. But he will have an advantage over his two adversaries.

The names of the three Republican candidates for Attorney General will be listed alphabetically on the ballot, and Cabot will have top spot.

All the candidates for state-wide offices, including Governor Sargent, must obtain the valid signatures of at least 10,000 Republican or Independent voters in order to pave their names placed on the primary ballot.

That will be an easy chore for the powerful candidates such as Governor Sargent, Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight, Attorney General Robert Quinn and State Senator John M. Quinlan and a difficult undertaking for some others.

Children, obviously too young to solicit nomination signatures, have been going from house to house in quest of them, and this, of course, is a violation of the law.

Governor Sargent should crush former State Commerce Commissioner Carroll Sheehan on Saturday even though the convention will be largely an assembly of conservative Republicans.

Sarge should win by a margin of 4-1 or 5-1. It will be a bad omen for Governor Sargent if Sheehan gets more than 20 per cent of the delegate votes.

Republican State Committeeman Edward F. King of West Roxbury, who is no admirer of Governor Sargent, announced that a vote was taken recently at a meeting of area Republicans in Dedham and that the count was 48 for Sheehan, 13 for Sargent and 8 undecided.

That's incredible unless King himself was presiding at a meeting of relatives of Mr. Sheehan and himself. If the figures meant anything, Governor Sargent would be facing certain defeat in the coming election. Sarge did not appear to be that weak at the height of the gasoline shortage last winter.

King's figures gave Cowin 31 votes, Spaulding 23, Cabot 10, withhfive undecided.

In the contest for the Republican nomination for Secretary of State, Quinlan received 50 votes as compared to 14 for Ron Burton of Framingham, the former great running back for the Patriots.

The clash between Quinlan and Burton probably will highlight Saturday's convention, and Quinlan looms as an almost certain winner.

If the straw vote for Sargent and Sheehan at the Dedham meeting, really reflected the sentiment of Republican voters, a great upset and upheaval would be in the making on Saturday. But this writer has been able to find no evidence of it in the polls and surveys.

Foster Furcolo's Son Would-Be Giant-Killer

Charles Mark Furcolo of Cambridge, who learned his first political lessons at the knee of his famous father, former Governor Foster Furcolo, hopes to assume the role of political giant-killer in the Democratic primary next Sept. 10, which, incidentally, will be his 34th birthday.

He is challenging State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane, one of the strongest and most solidly entrenched public officials on Beacon Hill. To report that young Furcolo is an underdog in the contest is an under-statement.

Getting behind those promises

Commentary by Richard Dudman

Continual observation of the local political scene indicates that the single most important ingredient in providing substantial municipal services is good, solid middle management. When a community can hire capable department heads who are able to plan well and to lead the men under them, the community shines. It is these people who insure the stability and continuity of services across changing administrations. When this level of management deteriorates, so do the services.

Dedicated public servants tend to subordinate the self to a collectivized consciousness. It is this trait that seems to separate the nonpolitical, professional public servant from the plitician. The totally political animal tends to focus all action and activity upon himself. Nothing would ever happen but for the omnipresent I, I, I . . ., and me, me, me . . . Although there are exceptions, the I-me politician has little true understanding of growth over time and so he continually indulges in the expedient. This is a person who seldom matures as an administrator becuase he is unable to understand what proper planning is a s the first step in implementing programs that will stand the test of time, nor is he able to recognize the interdependency of people and agencies as necessary to this process. This coupled with no coherent approach or philosophy to the problems of growth and change is devastating. However, this individual does become adept at assessing how an action will affect his image. This individual is the politician-with-the-frail-ego.

When the politician-with-the-frail-ego gets elected to an executive or administrative position, the problems begin. The politician-with-the-frail-ego-turned-administrator is basically individually oriented. He only has belief or faith in his own individualism and begins to destroy that more important collectivized experience of middle management. "Everybody is incompetent but me. Why I . . . If it had not been for me, . . ." Before long the process works like a self-fulfilling prophecy. Because the department head is never right, he soon adppts the psychological and physiological self-preserving posture of withdrawing. Basically, if you are the only one who is competent, then you do it. Suggestions stop flowing and he soon does only that which he is directed to do. This , of course, helps the politician-turned-administrztor to justify his view of the public servant as incompetent, useless, etc.

A partial corrective to this condition resides in the hands of the voter. Most local campaigning is done by criticizing the present. It is never right! This is easy. It is simple to be critical, to tear apart what someone else has started, but it is difficult to be constructive. We never go the next step. We do not demand of our political-aspiring-to-be-administrator how he could or would do differently. We never force him to spell out his programs. Not to be confused with utterings like, "I promise to bring more responsive government . . ." As a result our election system automatically places the incumbent on the defensive while leaving the challenger on the offensive. We do not question the challenger's ability to lead and direct people or his ability to administrate. We must learn how to draw out the challenger's proactive programs. We must learn how to get behind his we,,-meaning rhetoric and force him to show why he should be elected, not just why the incumbent should be thrown out of office.

Mrs. Reichard proposed again that the PTA allotment be made six instead of eight. School Committee Chairwoman Eleanor Rosenblum accepted her proposal as an amendment, an in a rare close vote, it passed 5-4.

Mandell, Mrs. Reichard, School Committeeman Herbert Regal, Mrs. Needleman, and Mrs. Rosenblum voted in favor of the amendment.

The 5-4 vote was repeated when a final vote was taken on establishing an advisory committee.

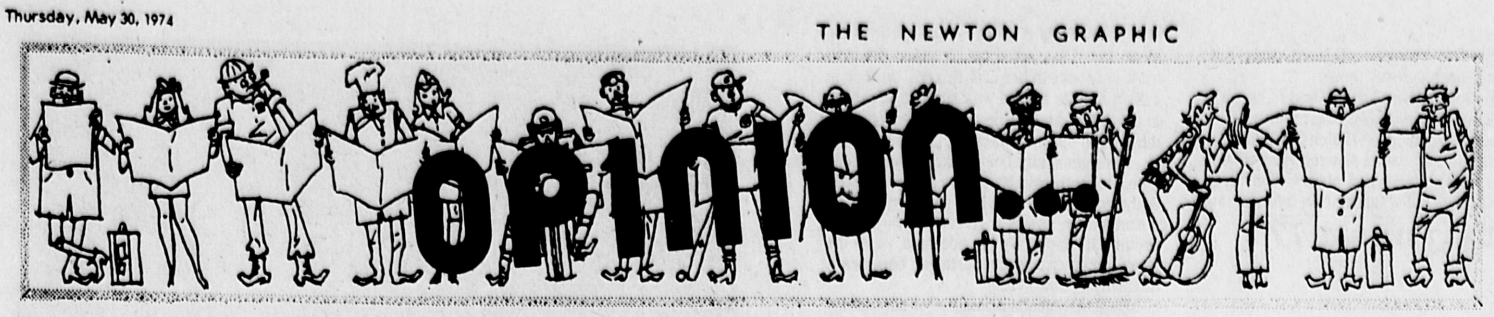

The committee's meetings are to be open to the public and it is supposed to consult with members of the community. The appointments are to be made by June 30, and the committee is to report to the School Committee by Jan. 1, 1975.

Fink has stated that no school will be closed in September, 1974.

The School Committee also heard a proposal from Fern Marx, after-school care facilitator of the Women's Co-operative Inc., requesting that the School Committee permit use of space at the Bowen, Memorial and Emerson Schools for after-school child care programs to befin in September, 1974.

The School Committee voted affirmatively to show willingness to offer space as requested, subject to specific proposals from parents' groups from the schools.

A second meeting has been scheduled for presentation and discussinon of the school enrollment study. It is slated for June 17.

Thoughts on school closings

To the Editor:

After attending the School Committee meeting along with many other parents of the Oak Hill community, my husband and I have come to the following conclusions:

1. At least four members of the committee, in spite of claims to the contrary, have already made up their minds to close the Oak Hill School along with others in this area.

2. There is friction between some members of the School Committee, and this, together with other political reasons, is the real cause of contemplating the closing of the schools in the south of Newton, not the microscopic saving of 30 cents per school on the tax rate.

3. Superintendent Fink does not understand the real problems or how to solve them.

In the first instance, all the members of the committee had claimed throughout the evening that no decision had yet been reached to close the Oak Hill and other shcools in the south side nor would one be made that evening. However, at no time was one word said by any member of the committee in favor of letting the schools remain open. Most of the talk cited a declining birth rate as the sole reason for closing the schools and this was purely guesswork.

Second, when Mayor Mann was asked what the effect on the tax rate would be if one school were closed and he replied "30 cents", he was accused by Mr. Beckwith of playing on the emotions of the audience. Mr Beckwith pointed out that the City of Newton is faced with a rise in tax rate of $12 in the schools alone, but I wonder how much consolation it is to a taxpayer to get his bill and find the raise is only $11.70 and the result is the upheaval of a community.

Third, when it was mentioned that the schools on the south side of Newton now enjoy a low student-to-teacher ratio, Superintendent Fink dramatically stated, "I am in favor of low student-teacher ratios but not just in the sout of Newton. I am in favor of low student-teacher ratio over the entire city of Newton!"

What Mr. Fink fails to point out is how the closing of schools in the south of Newton can possibly lower the student-teacher ratio in the north, when in fact the opposite would be true.

This can only be constructed to mean that because the north cannot benefit, the south won't be allowed to either. This is further evident from the negligible amount of money it will save. In addition, it's a mystery why Mr. Fink says that busing will not be required for those children who attend Oak Hill School, when the nearest school is the Spaulding, which is also under consideration for closing in 1974. This would leave the children with more than a mile and a quarter to travel.

Finally, one is led to believe from all of this that the motives of the School Committee are not financial but political. In reality, they are merely attempting to make themselves look good in the face of a rising tax rate at the expense of the children who will be deprived of a school that has so much to offer socially and educationally.

The voters of the Oak Hill community will no doubt remember the School Committee's actions when the next elections come around.

Children help a cause

Dear Editor:

In an age of much violence, it is refreshing to read of children who put their spare time to good use—helping a well known, worthwhile cause.

Several neighborhood children, my own included, through no coaxing on my part, as a matter of fact, wholly their own idea, decided to make a carnival to benefit cancer research.

Meeting every night for four weeks, children ages 8-12 put their heads together and came up with the ideas for games, raffles, refreshments.

Their only advertising was through their school newspaper which ran the announcement for two consecutive weeks. The date set was May 25, from 1-4 p.m. A local toy distributor, Berger-Samuels in Newton donated prizes and a candy firm in Cambridge donated penny candy.

The Saturday morning dawned cloudy, but their spirits were not dampened. Like an army of ants, these youngsters swarmed over the front lawn of 21 Littlefield road, Newton, the home of Stacey and Debby Mann..-setting up tables chairs, refreshments, etc.

I could hardly believe my eyes. Cars kept driving into the street. Mothers with three and four children clinging on to them stepped up to the ticket booth. Obviously things were quite under control.

The skies darkened several times, but I really do not think anyone noticed. Finally at 4 p.m., the tables were folded, chairs started to move back to their owners homes, and in marched the tally holder through my front door — $70 in three hours.

The results were so rewarding that I strongly believe another fund raising project will be underway soon.

I hope you can print this...I feel it is an inspiration to youngsters in other communities and with school almost over, I think it will be beneficial.

Thank you for your consideration.

Nannette Fay

Upset with tennis rules

To the editor:

I am upset with the tennis rules of Newton.

The rules, as you probably know, are that adults over 16 have preference over people under 16 on weekends an on weekdays after 5 p.m. to use the courts.

Although people under 16 can play on a court with someone over 16 with preference, some children don't have older brothers or sisters that play and their parents don't play, and then it is hard for children like that to get a court at prime times.

I feel that they should not discouarage children learning the game of tennis.

Feldman extolled

Dear Editor:

In the sudden passing of the late Saul Sherman Feldman our community has lost a citizen who quietly but generously gave of himself for the good of others.

Those of us who served with him on Local Draft Board 117 recognized him as a compassionate man, honest and fair in his judgment. As the government appeal agent his was a beneficient influence that has affected the lives of many young men in our community. Our own lives were enriched by our association with him.

Mothers' opinion strong on schools

To the Editor:

The Oak Hill School mothers who attended the School Committee meeting concerning the closing of a school due to declining enrollment will note that it was Mrs. Dorothy Reichard who made a motion to consider alternatives to closing a school and Dr. Joan Needleman who seconded it, after which the motion was amended and diluted by Superintendent Aaron Fink and the other male members of the Committee, and that should fe reason enough for us to work to see a majority of women on the School Committee and in all our elective offices.

Let us put our male members of the School Committee in particular, and all male elected Newton officials in general, on notice that this is an issue about which we women, the childrens' chauffeurs and the parents primarily responsible for their day-to-day activities and safety, feel very, very strongly.

The School Committee is an elected body whose members sit at the will of the electroate. Its decision to discuss the closing of Angier School as an example, rather than Oak Hill, was unfortunate in that it was not responsive to our presence.

Putting all the loftier issues concerning school closings aside for the moment (larger student-teacher ratio, loss of music and art rooms, etc.) no matter what the official policy is on buses, we mothers know very well that a first-grader cannot walk one and one eighth miles to school each day along snow-covered sidewalks crossing such streets as Greenwood, Hartmen, Dedham and Parker. Nor is it easy to petition successfully for a school crossing guard.

The conclusion that no present Oak Hill School students would require busing to other schools is also spurious. As a matter of fact, the next closest school to my home is Spaulding, and children who live a matter of footsteps from my home, and now attend Spaulding, are bused.

It is difficult to understand Dr. Silluzio's conclusion that it is sounder to displace 308 children to schools in what would be to them outlying areas than to close a school with 192 children because that school is in an outlying area. Nor the conclusion that it is sounder to close a school that is 142 students under capacity than to close a school that is 344 students under capacity.

I disagree with Mr. Beckwith who said that the decision to close a school is for the Committee to make. This is an issue for all of Newton, because while it may be one school involved now on the south side it will be anotherschool in another part of town later. Interestingly, the City of Newton has listed proximity to school as a factor to be considered in revaluation. Perhaps this is an issue for referendum concerning the way in which all of us in Newton want to meet the problem of declining school enrollment. If any other city use of a school building is made the tax saving is diminished. Therefore, the building must be either closed and left to vandals or razed. The ultimate irony would be to raze the building, develop the land, increase the school age population and need a new school.

Thirty cents on the tax rate, the saving Mayor Mann reports would result from closing Oak Hill School, is perhaps the amount we may want to choose to pay as insurance against a very unfortunate School Committee decision.

Police 'efficient, helpful, thorough'

(Editor's note: This letter was sent to Police Chief William F. Quinn with a copy to the Newton Graphic.)

Dear Chief Quinn:

I think far too many people take their police departments for granted and expect, without really giving it any second thoughts, superior service.

I want you to know how grateful and appreciative I am to you and the entire Newton Police Department for the superlative performance which was demonstrated on Monday evening, May 13, when my wife, who suffered a brain injury a few years ago as a result of an accident, developed a seizure of some sort at our home.

I dialed the Emergency 911 number and within moments, three police cars converged upon my home, began administering oxygen and quickly and efficiently moved my wife to Newton-Wellesley Hospital where she was immediately seen and treated by the hospital personnel.

I do not know the names of the officers involved, but I am sure the records will indicate who they are and I would like through you, to thank and commend them for their courtesy and helpfulness. I recognize that a police department does not perform in this manner without leadership and a viable program; and I extend to you and to all of the other command officers of the Newton Police Department my thanks for establishing and maintaining an elite organization.

I am sending a copy of this letter to Mayor Mann for his information; and I intend to call public attention to this event, although I am sure it is duplicated many times each day, by sending a copy of this letter to the Newton Graphic.

Immediate response

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to Fire Chief Frederick Perkins with a copy to the Newton Graphic.)

Dear Chief Perkins:

Once again I have personally observed the excellent work of our city's Fire Department.

The immediate response to the call to Brae Burn on May 8, and the quick action taken certainly held water damage from the sprinkler system to the very minimum. We are indeed fortunate to have the protection which your department provides our City of Newton. My sincere thanks to you and the firemen for a job well done.

Housing Authority for housing, reserving the large remaining portion for conservation and recreation.

Egelson believes that the total cost of the housing on Beaconwood Road is too high—about $60,000 per unit, he said—and would rather help the Housing Authority to buy and rehabilitate existing housing.

"I don't think we're going to spend $150,000 more than once," Egelson said.

"Why not?" asked Jason Sacks.

"How many $150,000s are you going to spend?" Egelson rejoined.

Sacks answered, "How much housing do you want?"

Egelson requested a public hearing for the Staniford Street neighborhood to get their opinions, but was not supported by other members of the committee.

If the Beachwood Road property is abandoned for NHA housing, the other two properties on which the Authority plans to build will be in trouble, since they are tied together. Permissive use will not be granted on the Thurston Road and Victory Field sites until the Housing Authority has ownership of the Beaconwood Road land.

housing Authority Chairman James Miller minimized the legal problem with the Beaconwod Road land, pointing out that the Authority is operating under instructions from the DCA.

City Solicitor Howard Levine this week said that the Housing Authority and the city will probably appeal the adverse ruling on the subdivision plan of the Housing Authority. Levine believes that under the statutes the NHA had to obtain Planning Board approval in order to obtain DCA approval of the site.

The DCA has authorized the taking of the Beaconwood Road land by eminent domain, and the Housing Authority is proceeding with landtaking.

In Finance Committee, Ald. Sacks, Thomas Concannon and Wendell Bauckman were in favor of the $150,000 appropriation, Egelson was opposed, and Joan Saklad and Richard Bullwinkle abstained from voting because of lack of detailed information on how the $150,000 would be spent.

The request will probably be voted on at the June 3 meeting of the full Board of Aldermen.

bing, from 532 in 1972 to 554 in 1974.

When the school was built in 1924, Samuels said, the enrollment was 400-450 students.

On the question of parking and the possibility of city acquisition of land for it, as well as the dearth of outdoor recreation space for the school, Anton Pruckner, chairman of the Newton Corner Citizens Committee, reported that a canvass of the neighborhood found "almost unanimous agreement" with the plans for the school, but most people do not want to see any park land taken for school use, and "parking is on the back burner."

Ald. Susan Schur asked School Committeeman Herbert Regal whether the School Committee had ever considered amending the educational specifications (the space and use requirements) "to take care of parking."

Regal replied, "No consideration."

One resident of Hollis Street asked whether there would be windows—"so it won't look like the new high school."

The answer given by Larson was that architectural details would come later, during the design development stage of the plans.

Bees

good shake," he reports, since the bees frequently cling to one another.

To facilitate capture, Delicata may spray the bees with a sugar solution which will dampen their wings. While they are cleaning themselves, they may be off-guard, and a jolt of their branch can get them.

The captured bees he may add to his own stock. Hornets' nesta are exterminated.

Another sidelight of Delicata's hobby is teaching. He has visited Newton elementary schools with a glass-sided observation hive.

Delicata is full of fascinating information about bees. For example, a queen bee will mate only once in her life. This will be done in a 15-20 minute period with eight to 10 drones at once. A queen bee may lay 1500 eggs a day during the summer months.

Bees generally belong exclusively to one hive. Delicata said that there are guard bees at the entrance to each hive which will not let a stranger in unless it gives the guard some nectar. If the bribe is accepted, and the strange bee enters, the stranger becomes a member of the hive.

Delicata spends a bout five or six hours a week taking care of his hives. One thing he has to do is check for sickness. He has had to destroy one hive because it was sick.

Delicata wears a mask over his face when he examines the bees, but no gloves. He does not want to be stung in the face. He says that people can develop and lose an immunity to stings. Presently, he gets no swelling when he is stung, just some discomfort.

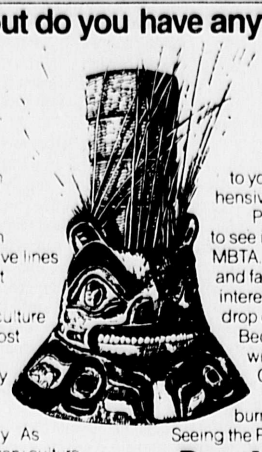

The mood of a bee may depend on the time of day and weather. A bee is most likely to be in a bad mood in bad weather and in the evening.

On a nice day, 25 per cent of a hive's bees may be outside. Most of the bees have to stay inside to maintain the temperature of the hive. Bees need a brood temperature of 92 degrees.

Delicata provided his own epithet while talking about himself.

"You might say I got stung by the bees."

"I like the style, but do you have anything in a size 7?"

The Tlingit Indians design things with a flair.

They were builders of the largest forest houses in North America. Creators of extensive lines of trade throughout southeast Alaska.

The Tlingit's remarkable culture has survived as one of the most complex in North America.

Now at Harvard's Peabody Museum is an extraordinary exhibit which portrays the Tlingit's life style as it is today. As a living, evolving, contemporary culture.

The Peabody Museum also holds other treasures from around the world. It's open to you as one of the most comprehensive museums in America.

People come from long distances to see it. You have only to get on the MBTA. So that while you, your friends and family are seeing something truly interesting, you don't have to burn a drop of gas doing it.

Because the energy shortage is still with us, the Prudential Insurance Company thinks there are better things to do this weekend than burning a tankful of gasoline. Seeing the Peabody Museum is one of them.

Mrs. Antonio Gentile of Nonantum was an honored guest recently at the rededication of the war memorial at Post 440. A plaque honoring her son, John L. Gentile, was unveiled. Shown with her are Jerry Marrocco (left), executive board member; and Roger Marrrocco (right), past commander. (Lupo photo)

Post 440 rededicates memorial

Solemn ceremonies marked the recent rededication of the War Dead Memorial at Post American Legion Post 440.

Post officers, friends and city officials attended the ceremony May 19. Among those present were Ald. Eliot K. Cohen, president of the Board of Aldermen, and Ald. Andrew Magni and Michael Antonellis, Annino Gentile, president of the St. Mary of Carmen Society; John Webber, representing the Sons of Italy; Anthony Pellegrini and Dominic Bianchi, representing the Nonantum Chiristmas Party Association.

The redecorating of the memorial was recently completed under the direction of Roger Marrocco, a commandec. He has been the keeper of the memorial since its inception more than 20 years ago and was assisted by Nicholas Gentile, Patrick Panaggio and John MacDonald.

Marrocco acted as master of ceremonies and gave a short talk on the background of the deceased veterans. Ald. Magni spoke on his recollections of his brother, Robert, kiiled in World War II.

Ald. Cohen gave the main address, extolling the virtues of the Nontum war dead and their dedication to the cause of world peace.

Flowers and wreaths were presented and a roll call of the war dead was read by Panaggio, Thomas Desmond and David Berkley.

The family of the late John L. Gentile, killed in action in World War II, was present for the unveiling of a plaque in his memory. Family members present included his mother, Mrs. Antonio Gentile of Nonantum. Commander-elect Thomas Sahetti did the unveiling.

Final prayers ending the ceremony were offered by Jerry Marrocco.

Land swap-

Obstacles to a complete pathway include land occupied by private residences and businesses along the river.

Giezentanner said that there are presently 35 private residences with river frontage (not including those on the Islington peninsula in Auburndale). He proposed that as a long-range policy, the city should consider acquiring these properties when they become available. For the time being, hikers can circumvent these pieces of land by going around them on roadways.

There are also about 35 businesses on the river in Newton. Giezentanner suggested that the parking lots of some of these businesses could be moved back so there would be a little more river edge

Charles River Country Club is another possible obstacle to a complete pathway system. Giezentanner said the golf courses might be granted preferential tax treatment in exchange for public access or development rights to their land.

Giezentanner said that Newton and the MDC ought to acquire the Norumbega Park site in Auburndale. Mrs. O'Brien responded that "I think it would be hard to get the MDC to take a strong initiative. There would have to a strong sense out of the city to get it started."

Multi-service center-for the purchase from Filene's, churches, private citizens and small companies. However, if they are successful in this venture, they will have to launch a fund-raising campaign.

The center's 1973 operating budget was $100,000. Forty-three per cent of that money came from Newton; 32 per cent from Wellesley and 6.5 per cent from Weston. The State Department of Mental Health grants 10 per cent of the money and some money comes in from a small grant from the Office of Children. The center has a paid staff of six adults and five high school students who work part time and 60-70 volunteers.

Over 3800 clients have been serviced since the center opened in April 1971. Miss Kaufman said 60-70 per cent of the youngsters seen are female. The center grew "out of the concern that teens had problems and had no place to go."

In addition to other services a medical clinic is open three evenings for two or three hours. Youngsters are seen by physicians who volunteer regularly for such emergency medical concerns as treatment of venereal disease, diagnosis of pregnancy and contraceptive information.

A hearing will be held June 10 before the aldermanic Land Use Committee to determine whether or not the center gets a zoning variance to allow them to purchase the home.

Changes in state revenue formulas could save Newton $1.4 million

Newton would save $1.4 million in the 1974-75 fiscal year and another $1.2 million in the 1975-76 fiscal year according to Rep. Lois Pines, if the legislature adopts the Taxation Committee's report on H. 6100.

The bill incorporates Pines' county-tax-reform bill and recommends an overhaul of many of the formulas used to distribute state revenues and to assess certain expenses to cities and towns.

The major formula change will affect the manner in which cities and towns are assessed for the cost of operating county government. Under the present formula, assessments are based 75 per cent on 1945 property values and 25 per cent on 1961 values, thus forcing older communities to bear a disproportionate amount of the cost of county government.

Pines' bill last year (this is the fourth year of filing) passed the House but was killed in the Senate in an extremely close vote.

Other proposed changes include:

1. The correction of a legislative drafting error that occurred in 1971 with respect to the highway formula.

2. The repeal of the machinery tax distribution which has been in effect since 1935.

3. The change in the method of reimbursement for state-owned lands (Newton has none and is, thus, unaffected by this change) necessitated by a court interpretation of the existing statute:

4. The acceleration of the payments of highway and local aid (beano and Lottery) in order that these payments be made to cities and towns semi-annually rather than annually as is presently the case.

5. The increase in school aid to all districts not now in a regional school system (effective for the 1975-76 fiscal year).

6. The redistribution, on the basis of Chapter 70 school aid, of the machinery distribution and the funds from the change in the state-owned lands formula.

The school building construction assistance formula would also be substantially changed, effective July, 1975. The new formula would change the incentive for the construction of regional schools by granting a higher percentage to regional schools with all grades, kindergarten through 12, than to regional schools with less than all grades. In addition, reimbursement would be based on the valuation percentage under Chapter 70, thereby reducing the amount of school aid construction funds that would be available to Newton for school construction after July 1, 1935.

Rep. Pines commented, "The Taxation Committee, of which I am a member, has learned through bitter experience that inequitable formulas cannot be changed piecemeal because of the political problems some legislators feel might result from voting for a change that is equitable but detrimental to his own community. We've added enough incentives in this package to permit us to be optimistic about its passage. This bill is critical to Newton and would mean an approximate $3.75 savings on the tax rate. If the bill is passed new cherry sheets will be sent out and the savings would be reflected in the 1974-75 fiscal year."

Smith steps down as YMCA president

Charles E. Smith stepped down as president and received two awards at the 97th annual meeting of the Newton Yca last week at the "Y" in Newton Corner.

President since 1967, Smith received the annual service award and the National YMCA's president's plaque from Executive Director Chester L. Mosher. On the board of directors for the past 22 years, Smith was cited for his "vision, leadership and inspiration."

At the board of directors meeting following the annual meeting, Robert G. Hennemuth of Wellesley was elected president. Hennemuth, vice president for industrial relations of Raytheon Company, was vice president of the "Y" last year. Elected vice president was Cooper Eastman, a past holder of that office.

Elected as clerk and treasurer were Eldred M. Peterson and Sidney A. Marston, respectively.

New members of the board of directors elected at the annual meeting included Murray Both, Nathan D. Bugbee, Mrs. Dwight Colburn, Mrs. Fred Hawkins, Jack C. Hoover, Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Willoughby M. Marshall, Bertram Martinson, Howard P. Strum, Lawrence L. Suttenberg, William Funk, and Lewis M. Sherer, Jr.

Elected as trustees for four years were Eastman and Champe A. Fisher.

Special presentations of lifetime "Y" memberships were made to eight men who have been members of the association for at least 50 years.

Those honored were Frank A. Day, Jr., Edward A. Fahey, William B. Graham, William Jacobs, Felix Leonard, Joseph Murphy, Eldred M. Peterson, and Clayton Stone, Jr.

During the business portion of the meeting Mrs. Emerson Sylvester, president of the women's auxiliary, presented the "Y" with a check for camp scholarships, and three proposed changes to the constitution and by-laws were acted upon.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. Oscar A. Guinn who spoke on the subject "The Family in a Changing Day.' Pianist David Keyes closed the meeting with a rendition of Mendelsohn's "Scherzo and Caprice."

Lead screening at schools on June 4

An open lead screening for any child age one to six will be conducted June 4 from 9 to 11:30 a.m. at the Memorial School, Stein Circle, Newton Centre. All young children in Newton are eligible for the simple finger prick test.

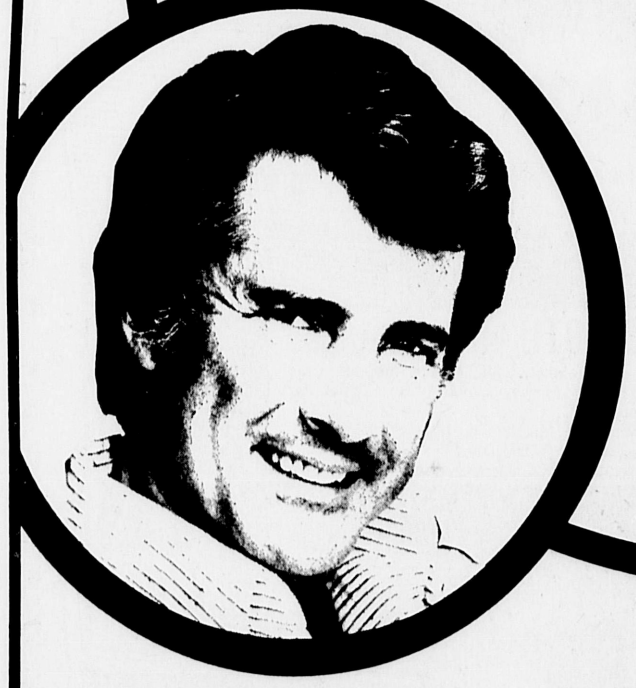

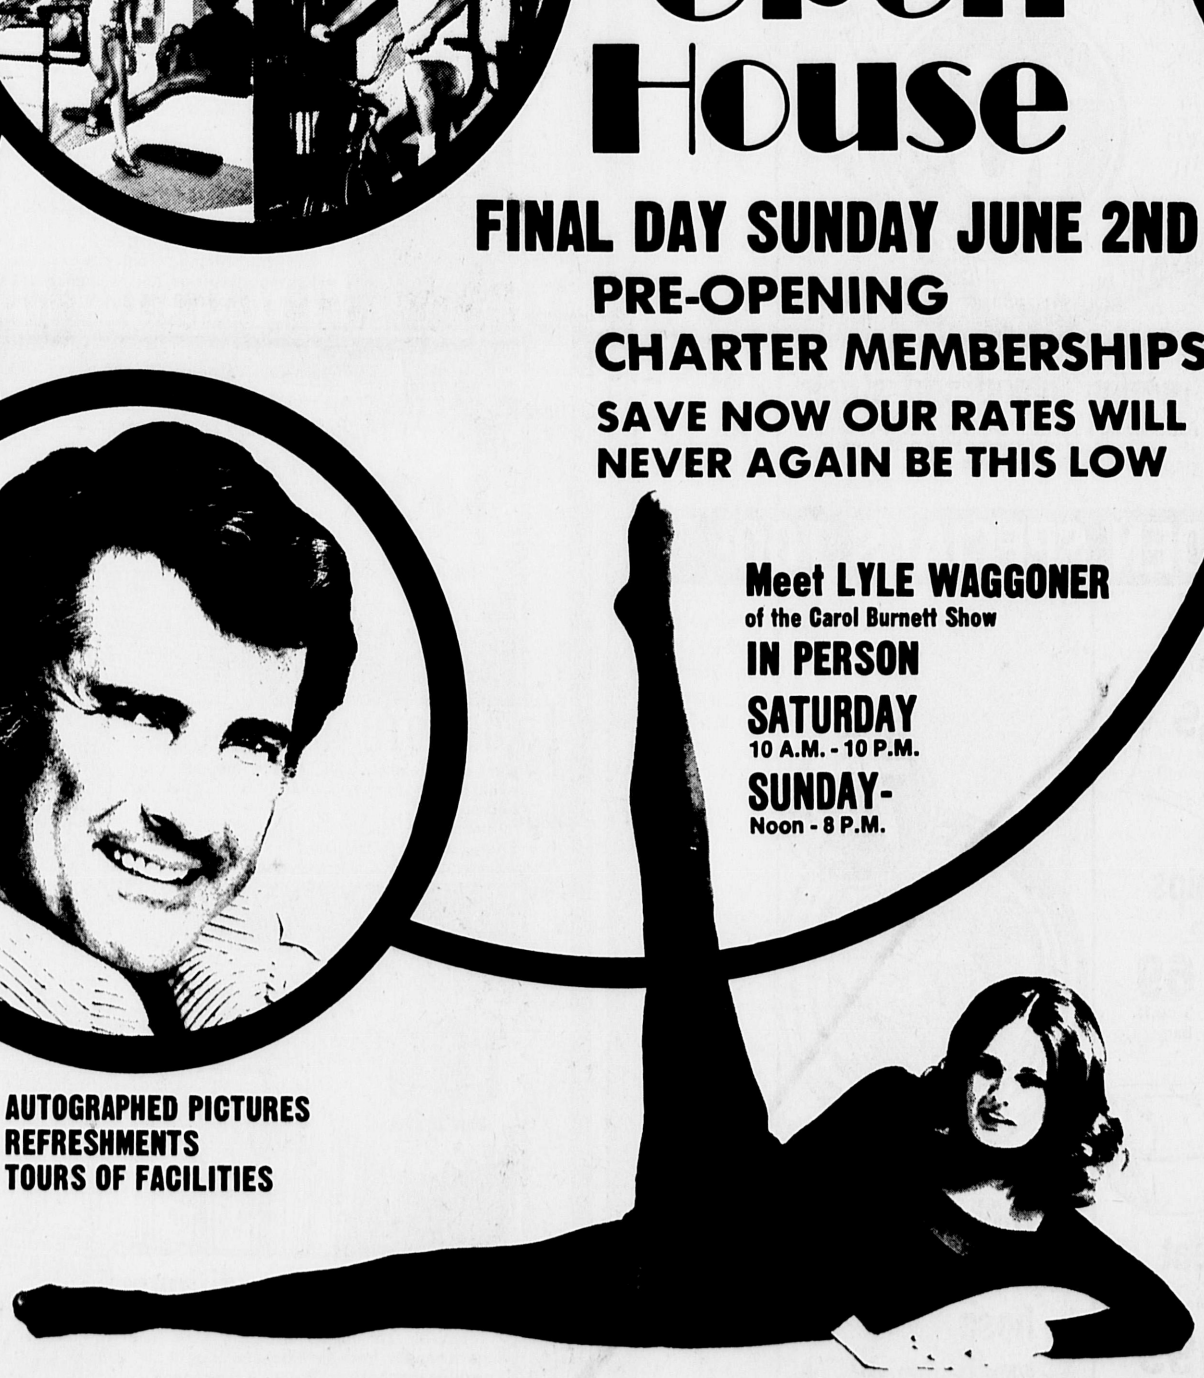

Conducted by Newton-Wellesley Hospital laboratory staff under the supervision of John M. Cohen, M.D., chief of pediatrics, and Mrs. Irene Lamb, R.N., pediatric practitioner, the test is aimed at determining if a youngster has an elevated blood lead level.

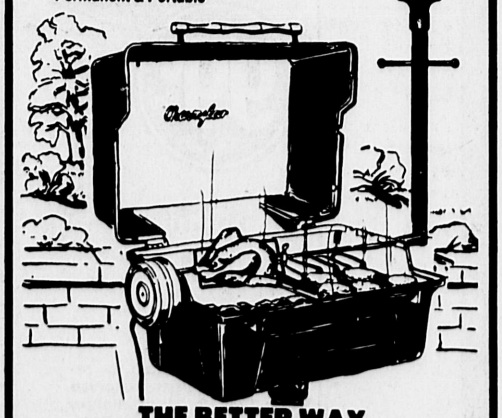

In addition to the screenings at Memorial School, children under six who attend the Oak Hill School, 133 Wheeler Road, Newton Centre and Spaulding School, 250 Brookline Street, Newton Centre, will be tested in their respective schools on June 4.

Although lead paint is the primary source of lead poisoning, other factors may contribute to elevated lead levels, including improperly glazed pottery, brightly colored magazine pictures and dirt in which children play outdoors.

Newton-Wellesley's lead screenings have tested nearly 1,900 children since the program began last fall. For further information, people may contact Mrs. Irene Lamb in the pediatric outpatient department at 244-2800, ext. 380.

Know the capacity of your boat and don't exceed it, no matter if they are all your friends. Overloading is a prime cause of capsizing and fatality. What you do load (including people), do so to keep the weight distributed evenly, low and in the center of the boat. Do not stand in a small boat more than necessary, and then only with extreme care.

Emanuel M. Gilbert, right, of Newton, presents special citation to Superior Court Judge Reuben L. Lurie on his election as honorary president for life of Ford Hall Forum, with which he has been closely identified for more than three decades. At left is Louis P. Smith of Brookline, honorary treasurer. Judge Lurie was feted at a Harvard Club dinner by the board of directors in whose behalf the presentation was made by Gilbert, a public relations consultant of Newton, who has served as moderator of the Forum for more than six years.

It's that time again

By MARK Bourbeau
Coast Guard Journalist

In spring a young man's (and woman's!) fancy turns to thoughts of . . . boating! Which is great. For those caught up in the magic of the sea, each afternoon afloat becomes a special, deeply personal adventure, each voyage a universe unto itself, a universe of timelessness and all enduring beauty.

But sadly, all too many boaters have the wonderment of their experience shattered by tragedy. Over 1400 people die each year in boating mishaps, most of them through ignorance or carelessness.

By taking the time to make a few important considerations, you can insure that this won't happen to you.

First, know your boat. All boats handle differently. Many accidents happen to experienced boaters who were using boats with which they were unfamiliar.

Once you are sure you know enough about your boat, you can make plans to use it. Do exactly that. Plan. Check the weather. A peace-instilling cruise can turn miserable if you're lost in the fog, or if a gale blows up.

Then, after you've heard from the Weather Service that it's great sailing, prepare your boat. Make sure you have enough fuel for your intended trip, plus a safety margin. When fueling, be extremely careful. Fill portable fuel tanks on the dock. Close all ports and hatches when fueling onboard tanks, and then open them when fueling is completed. Keep the nozzle of the hose in contact with the fuel fill. Wipe up all spills immediately.

Next, check all your equipment. Be sure everything is in good working order. For boats under 16 feet in length, and all canoes and Kayaks, you must have either a Type I, II, III, or IV PFD (Personal Flotation Device) on board for each person. For all boats over 16 feet, you must have a Type I, II, or III PFD for each person, and in addition must have onte Type IV PFD on board. Types I, II and III are wearable devices. Type IV is a throwable device, such as a buoyant cushion or life ring. All PFD's must be readily accessible, of a size to fit the person for which they are intended, and must be marked Coast Guard Approved.

Fire extinguishers are also required on all motorboats that have permanently installed fuel tanks, or closed compartments under thwarts or seats wherein portable fuel tanks may be stored, or double bottoms not sealed to the hull, or closed living spaces or compartments that might hold or trap flammable gasses or liquids. All fire extinguishers must be Coast Guard Approved, fully charged, in good working order, and readily accessible. Make sure you have the right type for your boat. Outboard boats under 26 feet that are so constructed so as not to entrap gasses need not have an extinguisher. All other motorboats under 26 feet must have one Class B-1 extinguisher. All motorboats 26 to 40 feet must have two class B-I extinguishers, or one Class B-II extinguisher.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening: a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparalleled sound sensation crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation

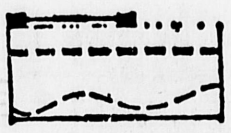

1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button

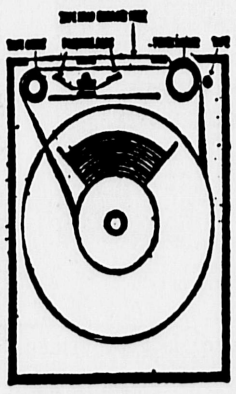

3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes

How does a tape cartridge work? Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash

Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Across the Kitchen Counter

by Ruth Lenson

Only a deep love of the Pennsylvania Dutch country and its gentle people could have prompted me to leave my home at ten o'clock in the evening to meet and interview tenth generation Lancaster Mennonite, Betty Groff, author of a new cookbook, "Good Earth Country Cooking."

The late hour was necessary because this busy mother-wife-cook-restaurant owner-author was on a whirlwind publicity tour visiting Jordan Marsh suburban stores, demonstrating some of her delicious recipes. After just a few minutes of speaking with Betty, you have the feeling that she's the kind of person you'd love to have living next door—warm, with an easy going happy manner.

The Groffs, Betty, Abe and their two sons, Charlie and Johnny, live in the home the couple moved to after their marriage 18 years ago. A beautiful fieldstone farmhouse built in 1756, located in the quiet rural town of Mount Joy, Pennsylvania.

At the time of the interview Betty is amazingly relaxed though she's been through a tiring day of lecturing and television appearances. She enjoys speaking about her Mennonite background—of the warmth and protectiveness she experienced growing up in a family with strong religious and moral beliefs.

"We probably lived in the earliest successful commune," she laughed. "It has always been the custom that the youngest son inherits the house and so my father, who was the oldest son, had a new farmhouse built for him on the large farm. But we would always eat as a family with aunts, cousins, hired hands, in the old farmhouse and then our family would go home to sleep in the new house. There were never fewer than 12 around the table."

Betty smiles as she recalls, "All the women in our family, both on my mother's as well as my father's side were excellent cooks, each with her specialty. This was because they prepared good wholesome dishes cooking from scratch using nothing but fresh produce and meats."

No novice in the kitchen even as a bride, Betty's contribution to food preparation began in earnest at the age of 9 when she was a 4-H member. She learned how to prepare macaroni and cheese and the results were so expert she was asked to cook the dish every Saturday night for supper.

When asked how a shy country girl got into the restaurant business Betty's impulsive answer was, "Because I love people!" And then the story is told.

"When Abe and I were married, we had a really large wedding. The guest list was around 500 . . . so big we had to divide the guests into two groups and hold two different receptions. It's the Mennonite custom to have a full course sit-down wedding reception. First we had a gathering for about 250 to 275 of my friends and relatives; then, after we arrived back home from our honeymoon, we held another reception for Abe's side of the family.

"Within the year," said Betty, "all the aunts and cousins invited us to their homes for dinner and then it was our turn to entertain them (yes, all of them). It took about two years for us to get around to all our family and friends.

"This, by the way, is a great method of getting to know your inlaws and their family. Believe me," she added, "after you've served that many friends and relatives, you find out if you're really as good a cook as you thought you were! I received many compliments because my food was very well done and people suggested I do something along the food line."

Turning her home into a restaurant was quite accidental. Bored with doing secretarial work on a farm, Betty was unhappy because she wanted to meet and be with people. When she heard there was a need for a Mennonite girl to cook for elite bus groups, she reasoned that after cooking for 32 uncles and aunts at a sitting she could certainly cook for bus groups.

The first such group was from the Internal Revenue people from Washington, D.C. The second group was from Norwich, Connecticut, and from then on through word of mouth the restaurant kept growing though they have never advertised.

The Groff farmhouse was large enough to accommodate 42 people; however, after moving the library upstairs they are now able to serve up to 120 on a Saturday night — on Wednesday (Colonial night) they limit guests to 50. The average number of guests on a week night is around 60. Open Tuesday through Saturday reservations are necessary. Saturday night reservations are often made six to eight weeks in advance.

"We became the Groff Farm Restaurant formally in 1961," said Betty. "By 1965 Craig Claiborne dined here and then wrote about us in the New York Times. Then James Beard also wrote about us quite flatteringly. Now we've entertained people from every country in the world. The last unusual group was the 18 engineers from China.

What makes Pennsylvania Dutch cooking so special? Betty explains: "Everything is made fresh. Bread is made daily in our kitchen. Fresh vegetables are brought in every day and we serve the finest prime ribs of beef and home cured ham.

"The most famous dish is the Cracker Pudding and the chocolate cake is also very popular. All the recipes are in the cookbook as well as menus." Betty smiles and shakes her head, "You wouldn't think a person would be able to "do" all the food on the menu, but everybody seems to consume and enjoy it all very very much.

"Probably the most requested dish is Chicken Stoltzfus. It's named after an Amish friend, a carpenter, who was building our barn when we needed a name for a new chicken dish. Actually, it's a combination of the Mennonite method of serving it. Our method was to use a rich patty shell and pour the creamed chicken into it. The Amish, however, would use a biscuit type dough and cut it into little squares so we made the dough richer and prepared it the Amish way and named it after our friend. As soon as the cookbook was printed, we brought him a copy and the next day his wife served him his very own dish — and he ate four helpings!"

The traditional seven sweets and seven sours are merely a "gimmick" according to Betty. "This came about," she explained, "when people came to the Pennsylvania Dutch country and the only way they could tell the difference between our kind of food and others was the fact that we served so many sweets and sours.

"At our restaurant we serve around fourteen varieties because certain foods just go with certain relishes. For example: pepper relish goes with chicken and chow chow goes with meats and spiced cantaloupe goes with prime rib."

Betty still manages to prepare all the pies on Saturday. Sixteen year old son Charlie does the puddings when he's home from school and 12 year old Johnnie runs the dishwasher but is looking forward to the day when he'll graduate to cooking.

"My husband Abe deserves a lot of credit," said Betty. "He gave up the dairy and most of the farming to manage the restaurant and has done an excellent job. We grow our own corn and even now, as we are speaking, because we have lights on the tractor, Abe is out planting the last of the corn which we'll later blanch and freeze for use all year round."

Betty claims that it was James Beard who convinced her to write a cookbook. "In 1967 he told me I would do the world a favor if I would write about my regional cooking, and I told him that some day I would do it. My dream was to get a really good writer to collaborate with me and that's just what happened. I met Jose (Josie) Wilson, an English born writer who did the Time-Life Foods of the World series as well as being Food Editor of House & Gardens magazine for fifteen years. She deserves a lot of credit for the book. Though I compiled and tested the recipes, she made it a personal book as though I had done the whole thing myself."

Laboring over the book for two and one-half years, Betty would take her tape recorder and visit her aunts (many of them far along in age, up to 87) and was given instructions like: "A handful of this . . . a pinch of that . . . when it gets ready or feels right." She would then take the tapes back to her kitchen, break down the recipes to serve six and as she cooked she recorded her success on tapes. The transcribed tapes were then sent to Jose who was able to set the mood as well as flavor of generations of honest home cooking.

Soon to appear in Atlanta, Washington, Atlantic City, New York, Chicago and the Dinah Shore show in the fall, Betty Groff's sincerity is touchingly honest as she smiles and says, "Abe and I are not going to change . . . we're not going to enlarge the restaurant because we want to keep it small and personal. We meet the people in the restaurant every night and they become good friends. We're having such a marvelous time!"

My suggestion is if you're planning a trip to the Pennsylvania Dutch country, do make reservations ahead of time and dine at the Groff Farm. Meet this remarkable couple and enjoy their hospitality and good food. If a trip is not in the offing, treat yourself to this beautifully written narrative style cookbook published by Stackpole Books, Harrisburg, Pa., 253 pp., $8.95, available at Jordan Marsh and other leading book stores. As the saying goes, "Discover what good is."

Following are recipes from Betty Groff's "Good Earth and Country Cooking":

SHOOFLY CRUMB CAKE

4 cups flour
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup light brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter
1 cup table molasses
2 cups boiling water
1¼ teaspoons baking soda

Mix the flour, granulated sugar, brown sugar, salt and butter to crumbs, using a pastry blender or your fingers. Reserve 1 cup of the crumbs for topping. Mix the molasses, boiling water, and baking soda and gradually add to the major part of the crumbs until well blended. Pour this mixture into a greased 9½ x 12¾ inch baking pan. Sprinkle the reserved 1 cup of crumbs on top. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 55 minutes. (If you use layer-cake pans, decrease baking time to 40 minutes.) This makes a very moist and unusual cake.

Betty Groff

BAKED MEAT LOAF

2 pounds hamburger
3 eggs, beaten
1 tablespoon chopped parsley or parsley flakes
1 cup drained canned tomatoes, chopped
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup milk
2 stalks celery, finely chopped
2 cups fresh bread crumbs

Mix the meat with eggs, parsley, tomatoes, seasonings, milk, celery and bread crumbs, blending well. Form into 2 loaves, put in baking pan, and bake in a 375 degree oven for 1 hour and 15 minutes.

RAISIN PIE

1 cup red wine
1½ cups seedless raisins
¼ cup butter
¾ cup sugar
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
9-inch unbaked pie shell

Heat the wine, add the raisins, and let them soak until plump. Cream the butter and sugar. Beat in the eggs and vanilla (the mixture may look slightly curdled, but that doesn't matter). Add the raisins and wine, mix well, and pour into the pie shell. Bake in a 325 degree oven for about 50 minutes, or until filling is set. Cool before serving. Serve with ice cream or whipped cream.

OOPS!—Gremlins in the type. The "Overnight Bean Salad (May 24) should have read ½ c. red wine vinegar.

Sincere apologies for any inconvenience this may have caused.

Question: I must confess I'm not the world's best cook and frankly I don't attempt to be, but my grandmother used to make an excellent Anadama type bread and I would be very happy if I could make a similar loaf. Is it possible to bake bread without the kneading part of it? Thank you for your assistance. — Mrs. T. I., Walpole

Answer: It's the batter method for you! An easy method that does away with kneading.

Here's the recipe — happy memories!

ANADAMA BATTER BREAD

1 pkg. active dry yeast
¼ cup warm water
1 cup enriched cornmeal
One-third cup dark molasses
3 tablespoons shortening
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
¾ cup boiling water
1 egg
2 and one-third cups all purpose flour

Soften yeast in warm water. Combine cornmeal, molasses, shortening, salt and baking soda in large mixing bowl. Stir in boiling water; cool to lukewarm. Add softened yeast, egg and 1 cup of flour; beat for 2 minutes on medium speed of electric mixer or 200 vigorous strokes with a wooden spoon. Stir in remaining flour. Spread batter into a well greased 2-quart casserole. Cover; let rise in warm place until nearly double in size, about 1 hour. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) about 40 minutes. Remove from casserole immediately. Brush lightly with melted butter; cool. Makes 1 loaf.

Our thanks to a reader, Mrs. Jerome Feinstein, who often shares her nifty recipes. This time it's a toffee bar that her husband says is, "Par Excellence!" We agree.

TOFFEE BARS

1¾ cups all purpose flour
1 cup sugar
1 cup margarine, softened
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 egg, separated
1 cup finely chopped walnuts

Three to five days before serving:

Preheat oven to 275 degrees. Grease a 15½-inch by 10½-inch jelly roll pan. Into a large bowl, measure all ingredients except egg white and walnuts. With mixer at medium speed, beat ingredients until well mixed, occasionally scraping bowl; pat evenly into pan. In cup, with fork, beat egg white slightly; brush over top of dough and sprinkle with nuts. Bake for 1 hour and 10 minutes or until golden. Immediately cut into 50 bars and remove from pan to cool on wire racks. Store in tightly covered container for at least three days before serving. Makes about 4 dozen cookies.

It's great when someone discovers a new recipe for using ripe bananas — here's a cool, delicious banana mousse sent in by Mrs. H. M., Marblehead:

BANANA MOUSSE

1 pkg. (3 oz.) orange-pineapple gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 cup mashed ripe bananas (about 2 large bananas)
1 cup (½ pt.) heavy cream, whipped
Whipped topping (optional)
Extra bananas (optional)

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Stir in mashed banana. Chill until slightly jelled. Fold in whipped cream and spoon into dessert dishes. Chill until firm. Serve garnished with dollops of whipped topping and banana slices. Serves 4.

Question: I've prepared the dish Chicken Marengo many times and have wondered if there was also a recipe for veal marengo. Have you ever hear of it? — Mrs. R. C., Walpole

Answer: The method is the same and the dish is rich in flavor — you're sure to enjoy:

VEAL MARENGO

1½ pounds veal steak, ½ inch thick
¼ cup flour
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ teaspoons salt
2 to 4 tablespoons shortening
1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes
1 small onion, chopped
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 can (10½ oz.) bouillon
1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cut veal into serving pieces and coat with combined flour, salt and pepper. Heat shortening in skillet on medium heat; add veal and brown well on both sides. Pour tomatoes into buttered 2-quart casserole and top with browned veal. Add onion and garlic to shortening remaining in skillet and cook until onion yellows, adding more shortening if necessary. Measure remaining seasoned flour, adding enough flour to make ¼ cup; blend with onion and garlic and cook until brown. Stir in bouillon and mushrooms and heat to boiling point. pour over veal; cover, place in 350 degree oven and bake for 45 minutes, or until veal is tender. Serves 6. Serve on Baked Noodles.

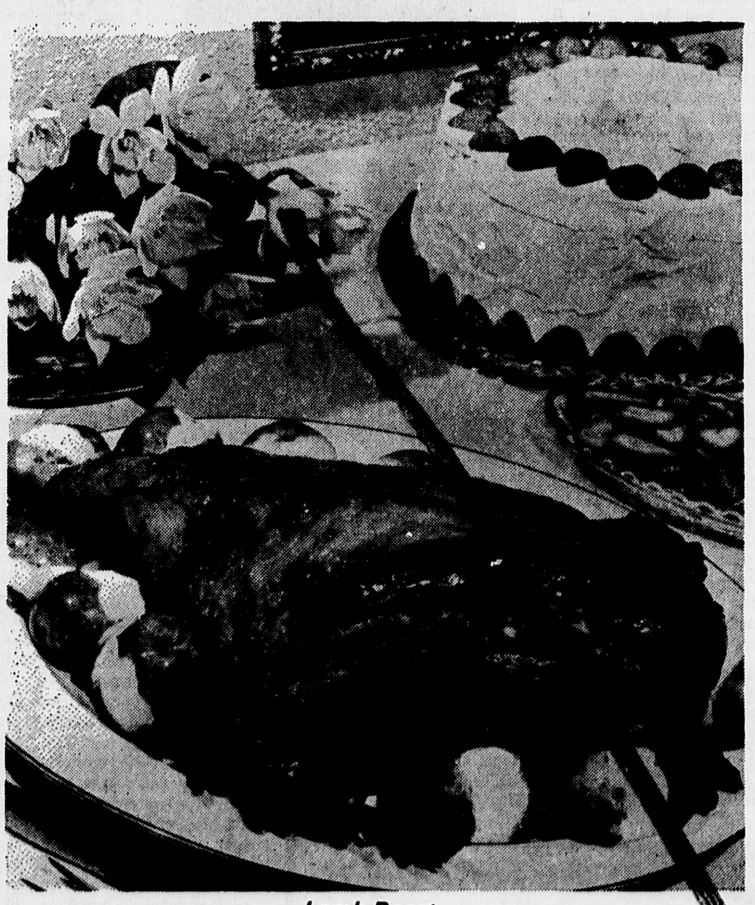

BAKED NOODLES

8 oz. noodles, uncooked (med. width)
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter or margarine
4 cups boiling water

Spread uncooked noodles in 2-quart casserole; add remaining ingredients and stir well. Cover and place in preheated 350 degree oven. Bake for 45 minutes.

Question: I am planning on a nice lamb roast dinner and would like a foolproof method of preparing it please. Thanks very much for your help. — Mrs. S. E., Newton

Answer: For a perfect spring dinner, serve your Lamb Roast with asparagus and new potatoes.

Lamb Roast

SWING-INTO-SPRING LAMB ROAST

1 lamb leg roast (about 7 lbs.)
Salt and pepper
½ cup brown sugar, packed
¼ cup prepared mustard with horseradish
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon garlic powder

Place lamb roast on rack in shallow roasting pan; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Roast lamb at 325 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes per pound or until thermometer registers 165 degrees for medium doneness. Meanwhile, in small saucepan, combine brown sugar, mustard, lemon juice and garlic powder; heat and stir until thoroughly combined but do not boil. Use sauce to baste lamb with every 20 minutes during the last 1½ hours of roasting time. When lamb is cooked, remove from oven and allow it to "rest" in a warm place for about 10 to 20 minutes before carving.

the slim gourmet

By BARBARA GIBBONS

No time to bake? Why not make a pie?

The pie we have in mind never sees the inside of your oven. Our Slim Gourmet dessert is a calorie-reduced, protein-rich treat made with fresh berries and the new low-calorie "imitation" cream cheese. The word "imitation" is on the label because diet-wise cream cheese substitutes don't meet the federal standards for fat content. But who needs fat! These high-protein cream cheese substitutes have only half the calories of ordinary cream cheese, but the flavor is identical.

In addition to cutting calories, we use all sorts of hurry-up tricks to ease the preparation of this busy-day dessert. We use a packaged graham cracker crust, and prepare the filling entirely in the blender. We dissolve the gelatin right in the blender with boiling water, add the cheese and flavoring ingredients, then blend in ice cubes to speed the setting. In fact, the filling is nearly set by the time you spoon it into the crust!

QUICK-SET STRAWBERRY CREAM CHEESE PIE

8-inch graham cracker crust
Filling:
1 tablespoon vanilla
1 envelope plain gelatin
½ cup boiling water
8 ounces low-calorie cream cheese or Neufchatel cheese
3 tablespoons sugar
sugar substitute to equal ¼ cup
¼ teaspoon salt or butter-flavored salt
¼ teaspoon bottled lemon or orange rind
1 cup ice cubes
Topping:
½ envelope (1½ teaspoons) gelatin
¾ cup chilled red grape juice, divided
1 cup sliced strawberries, chilled sugar substitute to equal 2 tablespoons

FOR FILLING: (Combine vanilla and gelatin in blender container. Wait one minute until gelatin granules are softened. Add boiling water. Cover and blend on high speed until all gelatin is dissolved. Scrape down sides of container often.

Add cream cheese, sugar, sugar substitute, salt and rind. Cover and blend smooth. Add ice cubes and blend on high speed until all ice is dissolved. Spoon into prepared crumb crust. The filling will have started to set already. Store pie in freezer while you prepare the strawberry glaze.

FOR TOPPING: To speed the topping's setting, have the grape juice and berries well chilled. Combine the gelatin with 2 tablespoons grape juice in a small saucepan and heat over very low flame until gelatin granules dissolve.

In a small bowl, combine gelatin-juice mixture, berries, sugar substitute & remaining chilled grape juice. Put in freezer for about 10 minutes, until mixture is slightly thickened and syrupy. Stir well and spoon over cream cheese filling. Store pie in refrigerator until serving time. Makes eight servings, 183 calories each.

Weddings

The Colonnade Hotel scene of Giampapa-Weiner nuptial

In an evening ceremony on Sunday, May 19, at the Colonnade Hotel, Gail G. Giampapa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Santo Giampapa of Newton, became the bride of Mr. Gary J. Weiner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Weiner of Randolph.

Mrs. Gary J. Weiner

Rev. Leroy Owens and Rabbi Samuel Umen jointly officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a dinner reception.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her cousin, Marie Giannetti of Boston was maid of honor.

Carrying a bouquet of Palaenopsis orchids with lily of the valley and ivory variegated dracine, the bride was attired in a peau de soie gown with chantilly lace and a long chantilly lace vail.

Wearing pink gowns and carrying bouquets of pink roses and daisies, the bridesmaids included Alisa Hurwitz of Framingham, Lisa Moffie of Wellesley, Rhoda Buckman of Winthrop, Mrs. Howard Levine of Randolph, and Mrs. Bruce Nable of Brockton..

The groom's brother, Mr. Leonard Weiner of Brockton was the best man. His nephew, Greg Weiner of Brockton, was ringbearer. Ushers included Robert Oshry of Brockton, Howard Levine of Randolph, Stephen Tepper of Randolph, and the bride's brothers, Gary Giampapa of Indianapolis, Ind., and Greg Giampapa of Newton.

Puerto Rico and Disneyland trip for Carol and Walter Tennant

A reception at the Mills Falls Restaurant, Newton, followed the recent afternoon wedding of Carol M. Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Elliott of Newton, and Walter F. Tennant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tennant of West Newton.

Rev. Joseph Scorzello Jr. performed the double ring nuptial mass at Our Lady's Help of Christians Church in Newton. Msgr. Quirk of St. Bernard's Parish, West Newton, was also present for the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Tennant

Escorted by her father, the bride wore an empire gown appliqued with Viennese lace and seed pearls. Her veil of illusion fell from a matching Camelot headpiece.

Barbara Elliot was her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Janice Elliott, Nancy Tennant, Sally Tennant and Donna Ford.

Robert Tennant, brother of the groom, was the best man. Guests were seated by James Tennant, Thomas Sandretzky, John Tigue and Thomas Adams.

The new Mrs. Tennant is a cum laude graduate of Suffolk University. Her husband also graduated from Suffolk University and is currently vice president of the R. L. Tennant Insurance Agency.

After a honeymoon trip to Puerto Rico and Disneyland, the couple will reside in Waltham.

Child Center planned

In September, the Newton Community Service Centers will be starting a new children's program.

The Child Center in West Newton will be operating out of First Unitarian Society, 1326 Washington Street in West Newton, 02165.

This will be a combination of Nursery School and Day Care. The program will be operating within the hours of 7:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Hours will be flexible to accommodate people with differect needs.

Along with a specious classroom area there is a large outdoor play area with swings, climbing equipment and other furnishing suitable for the three to five year old age group.

Children will be grouped according to age, primarily. However, they are also arranged according to activity, interest and educational or social need.

The program seeks to provide an environment conducive to maximum learning for each child by promoting intellectual, physical and social developments.

Transportation will be available on a limited basis.

A morning snack will be provided. Those staying for lunch will bring a box lunch and a feverage will be provided.

For further information about the program people may call the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. at 969-5906.

Weddings

Candlelight ceremony setting for Magerer-Turner wedding

Candlelight ceremony setting for Magerer and Mitchell Harvey Turner.

The marriage took place on Sunday, March 3, at the Lantana in Randolph where the reception also took place. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LEonard J. Magerer of Westwood, was given in marriage by her father.

The new bride was attired in a white organza gown with a high lace neckline and lace trimmed chapel train. Her mantilla length veil of illusion was attached to a half Camelot cap which was topped with a lace and satin bow. She carried a cascade of white roses, stardust poms, and white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell H. Turner

Mrs. Michael Ponticilli, Hyde Park, was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a rouge and pink velvet bodiced gown and her pink picture hat was trimmed with a satin bow and streamers. Her bouquet consisted of pink roses and baby's breath.

Jeffrey Turner, the groom's brother, was the best man. Serving as ushers were Lawrence Turner, another brother; Michael Ponticelli Jr., the bride's brother-in-law; and Michael Turner, cousin of the groom. Completing the bridal party was Mrs. Jennie Cohen, Brighton, grandmother of the new groom.

Mrs. Turner is a graduate of Newton South High School and Grahm Junior College. Her new husband, also a graduate of the same schools, attended the Rittner School of Floral Design. He is presently a florist.

Stoughton is the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Turner who honeymooned in Acapulco, Mexico.

Greece trip for bride and groom

St. Demetrios Greek Orthodox Church, Weston, was the setting on May 25, when Joan Mary McCullough became the bride of Peter A. Katsines Jr.

Rev. George Gallos officiated at the double ring ceremony and Mr. McCullough gave his daughter in marriage. The reception was held at the Union House in Framingham.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Joseph McCullough of Framingham, wore a blush pink, empire-waisted Priscilla gown which featured a wedding band neckline and a chapel length train. Her matching blush pink fingertip veil was accented with white Venise lace as was her gown and train. She carried a cascade of pink and white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Jane Bonanno of Framingham was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Anne Watson, Milford, and Kathy Gill, Framingham, sisters of the bride; and Karen Katsines, Newton, sister of the groom. Pamela Sheehan of Newton, was the flower girl.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Katsines Sr. of Newton, had his cousin, Gregory Soper of New Jersey, as his best man. Serving as ushers were James McCullough, Framingham, brother of the bride, Robert Wilker, Newton, and Mark Sheehan, West Concord.

The new Mrs. Katsines is a graduate of Framingham North High School and the Katharine Gibbs School.

Her husband graduated from Newton North High School. He attended Lowell Technical Institute and ITT.

After a honeymoon trip to Greece, Mrs. and Mrs. Katsines will reside in Acton.

Newton teacher weds Mr. Tuthill

At an 11 a.m. ceremony on May 18, Jennifer Thorne Taylor became the bride of George Frederick Tuthill.

Rev. F. Kennon Moody officiated at the double ring nuptial which was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Andreas P. Lehner, Falmouth, sister and brother-in-law of the bride.

For her wedding, the new Mrs. Tuthill, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harold Taylor of New York City, wore a simple cotton and lace empire gown. He headpiece was a crown of roses and daisies. She carried a bouquet of roses and daisies. Her father, former president of Sarah Lawrence College, gave her in marriage.

Richard Tuthill of Bolton, Conn., and Preston Tuthill of Williston, Vt., brothers of the groom, performed the ushering duties.

The bride is a graduate of the Putney School and the University of Colorado. She is presently a teacher at the Mason-Rice School. She is also a long distance runner and the New England 30 kilo 1974 champion.

Mr. Tuthill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tuthill of Williston, Vt., graduated from Williams College and is currently studying for a doctorate in physics at MIT. He is a former member of the United States decathalon team.

After a wedding trip to Cape Cod, the Tuthills will live in Newton Centre.

What a difference a Bilco Door makes!
Here's the way to add new beauty to your home. Replace that wooden hatchway with a modern, all steel Bilco Door. It's ruggedly built, weather-tight, and so easy for everyone in the family to use! What's more, it will make your basement more secure against intrusion. And it will pay for itself many times over by saving repair and replacement costs.
If your home was built without the convenience of a direct basement entrance, ask us for Bilco's new handbook "How to Add Valuable Living Space to Your Home."
Stop in and see our display. We'll give you free literature on how to do it. Or, we can suggest a man to install it for you.

Musical Marathon will aid Sub-Sahara drought victims

Musical Marathon, a 10-hour offering of musical and entertainment fare to please almost every taste, will be staged in the sanctuary of Eliot Church, 474 Centre St., Newton Corner, Sunday, June 16, from 1 to 11 p.m., with proceeds going to Oxfam-America and its drought-relief work in sub-Saharan Africa.

Twelve raried presentations involving some 50 Boston area performing artists and running the gamut from puppet theatre to Baroque arias, may be seen totally or in part for a "suggested donation." Arthur Komar, Newton pianist, has arranged the program.

For the convenience of parents and young children, the Elmseed Puppet theatre's new program for children and Sara Benson and Jeff Brewer's songs and stories for children have been scheduled for early afternoon.

Cold fruit drinks and "natural food delights" will be served in the church foyer.

Artists and programs as presently scheduled:

1 p.m. — music for oboe and strings, quartets by Gatti, Giardini and Mozart — Patricia Morehead, oboe; Margaret Duesenberry, violin; Jane Daniel, viola; Peter Belmont, violincello.

1:45 p.m. — music for solo piano — Elizabeth McCrae.

2:30 p.m. — songs and stories for children — Sara Benson, Jeff Brewer (members of Clearing).

3 p.m. — Elmseed Theatre, Arthur Wood, director; new program for children presented by life-size puppets.

4 p.m. — Baroque chamber music by Bache, Handel, Vivaldi — Gisela Krause, gamba and harpsichord; Philip Morehead, harpsichord; Virginia Gotham, violin; D'Anna Fortunato, mezzo-soprano; Barbara Dinger Jacobson, flute; Patricia Morehead, oboe.

4:45 p.m. — New England Chamber Opera Group, Philip Morehead, director and pianist, in arias and ensembles from several different operas — D'Anna Fortunato, mexxo-soprano and other members of the group to be announced.

5:30 p.m. — Chamber music of the Clussical period for flute and strings — Constance Boykan, flute; Carolyn Edwards, violin; Judith Garrett, violin; Mark Maimone, violoncello; violist to be announced.

6:15 p.m. — music fro classical guitar — Pete Calo.

6:45 p.m. — Baroque chamber music by Telemann, Bach and others — Gisela Krause, gamba; Philip Morehead, harpsichord; Constance Boykan, flute; Virginia Gotham, violin; Patricia Morehead, oboe.

7:30 p.m. — Elmseed Theatre, adult program featuring "Afternoon Hayes-Bickford."

8:30 p.m. — Mimi Kagan Kim and Dance Ensemble in "Dance Suite" from "Exercise en Route;" (texts by Samuel Beckett, choreography by Mimi Kagan Kim) — dancers: Mimi Kagan Kim, Diane Berrier, Memory Birch, Mimi Domenica, Charlotte Fox, Janet Goldschmidt, Julia Morgan and Sanghi Wagner.

9:30 p.m. — "Clearing," a program of traditional and contemporary folk music — Joan Minkoff, Sara Benson and Jeff Brewer.

Furtherr information on the program, which is subject to change, may be had by calling Arthur Komar at 965-3917. Suggested donation is $5 for adults and $2.50 for children and those over 65.

Article discusses alcohol abuse by young people

The sharp increase in alcohol abuse on the part of young people is the subject of the lead article in the upcoming June issue of the "Newton-Wellesley Quarterly," the community health care magazine published by Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

The alcoholism article features interviews with a variety of community experts, including Newton Chief of Police William F. Quinn; Rick Michael, clinical coordinator at the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Multi-Service Drug Center in Newton; Mike Furstenberg, Multi-Service Center staff member in Wellesley; Dr. Jay B. Shumaker, gastroenterologist on Newton-Wellesley Hospital's medical staff, and Marion Frick, social worker at Appleton Treatment Center, McLean Hospital, Belmont.

In the article, Chief Quinn says, "Many parents were far more concerned with the drug crisis of a few years ago and seem almost to welcome the fact that their particular youngster is abusing alcohol rather than becoming involved with the abuse of drugs."

The studies also indicate that the real abusers among young people are using alcohol to excess for much the same reason that their elder do, as an escape from dealing with problems and as a "coping mechanism" as Rick Michael of the Multi-Service Center puts it. He says the Center is seeing a marked increase in alcohol abuse among adolescents although that is not usually what triggers their coming there. As a "coping mechanism," however, Michael says it has turned up more and more over the last four or five months as part of a kid's lifestyle.

Yet as the article reports, alcohol is "the now drug" and with the lowering of the drinking age, there has been a sharp increase in its abuse by younger and younger people as reflected, for instance, in arrests for driving under the influence. Increased abuse is also linked by Quinn and Chief Leroy Weaver of Wellesley to a rise in vandalism in the local communities.

In reporting on area studies of alcohol use among the school age population, the article underscores the fact that it is but a mirro of adult society with its estimated 80-90 million alcohol users in the United States and some nine million visible alcholics. There are 15 Alcoholic Anonymous groups meeting weekly in Newton, Wellesley and Weston.

Network, Inc., a conglomerate of adolescent services in Newton, Wellesley and Weston, and including the Multi-Service Center, is now focusing attention to the alcohol abuse problem through a special Task Force on Alcoholism.

Albert S. Frager

Albert Frager elected trustee

The election of Albert S. Frager of Newton to the board of trustees of Brookline Hospital was announced recently. He is financial vice-president and chief financial officer of the Stop & Shop Companies, Inc.

Frager is treasurer and chairman of the finance committe of Temple Mishkan Tefila, a director of the National Council of Northeastern University, a life member of the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for the Aged and a charter member of Children's Hospital Century Club.

Dividend up

At a meeting of the board of directors of City Bank & Trust Company, Boston, it was voted to declare a cash dividend of 50 cents per share to stockholders of record May 30, payable June 15. This is a 50 percent increase over the cash dividend paid in June, 1973.

Previous dividends were limited by regulations of the United States Government Committee on Interest and Dividends, and stockholders of the bank were promised an increase on expiration of the committee's guidelines.

Gaffin nominated to head Big Brother Association

Stanley Gaffin of Newton Centre has been nominated for a second term as president of the Jewish Big Brother Association of Boston.

The election of 1974-75 JBBA officers and board members will be held at the organization's annual meeting Wednesday, June 5, 8 p.m. at Jewish Community Housing for the Elderly, 30-40 Wallingford Rd., Brighton.

Nominated for election as vice presidents are Dr. Mitchell M. Cohen, Frank A. Morse and Edward H. Kushner, while Kenneth H. Soble has been nominated as treasurer and Stanley M. Goldberg as secretary.

A highlight of the meeting will be the appearance of Howard K. Kummer, executive director of the New England Region, American Jewish Congress. He will comment on the provocative documentary film, "America I Love You," produced by Israeli students studying at UCLA. The film will be shown at the meeting.

Also on the agenda are reports to be delivered by Gaffin, the JBBA president, and Albert J. Sinofsky, the JBBA executive director.

Stanley Gaffin

A constituent agency of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston, the JBBA during the past year has administered a record of 125 Big and Little Brother matches. Among many related activities, it has organized a women's division and has granted scholarships to eight little brothers attending institutions of higher education.

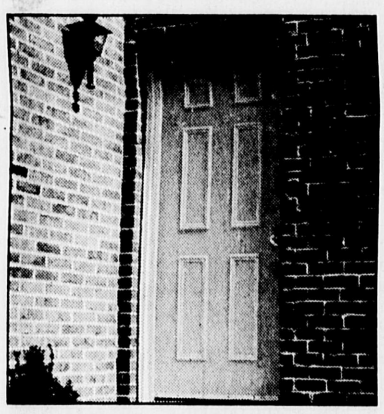

Those nominated for a three-year term as JBBA board members are Bernard Birnbaum, Maxwell Burstein, Dr. Stanley E. Charm, Laurence A. Freedman, Burt M. Meyers, Samuel E. Reinherz, Robert L. Riemer and Joel B. Sherman.

Nominated for a two-year term are Murray Brass, Harry Flamenbaum, Jordan M. Rabinovitz, Theodore Schoenberg, Michael S. Selib, William Smith and Dr. Theodore Swerdlick.

Nominated for a one-year term are Stephen M. Goldfarb, Norman I. Gotshalk, George Kaplan, Neil M. Kushner, Salem J. Leaman, Philip R. Levy, Philip Nyman and Alan L. Shuman.

A C.P.A., he is a partner in the firm of Stanley Gaffin and Co. He holds B.S., B.A. and M.B.A. degrees from Boston University.

Chestnut Hill School has annual meeting

On May 1, the Chestnut Hill School had its annual corporation meeting. Headmaster Joseph Allison announced that the school had recently been awarded a financial grant from The Independent School Association of Massachusetts.

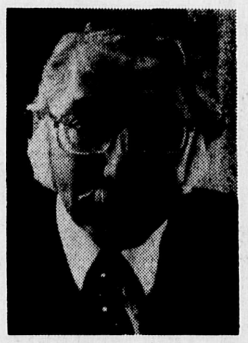

The purpose of the award was to help the school further its curriculum.

Another announcement concerned the formation of a transition class for the following year. Allison stated, "Too often in the early years we try to fit children into a preconceived age pattern. The transition class is an attempt to adapt the program to the child and give us more flexibility in the placement of youngsters who are more than ready for kindergarten but who do not quite demonstrate all the readiness attributes necessary for grade 1." From the transition group of 12 children it is possible for a child to go on to either first or second grade.

Other business of the evening was the election of trustees. Dr. Robert S. Blacklow of Chestnut Hill was reelected to a one year term as president of the board. Mrs. Susan Zeeman of Brighton was elected as secretary and Dr. David Hawkins of Chestnut Hill was elected treasurer. Edmund Gallucci was elected to a one year term. Brooks Harlow, headmaster of the Fay School of Southboro, was elected to a three year term.

William Lynch of Chestnut Hill and Frederick Mahony of Jamaica Plain were elected to three year terms. Mrs. Hudson Milner of Newtonville was also elected to a three year term. Mrs. Rita Tobias of Brookline was elected chairman of the P.T.A.

The Annual Meeting concluded with a short question and answer period led by Dr. Evan Longin on the topic "Helping Kids Feel Good About Themselves."

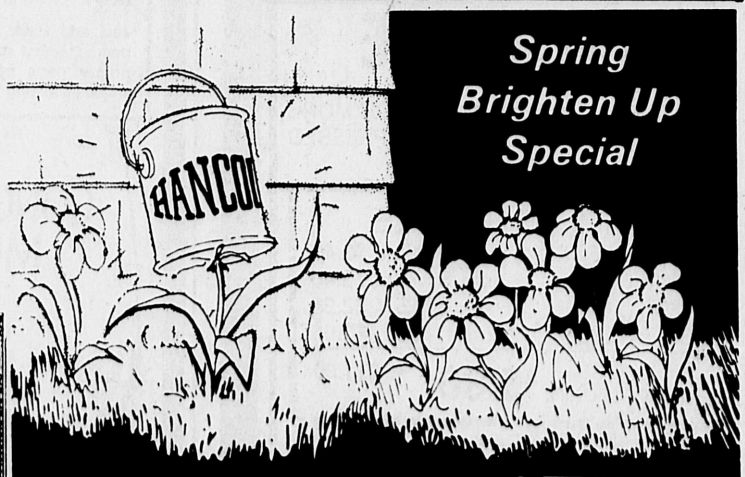

ALAN LARKIN of Newton was recently installed as the new president of the Greater Boston Council of B'nai B'rith. The installation was at Sidney Hill Country Club in Newton.

Chess Chatter

By ANDREW SCHMIDT

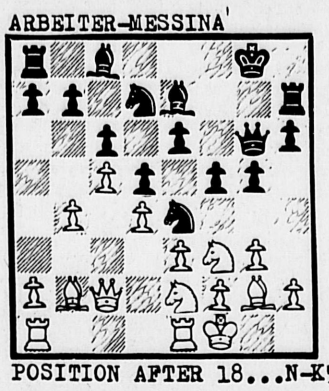

The scene was Chicago's LaSalle Hotel last August when 775 players attended the annual US Open. From this group, within a two week period, a winner would have to be produced. The organizers had the method, but only from experience which had developed the so-called Swiss System of Pairing, a refinement of several other systems used in the past.

The problem is to produce a winner that truly has dominated the particular group of players. The first method that could be tried is the Knock-out system where the loser ot a game leaves forever, and the winner advances.

To a player who travels a great distance only to be bounced in a single game, this is obviously unfair. Tennis tournaments are run that way.

The fiarest method id the Round-Robin, or all-play-all. Here, each player plays every other competitor, and the player who obtains the best overall record wins. This system is excellent for under 30 player tournaments such as the US Championships and the like, but for a large tournament with hundreds of players it is obviously too long.

ARBEITER-MESSINA

POSITION AFTER 18...N-K5

And so the Swiss System was developed which takes the best of both the Round-Robin and the Knock-Out. Players with equal scores play each other, and thus the number of perfect scored players decreases fast, but upon losing a player merely plays someone who also has lost. Thus in those 12 games played in Chicago, six players emerged as winners with 10-2 scores.

Thus, most tournaments held in this country are conducted under the Swiss System. Yet, occasionally a group of players is split into many small four-man sections, and within each section a round robin is played. Usually, the grouping is made so that players with similar ratings compete and these sectional tournaments are called Quadrangles, or quads for short.

Recently, the first Brockton Quads were held at Brockton High and John Hooker, Jason Arbeiter, and Andrew Schmidt from Newton competed.

Each player scored 2-1 and came in clear second in their respective sections. Arbeiter submits this game from his group with comments that 8 B-N5 would be better than the passive 8 P-QN3. If 8 . . . PxP 9 N-K5 P-N4 10 NxP-5 NxN 11 BxN holding the pawn. At the critical 19th as diagrammed, White errs with N-QB3. He should have played against Black's undeveloped Queenside. As it was, Black smashes through and mates.

North loses final game

Weymouth South eliminated Newton North from contention for an EMass tournament berth last week with a 4-3 victory at Weymouth.

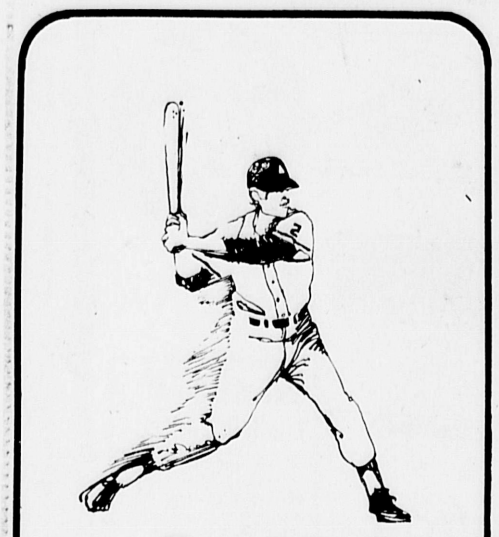

Newton's loss made its final Suburban League record 10-6, and allowed Waltham to clinch second place in the league.

Weymouth South scored two runs in the last of the sixth inning to win the game. Steve Carmichael doubled home one run off Newton reliever Steve DiBenedetto. After advancing to third on a sacrifice, Carmichael scored the winning run on a passed ball.

John Connolly knocked in all of Newton's runs with a three-run homer in the first inning.

Newton had five hits in the game wwhile Weymouth South had seven. Weymouth had defeated North in an earlier meeting, 18-3

A late-season spurt had brought Newton close to a tournament berth. After starting May with four losses in five games, the Tigers won six straight games, including one stretch of four victories in four days.

Newton South finishes second in league race

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

The Newton South baseball team closed its regular season with a 12-6 record, which was good enough for a second place finish in the Dual County League.

The Lions lost three of their last five games, enabling Acton-Boxboro to become the Dual County League champion. South still qualified for the state baseball tournament.

On Wednesday, May 22, the Lions lost to Bedford, 1-0, in a game which featured many unusual happenings. The most unusual play of them all came in the top of the first inning.

With one out, South Co-Capt. Rob Shahon singled to left field. Shahon attempted to steal second base with Steve Tresca batting, but was thrown out by Bedford's catcher.

The catcher must have thrown the ball at least 80 feet in the air to the Bedford shortstop. Shahon did not realize that the catcher threw the ball in the air, figuring pop-up. The shortstop tagged out Shahon, who was heading back to first base.

Bedford scored the only run of the game in the bottom of the first inning off South hurler Chandler Bosworth.

With one out, Doug Blake hit a line drive into right-center field. Tresca retrieved the ball and fired it to second baseman Bruce Jennings. Jennings then whipped a throw past third baseman Pete Castellanos, allowing Blake to score.

South Coach Neil McPhee did not fault Jennings for the bad throw, saying that someone in the infield should have told Jennings to hold onto the ball.

Bedford pitcher Ron Hemenway was brilliant as he struck out 10 South batters and walked only two. The only rally South mustered against Hemenway came in the seventh inning.

Catcher Hal Bennett led off with a triple to left field. After Bill Tartar grounded out to shortstop, McPhee called upon Greg Moan to pinch hit for relief pitcher Tom Irvine. Moan missed on a suicide squeeze bunt attempt and Bennett was tagged out easily at home.

Hemenway gave South another chance when he hit Moan with his next pitch, but Jennings struck out to end the game.

The Lions won their last regular season game of the year of Friday, May 24 over Weston, 2-1.

Ken Bianco pitched an excellent game, getting his fifth win of the year.

Weston opened the scoring in the top of the second inning. Phil Fried opened the inning with a single to center field. He was forced at second on a ground ball by Mike Melone.

After two singles loaded the bases, Bianco struck out leadoff batter Tom Raffio. Fred Sherman then singled to center field, scoring Melone from third base. Jim Viselman attempted to score from second base on the single and a perfect throw from Tresca to Bennett gunned him down at the plate.

South tied the score in the bottom of the second inning. Bennett led off with a sharp single to center field and stole second. Tartar smacked a single to right field which scored Bennett. There could have been a close paly at home, but Weston's right fielder threw the ball way over the catcher's head.

The Lions scored the winning run in the fourth inning. With two out, Bennett walked. Tartar again singled to right field, sending Bennett to third. After Weston right fielder Bob Nolan's throw to third came too late, third baseman Viselman saw Tartar breaking for second base, and gunned a throw into center field, allowing Bennett to score.

A problem of this year's South baseball team has been an inability to win one-run games. Five out of South's six losses were by one run.

North netmen win league title

By BOB LOW

Newton North's boys' tennis team captured its fifth consecutive Suburban League title by defeating Brockton, 4-1, on Wednesday, May 22.

The victory was North's twelfth in a row without a loss in league competition this season and completed a sweep of four playoff matches.

Neal Kravitz took first singles for Newton, rebounding form a first set loss and beating Ed Kent, 3-6, 6-2, 6-0. Baird Haney trimmed Dave Orlando, 6-2, 6-2, and Bob Low routed Ray Comeau, 6-0, 6-1.

Brockton's only point came in first doubles as Stu Brightman and Chip Lang, who were playing together for the first time lost 6-1, 6-4. Dave Bikofsky and Lincoln Frank won in second doubles 6-3, 6-3.

Brookline took second place behind the Tigers in the final league standings. Arlington was third, Brockton fourth, and Weymouth South fifth.

The netmen now enter the Eastern Mass. team tournament, hoping to win it for a third straight time. To do it, they will have to beat either Framingham South or Wellesley in the first round and then, if things go as expected, fourth seeded Wayland, second seeded Framingham North, and then top ranked Weston.

The finalists will then proceed to the state tourney from where the top two teams will advance to the New England Championship.

Opening day

Newton Mayor Theodore D. Mann throws out the first ball at the recent opening of the Newton Women's Twilight League. Recreation Commission member Frank Fitzpatrick looks on.

Swim registration to be held June 4, 6

The Newton Recreation Department has announced that registration for the summer swimming lessons at the North High School pool will be held on June 4 and June 6. All classes will be registered at the pool from 7:30 to 9 p.m. on these dates.

In addition to the normal childfen's classes described belwo, some special programs are being offerd. Scuba classes will be held on Friday evenings from June 28 to August 2nd, from 7 to 10 p.m. This course will be taught by a certified instructor. Further information will be released soon.

Junior and senior life saving classes will be offered from 6 to 8 p.m. on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays beginning June 26 and continuing through August 2.

Two adult swimming classes have been scheduled for this summer. The first series will be held between 7 and 8 p.m. from June 26 to August 23 on Mondays. The second class will be held from 7 to 8 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings from August 5 to August 23.

The Tiny Tot program is also planned. Since the shallow end of the pool is four feet, it will be necessary for these four and five-year olds to be accompanied in the water by an adult each day. The emphasis of the program will rest in teaching parents the techniques of teaching these tots.

There will also be registration for the Newton swim team on these days.

The following are the qualifications required for the classes: tiny tots, four or five years of age and acccompanied in the water each day by a parent, due to the four foot water depth at the shallow end of the pool.

Beginner 1 — Children new to the water, six years and older; beginner 2 — Children six years and older. Some comfort in water and can put head in water.

Advanced beginner — possess beginner card, be able to tread water, change swimming positions and swim crawl for 20 yards; intermediate — advanced beginner card, good crawl and elementary back stroke.

Swimmer — intermediate card, good crawl, side stroke, breast stroke and elementary back stroke.

Adult — Desire to overcome fear and learn to swim; junior life saviig — swimming card, 11 years old; senior life saving — junior life saving card. 15 years old

Fagundes second in EMass tourney

By MARK SHUSTER

Humberto Fagundes of Newton South was unable to hold off a steady Scott Parsons as he was defeated in the final of the EMass Singles Tournament, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Fagundes played an extremely strong match in the semi final round as he beat the number one seed of the tournament, Ken Swain of Weston, 7-6, 0-6, 6-4.

Senior Bill Karol, the number two seed in tne tournament, was defeated in the semi-final round by Parsons, 6-3, 6-1.

In a recent Dual County League match, South lost to league-leading Weston, 3-0. Clayton Rogers and Scott Stettner defeated Fagundes and Roger Gordon in singles matches, while Jim Breck and Chuck Keller won in first doubles for Weston. The fist singles and second doubles matches were not completed because of rain.

South fourth in DCL track meet

Newton South placed fourth in the Dual County League championship track meet held recently in Acton.

Weston won the meet, followed by Acton, Lincoln–Sudbury, South, Concord, Wayland, and Bedford.

Chuck Bond and Andy Shulman had first place finishes for South. Bond won the discus with a throw of 144 feet, and Shulman won the long jump with a distance of 19'10". Bond also placed second in the shot put and Shulman finished fourth in the 220-yard dash.

Rich Gosmon of South finished fourth in the long jump and 100-yard dash, and Peter Maples was fourth in the shot put.

South's relay team of Shulman, Byron, Ress, Keith Washington, and Gosmon finished third.

In other recent track action, Newton South defeated Newton North, 60-49, in a girls' track meet.

Sue Gordon had three victories for South, and also ran on a winning medley relay team. Ms. Gordon was first in the 880, the discus and the shot put.

Allison Carmichael of Newton North also won three events. She was victorious in the high jump, long jump, and hurdles.

Other winners included Neysa Dillon, Newton South, 100 and 440; Meg Hearnstadt, Newton South, 220; Cindy Hines, Newton North, mile; and Dee Dee Lew, Newton North, javelin.

Cultural arts series planned

The Newton Recreation Department will sponsor three arts porgrams this summer as part of its cultural arts series directed by Gail Forman.

Registrations are now being taken for these programs open to Newton adults and teenagers.

A series of eight needlepoint classes is scheduled for Cabot Park. The classes, with Bette Feinstein as instructor, will be held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. on July 9, 11, 16, 18, 23, 25 and 30, and August 1.

A quilt workshop series will b held at the Emerson School under the direction of Diana Strange. The orientation workshops are scheduled as follows: July 11, 10-11:30 a.m.; July 16, 9 a.m. to noon and July 18, 9 a.m. to noon.

Instructor Maxine Sorokin will direct a series entitled, "Printmaking Without APress," at the Hyde School. The classes, eight in all, will be held from 9:30 to 11 a.m. on the following Tuesday mornings: July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and August 6, 13, and 20.

Newton residents may register for these programs by calling the Newton Recreation Department, 969-3171.

Starting in July there will be a jazz-blues dance workshop for teens. The program will deal with the basic techniques as well as the style of the blues.

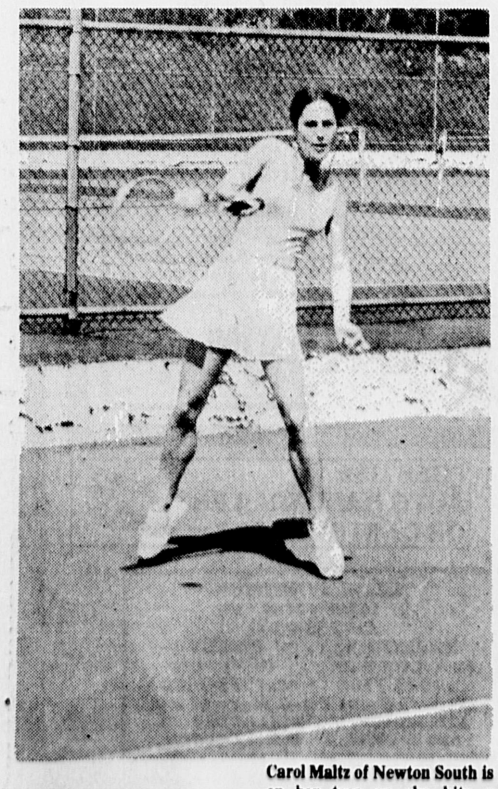

Classes will be held Tuesdays, 11:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and Wednesdays, 5 to 6:15 p.m. at the Newton Centre Playground Field House.

For further information people may contact the instructor, Amy Morris at 244-6229 between 5 and 7 p.m.

Ms. Morris will also conduct a childrens' movement and dance workshop Thursdays between 11:15 a.m. nnd 2:15 p.m. beginning in July.

The classes will deal in movement exercise and experiments in creative dance expression for children between the ages of 8 and 11 years of age.

To find out more about this program call Ms. Morris at 244-6229 between the hours of 5 and 7 p.m.

NEW CONTRACT

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Bob Pulford has a new contract to remain as coach of the Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League for three more years.

Kings owner Jack Cooke announced the extension of Pulford's contract Wednesday but did not disclose terms of the pact.

"Bob Pulford will continue to be the coach of the Kings at least until June 30, 1977," Cooke said. "That means one of the best coaches in the NHL is under contract to coach one of the best teams in the NHL for three more seasons."

COACHING HONOR

WATERTOWN, Mass. (UPI) — The National Junior College Athletic Association has announced that Dick Maloney, Massachusetts Bay Community College baseball coach, has been named the New England Junior College Coach of the Year. Maloney has compiled a 111-28 record in seven years at the school.

PARTNER FLOORED

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Heavyweight Joe Frazier caused a stir in his training camp Wednesday when he knocked his sparring partner to the canvas.

Jimmy Young, a local heavyweight, hit Frazier with a four punch combination but was floored by a left hook on the side of his headgear. Frazier is preparing for a 12-round return bout with Jerry Quarry in New York June 17. He has boxed 49 rounds thus far during his training period.

PALMER WINNER

WESTBURY, N.Y. (UPI) — Arnold Palmer was a winner Wednesday night—at Roosevelt Raceway.

Palmer's Spitfire Hanover, a 3-year-old colt, won the fifth race at the Westbury track. The winner's share of the purse was $3,750.

Palmer, split the winning's with his two partners—New York Yankees pitching coach Whitey Ford and harness Driver Del Miller. Spitfire Hanover, paid $5.60 to win, is entered in the $100,000 Dexter Cup Trot here on June 15.

Pool class

John Pierre Karayan is a member of the snorkel-fin fun class run by the Newton Recreation Department at the Newton North's pool.

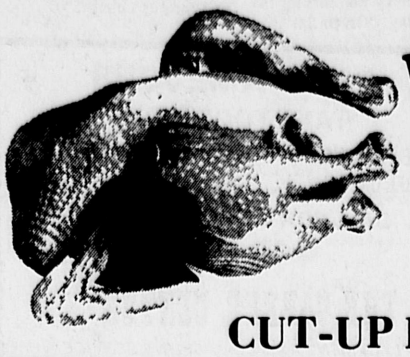

TOP HITTER

HANOVER, N.H. (UPI) — Second baseman Mark Ditmar and rightfielder Glenn have tied for Dartmouth College's batting leadership. Each hit .302 as the Big Green closed its season. —

LOBSTERS PLAY

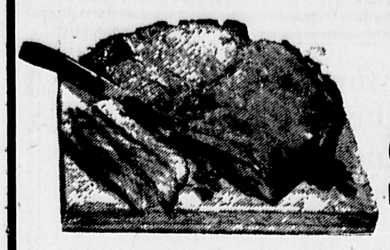

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Lobsters take on the Cleveland Nets tonight in World Team Tennis action. The Nets are led by player-coach Clark Greabner.

Pine Manor plans child study center

A new child study center for children three to five years old is scheduled to open next fall at Pine Manor Junior College in Chestnut Hill.

Under the direction on Pine Manor's psychology department, the child study center will provide Pine Manor students the opportunity to study various aspects of child development through observation and direct experience.

Active parent participation will be encouraged. Parents may watch their child's group from an observation booth and may occasionally help out in the classroom.

Parent-planned evening meetings will be held several times during the year, and at least twice each year, parents will have an individual conference with their child's teacher.

Plans are being made to coordinate the schedules of classes in Open College, Pine Manor's continuing education program for adult women, with nursery school sessions, so that Open College women may enroll their children while they are attending class.

The nursery school will follow the schedule of the college year, opening in mid-September and closing in mid-May. During the morning session, children are at school for three hours, (8:30-11:30 a.m.) five days a week. Children may also be registered for the afternoon on a one, two, three, or four-day basis. The afternoon session is three hours (noon-3 p.m.).

Tuition varies according to the session chosen. A limited amount of financial aid is available to assist parents who cannot afford to pay full tuition.

For further information about the child study center, people may phone Ms. Fennel at 731-7145.

Volunteers honored

Miss Gilah F. Bell, Miss Mary Victoria Boeh, Mrs. Max Projansky, Miss Marsha E. Perlmutter and Mrs. A. Burton Nelson, all of Newton, were honored recently by the Greater Boston Chapter, American National Red Cross, a United Way partner, for service as volunteers.

As water safety volunteers, Miss Bell, Miss Boeh and Miss Perlmutter, have served for five years; Mrs. Projansky has served as a blood volunteer for 25 years; Mrs. Nelson has served 35 years as a production volunteer.

Two hundred fifty-five volunteers received recognition for having completed the first five or an additional five years of service in the various programs provided by the chapter to 20 communities in the Greater Boston area.

Doctors honored

Two Newton physicians will be among 26 doctors honored with gold badges in recognition of 50 years as members of the Massachusetts Medical Society June 5.

Dr. Harry Schwartzman of 17 Cochituate Rd., Newton Highlands; and Dr. Judson A. Smith of 624 Dedham St., Newton Centre, will receive the honor.

Schwartzman is a graduate of Boston University School of Medicine and a specialist in opthalmology. Smith is a graduate of Harvard Medical School and specialized in obstetrics and gynecology before this retirement.

Dr. Vetstein commended

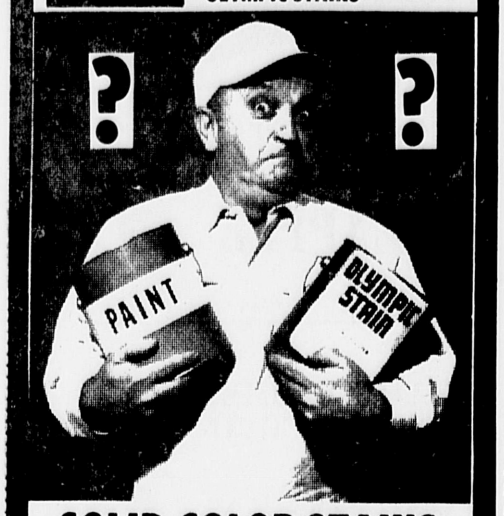

The president of the Massachusetts Dental Society has cited Dr. Arrnold D. Vetstein for "outstanding service to dentistry in the Commonwealth."

Vetstein, a practicing dentist in Framingham and a Newton resident, was chairman of the scientific program at the society's recently concluded 110th annual meeting. He is an alumnus of Tufts University and its dental school and holds the Silver and Bronze stars for military service during the Korean War.

Dr. Joseph G. DiStasio, MDS president, commended Vetstein and his committee for development of the educational program that, he said, was "particularly meaningful" to the state's dental practitioners and their patients.

"The clinicians and lecturers brought together by Dr. Vetstein and his colleagues enabled all participants to keep current with significant scientific advances in the profession," Dr. DiStasio said. "We are all indebted to Dr. Vetstein and his associates for an exceptional educational opportunity."

Girl Scout leaders meet

Girl Scout leaders and friends of scouting recently gathered for an international desserts potpourri, complete with Greek music and dancing.

Newton South Neighborhood Junior-Cadette Consultant, Mrs. Edward Fitzpatrick, expressed appreciation to leaders and assistants for the many hours given to girls in scouting as she gave them certificates of appreciation.

Mrs. Halcombe Laning has served as a Girl Scout leader, a neighborhood chairman, and now as Brownie consultant for 27 years. Mrs. David Levin presented her with a 25-year service pin; Ms. Janet Holly then presented her with a bouquet and special certificate scroll of appreciation upon the occasion of her leaving Newton South's service team position as consultant.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick received a beribboned scroll and Mrs. Julius Feldman received a nosegay bouquet for her 20 years in Girl Scouting. Mrs. Levin and Mrs. Feldman taught people a Greek dance and a Danish dance.

For more information on Girl Scouting in Newton South, people may call 332-6585.

Now is the special time of the year for second-year Brownies to "fly up" into Junior Girls Scouts. Sacred Heart Parish Junior Troop 595, led by Mrs. Martin Murphy and Mrs. William Nealon, met with Sacred Heart Brownie Troop 826, led by Mrs. David Colling and Mrs. John Walsh, to help them to "fly up." They also met for a court of awards.

After a short flag ceremony, Father Clifford blessed the awards to be presented. Brownie Co-Leader Mrs. Walsh presented a gold star to each girl and bade the third grade Brownies farewell pinning on their embroidered wings.

After a Girl Scout candle ceremony, Mrs. Edward Fitzpatrick, junior consultant, awarded Juniors with badges which they have been working to earn, as families and friends looked on.

At the Newton Centre Greek Evangelical Church bazaar recently, Cadette Troop 696 planned and set up outdoor games for children while their parents were at the bazaar. Mrs. Julius Feldman and Mrs. David Levin are leaders of the troop.

Troop 606 Cadettes showed up at the Sacred Heart Church in Newton Centre to paint some of the interior one Saturday recently. Mrs. Edward Fitzpatrick is leader; Mrs. John Tyler is assistant leader.

PHIL DAVID FINE of Waban was elected a vice president of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce at the organization's 65th annual meeting. Fine is a senior partner in Fine & Ambrogne and chairman of the board of the Commonwealth Bank and Trust Co. He has served as a chamber director for the last three years.

Sec. Cronin speaks at Mount Ida graduation

"More students today want occupational programs than ever before" state Secretary of Educational Affairs Joseph M. Cronin told graduates of Mount Ida Junior College in Newton Saturday.

He congratulated Mount Ida for offering two dozen vocational options to more than 700 students. This year, he noted, marked the 75th anniversary of the college.

Cronin urged support of Governor Sargent's proposal for a massive increase of state scholarship aid—from $9 million to $35 million dollars—for Massachusetts students.

"Massachusetts faces four challenges to its quality of life," Cronin said: quality of life, especially in the support of the arts; quality of environment, especially in the protection of air, land and waterway; quality of careers, with the option for women in particular to resume education at any point; quality of education, stressing the need for assistance to needy students as more of a priority than "bricks and mortar."

Sage named alumni trustee

The executive committee of the alumni council at Colby College has announced the election of Robert Sage of Newton as alumni trustee.

A member of the class of 1949, Sage has been chairman of the council since June 1972 and was chairman of the college's alumni fund from 1969-1971.

A member of the class of 1949, Sage has been chairman of the council since June 1972 and was chairman of the college's alumni fund from 1969-1971.

He replaces Arthur Thompson, 1940, on the Colby Board, who has resigned to head the overseas graduate programs of Boston University. Thompson is former dean of the College of Engineering at theuniversity.

President and owner of the Fenway Motor Hotels, Sage is president of the Parker Hill Medical Center and a director of the University Bank & Trust Company, both of Roxbury, and vice president of the New England Innkeepers Assoc.

Heads hospital

Dr. Nasire A. Khan, 34, of Newton has been named superintendent of Danvers State Hospital.

Khan has been acting head of the hospital since March when he was moved in to replace former Supt. Dr. Peter B. Hagopina.

Hagopian resigned to go to work at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Brockton.

Nurses retiring

Tworegistered nurses who have contributed a total of 67 years to Newton-Wellesley Hospital will retire this month. A reception honoring them was held Wednesday, May 22, at the Hospital.

Gertrude O'Brien, administrative supervisor of the Nursing Service, and Elizabeth Porter, supervisor of the Outpatient Clinic and Employee Health Service, retire after contributing 41 and 26 years of service respectively. Both have held a number of positions during their careers at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

A graduate of the Newton-Wellesley School of Nursing and a past president of its Alumnae Association, Miss O'Brien was head nurse for six years in a male surgical ward where she also instructed in urology. She structured the supervisory pattern for student nurses during her years as a clinical instructor and initiated the Nursing Service's orientation program for new employees. She recently received the American Nursing Association's honorary pin for her contribution to nursing.

Miss Porter was an instructor in the School of Nursing until 1965 when she began her work in the Outpatient Clinic. She received her nurses training at the New York Hospital, Cornell Medical Center and earned a bachelor's degree in public health nursing from the Boston University School of Nursing.

Miss Porter plans to retire to Peterborough, N.H., where she owns a home. Miss O'Brien will pursue her interests in traveling, classical music, poetry and history.

Dr. Mayer to lecture at hospital on June 10

Dr. Jean Mayer, professor of nutrition at Harvard, will be the Fried Lecture speaker at Newton-Wellesley Hospital Monday, June 10 at 8:30 p.m. in Usen Auditorium. He will speak on "Nutrition Policy and Health Risk Factors."

In addition to being a professor of nutrition, Mayer is a lecturer on the history of public health, a member of the Center for Population Studies and Master of Dudley House. An expert on the mechanism of regulation of food intake and the developments of experimental and human obesities, Mayer was chairman of the first White House conference on food, nutrition and Health.

He is currently a member of the President's Consumer Advisory Council, chairman of its Health Committee and chairman of the National Nutrition Policy Conference to be conducted in Washington, D.C. in June.

Head of the United Nations Task Force on Child Nutrition, Mayer has served as a member of the Nutrition Division of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO), and as a consultant to FAO, World Health Organization and UNICEF. He led a technical mission to wartime Biafra in 1969.

The Fried Lecture series is open to the public.

Stone Institute elects officers

The annual meeting of Stone Institute was held on Thursday, May 16, at the Home, 277 Elliot Street, Newton Upper Falls, with the president, Philip C. Raye, presiding.

Elected to serve as officers for the coming year were Philip C. Raye, president; and Ralph K. Behr, vice president, both of Wellesley; Charles M. Cutler and Mrs. Elmore I. MacPhie, vice presidents; Ernest G. Angevine, clerk; Thomas H. Adams, Jr., treasurer; William T. Glidden 3rd, of Duxbury, assistant treasurer; and Mrs. F. Brittain Kennedy of Cohasset, secretary to the executive committee.

New directors are Mrs. Francis F. Crisci, Newton Upper Falls, and Mrs. Marie G. Losee, Needham.

The directors were reminded that Stone Institute's home for aged people can accommodate 24 residents between the ages of 65 and 81 on a contract basis and those 65 and over who wish boarding privileges. It is a nonprofit, non denominational home receiving no public assistance and observing no geographical limitations.

Fights spice American league baseball action

"Thou shalt not throw at a batter...but if thou dost, be prepared to defend thyself."

That old cardinal rule of baseball was violated twice in the American League Wednesday night, causing two near riots and resulting in the loss of one player for at least three weeks.

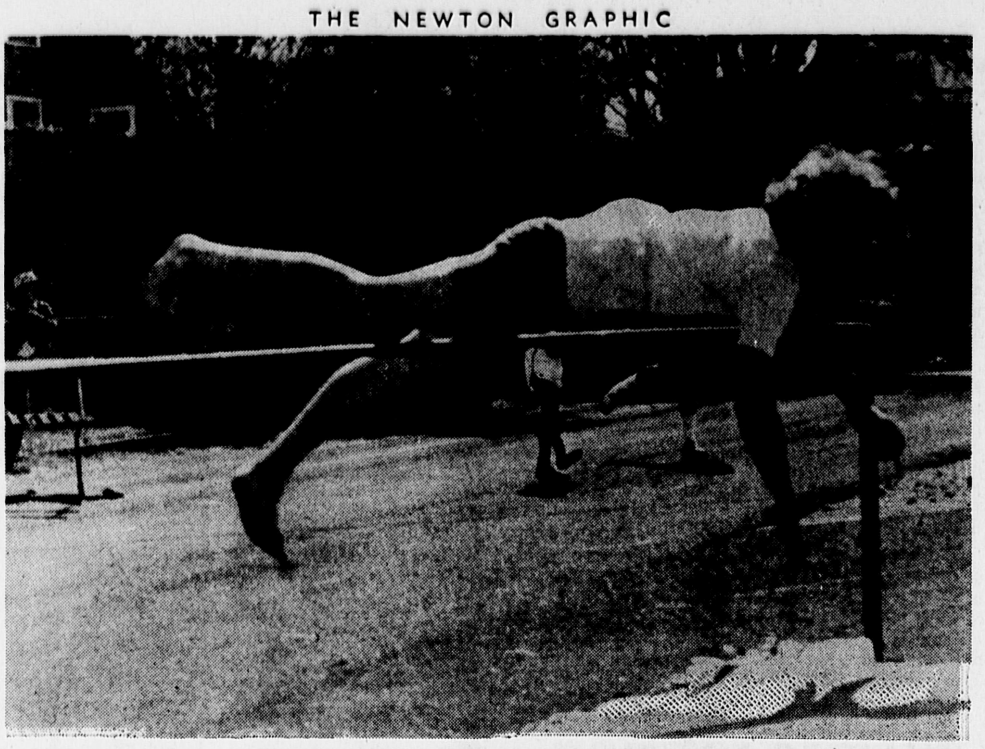

The first incident occurred at Arlington, Tex., where Len Randle of the Texas Rangers touched off a fight with relief pitcher Milt Wilcox of the Cleveland Indians in the eighth inning that resulted in a full-scale fight between both clubs and ended up with several of the Indians' players attempting to go after some Texas fans.

A second fight tookplace in Anaheim, Calif., when Bobby Valentine of California and pitcher Clyde Wright of Milwaukee tussled in the first inning, causing both benches to empty and resulting in a dislocated shoulder for Valentine which will sideline the Angels' left fielder for about three weeks.

Batters Interpreted

Both incidents were triggered by close pitches which the batters interpreted as being meant for their heads. In the Cleveland-Texas game, Wilcox started the trouble by throwing a pitch inside that bounced at Randle's feet. Randle then laid down a bunt which Wilcox fieleed and when the Indian pitcher tried to tag Randle out, the two became engaged in a fight.

Both benches cleared and it took the umpires almost 10 minutes to restore order. Then, some Indian players, angered over the debris thrown into their dugout by the fans, at-

Outbound

By JIM WHITE

By good fortune my wonderful wife, my twopand-a-half-year old daughter, and I are spending a week outbound. We are doing some fresh and salt water fishing; taking a few nature photographs, and as always meeting new and interesting people. While we are on our short but relaxing sojourn, I would like to remind my readers of the basic premise of this column by repeating a paragraph from one of my previous articles.

"This column is directed to those of you who find a certain enjoyment, independence, or fulfillment in pursuing the activities of the field, the stream and the mountains. Hopefully, it will become a stopping place, a temporary haven for reflection and discussion, a warm dancing campfire around which we can spin some yarns and swap some lies. OUTBOUND is for those who seek companionship as well as those who value their soliditude."

In time I hope to get better acquainted with al my readers. Besides meeting you in the fields, streams, and mountains I would like to hear from you by mail. Any correspondence, however seemingly lengthly or trivial to you, will be valued by me as a treasure to be acknowledged. Please address all mail to:

Today's sports parade

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sparky Anderson was watching closely. He was concentrating on this one man particularly because he wanted to see for himself, find out personally how much there really was to all the stories he'd been hearing.

The man Sparky Anderson was watching was Tom Seaver, and on the night in question, last Monday night, the Cincinnati Reds clipped him for three runs in the first inning and eventually beat him and the New York Mets, 4-2.

That brought Seaver's record to 2-5, not so good for the fellow supposed to be the best pitcher around. That also ballooned his earned run average to 3.90, not so slick for someone making $170,000. Finally, it flushed all the vultures out of the trees again cackling...he's doesn't have it anymore!...he's lost it! Not so surprising given the general mood of the times wherein the more you knock somebody who has achieved anything, the more of an authority you become.

Grab Him

"The biggest mistake anybody could possibly make would be to think Tom Seaver isn't the number one pitcher in baseball," says Sparky Anderson. "He is for my money. You know what Yogi Berra says. Go talk to all the other managers and see if they'd take him. Here's one who'd grab him."

What gives me a laugh is those who know the least about pitching are always Seaver's loudest critics.

There are more theories on pitching than there are letters in the alphabet. Every pitching coach has his own ideas on the subject. Most agree on one point, however. Anytime a pitcher, especially one who relies as heavily on his fastball as Seaver does, loses a little off it, he invariably does the same thing. He tries throwing harder. It's perfectly natural, almost an involuntary action. They all do it.

They try to throw harder than they can, and lose body control. It's the same as when a hitter tries to swing too hard. He misses the ball. Or it's like trying to run faster than you can. What happens? You fall.

With pitchers, when they start throwing harder than they are capable of doing, their ball frequentlz straightens up. It may seem to them their ball is going toward the plate faster, but it isn't. The worst thing that can happen to any pitcher is for his ball to come into the hitter straight as a string, without any spin or movement on it.

On Occasion

What fools the hitters most is when a ball takes off, rides, or moves, as they say in the dugouts. ot all pitchers can throw a fastball which moves all the time. Nolan Ryan can; Bert Blyleven can; Tom Seaver could and still can on occasion.

Pitchers who lose a little off their fastball try throwing harder for awhile, then they adjust. The smart ones do. Tom Seaver is one of the smart ones. Just as sure as he wears No. 41 on his uniform, he'll adjust. He has begun to already —to a degree.

Spahn started out primarily as a fastball pitcher, and when he began losing a little, he started changing speeds and gradually making the screwball his No. 1 pitch. Ford, near the end, added a hard breaking ball, a pitch that was bigger than a slider. Roberts, like most, hated to say bye-bye to his fastball but he went to changing speeds and depending upon a slider.

Recreation notes

Softball league underway

Twi-league Softball

The weather has cooperated and the Newton Twilight Softball season is moving along on schedule. In the third week of play, the top teams are: "A" Division, Silver Lake Dodge, 6-0, Bryant Club, 4-1, and the Troubadours, 4-1; "B" Division, Post 24, 6-0, Elks, 5-0 and Oak Hill AA, 4-1; and "C" Division, Heshal Club, 5-0; Newton Centre Playground 5-0, and St. Regis Paper, 5-1.

Adult Tennis Lessons

The initial series of adult tennis classes started on May 21. There are still openings in the second session scheduled to begin on Tuesday, June 11 Interested Newton residents may register by calling the Newton Recreation Department, 969-3171.

The lessons are held at the Newton Highlands Tennis Courts. The second session will be held on Wednesdays and Fridays, in the morning and evening. Instructors are Leon Geller and Steve Freeman. The classes teach the basic fundamentals of tennis

Swim Team Registration

Candidates interested in swimming for the Newton Swim Team should register at the Newton North High Pool Tuesday, June 4, or Thursday, June 6, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. They should use the Hull Street entrance. The team will begin practice the week of June 18.

Scheduled meets will be held at the Newton North High School Pool on Tuesday, and or Thursday nights beginning in July. All swim competition will be against other suburban communities in the Suburban Swim League.

Women's Suburban Basketball

The first practice for the Newton women's Suburban Basketball team will be held at the Newton North High School gym on Sunday, June 2, at 5 p.m.

Coach Fran Towle suggests that all interested candidates contact the Recreation Department, 969-3171, to register, and plan to attend the first practice session on June 2.

The team's first game will be played on Tuesday, June 18 at 8:30 p.m. at Cabor Park. All games will be scheduled on Tuesdays and Thurdays with league teams on a home basis in the Southern Division.

Exercise and Dance Class

The exercise and dance class sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department has started at the Newton Centre Field House on Tyler Terrace. Classes are held Tuesday and Thursdays from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m., under the direction of Amy Morris. Those interested in participating should register in Recreation Department at 969- by calling the Newton

There are many creeps in the world of sports

Commentary by Eddie Andelman

I am honored that the management of Transcript Newspapers has asked this humble, fat, yet wildly attractive sports commentator to be a regular contributor to their sports spice column, and it's my pledge that the space will be devoted to humor, satire, controversy and individual opinions, unencumbered by the favor-granting and loyalty demanding establishment, which controls the Boston sports scene.

It has been and will continue to be my sincere philosophy, that sports should be fun, and not looked upon as an orthodox religion. What was once the wonderful wide world of sports, has now been reduced to a group of powerful but creepy classless corporate individuals, basically running the only game in town, and taking full financial advantage of their unique monopolistic position.

So on with the business at hand, and remember, if you do not accept this column in the right spirit, then your membership card in the Bobby Orr Fan Club may be revoked, and then just where would you be able to buy high mark-up official Bobby Orr souvenirs, so necessary today in order to be somewhat socially acceptable.

It was far cheaper for the Philadelphia Flyers to pay Kate Smith $15,000 to sing 'God Bless America', than to be responsible for feeding her. And while on the subject of food, a fan is much better off eating boiled hot dogs at Fenway Park before the third inning, because after that, the same water becomes polluted due to constant re-usage.

If World Team Tennis makes it, then World Team Roller Skating Dance Championships has a chance too. Is there a single drum and bugle corps left without ability, which has not appeared at a Patriots halftime show? The Notre Dame-Boston College game is only 515 days away, which means it's only 516 days till B.C. drops varsity football.

These three hot rumors are still circulating around Boston:

— The American Dental Society is secretly financing Pee Wee, Bantum and Midget youth hockey activities as a sound investmen in their financial future, by insuring no empty times in their appointment books.

— Bobby Schmautz lost in a special one on one competition to an open net - 5 to 4.

— Colonel Sanders and Tom Yawkey are really the same person.

The best sports books of the year, "Mad Ducks and Bears", George Plimpton; "Cut 'N Run", Frank Deford and "Semi Tough", Dan Jenkins. The three which should be removed from the library of Congress, are those "as told to" type literary atrocities by Joe Namath, Jack Nicklaus and Howard Cosell.

Little League beggars who tie up traffic shoua be stripped of their custom made uniforms and whacked in the rear with fungo bats. Replacing Eddie Kasko with Darryl Johnson, is like pinch hitting Johnny Bench for Horace Clark.

Since the Canadien government has seen fit to bar the World Football League from Toronto and severely limits the number of Americans allowed on each C.F.L. roster, how about limiting the number of Canadiens on each National Hockey League roster to make more room for Americans, and moving the Montreal Expos to Mexico City of Tokyo. After all, turn about is fair play.

There can be little or no justification for any team to demand season ticket money in advance, without paying bank interest to the consumer for the use of his money. The government forces the telephone company, the electric company and landlord to pay interest on funds held as security deposits, so why in the sacred and revered name of Clyde Klutz should the greedy owners of sports franchises be allowed to take advantage of the "working stiff" type of sports fan? Can you imagine Stop & Shop demanding grocery payments in advance for the whole year?

The addition of Jim Woods to work along with Ned Martin on Red Sox radio broadcasts shows me that the new management running WHDH is not entirely incompetent.

"That Championship Season", a powerful drama concerning the 20th reunion of a Pennsylvania high school basketball team, opens at the Colonial Theatre onf May 27th, and is a must for overbearing parents who push their children into organized sports. Just as "The Diary of Ann Frank" shocked the world into a realization of the Nazi atrocities, "That Championship Season" with the same type of dramatic impact, clearly points out that our entire sports world is sick from hero worshipping, adulation and the theory of winning at all costs.

The American League East is so weak, the Red Sox even with more injuries, should win their division by 8 to 10 games, but Oakland will win the American League pennant in spite of Charlie Finley, because they have the most talent.

Bob Gamere is a great guy, but would you want your sister to marry anyone who hosts Candlepins for Cash?

What in the world ever became of Joe Palooka, Mike Derrek, Ben Swain and Gene Stephenson?

I'd like to go see the Lobsters play, but nobody knows where the Walter Brown Rink is located.

June 3 to be Blood Donor Day at Newton-Wellesley Hospital

Residenst of the Newton–Weston community are invited to join personnel and medical staff at Newton-Wellesley Hospital's annual spring Blood Donor Day Monday, June 3, from 10 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. in the Hospital's Usen Auditorium.

Advance appointments are helpful in planning staffing for the Red Cross Bloodmobile and should be made through the Hospital's pathology laboratory, 244-2800, Ext. 357.

Blood Donor Day Chairman Dr. RalphH. Scott emphasizes the importance of a good turnout since the availability of donations generally declines during the summer vacation period eventhough the need for blood remains constant. In the three-month period of June, July and August, Scott estimates that Newton–Wellesley Hospital alone will need 610 pints of blood to meet its normal needs.

Last year Newton–Wellesley's blood bank used 2,443 pints of blood received from the American Red Cross, other hospitals and voluntay donors. How much blood a hospital keeps in its blood bank depends upon the needs of the individual hospital, but it is generally a function of the number of beds the hospital has, according to Scott.

The Hospital's blood bank stocks eight different groups and types of blood, A, B, O and AB positive and A, B, O and AB negative. They are stored in plastic bags with pertinent information recorded on them and are kept in a refrigerator carefully regulated just above freezing, between one and six degrees centigrade.

After whole blood has been stored for 21 days in the bank, it has reached its expiration point, and its red blood cell content can no longer be given to patients.

Each day the pathology laboratory calls the Red Cross Clearing House and requests the amount and type of blood Newton-Wellesley estimates it will need that day. Excess blood can be returned to the Red Cross for use in other hospitals if it is within seven days prior to expiration.

One blood donation annually entitles immediate blood coverage in any hospital in the United States and Canada for the donor, his or her spouse, dependent children, and parents and grandparents of the donor and his spouse.

Donors should be between 17 and 66 years old (17-year-olds must have written parental or guardian consent) and should weigh at least 110 pounds. They should eat a balanced meal within four hours prior to donation, avoiding fatty food, and should get a normal night's rest the night before. No one who has had jaundice or hepatitis can be accepted as a donor.

Doctor goes to Israel

Dr. Ascher J. Segall of Newton, associate professor of epidemiology at the Harvard School of Public Health, left recently for Israel where he will spend a year helping to implement a new curriculum at the new Beersheba Medical School.

The new facility, the first of its kind in Israel, will be specifically oriented toward primary medicine and health care delivery. Under the proposed curriculum, students will be exposed to clinical work at a much earlier stage of their training in conjunction with classroom experience.

Reservoir grounds reopened

The Metropolitan District Commission has reopened the Chestnut Hill reservoir grounds to the public.

The grounds were closed to public use last Nov. 1 because of misue by many individuals. At that time it was announced that M.D.C. officials would review the situation at a later date to see if there had been improvements in the situation. M.D.C. Commissioner John W. Sears said recently improvement had been noted and that the grounds are being reopened on a limited and managed basis for the spring and summer seasons.

"We certainly want to thank the public for its efforts since last fall," he noted. "There has been an encouraging response to our pleas for cooperation and we hope that with the reopening it will continue."

Police patrolling in the area of the Chestnut Hill reservoir grounds has been beefed up and the M.D.C. hopes that a standing committee can be formed in the near future to assure constant cooperation by the public and a regular opening of the grounds on a seasonal basis.

Summer courses

The Scholastic Achievement Center in Newton is offering summer courses for different age groups.

A reading development and study skills course for high school students will be given in morning, afternoon and evening sessions. The study skills course is also available to junior high schools students preparing to enter high school.

A diagnosis and remediation program will be offered for children with learning disabilities. This work will be done on a one-to-one basis and will be designed to reinforce the learning skills which have been taught in the schools during the academic year.

Eldridge honored

Raymon Eldridge, a resident of 27 Mountfort Road, Newton Highlands, was honored recently at the fifty-third Annual Meeting of the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

Eldridge, who retired this year as an active member of the Association's board of directors, has served for 35 years as a volunteer on almost every committee or task force appointed to serve the progress of the Christmas Seal Agency. He will now serve as an honorary vice-president with a life membership in the Association.

In addition to his activities with the Lung Association, Edlridge is very active in the affairs of the Massachusetts Teachers' Retirement Association.

BRUCE D. DANNENBERG of Waban has won a 1974 Cabot Scholarship, one of 20 given to children of Cabot Corp. employees. Each $1,000 scholarship is renewable for four years. He will graduate in June from Roxbury Latin School and plans to attend the University of Vermont. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Eli M. Dannenberg of 478 Quinobequin Rd.

Forum on mental health report set for June 3

An open public forum on the recommendations that the Department of Mental Health phase down all state hospitals and increase community-based care for the mentally ill will be held next week.

The regional meeting is slated for 1:30 - 4:30 p.m. on Monday, June 3, at St. Mary's Parochial School Auditorium, 410 High Street, Dedham.

Dr. Gershen Rosenblum, mental health administrator for Region V, said that local citizens and professionals are invited to hear the proposals explained and to make their views known.

Also in attendance will be Dr. William Goldman, commissioner of mental health, staff from the Department of Mental Health and staff from the United Community Planning Corporation. The U.C.P.C. completed an 18-month study of deinstitutionalization and presented their report to Governor Sargent in February, 1974.

The report calls for a five-year phasedown of all mental hospitals and the development instead of community-based delivery system of services for acutely and chronically ill persons.

Chairing the meeting will be Dr. Rosenblum. The following associate area directors will also be on hand: Sonia Robinson, Medfield-Norwood Area; Edward Sahatjian, Newton-Wellesley-Weston Area; Marvin Dobrow, Greater Framingham Area; Harry Shulman, South Shore Area; and Abraham Stadlen, Westboro,Marlboro Area.

This meeting is the first of seven regional public meetings to be held under the auspices of the Department of Mental Health.

Heads hospital 'Musical feast'

The Friends of the New England Consevatory are planning "a musical feast" in a private rose garden in Chestnut Hill.

At least 700 guests and committee members will gather in costume June 16 to listen to music by the conservatory's students, join in round robin tennis and play croquet on the lawn.

Entertainment will include the Grammy-award winning NEC Ragtime Ensemble, the Chamber Singers, a string quartet and a brass ensemble.

Mrs. Richard T. O'Connell of Chestnut Hill is the chairman of the event. Mrs. Richard I. Johnson of Newton is on her committee.

League of Women Voters conducts annual meeting

The League of Women Voters of Newton held its annual meeting Wednesday, May 22, at the Newton Highlands Congregational Church.

The business meeting was preceded by a social hour and dinner.

The highlight of the evening was the announcement by President Miriam Erlich that the ordinance drafted by the League of Women Voters of Newton on the procedures for sale of city land was unanimously approved by the Board of Aldermen May 20.

This is the first legislation that the Newton league has drafted.

The new ordinance requires that the City Planning Department and the aldermanic City Planning Committee determine whether land proposed for sale should be sold or retained for the city. If approved for sale, advertised public hearings must then be held before the land can be sold. Mrs. Erlich commended Ellen Lipson, Beverly Smith, and Aita Capeless on their efforts in drafting and lobbying for the ordinance.

Mrs. Erlich chaired the meeting. Florence Rubin, president of the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts, was parliamentarian. The elected board for the next year consists of officers Miriam Erlich, Judy Obermayer, Beverly Smith, Elaine Leppo, Stephanie Martin, and Patricia Keller. Directors are Bonnie Carter, Ann DeRosier, Kathleen Eichberg, Natalie Fisher, Judy Lavine, Jane Leighton, Elizabeth Lieberman, Arlene Lowney, Sieglinde Martin, and Beverly Zweiman. Esther Rosenthal, chairwoman, Mary Adelstein, and Mary Morrison are the nominating committee.

Elaine Leppo reported on the national convention of the League of Women Voters held May 6-10 in San Francisco. Six members represented the Newton League at the convention which will be remembered as the convention that approved giving full league membership rights to menn.

The nation program for 1974-76 includes an expansion of the study of representative government to cover an evaluation of the role of the executive branch.

Programs in environment, land use, and human resources will be continued. The delegates also approved the formation of an energy task force charged with producing "energy related materials to further league and public understanding and to produce recommendations to be used as a basis for league discussion, concurrence, and action." Leaguers throughout the country had collected 600,000 signatures in support of campaign financing reform.

Beverly Smith reported on the State Council held May 21 in Auburn. Two delegates from Newton attended. The Massachusetts League of Women Voters will conduct a mini-study on gun control.

The members adopted two local study items, one in education and one in human resources.

The scope of the education item is community planning too deal with the effects of the declining school population and the utilization of existing school facilities.

The scope of the human resources item is ways of retaining and increasing the existing stock of low and moderate income housing; special emphasis is on the issue of accessory apartments.

The local action priorities are implementation of library support positions, and mental health support positions.

Lyn Weiner, second vice president, reported on two bills prsently before the Massachusetts Legislature. One bill is titled "An Act to Protect Unborn Children and Maternal Health Within Present Constitutional Limits" and the other bill would outlaw important research using fetal tissue. The League of Women Voters of Massachusetts is lobbying against these bills and members were urged to register their opposition to them.

Newton State Representative Lois Pines, a Newton league member, discussed the bills and emphasized the importance of voters registering their opposition to the bills with the governor and their state senator and representatives.

Fishman bills strengthen consumer protection laws

Senator Irving Fishman's 1974 consumer-protection legislative program is moving closer to becoming law. His bills regulating health clubs and trade schools, credit cards, and consumer credit have all advanced through the Senate and to the House. Fishman's unit-pricing bill was recently signed into law by the governor.

Last fall, in response to a substantial number of complaints received by the Consumers' Council concerning the behavior of some members of the health club, trade, and correspondence school industries, Fishman filed legislation designed to check abuses by service providers who use the type of contract by which the consumer becomes obligated to pay for services he or she has not yet received, and, in some cases, never recieves.

Fishman's bill is designed to correct the problem by making the consumer liable only for those services he or she actually receives and also would strictly limit penalty charges should the consumer wish to discontinue services covered by the contract.

"The legislation (S 1632) provides for a pro rata refund minus reasonable contract termination expenses, which can be either fifty dollars or five per cent of the contract, whichever is less," Sen. Fishman said.

Another Fishman consumer bill enacted in the Senate and now in the House is his credit card bill, which would facilitate action on consumer complaints against merchants on purchases made with credit cards.

It would allow a card holder to notify the credit card issuer concerning a complaint against a seller. The credit card issuer would then simply charge that amount back against the seller. The merchant and consumer-cardholder would then adjust the problem, outside the area of credit cards and finance charges.

"It eliminates the credit card issuer as middleman in dealing with consumer complaints," Fishman said. "It is clearly the most logical way to handle such a transaction where holder-in-due-course status cannot be asserted, and provides a uniform procedure by which the consumer can receive the full benefits of Massachusetts' consumer protection law."

Sen. Fishman's bill extending enforcement authority of the unit-pricing law to local officials was signed into law by the governor last week.

"The unit-pricing law, like other consumer protection laws, is not self-executing," Fishman said. It is only as effective as its enforcement.

"Currently there are only 14 inspectors available for unit-pricing enforcement in the 351 cities and towns of the Commonwealth. By extending enforcement authority to local weights and measures sealers, compliance checks can be conducted more frequently. This in turn will encourage store managers to be more conscientious in observing the law and give consumers the information they need to make accurate comparisons between differently packaged products."

Accountants pass exam

Three accountants from the Newton area have successfully passed the certificate in management accounting examination

Two candidates also earned the distringuished performance award for especially high scores, granted to only ten of the 550 tested. Of the group sitting, only 101 passed the required five parts of the two-and-one-half day examination.

To earn the certificate, an accountant must meet specific educational and related professional experience requirements, which Edwin R. Nelson, partner, Ernst & Ernst, James S. Reece, assistant professor and assistant director, Harvard University, and Jeffrey W. Traenkle, manager of financial analysis and control, Arthur D. Little, Inc., have fulfilled. The additional honor of distinguished performance has been conferred upon the two latter candidates.

Murray Road to host talks on environment

On Wednesday, June 5, at 2 p.m., Phil Tanimoto of the Murray Road School will give a slide presentation on "Ecology of the Carolinas—Coastland and Inland." On Thursday, June 6, at 2 p.m., Ms. Thelma Fleishman of the Newton Conservation Commission will give an informal talk on an historical perspective of land use in Newton."

The public is invited to all of these events. Child care will be provided at the Murray Road pre-school. For information, people may call Beth or Rosemary at 244-6279.

All the events will be at 35 Murray Rd., West Newton.

As part of its all-school conservation project, the Murray Road Annex of Newton North High School will host five speakers during the next week.

On Friday, May 31, Congressman Robert Drinan will speak at 2 p.m. On Monday, June 3, at 1:30 p.m., Grady E. Holcutt of the Great Meadows Natural Wildlife Refuge will participate in an informal discussion on wildlife conservation.

On Tuesday, June 4, at 2 p.m., Ms. Nanette Citron, assistant professor of economics at Providence College, will speak on "The Economics of Pollution."

Honeywell wins Explorers award

The William H. Spurgeon Award for 1974 was presented to Honeywell Information Systems at this month's Norumbega Council Recognition Dinner at the Wellesley Country Club.

Honeywell, the first industry to receive this award from the Norumbega Council, was recognized for its extensive activity in the Exploring program. Accepting the award on behalf of Honeywell was Robert P. Henderson, vice president and general manager of the firm's North American Operations, headquartered in Waltham.

The Spurgeon award was created by the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, in memory of William H. Spurgeon III. Spurgeon, often referred to as the "founding father" of contemporary Exploring, devoted much of his volunteer activity to developing Exploring as a meaningful and relevant program for high school age youth.

The award is presented annually to individuals or organizations that have gone far beyond the call of duty in support of the Explorer Movement.

Since the inception of the program in the Norumbega Council, Honeywell has helped form three Explorer Posts—Data Processing Post 534, Accounting Post 533, and Communications Post 511.

According to Adolph Anderson, Council Scout executive, "Honeywell's sponsorship of these posts has not only contributed significantly to the development of young adults in wellesley, Newton and Weston, but it has also greatly benefited the entire Exploring Program in this area."

Honored

JOHN E. Cox (left) and Warren W. Ooiver (right) recently got their 35-year pins from the Newton Rotary Club. Oliver was also named a Paul Harris Fellow, highest award given by Rotary International.

Retirement announced

After serving 12 years as dean of Boston University's School of Public Communication (SPC), Gerhart D. Wiebe, of 25 Lafayette road, Newton Lower Falls, is retiring.

The SPC Alumni Association has solicited donations from alumni, faculty, and friends of the school to establish a Gerhart D. Wiebe Scholarship Fund.

The five major donors to the fund were announced at the dean's farewell dinner on May 1: Leo Beranak, president of WCVB-TV, representing his station; Jack Rooney, an alumnus and president of Jon Jay Associates, leaving his donation in memory of Lewis Athanas; a journalism alumnus, Andy Blake, representing the Boston Globe; a representative of the Edward L. Bernays Foundation; and Tony Hurd, representing the SPC Student Government Asfociation.

Wiebe plans to retire to San Jose, Costa Rica.

Chamber forum looks at MBTA

"The MBTA Looks at Newton and Needham" will be the topic of a forum sponsored by the Economic Development Council of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce at 3 p.m., Tuesday, June 4, at Aquinas Junior College, Newton.

John T. Doolittle, Jr., chairman of the board of directors of the MBTA will make a presentation, to be followed by a brief panel discussion and question period.

John L. Vaccaro, CPA, vice president for the chamber's economic development council, will be moderator. Panelists will include Edward J. Bleiler, president of the E. J. Bleiler Equipment Co.; Henry D. Hersey, Needham selectman and member of the MBTA advisory board executive and budget committees; Dewey Mollomo, chairman of the chamber's transportation committee and Alice Wilson, president of the Newton Taxi Association.

Topics under consideration include rapid transit extension to Needham, express bus service, Riverside Line improvements and commuter rail.

Admission is free but reserved tickets are rwquired. They are available through the chamber office (244-5300) or at 437 Cherry St., West Newton.

Bankers' Association elects new president

Albert J. Rochette of Newton Centre, executive vice president of the Newton South Cooperative Bank, was elected president of the Newton Bankers' Association at its annual meeting on May 21 at Brae Burn Country Club, West Newton.

He succeeds George A. Munroe of Hyde Park, vice president of Community National Bank.

Other officers elected include John J. Nyhan of Weston, chairman of the board of University Bank & Trust Co., vice president of Newton Cooperative Bank, treasurer; and Harold L. Goldsmith of Arlington, assistant treasurer of West Newton Savings Bank, secretary. David R. Donald of Needham, treasurer of Newton Savings Bank served as chairman of the nominating committee.

Members of the association and their guests were addressed by Newton Mayor Theodore D. Mann, who commented on several city programs now underway. Joseph B. Manello, Esq., partner in Widett & Widett, Boston law firm was the principal speaker. Manello spoke on "Implications of the Consumer Revolution," with particular reference to the "Truth in Lending" law as it applies to banking.

Other head table guests included James P. Del Rossi, director of savings bank examinations, Commonwealth of Massachusetts; John F. Giblin, assistant director of trust company examinations, Commonwealth of Massachusetts and David J. Coleman, director of cooperative bank examnations.

Goodwill Auxiliary to present fashion show in Newtonville

The Goodwill Auxiliary to Morgan Memorial will present its fashion show, "Styles Through The Years," to the Order of the Eastern Star, June 4, at the Masonic Hall, 460 Newtonville Avenue, Newtonville.

The business meeting will begin at 6:45 p.m. followed by the fashion show at 8 p.m.

Miss Doris Fogg is worthy matron, and Eugene Watertown is worthy patron. They are both of Newton.

The Goodwill fashion parade was created four years ago by Mrs. Mildred Churchill of Watertown. She is also the commentator of the show. The show is unique because of its rarely-seen styles and because it incorporates the story of Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries, the first Goodwill, in its presentation.

Most of the styles in the fashion parade are antiques. Some date as far back as 1800. Most period are represented up until the present day. The show has everything from highlaced shoes and ostrich-plumed hats to hot pants and midi-coats. A highlight is the display of undergarments from the year 1800.

The entire production staff is composed of Goodwill Auxiliary members. They volunteer their time to do two or three fashion shows a week.

The fashion show models are not all female. Byron Churchill of Watertown plays piano and Frank McDewell of Everett models an old-fashioned swimsuit and nightshirt. The two men are co-holders of the Goodwill Volunteer of the Year Award for 1972.

Miss Rosemary Miller of Everett, Volunteer of the Year for 1973, is in the show also.

Other models include Mrs. Rita Butt of Everett, Mrs. Hermine Stevens of Belmont, Mrs. Betty LaMarca of Belmont, Mrs. Ruth Helms of Lexington, Mrs. Marion McDewell and her daughter Deborah of Everett, Mrs. Barbara Ericson and sometimes her four-year-old daughter Kristin of Everett, Mrs. Hilda Holbrook of Reading, Mrs. Olive Theodore of Belmont, Mrs. Ruth Brown of Everett, and Mrs. Lois Mehrabien of Arlington.

During the four years they have appeared before more than 31,000 people in 402 performances. They have traveled over 20,000 miles contributing more than 18,000 volunteer hours to Goodwill. The fashion show has been booked solidly through June.

The Morgan Memorial Goodwill Centers are made up of Goodwill Industries in Boston, Lynn and Worcester, the Day Care Center in Boston, the Goodwill Camps in South Athol, and the Goodwill Inn School in Dorchester. Over 1,900 men, women and children were served by Morgan Memorial Goodwill Centers last year through work adjustment, vocational training, comprehensive evaluation, and rehabilitation services.

Boys' Club dinner on June 12

The twentieth annual awards dinner of the Newton Boys' Club will be held on Wednesday, June 12, at 7 p.m. at the Newton Catholic High School Cafeteria.

This announcement came recently from W. Edward Wilson, a member of the board of directors and general chairman of this year's celebration.

Some 165 Boys' Club members in the company of their parents, relatives and invited guests are to be honored with trophies and awards they will receive for their participation and outstanding achievements through the 1973-1974 season.

William E. Halliday, president of the Newton Boys' Club will welcome the group and Msgr. John J. McManmon, pastor of Our Lady's Parish and a member of the board of directors will give the invocation. Chairman W. Edward Wilson will serve as master of ceremonies.

Masonic Associates pick new president

At its recent annual meeting, the Newton Masonic Associates, Inc., elected the followng slate of officers: Ernst O. Seyfarth, president; George E. Smith, vice president; Donald S. Bishop, treasurer; Charles E. Smith, clerk; George E. Higgins, assistant treasurer; Southard Lippincott, building committee chairman.

The Masonic Associates' membership is composed of delegates from 14 Masonic bodies who meet regularly and hold their Masonic functions in the Masonic Temple at 460 Newtonville Ave.

The new president is a 32nd degree Mason and a past master of Norumbega Lodge. A practicing attorney for the past 37 years, he has been a resident of Newton for 36 years.

He succeeds Russell S. Broad who recently retired and had occupied the cair for many years with distinction, and under whose leadership Masonic Hall in its maintenance and operations was kept at the highest standard of safety and efficiency.

SUSAN M. BLACKINGTON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Blackington of Newton, was named to the newly-created position of florist specialist for Star Markets. She is a graduate of Our Lady's School and earned an associate's degree from Bryant & Stratton. She began her career with Star Market in 1967 and was later selected as a Star management development trainee.

Auburndale Co-operative Bank has annual meeting, elects officers

Theodore Scafidi

Byron Weber

At the annual meeting of the Auburndale Co-operative Bank, Byron H. Weber was elected assistant vice-president and assistant treasurer and Theodore L. Scafidi was elected a director.

Weber, who came to the Auburndale Co-operative Bank in Jyly, 1973, was formerly treasurer of the North Abington Co-operative Bank. Scafidi, treasurer of the City of Newton, is filling a vacancy created by the retirement of Edmund J. MacDonald.

Directly following the meeting, a dinner was held at the Mill Falls Restaurant. Directors, officers, office personnel and their spouses joined to honor MacDonald in his retirement. He has served as a director of the bank for 24 years.

Officers reelected were: John A. Shaw, president; Warren A. Sutherland, vice president, and Helen E. Betten, treasurer. DIRECTORS REELECTED WERE: George N. Chamberlain, Jr., Russell A. Howard, William M. Noble, Jr., Warren A. Sutherland and William F. White.

Grand Opening held By Norwood Mazda

Norwood Mazda, the rotary engine automobile dealership on Route 1, Norwood, held the grand opening of a new building showroom and service department last Saturday.

Paul Birmingham and Brian Maloney are the owners of the Mazda dealership.

The location on Route 1, occupies more than two acres, with space available for the showing of over 100 Mazda cars. The building covers over 20,000 square feet, with offices, service, parts and paint dept.

Compared with a typical six or eight cylinder piston engine producing the same power, the rotary engine is only about half the size and weight, and far simpler, with only three basic internal moving parts.

The rotary engine is able to operate perfectly on the lowest octane available.

In 1973, more than 600,000 Mazda vehicles were produced, of which approximately 120,000 were sold in the United States.

Norwood Mazda will continue their Grand Opening celebration through the end of May and welcome everyone to come in and see and test drive the revolutionary new Mazda.

As a climax to the Open House a beautiful Alcort Sunfish sailboat will be given away free. No obligation, just come in and register.

Summer volunteers for Science Museum

The Museum of Science is calling for summer volunteers.

Adult volunteers are invited to join the corps of Visitor Guides. Teenagers are in demand for a variety of assignments, from giving free tours to inner-city children or serving as sales clerks in the gift shop to caring for animals.

As Visitor Guides, men and women with some experience in science or science hobbies, and in dealing with the public or possessing a background in education help visitors obtain an understanding of exhibits. First broadening their own knowledge through training sessions, the guides then talk informally with visitors to point out aspects of an exhibit that might otherwise be missed, to suggest related exhibits, and to answer questions.

Frequently the guides take along "pocket props," such as a stethoscope with which visitors may listen to their own hearts, an abacus which visitors may compare to the computer, or a piece of petrified wood or animal bone, the first perhaps that the visitors have examined.

Included in the guides' training are special demonstrations and explanations of exhibits given by Museum staff members.

Guides are required to make a commitment of an afternoon a week during July and August and another half-day once a month for training. Prospective guides may also sign up now for work next fall when the same amount of time must be committed.

In becoming junior volunteers, young people between 14 and 18 have an opportunity to gain useful experience and at the same time assist the Museum.

The majority of openings are in Project Eye-Opener.

Here the volunteers get acquainted with two or three little inner-city children at a time. They escort them through the exhibit halls where the reality of three-dimensional objects previously known only through television makes an impact; they encourage them to touch and hold unfamiliar live animals; and they make the new museum experience a pleasurable one.

Volunteers fluent in Spanish are especially valuable in enabling Spanish-speaking children to take full advantage of their visit.

In the Museum's gift shop, volunteers sell, arrange display cases, and take inventory. In other parts of the Museum they may assist with carpentry or office work. Opportunities are sometimes available for those with special talents to work with individual members of the staff.

To make an appointment for an interview, both adult and teenage volunteers should call the Volunteer Office at 723-2500, ext. 259.

The Museum welcomes junior volunteers aged 13 and older in the Live Animal Room as Aides or Junior Curators. This group feeds and cares for the animals that are used in demonstrations and courses. To discuss requirements, those interested should call the Live Animal Center directly, at extension 340.

Chelsea porcelain collection at Museum

The Museum of Fine Arts has assembled its 18th century Chelsea Porcelain collection, one of the foremost in the country, for exhibition through August. Focusing exclusively on work from Chelsea, this exhibition provides a comprehensive view of the art produced in the most famous of English porcelain factories.

Over one hundred porcelain objects, characterized by exquisite modeling and painting, are included in this exhibition. Each piece represents the work of several craftsmen specially skilled in one aspect of a highly complex process. The imaginatively designed figurines and wares, which includes vases, cups, saucers, tureens and many other useful objects, were made both by mold casting and free modeling techniques.

Chelsea was founded in 1747-8 to imitate and rival porcelains from the Orient and Meissen, Germany. Chelsea craftsmen borrowed decorative motifs from the Oriental porcelains and copied the stances and poses of figures in the works from Meissen.

They found a valuable design source in the natural forms of fruits and vegetables and exotic and domestic birds and animals. Such picturesque models as rat-catchers, fruit vendors, flower girls and hurdy-gurdy players from the contemporary scene and mythological creatures also inspired the creative Chelsea craftsmen.

More tornadoes strike Texas on the average each year than any other state.

Mountaineers from all around the world have climbed in the St. Elias Range, the summit of which forms the boundary of AXLASKA AND THE Yukon Territory.

The Chicago Commission on Human Relations processed around 2,200 complaints of discrimination in 1973.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

DANDELIONS IN LAWNS: Is there an easy way to get rid of dandelions in the lawn? With persistence you can knock them out with weedkillers; but chances are they'll be back again next year. Each seed is equipped with a parachute and can blow in from your neighbor's lawn. The best way to cope with dandelions is to eat them. Nothing beats dandelion greens, best cooked when young and tender. Some gardeners eat the roots like parsnips, peeled, sliced and double boiled. Try roasting and grinding the roots as a substitute for coffee.

The early colonists cooked dandelion leaves as a tonic against many disorders. Even the Indians made tea from the roots to relieve heartburn and cramps. We understand there's a company in Maine that has been canning dandelions and fiddlehead ferns since 1897. You can buy dandelion seed from many seed houses, in case you want to grow some in your garden.

Here's a recipe for making dandelion wine, thanks to Lawn Care. Pour boiling water on a gallon of dandelion flowers. Steep for several days, then strain. Add three pounds of sugar, one ounce of yeast, a gallon of water and two lemons. Cover crock and leave for one week in a warm room. Strain off wine, corking it with cotton and put in a cellar for 3 weeks. Decant, cork tightly or cap, and wait hopefully until winter.

NEWSPAPER LOGS: It's a shame to lug newspapers to the village dump when you can make them into fireplace logs for next winter. A newspaper log lasts about half an hour. The average weekday newspaper will make two or three logs, and the Sunday edition will make up to seven logs. Not only are newspaper logs about the same as wood as an energy source, but what other fuel is delivered to your doorstep each day?

FREE: Want to know how to make newspaper logs for next winter? Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of my bulletin, HOW TO MAKE NEWSPAPER LOGS. It even tells how to treat the logs so they will burn with different colors, as you do pine cones.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "We want to grow some herbs near our kitchen. Can they be grown in tubs or pots?"

Ans. Yes. Kitchen door herbs do well in tubs, pots, and hanging baskets. Try some mints, basil, thyme, sage, rosemary and parsley, to name a few.

Car options reflect needs, taste

By AUTOMOTIVE INFORMATION COUNCIL

The motor vehicle industry goes to great lengths to assure that - when you buy a new car - there is something available to suit everyone's basic needs, taste and pocketbook. One glance at the "optional equipment" section of any new car brochure illustrates the point.

If you prefer just a basic car for plain economical transportation you can select an automobile with only the basic necessities. If, on the other hand, you want extra comfort and convenience, or, you enjoy operating a lot of gadgets, car manufacturers make available a wide variety of optional equipment. Features such as automatic speed control, automatic temperature control, "instant" window defoggers and tilting steering wheels fit into the comfort and convenience classification.

You can add a touch of luxury by selecting special upholstery like crushed velvet or natural leather, not to mention special colors and decor groups.

If you want to go even further and modify your standard automobile with specialized "custom" equipment beyond that offered by your car dealer, you'll find a wealth of items available at a variety of automotive stores to help you create a truly personalized car in appearance and-or performance.

You may want to add a distinctive look to your car by selecting a set of custom wheels. Wire or mag (racing type) wheels impart a sporty flair to your car, and are produced in standard and wide sizes that permit the use of wide tires for additional traction and an "action look."

If you're performance minded, you'll find a wide selection of sophisticated ignition components and specialized engine parts. Items such as high energy ignition systems can further reduce exhaust emissions, and components like dual exhaust systems can help improve your fuel economy. Various suspension options such as heavy-duty sway bars and adjustable shock absorbers also can be installed which will personalize a car's handling characteristics to satisfy a driver's individual requirements.

The list of optional equipment is constantly changing in response to consumer demand. Many items that were optional or simply not available twenty years ago, have become standard equipment on some models as demand has increased. With some of today's options expected to become standard equipment on future models, think how exciting tomorrow's options might be.

Concert by Cecelia Society

The Cecilia Society will present the final concert of its ninety-eighth season on Sunday, June 16, at 8 p.m. in Sanders Theatre, Cambridge. Donald Teeters will conduct the Chorus of the Cecilia Society in a program of richly varied unaccompanied works including the Missa Pange Lingua of Josquin, Trois Chansons by Ravel, and Schoenberg's Friede auf Erden.

Tickets are available at Holyoke Center in Cambridge, at the door the night of the concert, or through Barbara Brown (729-2730), 166 Highland avenue, Winchester, Mass. 01890.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Annette M. Griggs of Lincoln in the County of Middlesex representing that she hold as tenant in common one undivided half part or share of certain land lying in Newton in said County and briefly described as follows:

A certain parcel of land with buildings thereon situated in that part of Newton called Newton Upper Falls, abd being Lot 19 and the northerly half of Lot 20, as shown on a "Plan of Lots at Newton Upper Falls belonging to Louis F. Abbot", Aspinwall & Lincoln, C.E.'s dated November 1, 1899, duly recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Plan Book 121 Plan 30, more particularly bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the easterly side of Oak Street, at the corner of land now or late of George Pettee; thence running

SOUTHERLY on said Oak Street, forty five (45) feet to land now or late of Ida M. Chadwick, thence turning and running

EASTERLY on said Chadwick's land, one hundred ten (110) feet to Lot 17 as shown on said plan; thence turning and running

NORTHERLY on Lot 17 and Lot 18, forty seven and 87-100 (47.87) feet to said land of Pettee; and thence turning and funning

WESTERLY on said Pettee's land, one hundred ten and 4-100 (110.04) feet to said Oak Street.

Containing according to said plan five thousand one hundred and eight (5,108) square feet of land more or less.

Setting forth that he desires that all of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than Thirty-five thousand dollars, and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

Privacy Commission legislative package for 1975

Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton) and Sen. Chester Atkins (D-Acton), co-chairmen of the Special Legislative Commission on Privacy, were recently commended by Gov. Francis Sargent on the work the commission has done.

The work cited relates to two hearings recently held by the Legislative Commission on May 3 and 11 and a draft bill now being studied by the commission.

At the two hearings the commission heard testimony criticizing the need for and desirability of implementing a computerized criminal offender record-information system and cautioning the Office of Human Services in setting up its central registry for child-abuse cases.

Letters sent to the commission from Senators Ted Kennedy and Sam Ervin, Cong. Robert Drinan, Cong. Joseph Moakley and gubernatorial candidate Michael Dukakis all praised its effort in establishing the first legislative commission dedicated solely to questions of personal privacy.

Testimony was also received with respect to a bill under consideration by the commission to ensure fair information practices. Dukakis predicted that if the commissions' bill is adopted, "It will provide us with a code of fair practices for information-keepers, built-in safeguards in state-level information systems, and a stste government accountable for what information is collected, how long it is kept and for what purposes it is used. Even more important, we will know that each information system in existence in the Commonwealth will have, in time, the necessary safeguards to protect the individual's rights to privacy."

The Commission plans to file the proposed bill in the 1975 legislative session along with a package of other bills on privacy. Other areas include: credit data banks, uses of the Social Security number and student records.

"A greater public awareness of the problems which exist under present record-keeping practices," Mofenson said, "will provide a better-informed and vigilant public. The erosion of our most fundamental right—the right of privacy—will continue to occur if we do not begin to safeguard automated and manual personal data systems."

Country Players to vie for honors at drama festival

The Newton Country Players will present "Eve's Complaint," a composite of scenes from comedies of William Shakespeare dominated by women, at the twenty-first annual New England Theatre Conference Drama Festival for community theatres, to be held Thursday through Sunday, May 30 to June 2, at the Spingold Theatre, Brandeis University, Waltham.

The entry is directed by Ron Reed of Newton, who is responsible also for both the commentaries and the coordination of the production. Reed is an English teacher in the Newton school system, specializing in Elizabethan literature. In his sole stage outing with the Players, he appeared in the cameo role of Bamberger in "Black Comedy."

"Eve's Complaint" will feature scenes from "As You Like It", "Midsummer Night's Dream," "The Merchant of Venice," "All's well That Ends Well"' "Taming of the Shrew" and "The Tempest." Featured will be Players stalwards Ruth Boynick, John Deming, Sheila Deming, Mikki Krassin and Soni Tick, as well as newcomer Janet Lewis, a recent graduate of Brandeis University, majoring in drama.

Twenty-one groups will vie for top honors in the Festival, with the Players, Newton's sole representative, slated to perform on Saturday evening, June 1, at the 7:30 p.m. session.

On Sunday evening, June 2, at 7:30 p.m., the four finalists, to be selected by James Dean of the Canadian Guild of Drama Adjudicators, will compete for the "Best Production" award. The winning entry will be selected by guest judge Pat Collins, former drama critic for WBZ-TV and presently hostess of "The Pat Collins Show" in New York. Host group is the Sudbury Players.

In their initial Festival attempt in 1969, the Players' entry of Van Itallie's "War" received Honorable Mention and two of the five major awards, "Best Director" by James Cooke and "Best Supporting Actress" by Patricia Pellows. As a result of their notable showing, they were invited, and accepted, to make seven quest appearances with the Entre Actors Guild at he Fenwick Theatre, Holy Cross College, Worcester.

With their condensation of Genet's "The Balcony" in 1970, the Players were selected as finalists, and the following year, they were the only group to enter an original, unproduced play into the competition.

In 1972, the Players entered an original and whimsical "who-dunnit" for youngsters, "Sam Stiller, Private Eye," staged and directed by Daniel Kosow. While not the ultimate winner, it was the first and only children's show ever selected as a finalist and Kosow was the recipient of the "Best Director" award.

Working on production are James Sloane, stzge manager, Bert Krassin, Bucky Rosenberg and Gene Tick, set design and construction, Sandy Deming, Mikkl Krassin and Soni Tick, set decor, Pat Cooper and Jim Sloane, lighting, and Kosow, publicity.

The festival will commence with a single session on Thursday, May 30, at 7:30 p.m., and another on Friday, May 31, at 7:30 p.m. Two sessions will be held on Saturday, June 1, the first at 1:30 p.m. and the second at 7:30 p.m., and a final session will be held Sunday afternoon, June 2, at 1 p.m. The four finalists will compete on Sunday evening, with a 7:30 p.m. curtain.

Community theatre enthusiasts and the general public are invited to attend, but are cautioned that no one will be seated during a performance. The NETC Festival registration fee is one dollar per session, while the special all-inclusive festival fee is five dollars. Admittance charge for the Sunday evening finals is $2.50.

For information concerning Players membership, people may phone 969-2665 or write P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre, 02159.

Concert on June 10

Music by New England composers of three centuries will be presented jointly by Chorus pro Musica under the direction of Alfred Nash Patterson, and its affiliate chorus, Youth pro Musica, directed by Roberta B. Humez, Monday, June 10, at 8 p.m. at Central Congregational Church, 218 Walnut Street, Newtonville.

Youth pro Musica, a chorus of children ages nine to 15 from the Greater Boston area, will perform selections from Randall Thompson's "Frostiana," Irving Fine's "Alice in Wonderland," and five canzonets by Daniel Pinkham.

Chorus pro usica will present selected songs of William Billings and Psalms of Charles IVES.

This performance, marking the conclusion of the 1973-74 concert season for both choruses, may be of particular interest to families with children.

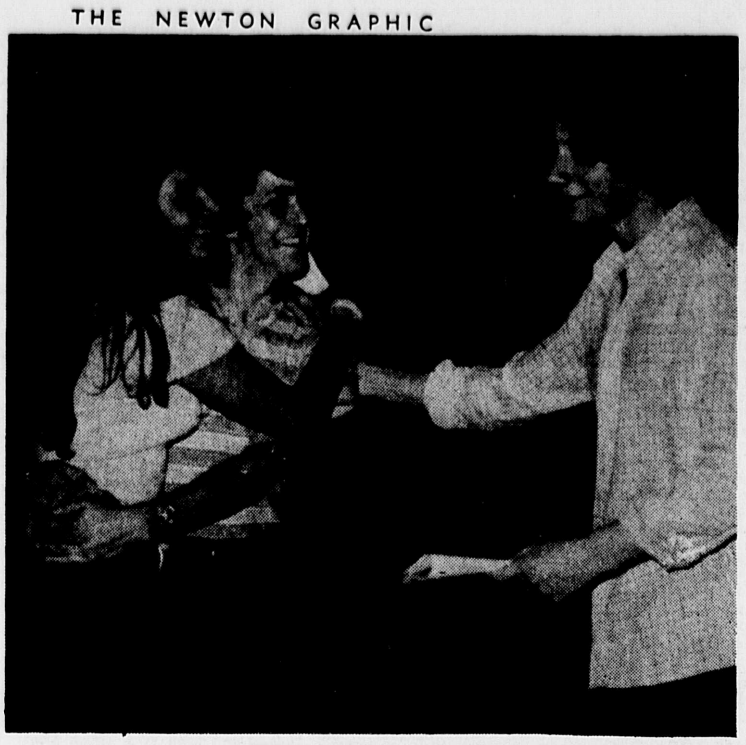

The concert is open to the public free of charge.

Also program, Angleo Urso; membership, Gertrude Konetzny; exhibits, Sally Fox; publicity, Margaret Small, Leonard Walton and Eugene Faucher; hospitality, Leona Monto, Martha Shannon and Beatrice Herwitz; critique nights, Eileen Enright and Henry Schoenberg; and paint-outs, Janet Holly and Gertrude Konetzny.

Students to perform "As You Like It"

Students of Meadowbrook Junior High School, Newton, will perform Shakespeare's "As You Like It" Friday and Saturday evenings, June 7 and 8 in the school's auditorium.

The performance will begin at 7:30 p.m. Admission is $.99, and tickets may be purchased in advance by calling the school, 332-3745.

The large cast is headed by Larry Sloan as Orlando, Richard Brodie as Jacques, Susan Israel and Larue Sandler alternating as Rosalind, Susan Zeiger and Naomi Berkovits alternating as Celia, and Jeff Berman as Touchstone. The play is being directed by Mrs. Muriel Siegle.

"As You Like It" is a light comedy of love set for the most part in an idyllic Forest of Arden far from the artificiality of the court from which Duke Senior has been banished by his harsh brother Frederick. There in the forest, the duke and his loyal followers "live like the old Robin Hood of England . . . and fleet the time carelessly as they did in the golden world."

The main plot deals with noble young Orlando and Rosalind, the duke's daughter, who have fallen in love but are immediately separated because each has been forced to flee the court. Orlando is escaping a vengeful brother and Rosalind her angry uncle, Frederick. Unknown to each other, they both take refuge in the Forest of Arden. The humorous working out of their romance is enlivened by the presence in the forest of other characters whose affairs provide variety and additional humor. At the end of the play, not only are Rosalind and Orlando predictably united, but they are also joined by three other happy couples, all of whom are blessed by Hyman, the Greek god of marriage, whose unexpected appearance adds a touch of the supernatural to the play's ending.

Ingman, on leave of absence from his post as lecturer in foundation studies at the Doncaster College of Art in Yorkshire, England, is currently teaching painting and drawing at Brookline High School. He has had several exhibitions in his native land including showings at the Serpentine and Ambience Galleries in London and at the Third International Print Biennale at Bradford where he was awarded a purchase prize by the Cartwright Hall Museum.

Most recently, his work was shown at the Yorkshire Arts Council in Tel Aviv. The artist is represented in the permanent collection of the Graves Gallery, Sheffield as well as in private collections both in England and Belgium.

Antonia Kormos of Rhode Island is a self-taught weaver with many awards to her credit including two honorable mentions and one second prize from the R.I. Association of Craftsmen and a first prize in wall hangings from the N.E. Weaver's Seminar, Amherst, Mass.

Gallery hours are Tuesday through Saturday from 10:30 to 5 p.m. For further information on the current exhibit, people may call 969-6264.

Margie O'Donnell gets GBYSO award

The Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestras has announced that Margy O'Donnell, a senior at Newton North High School, and a member of GBYSO for six years, has been awarded the Robert Hardt Memorial Award this year.

The Robert Hardt Memorial Fund was established last season to honor the memory of Robert Hardt, a member of GBYSO for four years and former resident of Needham, who passed away on March 24, 1973.

Ms. O'Donnell, an oboist, has had an outstanding record of accomplishment with GBYSO. She has performed some of the most challenging solo parts, displaying fine musicianship and uncommon reliability. Margy has been a principal player with GBYSO for four years and has been a member of the GBYSO woodwind quintet for one year.

In addition to being a member of GBYSO, Margy has been a member of the Newton High School Band and Orchestra for three years, a member of the New England Conservatory woodwind quintet for one year and a member of the Newton High School woodwind quintet during her senior year. Margy has also iven frequent concerts at women's clubs, music clubs and churches in the greater Boston area. For two years she has played in the District and All-State Bands and Orchestras.

In addition to the Robert Hardt Memorial Award, Margy has earned a certificate of merit from Newton High School and an award from the Newtonville Women's Club.

Contributions to the Robert Hardt Memorial Fund are welcome and may be sent in care of the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestras, 855 Commonwealth venue, Boston, Massachusetts, 02215.
